Dr. Wightman said that he had communicated with ten boys who were not members of bowling club and he was sure that they would identify themselves with the club. They would be admitted at a fee of five dollars which would include membership in the bowling club.

It was moved by Mr. R. Cottrell, seconded by Mr. D. Belleghem that the matter be left in the hands of the executive and that the president be empowered to call a meeting at an early date. Last evening was decided upon as most suitable for the meeting.

It was moved by Mr. D. Belleghem seconded by Mr. W S Robinson that the Bowlers' excursion to Cobourg be made an annual event and that Messrs. Lang, T. Pratt, O. Morphet and Dr. Wightman be a committee to look after the necessary arrangements for this year.

A vote of thanks moved by Mr. R M Waddell and seconded by Mr. M. Kirn, was tendered to the retiring officers for their good work during the year and also to the Press for the excellent way the games were reported. The thanks of the club were also extended to Mr. J. Crane for the use of the room in the Dominion Bank.

It was suggested by Mr. Pratt, the season be opened with the President's and Vice President's game and that a little club bonspiel be held. The matter was left with the executive.

The meeting then adjourned.

Tennis Court May Be Fitted Up Adjoining The Bowling Green

Mr. H. B. Collier, Secretary of the Peterborough Tennis Association, has received a letter from Mr. W. F. Summerhayes, the well-known Toronto tennis enthusiast, enclosing the constitutions [illegible] number of Toronto clubs. In his letter Mr. Summerhayes says: "Twenty-one years ago was my first year in Canada. The year of my arrival from England I was a member of the Osgoode Hall Lawn Tennis Club, who paid a Saturday to Monday visit to Peterborough. We met and, I think were beaten by the Peterborough Club, but I had one of the most pleasant experiences of my life in the genuine hospitality shown us by our Peterborough friends. I am glad to see that you are taking an interest in the game. I am told you have an enormous amount of undeveloped tennis talent. I can quite believe it and in the interest of the game we should like to do anything, if we can, to help you.

If, when you are organized, you would like a visit from Toronto I think I can arrange a team either of men or ladies or both to visit Peterborough or our tennis courts would be at your disposal if you come to the city.

The name of Sidney Medd is like a breath of salt air to me. Ten years ago he was one of our crack teenis players in Toronto, and with Ernie Patterson and myself did something to keep lawn tennis alive in this city.

Muskrats Very Scarce This Year Trappers Returning Without Any

The muskrats are very scarce this year. Messrs Dan and Albert Wheting, of Chemong Village, returned this week from Emily Creek, where they had ben in search of the muskrat, but they came home without any. Mr. Whetung stated that the muskrats were all dead, having died last winter for want of water. The marshes where the muskrats built their houses last fall have all dried up. The dead muskrats can be seen floating in the creek.

There will not be more than one-quarter of the number of rats caught this year. All the trappers report a great scarcity and their harvest will not at all be a large one.

OBITUARY

MRS. BEATRICE CHISHOLM EARDLEY-WILMOT

Deep and profound regret weakly expresses the general feeling over the announcement of the sudden death of Mrs. K Eardley-Wilmot, which took place at Perth on Wednesday afternoon, and her bereaved husband has the most earnest sympathy of the wide circle of friends he and Mrs. Wilmot made during their years of residence in Peterborough. In social life Mrs. Wilmot's excellent qualities won her a warm place. Her private life was marked by many and constant acts of kindness to the suffering and sorrowing as heartily and lovingly done as they were unostentatious. She was actively interested in church work in St. John, of which her husband was a warden. Especially in connection with the musical services of the church, was Mrs. Wilmot's exceptional musical ability and enthusiasm effectively exhibited. In recognition of her church associations a beautiful floral cross was sent on behalf of the congregation of St. John to Guelph, where the remains were interred this afternoon. Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot, whose maiden name was Beatrice Chisholm, was born in Guelph. Mr. D. Hughes Charles and Mr. L. M. Hayes went to Guelph yesterday afternoon to be present at the funeral.

SAMUEL McKEE

After a brief illness extending through one week, dread pneumonia claimed another victim in the person of Mr. Samuel McKee, who passed away on Good Friday night at the residence of his sister, Mrs. H. Bradburn, 771 Water street. He was a son of the late William McKee, of Smith Township. Early in life he learned the dry goods business with the late W. G. Thompson of this city. Subsequently he went into business in Stratford and later was a member of the firm of Carson and McKee, of Listowel, where for many years they conducted a successful general business.

Recently the late Mr. McKee has been living in private with his sister, Mrs. H. Bradburn, 771 Water street. In religion he was a member of the Methodist Church.

The funeral will be private and from the above named residence. The deceased is mourned by one daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Large, Listowel; two brothers, John, of St. Thomas, and William, of Molesworth, and one sister, Mrs. H. Bradburn.

EDITH MILLER, CONTRALTO, COMING TO PETERBOROUGH

An event of more than usual significance will be the visit to Peterborough of the great contralto, Miss Edith J. Miller. Arrangements have been made for the appearance here about the end of April of Miss Miller, supported by a most competent artistic entourage. Miss Miller, after achieving conspicuous concert stage triumphs, in the Old Country, is coming to this side for her first Canadian Grand Concert tour. She is a Canadian girl with a contralto voice of peculiar richness of quality and of phenomenal compass, which she uses in harmony with the canons of the vocal art. She has won great applause in the Mother Land, having been especially distinguished with royal favour. Some idea is to be formed of her place as an artist, when it is stated that she leads a company composed of vocalists like Alfred Heather, principal tenor, Westminster Abbey; Thorpe Bates, England's most popular baritone; Miss Maud Bell, cellist, whose playing created a furore in London, and Harold Craxton, conductor and accompanist.

Her Limbs Ached—Worn Out Tired—Headaches, Dizziness

Vitol Cured Her

For years I have been a great sufferer. Life to me was a burden, my limbs ached, I always felt tired and worn out, had no ambition. People could not sympathize with me. In fact at times they imagined it was put on, or a matter of fancy with me, but one who suffered the same as I did knows exactly what it means. I would work when I should be in bed. I was weak, seemed to be void of strength; life seemed to have left me to a certain extent. I have often felt as if I would give the world if I could feel buoyant and cheerful, really so. I often had to force what little cheerfulness I did have. I was urged to try Vitol, and, my what a change; to-day I am the woman I used to try and picture. I am happy, cheerful and strong; it seems as if I had new nerves, in fact new life. Mrs. R. Simms, Newcastle, Ont. You may be strong and healthy, and buoyant if you will take Vitol. For sale everywhere. Price 50c. box or six for $2.50.

CRESSMAN'S
Department Stores
Spring Toppers and Chesterfields

THE extreme uncertainty of the 'tween season weather is very pronounced this spring. When a day comes that does not demand the use of the heavy winter coat, a topper or light weight Chesterfield should be handy to take its place; to go without would mean perhaps an unexpected cold and a disagreeable indisposition for a few days—an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Our stock comprises: black, grey and brown Toppers and Chesterfields in imported Cheviots and Vicunas—prices $18—$25. Ask to see them.

Thinking People

I believe that I am right in the conclusion that thinking people do not want bargain glasses any more than they would want nature to endow them with a bargain pair of eyes.

My work is, and always will be, just as good as I know how to make it. I must give satisfaction in order that my business may grow.

If you will favour me with your patronage, I will see to it that you pay only a fair price, and I will also promise you satisfaction, so much that you will be perfectly willing to recommend my Optical Parlour as a safe and reliable place for your friends to come in search of eye help.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

FRUIT—THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Wonderful Medicinal Value of Apples, Oranges, Figs and Prunes.

How many people realize what remarkable curative principles are contained in fruit juices. There are two—the bitter and the sweet. There is about ten times as much of the sweet as of the bitter, though the bitter principle is the one which has the curative effect on disease. Apples, oranges, figs and prunes contain the highest percentage of bitter principle and thus are the most healthful.

It was a theory of a physician in Ottawa, that if the amount of bitter principle in fruit juice could be doubled, the curative property would be increased, not twice but many times.

After many tests, this physician succeeded in forcing into the combined fruit juices an additional atom of bitter principle, and in doing so formed an entirely new compound. To the combined juices were added valuable tonics and antiseptics and the whole made into tablets.

These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the only remedy known to science that is made of fruit. The wonderful cures in cases of Stomach Trouble, Biliousness, Constipation, Rheumatism, Chronic Headaches and Neuralgia, Kidney, Liver and Skin Diseases are due solely to the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" contain the medicinal properties of fruit. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. Their Midnight Meeting.

By GEORGE HAMPDON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

She waited until the house had grown still, and then, slipping from the bed where, wakeful and restless, she had been tossing for an hour, she proceeded cautiously to the stairs and down to the library floor.

Her acquaintance with the house dated back only as far as the day before, when she received the telegram announcing the death of her uncle, Grover Pelham.

Dreading a stumble over an uncharted piece of furniture, she exercised the utmost care. As she parted the portieres of the library door she became conscious of another presence.

Waiting until her eyes accustomed themselves to the darkness, she made out the faintest suggestion of a figure kneeling at the other side of the room, and a key turning in an inner lock of the safe explained the situation well enough.

Miss Morley remembered that the electric light button was close to where she stood. As one hand straightened out horizontally toward the intruder she flashed on the light with the other.

The burglar turned with a whirl and wilted before the eloquence of the outstretched revolver and Miss Morley's dominating pose.

"Who are you?" the burglar demanded sullenly, peering intently in his effort to recognize the figure almost wholly enveloped by the curtains.

"A guest here," Miss Morley returned, with a curious interest in so much—or so little—of the burglar's face as the mask permitted her to see. "Who are you, and what are you doing in Mr. Pelham's safe?"

"Just taking the dimensions to fill it up with stocks and bonds as a surprise party for his heirs," was the sarcastic response.

"Ah! You know the old gentleman is dead, then?" Miss Morley asked.

"Yes, praise be! And if you had minded your own business I would have managed a nice little squaring of accounts with him."

"What did he ever do to you?" Miss Morley demanded, a little resentment in her voice as she let the curtains fall away and stood forward in all her gracious charm before the disguised intruder.

Instead of answering, the burglar as the light fell full upon her, dropped back a pace in manifest surprise. She waited, and in his turn he startled her.

"Helen Morley!" was all he said, in the quiet tones of one who is too greatly astonished to give way to emotion.

Seeming then to understand the folly of a mask, he removed it and crumpled it into his pocket. The two faced each other in silence.

The man and the girl had looked forward once to a life together. He was cashier of a bank until some funds went wrong and the law sent him to prison for five years. After that he never came back to her, though she heard of him drifting about the country.

"John Gorham! And this is the way you come back!" the girl just whispered. "What—what did he ever do to you?" she demanded again mechanically and as though she were gaining time.

"I—I never took that money," Gorham declared. "Grover Pelham hated me because my mother did not care for him as he had wished. It was he who managed my undoing—to punish my dead father, he said. You didn't know that?"

The girl shook her head. The revolver hand dropped down upon the table, and she half averted her face and feverish eyes.

"I was not imbittered at first," Gorham went on, "even though I spent so long a time in prison. I began life over again until Pelham found it out. Then it seemed as if every Tom, Dick and Harry had learned my story and was being paid to tell it over and over again.

"I simply had to give up trying to earn a living that way. Besides, I had been circumstantially taught to believe that you had lost all faith in me. That was easy to believe," he added in a hard tone, "since I never received a letter from you."

"The letters were written," she told him quickly, "many a one."

"More of Pelham's work, then," Gorham ventured. "But I had given up. When I heard of the old gentleman's death I decided to come around and clean out his safe. I thought I would keep on at that business until I had a competence; then I could retire and live the independent life possible of a man of means.

"That's all there is to the story," the burglar concluded, "except that it was a pity for you to stumble on to the last chapter. That's the way a girl reads a story, though."

The girl comprehended from his manner that he would make no advances, that he would not even presume upon their one time friendship.

"It is strange to find you here," she said; "it is strange to be here myself. I learned yesterday that my uncle had made little or no provision for myself and my mother in his will. It distressed me so that I could not sleep.

"I came down here to see for myself, and if it were true that we had been left to the same old miserable struggle with poverty I—oh, I don't know what I might have done. I am sure I meant to steal if I found anything to steal. I wouldn't much care for myself, but mother"—

The girl had almost reached the point of tears when, with a sudden effort, she roused herself and turned toward the burglar, who stood impassively waiting for developments.

"Like yourself," the girl boldly admitted, "I meant to fall back on this safe for help. You got there first. Now I can send you back to jail, but I don't know," she mused, as if in doubt. "My conscience would never be clear if I sent you to prison for getting up earlier than I did myself."

The burglar looked up with a light of grim sympathy in his eyes as the girl fingered the revolver. He did not seem to be dismayed by the heartlessness she evinced.

"Yet it seems to me," Miss Morley suddenly announced, facing the burglar squarely and with a little color, "that you and I are a pair of weak-kneed cry-babies. We have experienced a few of the world's bitterly disappointed experiences, and we both whine. Don't you suppose that—that we could help each other to stand and stick it out—pool our courage, so to speak?"

Wonderingly the burglar looked at her for a moment as though he were fearful of some unfathomed and cruel humor. He had let himself drop down in a huddled heap beside the safe.

Now he lifted himself upright and was about to advance a step when she stayed him with uplifted hand.

"Helen," he implored, "will you, after all I have been through—will you literally cast your fortunes with me? I promise that you shall never have occasion again to be ashamed of me."

"No, no!" the girl besought with a haste almost hysterical. "We'll draw up a compact to go into partnership of friends. We have saved each other from a crime, and we will stand by each other, and we'll strike this off the minutes before we adjourn. How say you?"

"And if the fight be a good one?" Gorham asked softly. "Will you have confidence then in me? Oh, heaven!"

With a resolute movement he stepped forward to touch her. Hitherto her manner had been half playful, half ironical, but it was altogether to hide her deeper feelings. With an effort that brought her figure splendidly erect she warded him off.

"No, no, no!" she commanded. "Not here and now. No; but promise me, John, promise me here and now, that you and I part tonight members of a compact to fight the fight of righteousness, no matter how hard it may be. If—if—if you care to see me," she faltered, "you will know how to find me. But now—nothing but your promise, and then—go!"

He looked at her steadily while he breathed once or twice. It seemed as if he would defy her and take her to himself in spite of what she might do, but finally he turned to the open library door. At the moment of passing out he turned and looked at her once again. Neither spoke, and she hardly seemed to know the exact instant of his leaving. She thought he was surely gone, however, when he stepped back into the room.

"Helen," he began, and she knew that he would have his question answered, "when I can come back to you able honestly to take care of you, may I—come?"

He heard her softly speak her answer, and with a gesture of gladness he was gone certainly this time.

The safe was still open, and some of the papers lay as the burglar had dropped them. Helen turned to these and began restoring them to their former order.

"I pray he will come back again to me," she breathed. "It may be a long while to wait until he can, but poverty and disgrace—nothing matters if only we may have some happiness at last, even the happiness that is nearly all hardship."

She had the will in her hands, and, in spite of herself, she opened and read it. Before she finished she stood erect in her excitement. Folding the paper, she placed it in the safe and closed the iron door. Then she turned back toward her room.

"He is coming back when he can honestly take care of me," she told herself joyfully, "and all of Uncle Grover's money is willed to him in compensation for all he has suffered. He will soon be back for me."

She could not sleep any better even now, but the restlessness had given place to a peace of mind and a perfect happiness that were very good.

The Abbot of Fools.

The abbot of fools, who was also known in different parts as the archbishop or bishop of fools, the abbot of misrule, the lord of misrule, the master of unreason and L'Abbe de Liesse, was the person who used to superintend the saturnalia which were common in different parts of Europe from the fifth to the sixteenth century. The feast of fools was an imitation of the heathen saturnalia and, like this, was celebrated in December; hence the confusion of ideas which has arisen in mixing this feast with the ordinary Christmas revels. The chief celebration of the feast of fools fell upon Innocents' day, but the whole revels lasted from Christmas to the last day of Epiphany. The young people generally elected a leader, who went by one of the names quoted, and he was consecrated with many grotesque and ridiculous ceremonies.

England, Scotland, France and Germany all practiced these wild saturnalia, and it was with great difficulty that they were finally abolished. The abbot was not responsible for any trick or practical joke played on the rest of the community by his orders, and the victims had simply to "grin and bear it." In the temple (law headquarters, London) the office of the lord of misrule seems to have been a coveted one, for we read that it was only given to young men of good family.—London

SONG OF THE WIRES.

Why the Humming of Telegraph Poles Attracts Siberian Bears.

What makes the song of the wires? Is it always the wind that plays this endless harp which stretches above and at the side of roads and railroads? Investigators think not, says the Chicago News.

Every one has doubtless heard the low, musical hum resulting from placing the ear near a telegraph pole. Children are often told that this is due to the passing of messages. There is no foundation for this statement, however. It is said that in distant Siberia bears are attracted by the humming at the base of the telegraph poles, which even there stretch their copper threads above the land. The bears mistake the sound that reaches their ears for the humming of bees and climb the poles to look for honey. Great stones have to be piled about the base of the poles to prevent the animals from uprooting them.

The wind is the most frequent player of this novel instrument, it is true, but how account for the fact that the sound continues when the wind has died out? A recent French investigator thinks it is caused by the contracting and expanding of the wires and the consequent rubbing on the glass insulators, as if you slid your finger around the rim of a thin glass tumbler. Another scientist has asserted that electric waves cause the droning music, but he has failed to say how this is accomplished.

ABOUT BEN FRANKLIN.

When a Mere Child He Proposed to His Father a Plan to Save Time.

In the county of Northamptonshire, England, there is a little place called Ecton, and on one of the farms near many, many years ago a family called Franklin lived and worked.

One of the Franklins, being young and adventurous, left his old British home and came to America, which was then quite a new country, and in due course, having married, he became the father of seventeen children. One of these children was called Benjamin.

The elder Mr. Franklin was a very religious man, and he brought up his seventeen children in the same way.

It was always his custom to say grace at every meal, though often there were only herrings to eat.

Indeed, Mr. Franklin used to buy a barrelful of herrings at a time, as it was a deal cheaper than buying a few every day.

Now, Benjamin, being then but a boy of ten, thought it a great waste of time saying grace over every herring.

So one day, when he was very hungry and his father was going to ask a long blessing, as usual, little Benjamin looked up and said, "Father, wouldn't you save a lot of time if you said grace just once over the barrel of herrings instead of doing it at every meal?"

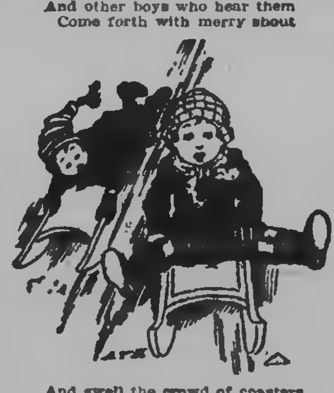
Father did not agree with that, but he must have smiled at his son's idea.

Benjamin Franklin, though he was at first only a printer's boy, became a great statesman.

Winter Sport.

Coasting down the hillside
Are little Bill and Joe,
Going like "greased lightning"
O'er the glistening snow.

And other boys who hear them
Come forth with merry shout



And swell the crowd of coasters
Till the whole town is turned out.

And there they go so gayly
By moon's most glorious light,
And each dear happy youngster
Wishes he might coast all night.

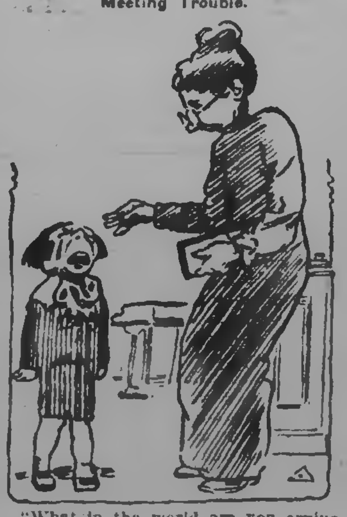
Meeting Trouble.



"What in the world are you crying about, Johnny?" asked the teacher kindly.

"You said that if the earth was flattened out the sea would be two miles deep all over it."

"That's nothing for you to feel bad over."

"But—but, teacher, I can't swim."

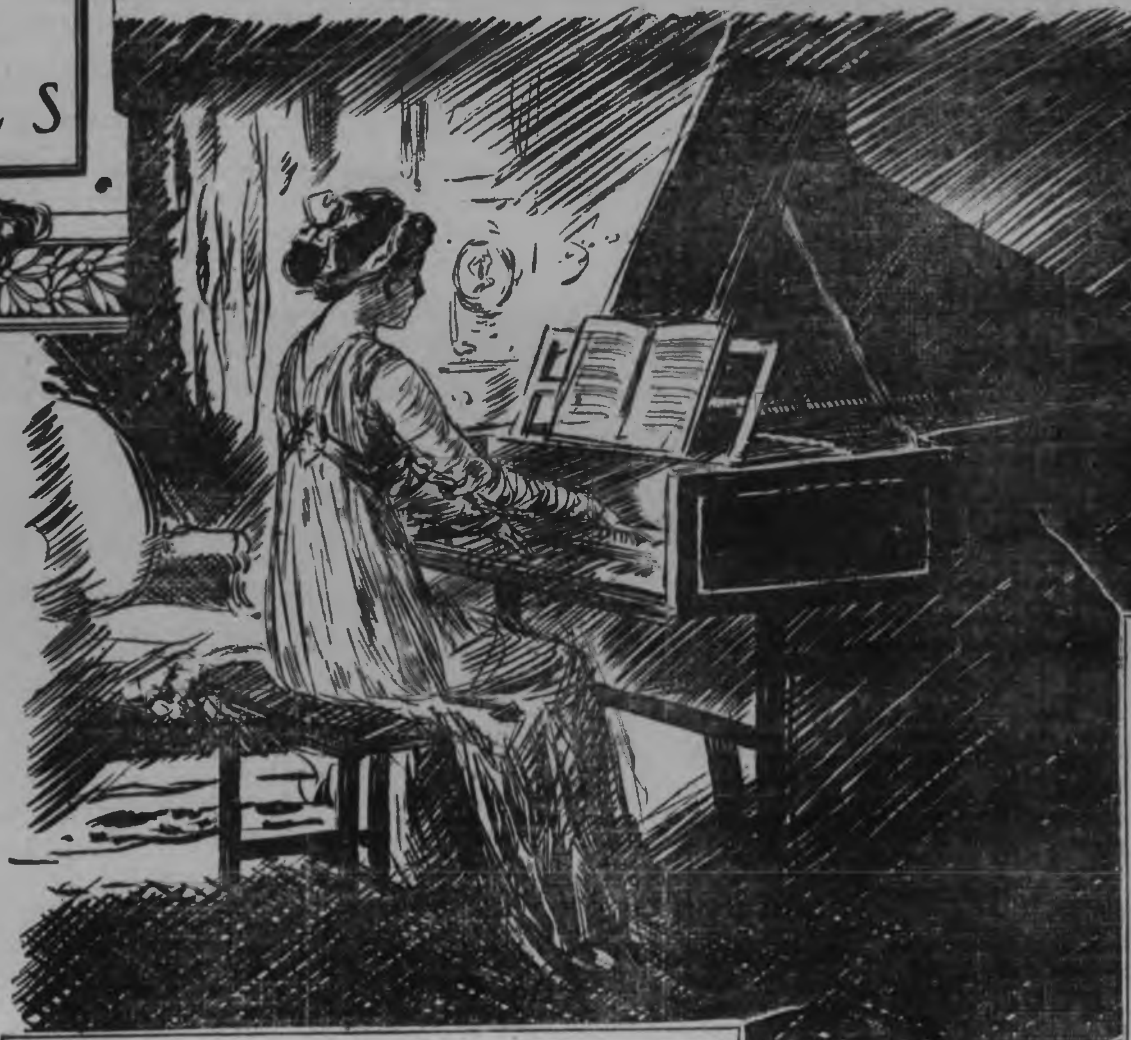
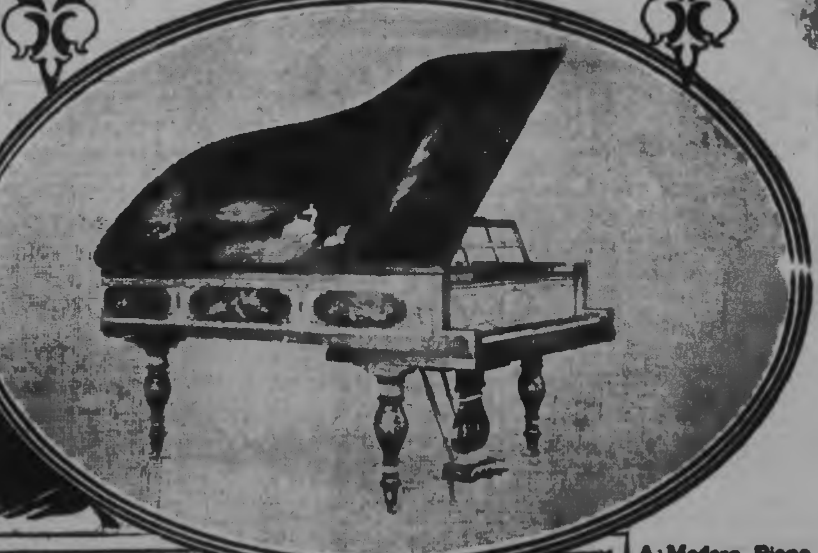
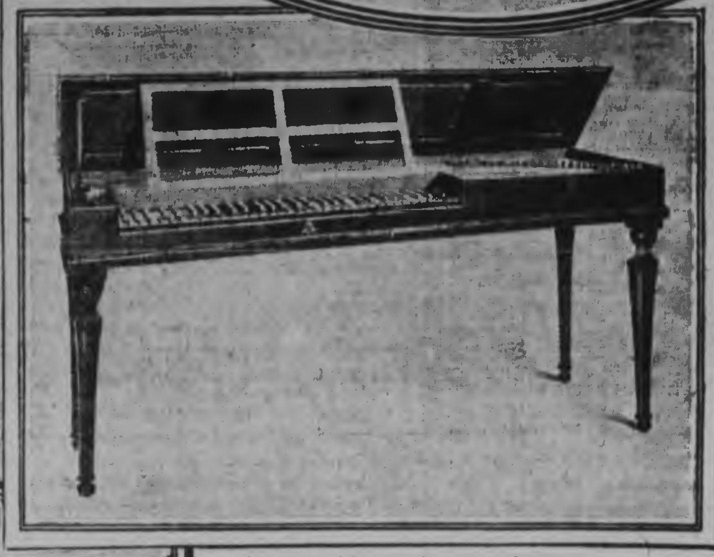
LEARNING TO PLAY OLD FASHIONED MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS





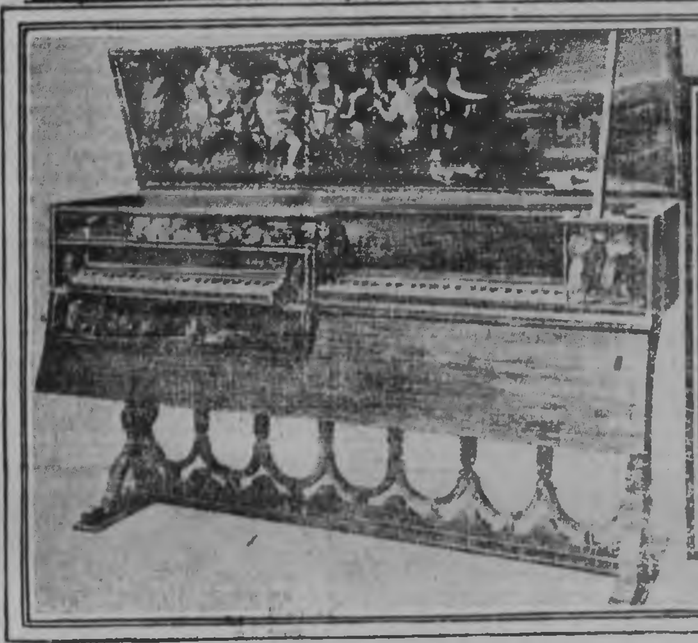
A Modern Piano Built After Colonial Designs.

Courtesy Steinway & Sons.

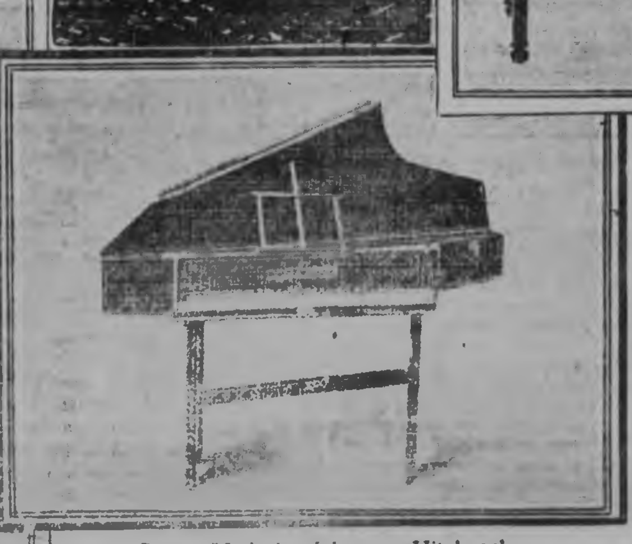


Clavichord Made by Schiedmäyer in Neustadt an der Aisch, 1789

From the M. Steinert Collection of Keyed and Stringed Instruments. Copyright 1893 by C. F. Tretbar.



A Sixteenth Century Double Spinet Made by Hans Ruckers, of Antwerp



Spinet Made by Johannes Hitchcock. London. About 1750

QUAINT musical instruments of a period preceding the advent of the grand and upright pianos are being studied now by the young girl who is bent on broadening her knowledge of music and her powers of appreciating the compositions of great masters. Creators having reached the highest point in the perfection of the mechanism and tone of the modern musical instrument, and artists having learned how to understand and enjoy masterpieces through this medium, the time seems to have come when real music lovers revert, and willingly too, to the days of the tinkling harpsichord, the gentle spinet and the well tempered clavichord.

The old fashioned music played on old fashioned instruments has a certain sweetness and delicacy that is not found in the modern interpretation, as any one knows who has contrasted the same piece on the different instruments. Opinions differ as to the superiority of tone, but for the sake of widening one's musical horizon it is an excellent idea to learn something about the structure and playing of these instruments of a century or more ago.

Within the last few months a decided impetus has been given to this branch of musical instruction by lectures at the various girls' schools. The best teachers and lecturers have been asked to talk about and demonstrate the beauties of the harpsichord and clavichord particularly, while other less familiar instruments have sometimes been included in the course. Of course, it has not been possible in many cases to give individual instruction in the playing of a Bach fugue or a Mozart nocturne on the instrument for which these composers wrote the music. There would be disadvantages at the outset, for the reason that the revival is still in its infancy and there are not enough harpsichords and clavichords to go around even among the schools, much less among the students. But lectures have helped wonderfully to place this fascinating old music before young girls and to interest them in the different instruments. Heretofore they have had to depend on museums and private collections for a more intimate knowledge of the sounds and tones of antique instruments, but now they can hear them as rendered by modern reproductions, and the modern reproductions are well worth possessing, both on account of their exquisite tones and their graceful lines, for, with the discrimination of the connoisseur, only the most charming types are copied.

BOTH the old and the modern harpsichord are being made now by more than one piano manufacturer. The modern one is practically a grand piano, possessing the outlines and dimensions of a harpsichord, but with a longer keyboard, and this a single instead of a double one, such as many of the old instruments had. The tone also is more modern than antique, and it is produced by the mechanism installed in all modern pianos. The old style harpsichord is an extremely delicate instrument. In fact, it requires tuning each time that it is used, and when an instrument of modern make is transferred from college lecture hall to college lecture hall it must be accompanied by an expert tuner, one who understands the adjustment of the delicate mechanism, and each key must be properly tuned and adjusted before the instrument can be played on. This great delicacy prevents the harpsichord from being carried about on concert tours as much as could be wished by those who are interested in its revival.

The old harpsichord had a compass of four or five octaves, sometimes six. Each key had from one to four strings, and often there was an extra string keyed an octave or two above the others. Frequently there were two keyboards, one for producing a delicate and soft tone and the other for loud tones. This tone was produced by plucking or snapping the strings by leather or quill points, which were set in jacks connected by levers with the keys. The tone of the old harpsichord was rather weak and had a tinkling quality.

OLD time harpsichords have given us a wealth of ideas in decorations as well as in lines. Many of these highly prized instruments were elaborately decorated with Japanese pictures or with French designs, while an inlay of tortoiseshell or pearl enhanced the borders, and through a study of these there has gradually come about a decided revolution in the decoration of modern pianos and reproductions of antiques. A highly polished ebony or rosewood case no longer harmonizes with our present day surroundings, and so pianos as well as modern harpsichords are being built and decorated to correspond with the rooms in which they are to be installed. Period furnishing and the modern idea of adhering closely to that which belongs strictly to a particular time is probably responsible for this revolution in the outward form of musical instruments. A few years ago a piano was more often a blot in the decorative scheme of a room than an adornment, and decorators soon began to find fault with this discordant note.

A Colonial room, for example—and there is hardly one girl out of fifty who does not love white enamelled woodwork and trim with Colonial striped wall paper and mahogany furnishings for her sitting room—is not a fitting background for an upright or grand piano of dark polished wood. Such a piece of furniture simply does not belong there. A compromise [illegible] made at first by having the piano case done in white enamel to match the trim, but, granting that this is an improvement, does it not leave much to be desired?

Mr. J. Burr Tiffany, head of the art department of one of our largest piano houses, has had this to say about the adaptability of Colonial art to modern usage: "Let us peep through the keyhole of one of those stately old Colonial mansions, with its broad hall running straight through the house, opening into spacious rooms each furnished in accord with the period, with delicately constructed and carved furniture, spinets or harpsichords, with damask draperies, family portraits and quaint old mirrors adorning the walls, and with mantels bordering the fireplaces. The host in knee breeches, silk stockings and ruffled shirt and the hostess in loose flowing gown and powdered hair, are dancing the minuet to the music of one of their quaint old instruments—does it not present a picture both artistic and beautiful?

"NOW, suppose the Colonists could have had the modern grand piano, with its perfection of tone, to furnish the music instead of the superficial mandolin-like scratch of the spinets and harpsichords, beautifully decorated as they often were. Would it not have been a startling revelation of music?

"Colonial houses are being built and furnished every day. Is it not incongruous, then, to have the usual piano of to-day, with its massive form and rather severe lines, placed in one of these delicately refined and artistic Colonial rooms? Is there not something lacking which spinets and harpsichords generally possessed, such as a lightness and grace of form which was heightened by the slender wooden legs, carved with great refinement, and by the cases which were beautifully decorated with oil paintings or chaste inlays? Why are these early instruments sought by persons of culture and admirers of the antique? Is it not for their beauty of construction, for their picturesqueness and well balanced lines?"

This is the secret of the revival. This century can borrow from previous ones, from the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth, and borrow to advantage, and it does. And where it is impossible to get hold of a really old harpsichord for present day purposes, it is almost the same thing to reproduce antiquity faithfully where desired, or improved upon where improvement can be made.

THE young girl of to-day studies art and she learns quite a little about decoration, so that she finds a great deal of pleasure in planning the decoration of her own harpsichord or clavi*chord if she does not choose one already* finished. Genuine antiquities are rare, and where special instructions as to color and style of case are not to be considered, a regulation style is offered, one that will harmonize in almost any room, and one that is specially suited to the study hall or school music room. A plain enamel, not too dark, with gold trimmings, is the most satisfactory for general purposes, but where one presides over a French sitting room and music room combined, then the decorations of the musical instrument should, by all means, follow along the lines of the French instruments.

The harpsichord is somewhat more difficult to master than the clavichord or the spinet on account of the double keyboard and the different tones. But a girl who starts with a fair knowledge of piano music and good technique can soon learn to play the harpsichord. The clavichord is simpler. It has a very short keyboard and this is single, thus obviating the confusion provided by the double one. There are no pedals and, while the tones are extremely soft and low, the instrument does not get out of tune so quickly as the harpsichord. The size of the clavichord appeals at once to the young girl. It is about as long as an upright piano and not over eighteen or twenty inches deep. The rectangular body stands on four slender legs. The top lifts and is held in a slanting position by a slim wooden music rest.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE . SCHOOL GIRL

GOOD manners spring from the heart, but the manifestation of them is a matter of externals, and the face plays a most important part in the sum total of one's attractiveness.

Beauty, of course, wins its own way, even though it may not prove a lasting way. But though all may not be endowed with beauty of face or of coloring, both of which are accidents of birth, every one may have beauty of expression.

The girl who wishes to be charming—and what girl does not?—should give a considerable amount of attention to the expression of her mouth. At the beginning of things our mouths are merely little slashes—straight or curving a little, perhaps, but without definition, and of all our features it is the slowest in forming. How it is formed lies wholly with one's self. Is not that an interesting idea and something of a responsibility?

Whether your mouth be petulant, or sweet, or merry, or "set," as our grandmothers used to say, depends entirely on your disposition and the control you have over it.

Learn first of all to smile. Realize the importance of training your lips into strong, sweet curves, and teach them to respond to your intention to make them expressive. If your mouth smiles, the rest of your face will unconsciously do so and thus you become pleasing to look at.

In young girls these days there is so much of a tendency to go about frowning and wrinkling up the forehead. Even in very young girls it has grown to be such a habit that their foreheads are a fine network of lines, while some of them between the eyes have ridges which make them look as cross as the proverbial "two sticks."

They seem to think it intensifies their expression and makes them look more "interesting" to wrinkle up their faces in this way, and they do not mind the lines and creases in the least, but they will mind them woefully by and by, for once they are started they keep growing deeper and deeper until, in her early twenties such a girl looks years older than she really is and has an expression of countenance that is anything but pleasing.

If you have this bad trick go and look at yourself in the glass and when you see the lines you are so thoughtlessly forming, make up your mind you will not let them get printed into your face but that you will have there instead only what is sweet and charming. Then you will stop wrinkling your forehead and screwing up your mouth, and otherwise indulging in facial contortions, and your disposition and your manners will enormously improve because you will wish your face to reflect only what is lovely.

The sweet faced girl is a winner, and every girl in the world has within herself the power to become one. If you are sweet in face, you are sweet in manners—thoughtful, considerate, attentive, tolerant, kind and all sorts of people like you and seek your society. Is not this worth cultivating?—since cultivated it surely can be.

One does not wish to suggest complete imitation of the Cheshire cat, yet if the many cross, peevish mouthed girls one sees went about sweetly smiling instead, how radiant the atmosphere would become!

DAINTY BLANKETS FOR THE COUCH

HOW many girls have started to knit or crochet a delicate colored blanket for the foot of the couch or for some friend's baby carriage and been so long in the making that by the time the last row of stitches was finished the perishable color had become faded or perhaps slightly soiled! It is a most discouraging thing to have occur, for that blanket represents hours and hours of hard, patient work and now it will never look quite right, for once cleaned or washed worsted is never quite as nice and soft again. If not really soiled, only perhaps somewhat discolored or a trifle changed in color, the blanket can be made to look just as good as new and perhaps even prettier than it would otherwise have been by laying over it a cover of chiffon, chiffon cloth or sheerest habutai silk and binding it all around with satin. Tiny bowknots of rosettes of ribbon sewed on here and there or tied right through the blanket will add greatly to the effect also.

Most attractive blankets for the couch in a summer bedroom are made of silk lined only with one thickness of cotton wadding. These can be made any size desired, a band of lace being placed over the joining of the silk. Three widths of a narrow silk makes a good sized square, and it is not necessary for this quilt to be as large as a winter blanket. Instead of lace a band of Dresden ribbon may be used, and if colors are selected that go well together, the ribbon being used also to bind the silk all around, an exceptionally pretty blanket can be made. Quilting is not hard to do in these thin blankets, and little bowknots of ribbon add considerably to the effect.

In one blanket of a dainty flowered silk bound with a delicate shade of pale pink ribbon, tiny clusters of rosebuds were used in place of the ribbon bowknot and the effect was most charming.

For a baby's crib or carriage one width of silk with its border of ribbon will be sufficiently large, and in the plain pink or blue or white lined with one of these shades, clusters of the tiny ribbon work or artificial flowers placed at each corner will make an adorably pretty cover and a most acceptable gift.

How to Learn the Art of Pearl Stringing.

THE art of pearl stringing is by no means a difficult one to acquire, yet it is astonishing how many women there are who possessing costly necklaces and dog collars of pearls are absolutely ignorant of their care, and in the course of the year spend a very considerable sum of money in having their jewels restrung at some establishment where the very reliability of the firm renders their work decidedly expensive. And here is a chance for the daughter of the house to add a nice, large penny to her allowance. With a few lessons from a professional in the art she can quickly become an adept, and once she knows her work thoroughly she [illegible] much to recommend her above the work of even the most reliable of jewellers, where there is always a risk incurred of the necklace falling into unscrupulous hands and imitation beads being substituted for the originals of priceless worth.

Naturally where the monetary value represented is so large the greatest of carefulness and thoroughness is obligatory, but, apart from this, the stringing of pearl collars and necklaces is rather pleasurable than otherwise. The delights of the nursery games are never wholly outgrown, and this art is but bead stringing on a large and more important scale. The ordinary stringing of the beads on a silken thread is simple enough, knowledge of an exact way to do it being called into play only at the ends, where the string is to be ended off in a jewel clasp or bar. When the length must be definitely regulated for the throat of the wearer it is more difficult, however, while to string an [illegible] dog collar that is slightly shaped for the throat requires an expert hand. But expert work can soon be done by the girl who is sufficiently interested and desirous of acquiring this accomplishment to be willing to give up the necessary amount of time to the actual labor of learning the art.

The girl so fortunate as to know that when she is old enough to wear them she will be given a string of real pearls of her own could not do better than to learn now the care of such a necklace. Pearls require restringing at least every six months, and should really be examined far oftener than that, so quickly is the silken thread bound to cut. Every visit to the jeweller means just so many dollars and the giving up of the pearls for some days perhaps just at a time when it is especially desired that they may be worn. The girl who can restring her own necklace thus, in a few hours' time or can do this office for her mother or sister will many a day be thankful to have learned this art, or if she be not herself overblessed in this world's goods and is anxious to help out as best she can the money upon which she must gown herself she can perhaps add to her small store by literally making a profession of pearl stringing, and once she has proven her ability and her trustworthiness can surely get many a commission among her friends and her friends' friends that will enable her to obtain many a small luxury for herself otherwise unobtainable.

NEW IDEA FOR "FUDGE PARTY."

IF a girl wants to have a chafing dish "fudge party" and yet wants to do something a little original and different from what all the other girls have done, a very enjoyable way to do it is to use maple sugar in her chafing dish, instead of just making the usual fudge.

There are several kinds of delicious maple sugar candy that can be made in a chafing dish. The first part of the process is the same for all kinds. The maple sugar is broken into small pieces and put in the chafing dish, with a little water, the pan underneath having plenty of boiling water. The sugar is gradually melted, and it must be stirred frequently enough to keep it from sticking to the bottom of the dish. When it has become a smooth syrup comes the time when variations can be made in the kind of candy. Broken up nut meats, shredded cocoanut or whole English walnuts or almonds can be used.

If the broken up nuts (which may be of any kind) are to be used, break them into small pieces and pour them into the chafing dish as soon as the sugar is melted. Let it boil two or three minutes, then pour the hot water from the pan underneath the sugar and replace it with cold water. Now stir the melted sugar steadily as hard as possible until it sugars again and leave it to cool off.

In using shredded cocoanut the process is just the same as with broken nuts, but with the whole almonds or English walnuts it is different. These nuts must be dropped into the melted sugar, taken out with a spoon and dropped on a slightly buttered pan to cool, the sugar being stirred all the time. In fact, this stirring is a very important factor in making a success of any maple sugar candy.

Gold Toys as Suvenirs.

ONE of the latest fancies of the girls who like to make collections is for little gold or silver trinkets which look very much like miniature toys and are hung on a large split ring. Some of the girls wear these rings on the end of a long chain, as their mothers would a lorgnette or a fan.

The little trinkets can be bought in a wonderful variety of shapes and in some cases may have a real meaning and connection with some good time or some important event in their owner's life.

A girl who is making one of these collections will, if she lets the fact be known, have many pretty little trinkets brought to her by travelling friends, each one especially emblematic of some particular place. And if a young person [illegible] always interesting to collect these reminders of one's good times.

A Fur Trimmed Overcoat.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Thomas H. Saunders, barrister, of London had accepted the invitation of an old friend to dine with him at a hotel, and when he reached the place at the appointed hour and had his hat and overcoat checked he surrendered the latter with a bit of reluctance and cautioned the boy in the cloakroom to make no mistake. It was a fur trimmed overcoat and a smart looking garment, costing a tidy little sum, and its owner had a right to be proud of it, especially as several of his friends had spoken flatteringly of his personal appearance.

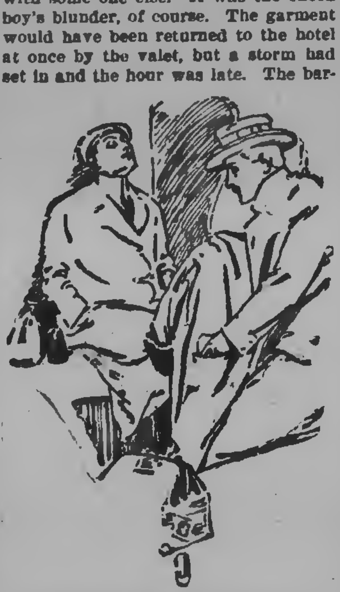
When the dinner came to an end the barrister passed in his check and received his hat and coat and wended his way to his chambers. It was a cold night, but the cold did not reach him. All the way home he hugged himself with satisfaction over that garment, and it was not until his valet had removed it that trouble showed its face.

"Excuse me, sir," said the man as he inspected the coat, "but this is not the one you wore away."

"The deuce it isn't!"

"No, sir. It seems to be of the same size and trim, but it's not the one. You have no key like this, sir, and here is a little book that was not in the pocket when you went out."

In two minutes it was settled that the barrister had exchanged overcoats with some one else. It was the check boy's blunder, of course. The garment would have been returned to the hotel at once by the valet, but a storm had set in and the hour was late. The barrister judged that the key belonged to a vault of some kind; but, as for the book, all he could make out was that it seemed to be a code for the translation of a Russian cipher.



HIS HEART ALMOST CHOKED HIM AS HE FOUND THE LITTLE BOOK.

As soon as breakfast had been disposed of Mr. Saunders himself started for the hotel to make his excuses and the exchange, but while waiting on the curb for a hansom he was notified by messenger that he must be in court at a certain hour to take care of a case he had supposed to be further down on the calendar. Instead of the hotel he went to court. The fur trimmed overcoat was hung up in the cloakroom, and three hours later, when the case was concluded, it was missing.

There had not been another fur trimmed overcoat on the hooks, and Mr. Saunders doubted if another barrister in that court had one. Some thief had managed to enter and appropriate it. The sacrilege of the act unnerved the barrister for a time, and then he went home to find that a stranger had been waiting for him for a long time. It was a Russian, and he had brought a fur trimmed overcoat with him. He introduced himself as connected with the Russian embassy, and he owned up that the little book was a new code just issued by his government and that the key opened a safe in which state secrets were kept. He had only been temporarily intrusted with the articles, and their loss might send him back to Russia and then to Siberia. The man was half frightened to death, and of course the barrister pitied him and was willing to do anything for him. The check boy had blundered and given out the wrong coat. If the book and the key had been left behind with the valet all would have been well, but they had been taken along with the overcoat, and the overcoat was now on a third man's back. When the Russian was told of its loss he wanted to commit suicide at once.

Of course the only way to do was to set the police at work, and the barrister took the initiative. One of the underofficials of the court remembered when questioned that a well dressed man, who was not recognized, but who was supposed to be a barrister, had penetrated to the cloakroom and later on had reappeared with a fur trimmed overcoat on his arm and disappeared. In leaving the court he had passed within five feet of the barrister. Stimulated by a generous reward, the police began to hunt for clews, and it was not long before they found one in a pawnshop. The thief had come in and offered to sell the coat, and, being a decent looking man, he probably did not anticipate being questioned. When asked to prove himself the owner he became confused and walked out. The pawnbroker had gone to the door after him to call an officer, but as none was at hand he had to stand and see the man disappear in the crowd. It was found that the man had tried two other shops of the same sort and failed. There were plenty of secondhand clothiers who would be willing to buy, however, and the police made their hunt in that direction. Meanwhile, four days after the stealing of the coat from the barrister, he had to make a journey down into the country for a hundred miles. When he came to take the train he found himself in a compartment with a sporty looking young man who had been drinking too much and who wanted to be too familiar all at once. Mr. Saunders had been seated in the carriage a quarter of an hour before he noticed a fur trimmed overcoat folded up and lying on the seat. The fur and the color of the cloth seemed the same as in his lost garment.

"Say, now, old feller," said the young man as he saw that the other's attention was attracted to the coat, "I want to show you that I know a thing or two. You may think there are flies on me, but you will get left."

"Well, what is it?" was asked.

The coat was shaken out and held up, and after a chuckle or two the question was asked:

"What d'ye think this is worth?"

The barrister closely inspected it, and his heart began to beat faster. That was either the coat he had left in the hotel cloakroom or the one stolen from him later on. He was ready to make a dozen affidavits to that effect.

"I should say the first cost was £3," he finally replied.

"What! Three pounds for a coat like that! Say, old man, don't you ever bet on the horses. If you don't know a horse better than you do an overcoat you'd be skinned to death. That coat, sir, never cost less than £15, and I shouldn't wonder if the figure was £20."

"But the fur is cheap and the cloth shoddy. It's all for show."

"In your eye it is. It's a fifteen pound coat—not a penny less. And what d'ye s'pose I paid for it?"

"Can't say."

"A fiver. Bought it of a fellow lodger two days ago and am going to make my old dad a present of it when I get down to Singleton. A fifteen pound coat for £5, and that's the kind of a young man I am. Have a drink? No hard feelings, you know."

"Thanks, but I never drink."

"Some folks never do. Some folks don't know when they see a good thing. Well, I'll drink alone."

That was the end of the conversation. The young man drank from his flask several times and after yawning and stretching finally fell asleep. When it was certain that he slept the barrister reached over for the coat, went through the pockets, and his heart almost choked him as he found the little book and the key. They had simply been transferred to another pocket. When a respectable barrister starts in picking pockets he may not stop there. Mr. Saunders didn't. He was to leave the train before the young man, and when he left he had the fur trimmed overcoat on his back. It went back with him to London, and within a few hours the Russian embassy had his missing key and code and everybody was happy and nobody's conscience was troubling.

"Look Out For That Little Cold"

The wise physician says "cure it before it grows large and dangerous. To-day is the time to commence treatment." The remedy, the best one, which doctors say surpasses all others, is "Nerviline." Rub it on the chest and throat, use it as a gargle, and then take 20 drops in hot water—Cold will disappear.

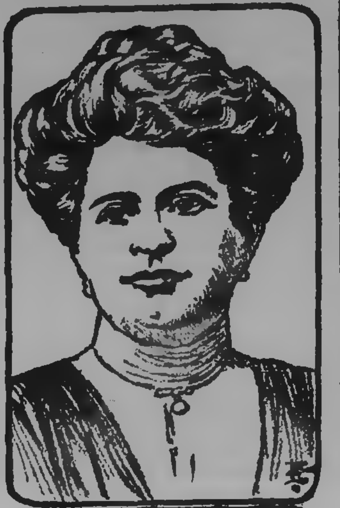
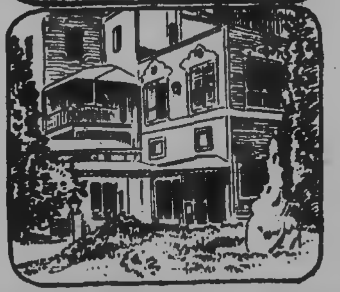
A WOMAN IRONMASTER.

Mrs. Harriet Fisher, Owner and Manager of a Large Iron Foundry.

At the historic Villa Carlotta, at Urio, on the beautiful Italian Lake Como, may be found during part of the year a very interesting American woman.

She is Mrs. Harriet Fisher, who spends her holidays entertaining guests, enjoying trips in her powerful little motor boat Carlotta and visiting the lacemakers and poor people of the district. From November until July every year Mrs. Fisher is to be found daily directing the workmen of the Fisher & Norris foundry at Trenton, N. J. For some nine years now she has filled this arduous post. Her husband, Captain Clark Fisher, chief engineer to the United States navy, managed the works. When his health began to fail his wife determined to see what she could do to assist him and to help the business at the factory.





VILLA CARLOTTA, URIO—A VIEW OF MRS. FISHER'S ROOMS AND OLD FOUNTAIN, LAKE COMO.

She visited it daily and learned how the anvils, for which the firm are famous, were made. In 1902 Captain Fisher was killed as the result of a railway accident, while his wife was so seriously injured that she lay for many weeks in the hospital between life and death. Until recently she has been forced to carry a stick to assist her in walking as a result of the accident.

"It was during my husband's illness before the railway accident that cost him his life," said Mrs. Fisher, "that I visited the anvil factory with the intention of going to work. I was primarily urged by a desire to be of some assistance to him. I quickly discovered, however, that if I desired to win the respect of the workmen I should have to make myself acquainted with the details of the business. To this end I began as a regular apprentice, learned to temper, mold vises and make rail joints and, in brief, took a complete course in every department, from melting pig iron to making bids for contracts. By this time I really loved to work with iron and steel, loved to hear the whir of machinery and the sound of the forge. A new customer gave me more joy than a diamond tiara.

"I believe in the dignity of labor and take no shame that I have worked alongside honest men who live by the sweat of their brow."

"Sweat of the brow" is no idle term, as any one who has visited the famous Eagle Anvil works at Trenton and watched this daring woman directing the biweekly casting will readily admit.

Only once has there been an accident at these pourings, and it was Mrs. Fisher's grit and great presence of mind that averted a disaster. A new hand, who regarded his mistress more as a joke than a person to be reckoned with, did not stop the breast properly, and half a ton of metal spread over the floor. It was raging hot and blinding. At once Mrs. Fisher sang out, "The first man that runs away I'll fire."

This command proved to be sufficient. The men worked with a will and in a few minutes managed to stop the flow and save further disaster. "She was a queen that day," remarked one of the workmen when speaking of the incident.

Health Maxims.

To ward off disease—

Don't get "run down" or "played out." If tired, rest.

Don't live in foul air.

Don't drink impure water.

Don't buy dirty milk.

Don't use stale milk.

Don't eat food badly cooked. Take cooking lessons somewhere.

Don't kiss dirty children.

Don't mouth dirty money.

Don't try to keep "up and about" all the time if you feel sick, but go to bed.

Don't fail to wash your hands often.

Don't rub your eyes with dirty fingers.

Diphtheria is spread by the lips and by fingers or other things which have been in the mouth and by spit.

Consumption is often carried in the same way by kissing, unclean hands and by spit.

Scarlet fever, measles and smallpox may be carried from the skin of the patient to well people by food and fingers.

Typhoid fever and cholera are carried by dirty habits and by dirty water and dirty milk.

But don't worry about these things, for soapsuds and sunshine are powerful disinfectants, good habits and right living are firm friends and allies, and a strong, healthy body (your best protection) does not readily give a foothold to disease producing germs.

A New Mascot.

A saucy looking success mascot, which claims to be able to cheer the depressed and make them work, is the latest rival of the popular "Billiken." Developed in plaster, antique bronze or metal, the statuette represents a dimpled boy, nine inches high, kneeling upon a square, flat pedestal, his arms akimbo, his mouth wide open and his eyes closed, as if he were convulsed with laughter at one of his own jokes. Embryo horns sprouting from above his brows and small hoofs revealed by his scant draperies indicate that the new mascot is designed to represent a good natured imp, whose sole luggage consists of a boxful of quotations and humorous sayings, of which the following is typical:

I am the mental science boy.
I hypnotize you full of joy.
No misery or grief or woe
Can e'er exist where'er I go.

Ingenuity of Women Shown.

Lady Amherst, with her patent spring collapsible muff, and Princess Anne of Lowenstein, who devised self leveling trunks for steamship use, are matched in ingenuity by certain American women of prominence. Mrs. Mackay invented a good ventilating apparatus, and it is used in her model school and her own home, but she took out no patent. The clever wife of a certain United States senator, who is not wealthy enough to keep up with the social procession, has devised a complete desk outfit and receptacle for letters in a window recess. The senator uses this sitting room for an office, but when his stuff is cleared away no one would suspect the room to be other than a handsomely equipped "den" for reading.

A Pin Shower.

A novel shower given recently was a pin shower. The guests brought pins of all descriptions, including hatpins, bar pins, safety pins, fancy and plain hairpins, veil pins and pins for fastening curtains. Some brought clothes and rolling pins, and the bride to be was given pins enough to last many years. A novelty shower is a little newer than the miscellaneous shower we have been giving for so many years. Anything can be brought to a novelty shower, and things that the most careful bride would be apt to overlook should be taken, the aim being to give odd as well as practical articles.

The Cynic.

A bachelor who is known among his friends and their children as being always in the happiest spirits, singing gayly and whistling the newest songs, recently took unto himself a wife. Hearing the news, the eight-year-old daughter of a house to which he goes frequently asked her mother doubtfully:

"Won't Mr. Smith sing or whistle any more, mother?"

"Why, of course," said the parent, wondering. "Why?"

"Because married people don't seem to sing much," quoth the cynic sadly.

A Salad From Leftovers.

Cold macaroni seemed an impossible leftover until some one hit on the plan of combining it with celery and sliced olive in a salad.

The sauce was washed from the macaroni and cut, as well as the other two ingredients, into thin slices, which was allowed to macerate for half an hour in a French dressing seasoned with onions.

The salad was then served on lettuce leaves and covered with mayonnaise. If there happened to be any nuts in the house they were chopped and added to the salad.

A Fur Trimmed Overcoat.

By M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Thomas H. Saunders, barrister, of London had accepted the invitation of an old friend to dine with him at a hotel, and when he reached the place at the appointed hour and had his hat and overcoat checked he surrendered the latter with a bit of reluctance and cautioned the boy in the cloakroom to make no mistake. It was a fur trimmed overcoat and a smart looking garment, costing a tidy little sum, and its owner had a right to be proud of it, especially as several of his friends had spoken flatteringly of his personal appearance.

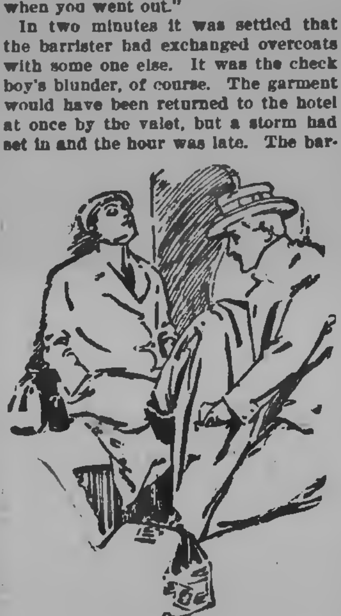
When the dinner came to an end the barrister passed in his check and received his hat and coat and wended his way to his chambers. It was a cold night, but the cold did not reach him. All the way home he hugged himself with satisfaction over that garment, and it was not until his valet had removed it that trouble showed its face.

"Excuse me, sir," said the man as he inspected the coat, "but this is not the one you wore away."

"The deuce it isn't!"

"No, sir. It seems to be of the same size and trim, but it's not the one. You have no key like this, sir, and here is a little book that was not in the pocket when you went out."

In two minutes it was settled that the barrister had exchanged overcoats with some one else. It was the check boy's blunder, of course. The garment would have been returned to the hotel at once by the valet, but a storm had set in and the hour was late. The barrister judged that the key belonged to a vault of some kind; but, as for the book, all he could make out was that it seemed to be a code for the translation of a Russian cipher.



HIS HEART ALMOST CHOKED HIM AS HE FOUND THE LITTLE BOOK.

As soon as breakfast had been disposed of Mr. Saunders himself started for the hotel to make his excuses and the exchange, but while waiting on the curb for a hansom he was notified by messenger that he must be in court at a certain hour to take care of a case he had supposed to be further down on the calendar. Instead of the hotel he went to court. The fur trimmed overcoat was hung up in the cloakroom, and three hours later, when the case was concluded, it was missing.

There had not been another fur trimmed overcoat on the hooks, and Mr. Saunders doubted if another barrister in that court had one. Some thief had managed to enter and appropriate it. The sacrilege of the act unnerved the barrister for a time, and then he went home to find that a stranger had been waiting for him for a long time. It was a Russian, and he had brought a fur trimmed overcoat with him. He introduced himself as connected with the Russian embassy, and he owned up that the little book was a new code just issued by his government and that the key opened a safe in which state secrets were kept. He had only been temporarily intrusted with the articles, and their loss might send him back to Russia and then to Siberia. The man was half frightened to death, and of course the barrister pitied him and was willing to do anything for him. The check boy had blundered and given out the wrong coat. If the book and the key had been left behind with the valet all would have been well, but they had been taken along with the overcoat, and the overcoat was now on a third man's back. When the Russian was told of its loss he wanted to commit suicide at once.

Of course the only way to do was to set the police at work, and the barrister took the initiative. One of the underofficials of the court remembered when questioned that a well dressed man, who was not recognized, but who was supposed to be a barrister, had penetrated to the cloakroom and later on had reappeared with a fur trimmed overcoat on his arm and disappeared. In leaving the court he had passed within five feet of the barrister. Stimulated by a generous reward, the police began to hunt for clews, and it was not long before they found one in a pawnshop. The thief had come in and offered to sell the coat, and, being a decent looking man, he probably did not anticipate being questioned. When asked to prove himself the owner he became confused and walked out. The pawnbroker had gone to the door after him to call an officer, but as none was at hand he had to stand and see the man disappear in the crowd. It was found that the man had tried two other shops of the same sort and failed. There were plenty of secondhand clothiers who would be willing to buy, however, and the police made their hunt in that direction. Meanwhile, four days after the stealing of the coat from the barrister, he had to make a journey down into the country for a hundred miles. When he came to take the train he found himself in a compartment with a sporty looking young man who had been drinking too much and who wanted to be too familiar all at once. Mr. Saunders had been seated in the carriage a quarter of an hour before he noticed a fur trimmed overcoat folded up and lying on the seat. The fur and the color of the cloth seemed the same as in his lost garment.

"Say, now, old feller," said the young man as he saw that the other's attention was attracted to the coat, "I want to show you that I know a thing or two. You may think there are flies on me, but you will get left."

"Well, what is it?" was asked.

The coat was shaken out and held up, and after a chuckle or two the question was asked:

"What d'ye think this is worth?"

The barrister closely inspected it, and his heart began to beat faster. That was either the coat he had left in the hotel cloakroom or the one stolen from him later on. He was ready to make a dozen affidavits to that effect.

"I should say the first cost was £3," he finally replied.

"What! Three pounds for a coat like that! Say, old man, don't you ever bet on the horses. If you don't know a horse better than you do an overcoat you'd be skinned to death. That coat, sir, never cost less than £15, and I shouldn't wonder if the figure was £20."

"But the fur is cheap and the cloth shoddy. It's all for show."

"In your eye it is. It's a fifteen pound coat—not a penny less. And what d'ye s'pose I paid for it?"

"Can't say."

"A fiver. Bought it of a fellow lodger two days ago and am going to make my old dad a present of it when I get down to Singleton. A fifteen pound coat for £5, and that's the kind of a young man I am. Have a drink? No hard feelings, you know."

"Thanks, but I never drink."

"Some folks never do. Some folks don't know when they see a good thing. Well, I'll drink alone."

That was the end of the conversation. The young man drank from his flask several times and after yawning and stretching finally fell asleep. When it was certain that he slept the barrister reached over for the coat, went through the pockets, and his heart almost choked him as he found the little book and the key. They had simply been transferred to another pocket. When a respectable barrister starts in picking pockets he may not stop there. Mr. Saunders didn't. He was to leave the train before the young man, and when he left he had the fur trimmed overcoat on his back. It went back with him to London, and within a few hours the Russian embassy had his missing key and code and everybody was happy and nobody's conscience was troubling.

SIX LOSE LIVES.

Lennox, Mass., Is Visited by a Serious Conflagration.

Lennox, Mass., April 12.—Six people lost their lives, three others were badly burned and a property loss of between $200,000 and $300,000 was caused by a fire in the heart of the business section of this town early yesterday. Four business blocks, two dwellings and two other structures were destroyed in a section bounded by Franklin, Main, Housatonic and Church streets. The fire is believed to have started in the Clifford building from spontaneous combustion.

The dead: Edward C. Ventress, aged 41 years, electrician; Mrs. Edward C. Ventress, aged 35; Miss Leslie Ventress, aged 12; Miss Alice French, aged 41, bookkeeper; Miss Isabel Cook, aged 40, bookkeeper; Miss Mary Sparks, aged 26, a school teacher.

The loss of life occurred in the Clifford Block, in which a tremendous explosion occurred.

While the fire was at its height Miss French was seen to climb out of a flame-filled room on to a verandah on the second storey with her night clothing and hair ablaze.

Staggering to the railing she leaped to the sidewalk, landing in a heap within five or six feet of the blazing walls. Some of the horrified onlookers attempted to rush in to drag her out, but the intense heat drove them back, and not until several hours later was the body recovered.

Her Majesty's Health.

London, April 12.—Queen Alexandra is enjoying a charmingly quiet time in company with her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia. They go about together, carefully concealing the signs of their royal state, paying quiet visits to personal friends and charitable institutions. The Queen is now fully recovered to her normal strength, which equals the marvelous vitality of the King.

Daddy Takes Tea Now.

London, April 12.—The new children's act proved a great boon Saturday to the tea places at the popular holiday resorts. Parents being unable legally to take their children into the barrooms had tea with them instead. Enquiries at many tea shops did not reveal a single instance of the children being left alone there while their parents visited the bars.

Hired Man's Trick.

Brockville, April 12.—Wm. Turner, a farm hand, borrowed a horse and buggy from his employer, John Rape, of Toledo, to drive to Athens. Turner headed towards Brockville, and putting up a plausible story sold the outfit to an Addison farmer named Brown for a gold watch and a small sum of money. He has managed to get across the border.

CASTRO EXPELLED FROM THE ISLAND OF MARTINIQUE—IS NOW THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

Port de France, April 12.—Cipriano Castro, ex-president of Venezuela, was on Saturday ignominiously expelled from the Island of Martinique by the French Government.

He protested to the last against his expulsion, but his protests were in vain. He is now on board the French line steamship Versailles bound for St. Nazaire, France.

Official notice was serve on Castro Saturday morning of the decision of the French Government that he must leave the island within nine hours from the receipt of such notice and that the commissary of police at Fort de France had been charged with the execution of the order. The ex-President was furious with indignation, and strove throughout the day to find some excuse that would be satisfactory to the Colonial Government, whereby he would not be compelled to obey the order, and to this end later in the afternoon summoned a lawyer and physician to certify that he was unable to leave the country.

The affair created a great sensation, and long before the police made their appearance at the hotel crowds had gathered, which later were joined by the consuls representing the various powers, who showed great interest in the expulsion of what one of them termed the "common enemy of peace." Castro, who, during his few days at Fort de France, has had very little communication with anybody, locked himself in his room, in company with his brother Carmelo, and his secretary, and for a time refused to reply to the summons of the police officials.

At the very last moment the governor and public prosecutor decided to have another medical examination made.

Accordingly a medical commission composed of Drs. Rouvier Costet and Barbe proceeded with the examination, in order to establish definitely if Castro's health was such that he could make the voyage. The consultations of the physicians continued for more than half an hour, and they agreed that the life of the ex-President would not be jeopardized by his removal to the steamer and the return voyage across the ocean.

CIPRANO CASTRO.

At 8.30 a force of gendarmes went to Castor's room and he was placed on a mattress, refusing to put on his clothes, and carried on a stretcher to the steamer, a distance of more than a mile.

A. C. SWINBURNE IS DEAD.

Great English Poet Succumbs to Pneumonia.

London, April 12.—Algernon Chas. Swinburne, the poet and essayist, died Saturday morning. He had been suffering with influenza, which developed into pneumonia.

He was born in London on April 5, 1837, the son of Admiral Swinburne and Lady Henrietta Ashburnham, daughter of the third Earl of Ashburnham. He was educated in France and England, and as a poet he was especially well-known for his facile metrical invention.

He was a bachelor and lived at The Pines, Pitney.

It was in 1861 that Swinburne published his first volume, "The Queen Mother" and "Rosamond," and not a year has passed since then that he has not contributed to the world of letters one or more books of prose or poetry.

Canada and the Bahamas.

Montreal, April 12.—F. W. Thompson, vice-president of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited, who has just arrived from a two months' sojourn in the Bahamas, says that the governor, Sir William Grey Wilson, states that a conference of West India officials will take place in London in June, when a committee will be formed to study the question of better trade relations between the British West Indies and the Dominion of Canada. The Ottawa Government will be approached during the present year by a delegation from the islands. It is also understood that a movement will eminate from Montreal Board of Trade favoring a steamship service between the St. Lawrence and Nassau.

He likewise says that a good many people in the Bahamas favor a straight absorption of the islands by the Dominion.

Women Barred From Saloons.

Spokane, Wash., April 12.—After June 1, no woman can legally enter any saloon in this state. The new criminal code makes it a misdemeanor for the owner or employe of "any drinking saloon or music hall where intoxicating liquors are sold, to knowingly permit to enter such saloon or sell or give any intoxicating liquors to any female person."

The same rule applies to any common drunkard or any person in an intoxicated condition, or any felon.

Accident to Vessel.

Kingston, April 12.—While being turned out on the first trip of the season, the coal schooner, Bertha Kalkins, owned by Capt. Simons, crashed into the Cataraqui swing spring bridge and knocked it off its pivots. The jibboom and bowsprit of the vessel were smashed and the damage to the bridge amounts to $300.

The accident tied up traffic all day, farmers having to make an extra 12 miles by another route to reach the city.

Contractor Charged.

Montreal, April 12.—The local police have at last been able to lay their hands upon Omer Dubois, the railway contractor on the New Brunswick end of the National Trancontinental, who, it is alleged, did up the men employed by him and other people to the extent, it is said, of several thousand dollars. Dubois is now at the police headquarters here. He admits his identity, but declares that he is not guilty as charged.

Police Guard Detective's Body.

New York, April 12.—Aroused by the receipt of a threatening letter to fear that blackmailers or vengeful criminals would attempt to blow up the house where the body of Lieut. Joseph Petrosino lies or the church where his funeral is to be held, the authorities have placed a heavy guard in and around both house and church. Thirty uniformed policemen are kept constantly on duty.

Make Machinery In Russia.

St. Petersburg, April 12—The American "machinery trust" is expected to begin manufacturing in Russia on a large scale this summer.

SLEUTHS BUY LIQUOR.

Detectives In Cornwall Admit Supplying Whisky to Indian.

Cornwall, April 12.—An unusual Police Court case was tried here on Saturday, when a local hotel man was charged with selling or supplying liquor to Indians on seven different occasions. The complaints were laid by two young men in the employ of the Indian Department, J. A. Robertson of Ottawa and C. A. Ramsay of Vars, who were in town for a week or so posing as insurance agents.

The first charge, that of selling to an Indian named Jake Angus, was proven on the Indian's own testimony, and a fine of $100 imposed. In the second case, serving liquor to Peter Beck, it transpired that Beck went into the bar with the detectives, who paid for his liquor, and who drank with him. The detectives admitted going in with the Indians and buying them liquor, and thereby hangs the sequel of this tale.

The hotelman was fined $50 and costs for supplying liquor to Beck, and after the defendant's counsel had threatened to have Robertson and Ramsay prosecuted for buying liquor for the Indians, the court adjourned. Later on, all the other cases were dropped.

Awaiting Royal Birth.

The Hague, April 12.—The birth of an heir to the throne of Holland is confidently expected the coming week, and if all goes well, the outburst of popular enthusiasm will be such as has seldom been witnessed among the placid Dutch. There has been no royal birth in the Netherlands since that of Queen Wilhelmina herself 27 years ago.

Thrice before, since the marriage of "Little Wilhelmina" as the Hollanders affectionately call the Queen, have the hopes of the country been raised only to be cast down again. The constant fear of the Dutch has been that the House of Orange would die out with a childless sovereign, and that Holland would pass under the rule of a German prince, and would thereby possibly become a German vassal state.

Sorrento Would Honor Novelist.

Sorrento, Italy, April 12.—A delegation from the municipality from Sorrento, headed by the mayor, went yesterday to Saint Agnello to beg for the honor of having Marion Crawford's body lie at Sorrento. Mrs. Crawford replied that, although she appreciated the honor highly, if her husband's body remained in Italy, it must lie at Saint Agnello, where he lived and worked.

GENERAL'S BIRTHDAY

Aged Salvationist Reaches Age of Eighty Years.

WORLD WIDE REJOICINGS

Veteran Founder of Army Is Recipient of Congratulations From Great Men In Every Part of the Globe —Premier Whitney Speaks at Toronto Celebration — Earl Grey Sends Felicitations.

Toronto, April 12.—The Salvation Army on Sunday held special meetings in honor of General Booth's 80th birthday. In the morning meetings were held at all their halls, while afternoon and evening mass meetings were held in Massey Hall.

Premier Whitney presided at the former, and the platform included representative speakers from the pulpit, bench, political leaders and philanthropical organizations.

Telegrams were read from His Excellency Earl Grey and many prominent people in the Dominion.

In the evening Mayor Oliver unveiled a portrait of the general, painted by Foster, and a boys' band was dedicated. During this service, speeches recently made by the general were reproduced on a phonograph, and many addresses regarding his life were given.

London, April 12.—With the rising of the sun upon England Saturday, there began the most remarkable celebration of which the world has record. It ran completely around the globe with that day's light, embraced men of all races, complexions and degree, was observed with equal fervor in semi-polar frost and under the equator, and was the occasion of such an outpouring of love, gratitude, goodwill and congratulation, all directed upon one man, as surely no other one man has ever received.

General William Booth, founder, head and director of the Salvation Army, was 80 years old. Not alone the thousands of his officers and millions of his soldiers in fifty-four countries joined in observing the day, but the general's modest house was doubtless, almost submerged in a flood of messages from great men and good in all the lands.

William Booth was born in Nottingham, England. His father was a merchant, for a time fairly well to do. The family was earnestly Episcopalian. When he was only 15 years old, young Booth wandered purposelessly one night into a Methodist chapel and became a member of the Methodist Church.

He started out, a boy, 15 or 16 years old, as a field or lay preacher, holding services in the slum streets of Nottingham, standing on a chair or a box at a corner while he preached and pleaded. Ruffians tried to break up his meetings, pelting him with stones and filth. He resented nothing, defended himself against nothing but, smiling quietly while the verbal and material missiles flew, pleaded on for souls.

When he was 20 the exigencies of earning his bread took him to London, where, without a pause, he threw himself into the work in the great slums of the East End. In a few months he was a favorite and well-known preacher. On May 29, 1858, he was regularly ordained a minister of the Methodist Church.

From that time his work grew with amazing rapidity and soon his own nickname of "General" suggested the establishment upon military lines of an army which has become the huge institution known the world over.

The Earl to the General.

London, April 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—General Booth has received a birthday message from Earl Grey wishing him continued health and happiness and adding: "There are many in Canada who are better and happier for your life's work."

Salvation Army Wedding.

Toronto, April 12.—Brothers married sisters at Massey Hall Saturday night and the ceremony was performed by the father of the charming brides, Commissioner Coombs of the Salvation Army. The grooms are both army officers, Brigadier Harry Morris and Staff Captain Arthur Morris, and the brides' captains, Nellie Elizabeth Coombs and Daisy Lillian Coombs.

"Arthur, here, has been my private secretary," said the commissioner before calling them to the front of the platform, "but I did not know it was the duty of my private secretary to steal my daughter."

The double wedding was really the crowning feature of the celebration held Saturday night on the occasion of the birthday of the grand old General Booth. Messages were read, the one that was sent to the general from the Canadian corps, and others received from various commanding officers congratulating the commissioner and the happy couples that were married.

Driving-Rod Broke.

Chatham, April 12.—As the 10 o'clock C.P.R. was pulling into the station here Saturday evening from the west the driving-rod of the engine snapped in two. The train was almost at the station and was not going very fast. On this account here was no other damage. If the accident had happened a few seconds sooner the train would have been on a bridge and going at a good rate.

Small Boys Run Away.

North Bay, April 12.—Three North Bay boys under the age of ten, Willie Hanley, Leo Doyle and Justin St. James, recently in trouble on account of a penchant for breaking into stores, ran away from home Saturday and have not yet been located, although the Hanley boy was seen in Ottawa.

Death Sentence on Girl of 20.

London, April 12.—Alice Cleaver, aged 20, a laundress of Gladesmore road, Tottenham, was sentenced to death at the Old Bailey on a charge of killing her 10-weeks-old baby by throwing it from a railway car window.

FARMERS ARE WORRYING ABOUT THE SCARCITY OF MEN TO HELP THEM IN THE EARLY SPRING WORK

Long List of the Farmers of This District Who Are Unable to Secure Help—Situation is Beginning to Cause Unrest—Immigration Office Besieged on Saturday But All in Vain.

THE LOCAL IDLERS REFUSE.

Twenty-two farmers called at the immigration office on Saturday afternoon looking for farm hands and few if any of them went home with the help they now so badly need. They sat around the office for hours at a time or called three or four times during the afternoon, but to no avail, and going out on to the street they would look at the large number of men who were doing nothing and remark that if a few of the men would turn in and work there would be no need to look elsewhere for farm hands. In many cases the farmers themselves are to blame if they now find themselves without help. They have had the last two months to make the necessary arrangements but in most cases they have postponed this duty until a few weeks ago and they are pressed uncomfortably to get the needed help.

A farmer meets a man and asks him if he will work for him, tells him he will give him so much when he needs him and goes away happy in the thought that everything is rosy. But it is not long before another farmer comes along determined to get a man immediately and if it does cost a little more to keep him through the quiet months. He meets the labourer, offers a little higher wage and engages him at once. The first farmer finds himself left in the lurch when he decided to engage his man.

The situation is at present not very encouraging. The list of farmers looking for men is growing rapidly every week and the discouraging feature is that there are no men to meet the demand.

An Order for Men

Mr. Howson has received a letter from Mr. W. D. Scott, Superintendent of Immigration. He mentions a letter from J. Obed Smith, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration, London, England, in which the latter states that he has 32 single men and 15 married. They are all experienced in farm work, can also milk and are efficient behind the plow. Mr. Howson has accepted 15 single men and 5 of the married. He states that he might have accepted them all as there are enough farmers wanting men in our own section.

Anyone requiring a good domestic might see Mr. Howson. He has a letter from E. J. Heather, of Bournemouth, stating that a woman who has been 12 years with one family would like to come to Canada if she can secure a position.

Mr. Howson has also received a letter from Waters and Son, Ipswich, stating that Mr. Fred Nock, wife and two children are ready to come to Canada if [illegible] can be located. The husband is experienced in gardening and handling horses and general farm work.

Don't miss seeing the Amateurs at the "Grand" to-night. You'll have a barrel of fun. Prices 5c and 10c.

MR. CARVER HAS CURIOSITY IN VEGETABLE FORM

Mr. Osway Carver, North Monaghan has shown the Examiner a curiosity in vegetation. This spring he lifted a parsnip, which had grown downward through a foramen in a beef vertebra. The vegetable had grown to fill up the hole and in the middle the diameter was of course confined in size to the size of the hole while above, and below the structure, the vegetable grew to its normal size. Mr. Carver proposes presenting the vegetable freak and its connected bone to the Victoria Museum.

YOUNG MAN FROM MILLBROOK GOT DRUNK

A Millbrook young man was arrested at noon to-day at the G. T. R. station for being drunk. He came to the city this morning and evidently not being used to anything but a local option town abused his privilege to have something stronger than local option lager. He was very much the worse of liquor when taken into custody.

WAS HISSED OFF THE STAGE

Berlin, April 11.—The German version of Du Maurier's play, "An Englishman's Home," was produced at the Neues Theatre to-night, before a distinguished audience, which included high officials of the Imperial Court. This is the play that created a sensation. In. England, dealing as it does with the invasion of that country by a foreign force, and originally it was thought that the play was aimed at Germany.

Its reception to-night was so hostile that it is improbable the play will be repeated. It practically was laughed and hissed off the stage. The hissing, stamping and hooting began with the second act and continued almost incessantly until the final scenes, which were completely drowned in the din. The scenes in the theatre were the most extraordinary of the kind ever witnessed. Besides nearly causing a riot, an unrehearsed incident of a shell setting fire to the scenery caused a panic and partially emptied the theatre.

Horse Injured In Runaway On George Street This Morning

The horse of Mr. W. H. Routly, Charlotte Street, was injured this morning in a runaway. It was attached to the grocery delivery waggon, and was standing on Hunter St., while the driver was delivering some goods to 90 Hunter St. The animal evidently became frightened at something, and started away towards George street. It ran down the main street to Charlotte street, where on turning the corner to the store it slipped and fell. It was injured about the knee of one of its front legs, the injury having to be attended to by Dr. Blanchard.

A Turkey That Wast Lost For Many Days In The Snow

The Advance Herald published in Minnesota has the following item which will be read with interest here. Mr. Gervin is the brother-in-law of Mr. Thos. Petrie, of Otonabee:

Buried alive! You shudder at the thought of it, and all the more you shudder at the thought of being buried alive for 53 days in a veritable sepulchre in a huge bank of snow for this length of time. This, however was exactly the fate that overtook one of the turkeys that was blown from its perch in the great blizzard of January 20th this year. The 23rd of March the sun having thawed so much of the snowbank that the snowy grave was opened and the turkey of this trying and uncommon ordeal was released and it was restored as from the grave to its fellow turkeys which must have long since mourned it as gone from the land of the living. The constitution of turkeys in general, and of this one in particular must be quite hardy and withal tough, for though this one was somewhat thin a 'teetle' stiff from close confinement, it emerged from the icy prison with a loss of nothing but its tail feathers which were left sticking in the ice. This is a true account of a real occurrence, and is not the pipe dream of a newspaper reporter, for J. B. Gervin, a man well and favourably known for his truthfulness is the owner of the turkey, and furnished the facts as stated in the foregoing to a representative of the Advance-Herald.

Provided Tea For Prisoners At The Jail On Saturday Last

The League of Mercy of the Salvation Army on Saturday afternoon visited the jail and provided tea for the prisoners. This event was in honour of the birthday of General Booth, the eightieth anniversary of which was celebrated on Saturday. Throughout the entire world, every city, town or village in which the Army had a corps the same kind of a visit was performed. This is a part of the jail and prison work of the Army, an avenue of reaching the down-hearted [illegible] tched, which they pa[illegible] vantage of. Mrs. Lang was in charge of the party composed of Mrs. C. Greene, Mrs. Moynes and Mrs. Richardson, Staff-Capt. Walton and Mrs. Walton were also present.

The League of Mercy representatives had brought basflets of good things, and the spread which they prepared was a most tempting one. Arrangements had been made for serving twenty-five, and of those who were expected only three remained away.

After the men had done full justice to the tea they were briefly addressed by Staff-Captain Walton. A meeting was held on Sunday afternoon in which the men heartily participated.

Depredations At The Norwood Methodist Church Resented

Some time during the early hours of Sunday morning a number of our citizens had their slumbers disturbed by some young men of the town who went up and down the streets hollering and yelling, and making night hideous. They completed their night's debauchery by taking an old buggy out of the King's Hotel yard and a waggon belonging to an Assyrian, which had been left standing on the street for several days in front of the Metcalfe block, and throwing them over the fence in front of the Methodist Church, breaking the waggon and damaging the fence. This is the third or fourth time within the past few months that our villagers, and particularly the Methodist people, have been annoyed and insulted by depredations of this character. The reason of course is patent to everybody,—the aggressive attitude of the church and its pastor on the question of Local Option is no doubt the incentive. The church people have been slow to take action against the offenders not wishing to enter into the courts, and feeling that the duty of preserving the law and order belonged to the paid officials of the village and those in authority over him. Incensed at these ority over him. Insensed at these repeated and unchecked acts of lawlessness and rowdyism the church officials met Monday and placed the matter in the hands of High County Constable Cochrane of Peterborough. The trustees have also offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties. It is hoped that the offenders will be discovered and punished and that our village may no longer be disgraced by such scenes.—Norwood Register.

Examiner's Account Of Saturday's Race Was Much Appreciated

The Examiner on Saturday was enabled to give its readers a complete account of the Simpson-Appleby race and as many subscribers did not know that the race was being run on Saturday the service was greatly appreciated. The first edition issued at the usual time gave the standing of the race up to the end of the sixth mile, while the second edition told the story of the struggle up to the time that Appleby quit in the fifteenth mile when the race was Simpson's for sure. Arrangements had been made for a complete service from the C. P. R. telegraph company and the progress of the race from beginning to end was given to readers of the Examiner, who were in possession of the details of the contest a few minutes after it was over.

LITTLE GIRL WAS SCALDED

Evalina Foy, The Two Year Old Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foy, 74 Hunter St., East City, Painfully Injured This Morning.

SHE FELL IN BOILING WATER.

Evalina Foy, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foy, 74 Hunter street, East City, was seriously scalded this morning by falling into a large pan containing clothes and boiling water that had just been, a few minutes before, removed from the stove.

The little girl, with a number of other children was playing in the yard at the rear of Mr. Patrick Hogan's place. The week's washing was being done and the woman had removed the clothes from the boiler to a large pan of hot water in the yard. The child was running about and not noticing the pan fell into it.

The cries of the little one attracted attention and she was quickly removed to her home across the street. Two doctors were summoned and attended her injuries. She was burned badly on the legs and on the abdomen. The child will recover.

Speaking to The Examiner he said that the ice in Stony Lake had not yet broken up, and it would be a few weeks yet before navigation would open. Mr. Young anticipates a big season at the lakes this summer, when the same excellent service will be given by the steamers as in the past.

PUT CRAPE ON THE DOORS.

Detroit, April 11.—A repulsive form of practical joking caused several women to faint, and others experienced a shock which they will not soon get over, at Grand Rapids last night. The "joker" pinned a bunch of block crape of the regulation style used by undertakers to almost every doorpost in two blocks. In one instance an aged lady, who was passing the home of her daughter, saw the crepe and fainted on the sidewalk, cutting her head in the fall. Another man with a weak heart saw the crape pinned to the door of his brother's house and was overcome. He had to be taken to a hospital. The police were notified, and observed a man trying to pin the sombre design to another house and gave chase. The man made his escape.

Returns To An Officership In The Salvation Army Ranks

A special event at the Salvation Army barracks last night was the farewell of the late Adjutant Harry Osborne and his wife, who are going back to officer's work and will leave on Thursday for Belleville, where he takes charge of the corps in that town. Mr. Osborne came to Peterborough 19 months ago from Keithley, England, after resigning his position as adjutant. He will likely take the office of captain in beginning his work in Belleville. Of a quiet and very unassuming disposition he is one of the best workers in the Army in this district and came to Canada with a splendid record established in Leeds and Keithley, where he had charge of the respective corps. In this city he has been employed at his trade as shoemaker connected with Mr John Kylie's shop. For some time he has had the old desire to get back into the work and the desire has grown so strongly that he at last decided to apply for a position and his request has been granted.

His personality is one of his greatest assets and in Peterborough he has made a great many friends and at all times has assisted the officers in charge of the corps. His farewell last night was a most feeling one and he leaves to take up again the work he loves so well with the best wishes of the Peterborough corps.

His Friends Resent The Slanders Against Dummer Young Man

Oak Lake, Ontario,
April 9th, 1909.

To the Editor The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—We should like to publish, through your columns, a message to the scandal-mongers of the Oak Lake and Clarina settlements. For some time past, some evil-minded and malicious persons have been spreading scandalous reports about our brother, Samuel James Huble, who left home a year ago last fall and is not here to speak for himself. We should like to inform the public that the young man in question is alive and well, and has not been in any trouble, such as has been told about him. We should like to state that the young man in question is not a murderer, neither a robber, and the persons who invented and told that most brutal and cowardly lie, were actuated by jealousy of a family, the members of which have always tried to lead honest and upright lives, and have not stooped to associate with the scum of humanity, whose chief occupation is the spoiling of morals and the picking to pieces of character.

We have no family skeletons—nothing to conceal! And if the miserable wretches, who, hating all that is straightforward and honourable, snap and snarl at our backs, and then cringe like hounds under the lash when cornered in a lie, would keep their own door yards clean, they would have no brush to spare for others.

(Signed) HIS FRIENDS.

Left On Friday Night Taking With Him Horse And Buggy

The police have been asked to be on the lookout for a horse thief who left Pickering on Friday evening last with a horse and buggy belonging to Wm. Cowan, who resides in the vicinity of that place. The horse was a bay one, almost ten years old. It is described as having two white hind legs and one of the forelegs is white. The animal had only a day or so been clipped. In the buggy were a pair of boots and a bushel of grass seed.

Price Of Maple Syrup Said To Be $1.10 In London District

While Peterborough people are paying $1.50 a gallon for maple syrup the price in Western Ontario is only $1.10 and $1.15 cents, according to the quotations in the Canadian Grocer. It does not mention the quality which is probably the best, although the price from a local standpoint does not seem to indicate such. However, if the price, as stated, is really $1.10 and $1.15, the difference between that and the Peterborough price is very marked.

EASTER MUSIC AT ST. JOHN'S IS ENJOYED

Over 400 communicants made their Easter Communion in St. John's yesterday.

Very large congregations attended all the services. This also applies to the children's Easter service at 3:15, at which each child presented their Lent Mite box at the altar rail, the amount reaching the sum of $27.47. After the service the children again assembled in school when the Rev. Canon Davidson distributed the prizes to the most regular and studious scholars of this season.

Notwithstanding the arduous work of the choir in the "Crucifixion" last week, they assembled in record numbers at both services yesterday, there being over 45 in attendance.

The Ven. Archdeacon Warren and Rev. Canon Davidson thanked the choristers heartily for their splendid rendering of the Easter music.

The boys wore pretty bouquets, the gift of Mrs. Hazen Ritchie in memoriam of Master Barlee. Mozarts "Gloria," sung by the choir and the "Hallelujah" chorus, played by Mr. R. J. Devey, concluded a happy and memorable day for St. John's.

TO INVESTIGATE COST OF FIXING UP TENNIS COURT

Following the suggestion brought out at the annual meeting of the lawn bowlers' association to have a tennis court in conjunction with the bowling green, a meeting of the executive was held Friday night in Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald's office. The lot to the west of the green was proposed a suitable one for a tennis court and a committee consisting of Messrs. Fitzgerald, D. H. Moore, R. M. Waddell and Dr. Wightman was appointed to investigate the matter of cost to put the ground in condition for tennis.

EXAMINATIONS AT TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES

At the examination for nurses recently held in the Training School of St. Joseph's Hospital, six were successful in obtaining diplomas. Among the graduates is Miss Frances O'Leary, who obtained a very creditable standing. The graduation exercises were of a private nature as the greater number of the class are sisters.

Much credit is due to Miss V. Winterhalt, head of the training staff, for the splendid showing made by every member of the class at the final examination.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS AT OPENING OF LINDSAY RINK

The roller rink opened yesterday, for the first time this season. In the morning about 10.30 about twenty Peterborough boys arrived at the rink, who, with the town boys, made up a jolly crowd. During both afternoon and evening the rink was well patronized by the young people of the town, the band being in attendance.

The floor has suffered very little from having ice made upon it, and though it was a little slippery in the fore part of the day, it was in splendid shape for the evening, and a good skate was enjoyed by all present.—Lindsay Post.

$550 WAS GIVEN FOR THE BUILDING FUND

The attendance and contributions at All Saints' Church yesterday were record-breaking in size. A very large number of communicants were present and the attendance at all services was much larger than usual. The choir rendered special music appropriate to Easter Sunday and the chancel was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The offering for the day which will be devoted to the building fund amounted to $550, and all the envelopes are not yet in.

TEMPERANCE AND INTEMPERANCE.

A reference to the report, supplied the Examiner, of the temperance meeting held in the "Crystal" on Sunday afternoon may suggest the impression that it was rather an intemperance meeting, having regard to the nature of some parts of the addresses given. The keynote of the meeting given by the chairman was that it was the duty of every man to show his colours—to show which side he was on. Yet the very first speaker violently denounced the newspapers for printing a list of signatures to the petition, asking the Council to submit a by-law to popular vote. It was declared to be an attempt to boycott—it was wrong to permit the signers to "show their colours," to show which side they were on—to exert a moral influence, etc. This was followed by a bitter denunciation of the newspapers, which sometimes omit to print the names of hotel keepers convicted of a breach of the law, but it was wrong to print a list of signatures to a petition; and it was pointed out as a further crime that the newspapers accepted pay for printing the list of signatures and at the same time charged the local option people for the space they occupy, particular emphasis being laid on the fact that the matter contributed by the local option people was ear-marked. It is difficult to conceive how so much indignation can be aroused over the subject. Newspapers are commercial enterprises, conducted for the purpose of making money, or more strictly perhaps, of making an honest living for their proprietors, and not as moral agencies, except incidentally. The Peterborough newspapers are spoken of as doing more for the promotion of religious movements—devoting more space to church news than any other newspapers in the province. Theres' never much gained by abusing the newspapers.

BRITISH AND UNITED STATES TRADE.

British-American trade, as well as the foreign trade of both countries, fell off considerably during the world-wide depression last year. According to published returns, Great Britain's sales to the United States were $67,000,000 less than in 1907, while her purchases from her American rival were $53,000,000 less, a total decrease of $120,000,000.

In total foreign trade both countries suffered to the extent of nearly half a billion dollars, the declines in imports and exports of each being:

	Imports	Exports.
Great Britain	$256,305,072	$237,563,437
United States	306,767,577	170,118,274

In 1907, United States exports totalled $1,923,426,205; last year they dropped to $1,753,307,931. Great Britain's exports took a drop from $2,073,299,700 to $1,835,736,263, principally in manufactured goods. Raw materials were the sustaining elements in United States exports.

The exports of manufacturers of both countries in each year were:

	1907	1908.
States . .	766,619,010	681,354,365

Britain's heaviest decrease in exports was in textile fabrics—$124,000,000, $74,800,000 being in cotton goods. In spite of this, her sales of manufactured cottons and yarns last year reached $462,650,000, while those of the United States amounted to but $17,000,000. Of boots and shoes Britain in 1908 sold $10,139,088, or more than $209,000 more than in the previous year. The sales of the same goods by the United States were $1,627,000 less than in 1907, totalling $10,031,227. The figures also indicate that Britain's trade in iron and steel and manufactures thereof was better sustained than was that of the United States.

British imports of food, drink, and tobacco dropped from $1,203,439,686 to $1,118,633,478, or $14,800,000. Of tobacco, strange to say, the imports increased about 25 per cent., the total increase being close on $5,000,000. Britain imported $185,442,572 less of raw materials in 1908 than in 1907, while the United States' shrinkage reached $104,000,000. It must be remembered, however, that Britain imports more than twice as much raw materials as the United States, one-third being represented by raw cotton.

SAVING OUR RESOURCES

Hon. Sidney Fisher addressed the Canadian Club of Montreal the other day and pointed out the two dangers to which the natural resources are exposed—waste and the grip of monopoly. Hon. Mr. Fisher, as Minister of Agriculture, has always of course taken a deep concern in the interests of the department he heads and stands for. His interest has, however, gone further afield. Agriculture on a wide scale, the growth and harvesting of our forest has received intent and intelligent attention. He was one of the representatives of Canada at the Washington conservation conference, of which he gave an interesting and instructive account. He told the members of the club that when the next decessial census was taken, two years hence, the population of Canada will total 8,000,000. He further estimated that by 1931 the population will have grown to 20,000,000. No man is in closer touch with the growth of this country than the Minister of Agriculture; it is his department whih has charge of the census and statistics, and his opinion on the subject of which he speaks should carry weight.

Mr. Fisher was giving an account of the Washington conference, and pointed out that whether Canada, when its population reaches 20,000,00, is a rich and influential country, depends upon its conserving its natural resources henceforward. This fact has been impressed upon the minister since attending the conference, which, in its findings, insists on the stoppage of waste on the continent, and a proper utilization of natural wealth. The conference was unanimous in the opinion that those resources which are necessaries of life should be regarded as public utilities, that their ownership entails specific duties on the public, and that as far as possible effective measures should be adopted to guard against monopoly. The interest of the public at large should be the paramount consideration of both private and public owners. The duty of man to man was no greater than the duty of one generation to another, and it was the duty of the people of to-day to hand on their heritage in an unimpaired condition.

Mr. Fisher realizes that in Canada sufficient thought has not been given for the future, that the majority of Canadians are living for the day, and letting the morrow take care of itself. He urges the people of this country to take warning from the United States that the future generations of Canada may not be in the same position as their neighbours today. It is true, measures have already been taken in some parts of Canada for the preservation of the forests by means of reserves and other schemes, but, in Mr. Fisher's opinion, there are other things in which waste has been proceeding in connection with national resources. "If," said he, "the present rate of granting free homesteads goes on, within the next two decades there will be no free homesteads in what is called the fertile belt of Canada. Already the virgin soil on which people have been trading, which has enabled our wheat production to be so great as it is, is losing its richness, and there are many of the farms of our west, and nearly the whole of our farms of our east, of which the fertility has been absolutely exhausted, and where up to the present time the farmers have adopted no new methods to replace it." In the opinion of the minister, if Canada is to continue a great food-producing country, agriculture must adopt reforming ideas. The population is rapidly increasing, and if the Canadians of the future are to be as prosperous as those of to-day, the resources must be preserved and husbanded.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Peterborough has still lashins of pretty girls, in spite of the hideous hats they wear.

A Dundas preacher on Sunday varied his sermons by preaching in advocacy of the building of a Dreadnought by Canada. Under such preaching a congregation stands to become dread-noughts themselves.

LOCAL OPTION COLUMN

THE GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MEETING

The Sunday afternoon meeting at the Crystal in the interests of Temperance yesterday was largely attended. The meeting was in charge of the Inthon Adult Bible Class, of the George St. Church, and was presided over by Mr. W. B. Warne. An enjoyable feature was a selection rendered by a quartette from the same class.

The chairman in his opening remarks said that he considered it an honour to be there to represent the class, and to show which side he is on. The class is a unit in the matter and when the invitation was given to take charge of the meeting it did not take long to decide that it would be a good opportunity to show their colours. The first speaker called on was Mr. G. W. Powell. In beginning he said that the Inthon Bible Class had from 75 to 100 voters and at least 100 workers who are all on the right side in the fight with liquor. The speaker was not a preacher and so would not take a text, but he would take a motto as the basis of his remarks. "Work as if everything depended upon work, and pray as if everything depended on prayer." Work, how? By talking about local option. When a political campaign is on, everyone talks and does all he can to win others to his way of thinking. Why not in this campaign? This is going to be the most important year so far in the history of our city. Everyone interested in the welfare of the city should go in with a determination to win and there is no doubt about winning.

In the second place all friends of temperance and of justice should stand by each other. It was evident that a boycott was intended. The names of those who signed the local option petition are being published and the speaker understood that it was done at the expense of the liquor interests. There are many business and professional men whose names are there. The publication could be for no other purpose than, in a spirit of spite, to try to injure these men because they had done as their consciences dictated. It was, therefore, the duty of all friends of the temperance cause, as well as all lovers of fair play and justice to stand by those who were threatened with injury and in this way as well as in others to present a united front to the enemy. The speaker regretted that there was not a newspaper in the city that would treat this question fairly. Matter contributed by the temperance league had not only to be paid for but it had to be marked so as to let the public know that the paper assumed no responsibility for it, but the liquor interests could secure the publication of the petition without any such mark. Why is it that the city press never reports cases against liquor dealers? asked the speaker. Are the reporters paid to keep still in these cases or are they simply showing the sympathy of the journals they represent? In one of the city papers last night there appeared an article under the heading of a temperance lecture in which all the old worn out lies that have done service for the saloon for years were togged out in a new dress and presented to the public under a false heading. Was that an expression of the views of the paper or was it also paid for and, if so, why not so indicated?

He urged the necessity for prayer as well as work and suggested monthly temperance prayer meetings in the churches and Sunday schools as well as private prayer. The address which was closely listened to and frequently applauded was closed with a brief reference to the progress made in the United States and the sweeping victory of last week in Michigan, when twenty counties went "dry" putting over 600 saloons out of business.

In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Belleghem, who was to have been the second speaker, Mr. F. C. Moore took his place. He urged the necessity for individual option in this matter. Every one ought to be careful about his own life, let it be such that it will represent the thing we advocate. The object is not to crush the individual but to put down an evil and make for the betterment of mankind. Strong drink is a stumbling block in the path of the individual, and is stopping the progress of the nation. Let us go out in love to all mankind. We want the salvation of the hotelkeeper. Reference was made to a saloon-keeper who came under the influence of the truth closed his house and refused to sell his license. The power of prayer was then emphasized and the speaker urged the need for a revival of a desire for the breaking down of all the strongholds of sin.

Rev. Mr. Potter spoke briskly explaining that the printing of the names was not the work of the Temperance League as some had supposed but of the liquor interests.

A BIG ICE JAM ON THE NIAGARA

Ice Jams in River and Chokes Up the Falls.

POWER PLANTS FLOODED

Torrent Is Checked For Second Time In History and Rise of 40 Feet In Level of River Is Chronicled—Damage to Machinery Will Be Only Temporary, Says Engineers of Power Company.

Buffalo, April 12.—Twice this year and as far as known, for the first time since the white man has come to the banks of the Niagara, the voice of the river has been mute. The first time was late in February when, following a severe southwester, the flood was frozen solid from bank to bank.

Unprecedented weather has brought about unprecedented conditions. On Wednesday of last week the worst gale of the season and the most violent that the records of the weather bureau have ever recorded for April, tore out of the southwest, and following the lakes and the channel of the Niagara left ruin in its wake. The solid ice fields of Lake Erie were churned from end to end and piled in a huge conglomerate mass at the lower end of the lake.

At Niagara Falls there had been a heavy ice bridge in the pool below the cataract since the middle of the winter. Under the impact of the mass of ice from the lake above and the added flood brought down by the wind, the bridge gave way and began [illegible] down the rapids; but before it could win freedom in the ample waters of Lake Ontario, the wind shifted again to the north. Instantly the moving floes packed at the mouth of the river. Each instant of cold congealed the pack more solidly and each hour brought added pressure from above.

Unable to escape by its natural channels the level of the river rose by leaps and bounds. The highest flood level recorded from previous years is 28 feet above normal. Friday night the river was 40 feet above normal.

Water on Saturday poured over the sills of the power house of the Ontario Power Co., which had been placed at what all engineers thought to be a safe height above any and all possible dangerss, and flooded the machines. Yesterday, however, the power house was cleared of ice and water, a score of experts have been at work drying and cleaning the six monster ten thousand h.p. generators, that, with the numerous smaller electrical apparatus were submerged in 20 feet of water as well as the hydraulic machinery in the pit below the generator room.

Temporary connection was made through the courtesy of the Electrical Development Co., with their works and the steam reserve plants at Rochester, Syracuse and Seneca and elsewhere are being used to supply a portion of the load in the State of New York. The intention is to supply the public service corporations first, such as railroads and lighting companies, and afterwards the manufacturers and private users.

No permanent damage is done to the power house and its machinery.

Sir Wilfrid Recuperates.

Mount Clemens, Mich., April 12.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of the Dominion of Canada, and several members of his official family, including some Cabinet Ministers, arrived here Sunday in a special train. Lady Laurier has been here at one of the Bath hotels and it develops that she, with Mme. Brodeur, wife of a Cabinet Minister, Major Chapleau and others arrived in a special car three days ago. Lady Laurier is taking the baths and that is what Sir Wilfrid and the others will do.

Big Vessel Goes to Pieces.

Dover, April 12.—The British steamer Mahrata from Calcutta March 6, for London, which went ashore on Goodwin Sands on Friday last, has broken in two and has been abandoned. The passengers were landed soon after the vessel struck, and all the crew were rescued yesterday. A large quantity of cargo was taken off the ship, but the loss involved in the vessel and the remainder of the cargo is estimated at $1,000,000.

$100,000 For Jewish College.

Berlin, April 12.—Jacob Schiff, the New York banker, has placed $100,000 at the disposal of the Central Jewish Relief League toward establishing a technical college for Jews in Palestine.

The college is expected to attract Jews from all parts of the world. It will be located at Harfa.

Bad Fire at Pembroke.

Pembroke, April 12.—Fire in the large hardware store of Dunlop & Co. on Main street about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, destroyed the building and contents, and then spread to the store houses of Fenton & Smith, and the residences of James Stewart and Edward Jones.

Paul Ardmore nodded his thanks to the conductor as he swung down the car steps to the snow covered platform and made his way toward the waiting room.

No expectant committee gathered about the stove, and the only signs of life were the clicking of the telegraph instruments and a thin film of very rank tobacco smoke that curled from under the closed window of the ticket office.

He waited a minute; then he rapped on the ground glass, and presently a face, appearing in the opening, evinced surly interest.

"I am Professor Ardmore," explained Paul. "I am to give a lecture at the Gothic church. There is no committee to meet me, and there seems to be no hack about the station."

"There is one generally, but Jim got a job driving a feller over to Moorway. He'll be back to meet the 9:43, but if you don't want to wait it's easy to walk there. You go down the road a piece till you come to Pine street. Then you go over to Maple until you come to Spruce. It's just around the corner on Spruce. Are you that feller that was to lecture in the Star course last night and didn't come? The ladies got up a show, so they wouldn't have to give the money back."

Paul clutched at his pocket and extracted a letter. He glanced at the fine feminine handwriting and breathed a sigh of relief.

"It is for the 17th," he announced in relief. "I am so absentminded that I have to be very careful of my dates. Perhaps the committee has discovered the error and will gather the audience again tonight. In any event it would be best for me to go over."

He turned up the collar of his ulster to protect his throat and, leaving the station, plunged through the drifting snow.

It was not a long walk, for Maplewood was a small place, and presently he was in sight of the church that was attended by the town's fashionable families.

To his relief the lights shone out, and a little knot of people stood about the door.

They eyed him curiously as he pushed his way through to the door and entered the vestibule. Several young women came forward expectantly as he entered, and Paul, deciding that they were the committee of the Ladies' guild, grasped an outstretched hand.

"They told me at the station that the lecture was yesterday, or, rather, that the audience had gathered yesterday through some error," he said cordially. "I am glad that you were able to gather them together again this evening. I presume an error was made."

The welcoming smile faded from the girlish faces. "You are the lecturer?" cried one. "We thought you were the bridegroom."

"Mercy, no!" exclaimed Paul, coloring vividly.

"The lecture was announced for last night," went on the speaker. "The guild members organized an impromptu concert to avoid disappointing the audience. You might at least have telegraphed when you found that you could not come."

"But I have come," declared Paul as he produced his letter. "Your communication says very distinctly that the lecture is on the 17th."

The girl took the letter unbelievingly, then gave a little cry of dismay. "You are Professor Ardmore?" she cried. "It was Burton Brooks, the Egyptologist, who was to have lectured last night. Your lecture is to be given on the 27th. I made the mistake in the date. This is my letter. I am very sorry."

"I can come again on the 27th," promised Paul as he perceived the girl's distress. "I take it that there is a wedding here this evening. May I stay until it is time for my train? It is scarcely inviting at the station, and the agent smokes very bad tobacco."

"Yes; we've reported his bad manners to the company dozens of times," was the discouraged reply. "You are welcome here, but it is a rehearsal for the bridal party, not the wedding."

She led the way into the body of the church, and Paul slipped into a pew on the side aisle, glad of a restful haven until train time.

Presently the organ pealed, and at the first strains there entered the groom and his best man. An elderly woman, who seemed to have constituted herself the mistress of ceremonies, shouted to the organist to stop and charged upon the sheepish groom.

"Go back!" she cried. "You don't give the organ a chance! He's got to play the march all the way through, and if you come out now you'll have to stand like a toy figure waiting for the bride to come in! Don't come until I say 'Now' and then remember the place in the music!"

The groom and his supporter stumbled back into the vestry, and again the organ pealed out the wedding march. Paul turned curiously to look at the bridal party, and for a moment his pulse seemed to cease its beat.

The little bride was none other than Eleanor Kingsland, the one woman in the world that Paul worshiped, and his worship was not the less intense because he had never told of his love.

He had thought of her always as a child, for he was very young himself for the position that he held, and in consequence felt himself to be tremendously old.

He had meant some day to tell his love and seek her for his own, but he had delayed his proposal until it was too late. Now she was about to become the bride of that sheepish looking chap standing in the chancel.

He half rose as though to leave; then he sank back into his seat again. He would drink the cup of humiliation to the very dregs. He would see the girl he loved go through the form of marriage which on the morrow would be performed; then he would go back to his own narrow, loveless life bearing the knowledge that delay had cost him happiness.

Miserably he watched the procession form and break, to form again in response to the directress, but at last the rehearsal was pronounced perfect.

The groom and his best man made their appearance on the very note that brought them to pause expectantly before the bride started and yet gave her time to step into place before the music stopped.

With a brisk "All right!" the directress led the way down to the Sunday school room, with the announcement that refreshments were to be served there. Paul rose, hoping to steal out unobserved.

It never would do to meet Eleanor now. She could read his secret in his face, and he would not contribute even so slightly to her happiness at such a moment.

But even as he rose Eleanor turned and came swiftly toward him.

"Paul Ardmore!" she cried as she offered her hand. "And I had the funniest feeling that you were here. All through the ceremony I felt it, and when Jeanne told me that you really were here I was delighted. Did you see the rehearsal? Isn't it going to be lovely?"

"As lovely as the bride deserves," declared Paul gallantly.

"Do you know her?" cried Eleanor in astonishment.

"You are she," reminded Paul, but Eleanor shook her head gayly.

"I almost wish that I was," she cried—"all the excitement over one girl, even though she is as beautiful as Letty Brace. I was just her substitute because she had to have her dress fitted. Paul, do you know, I think a dress like that would tempt me to marry anybody."

"I shall have to see Miss Brace's dressmaker," said Paul gravely, "for I want to tempt you to matrimony. I thought that you were too young to give up all men for just one, but when I saw you standing beside another at the altar and felt that I had not spoken in time"—

"Mercy! I'm getting to be an old maid," insisted Eleanor, with a laugh. "This is my third season, and I've been waiting for the right man to come along."

"And has he?" pressed Paul.

Eleanor glanced shyly up into his face.

"I guess he has," she confessed, and Paul's face turned radiant.

"We shall have to have the guild secretary for our best girl—I mean the bridesmaid," he corrected. "It was she who booked me for matrimony as well as a lecture."

CHARGES AGAINST CAMPS.

Construction Co. Is Accused of Inhuman Carelessness.

Port Arthur, April 12.—Barrister A. E. Cole, accompanied by G. McNabb and G. Senath, Woodsmen, called on Magistrate Dobie Saturday with a view to laying information for a charge of manslaughter against the foreman of the Northern Construction Co.'s camp No. 3, at Kashabowie.

It is alleged he was the cause of the death of George Seville, a laborer, by ordering him from camp while sick and in a destitute condition, without medical attention. Seville, unable to walk, was thrown on a tote wagon and died en route to the railway.

Dobie was unable to accept the information because it was out of his jurisdiction, and also because there was no coroner's inquest.

Mr. Cole has had considerable experience with men from the lumber and railway camps, and says that the way men are robbed, abused and neglected is worse than the old conditions of slavery, for there the value of a slave, to say $1,000, made an employer careful, but a dead laborer can be replaced by application to an employment agent, with a good chance that the victims' relatives do not know of his death to enquire about any wages that may be due.

He may make an appeal to Ottawa.

Huge Cotton Shipment.

St. Paul, Minn., April 12.—One million bales of cotton to be moved from Mobile, Ala., to Yokohama, Japan.

This is Jim Hill's giant contract this year—one of the greatest transportation tasks ever undertaken.

The landing of the contract marks a new era for the south, for the northwest and Japan.

It means a new market for the south, more work for the railroad men and across the country, and a mammoth increase in Japan's new cotton industry.

And for the wizard of the north—grizzled Jim Hill—it means another daring adventure added to his record.

Chinese Raid In St. John.

St. John, N.B., April 12.—In a raid last night of a Chinese gambling den by a squad of police, twenty-six orientals were captured and taken to headquarters in coaches. They were followed to the station by dozens of their brethren and pandemonium reigned before these were ejected and the prisoners safely locked up. The Chinamen were playing fan tan.

Indictment Quashed.

Tulsa, Ok., April 12.—The motion to quash the indictments against Governor Charles N. Haskell, Oklahoma's first chief executive, and the six other prominent Oklahomans indicted by the Federal grand jury charged with fraud in Muskogee town lots, was upheld here Saturday by Judge A. Marshall of Utah in the United States Circuit Court.

Birth on Express Train.

North Bay, April 12.—On No. 2 eastbound C.P.R. express Saturday a birth took place on the train. The mother is a girl of 18 from Sturgeon Falls en route to Ottawa. A trained nurse was on the train and the young mother received every attention. A collection was taken up among the passengers, realizing a tidy sum.

Stomach Derangement

Her Limbs Ached—Worn Out Tired—Headaches, Dizziness

Vitol Cured Her

For years I have been a great sufferer. Life to me was a burden, my limbs ached, I always felt tired and worn out, had no ambition. People could not sympathize with me. In fact at times they imagined it was put on, or a matter of fancy with me, but one who suffered the same as I did knows exactly what it means. I would work when I should be in bed. I was weak, seemed to be void of strength; life seemed to have left me to a certain extent. I have often felt as if I would give the world if I could feel buoyant and cheerful, really so. I often had to force what little cheerfulness I did have. I was urged to try Vitol, and, my what a change; to-day I am the woman I used to try and picture. I am happy, cheerful and strong; it seems as if I had new nerves, in fact new life. Mrs. R. Simms, Newcastle, Ont. You may be strong and healthy, and buoyant if you will take Vitol. For sale everywhere. Price 50c. box or six for $2.50.

For sale by McDermid & Jury, also at Payne's Drug Store.

EASTER MUSIC AT ST. LUKE'S ENJOYED

The Easter services at St. Luke's Church yesterday were attended by large congregations. The music was all that could be desired and its efficiency and splendid rendering by the choir under the able direction of Mr. Kilpack, added much to the heartiness of the service. The altar was beautifully decorated with roses, tulips, carnations and Easter lilies, gifts of kind friends. About 275 communicants partook of the Holy Sacrament. The offertory was most generous and in excess of what had been asked for. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt officiated and preached at all services, and at evensong was assisted by Alderman Turner, who read the prayers, and Mr. A. Kingdon, who read the lessons.

The organ recital was much enjoyed after evensong, the whole congregation remaining for it. Mr. Kilpack is a most talented organist, and St. Luke's is to be congratulated upon having secured such an efficient musician.

Be sure to hear Dr. Grenfell's lecture in the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night, April 14, which will be in the interests of "The Sailors' Institute" at St. Johns, Newfoundland. Admission to all parts of the house, 25 cents.

SAD DEATH IN ENGLAND OF MRS. E. A. BENNETT

The Deceased Lady was a Sister of Mrs. John Denoon, Sheridan Street.

The intelligence was received this morning by Mrs. John Denoon, 418 Sheridan street, of the death of her sister, Mrs. E. A. Bennett, in London, England, on April 1st. The particulars are very meagre, the only additional reference being that death occurred in the hospital following an operation which had taken place some time previously.

Mrs. Bennett was the widow of the late E. A. Bennett, who resided in Peterborough for some years, and died about six years ago, in Buffalo, his body being brought back here and interred in the Little Lake cemetery. The late Mrs. Bennett was highly respected by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, and her death will come as a particularly sad event. It was learned that deceased had gone to England last November, in order to assist in the settlement of her late husband's estate, and that while there she was compelled to consult physicians respecting her health.

AMATEUR NIGHT AT GRAND TO-NIGHT

Lorain Amusement Company Will Give the Local Talent a Chance to Shine.

The Loraine Amusement Company, which is appearing just now at the Grand Opera House, has won many friends for itself during its short stay in the city, and the company is deserving of the patronage it has received. No better show for anything like the money has been given here, and after looking at the performance it is easy to see why the house has been filled at every performance. In addition to excellent moving pictures and illustrated songs, there is a splendid musical act by the Wygand team, an unusual and meritorious juggling specialty by Bonda, a marionette feature of interest to grown-ups as well as to the children, and other acts that round out the bill into a most enjoyable entertainment.

To-night will be amateur night and there is every indication of there being a record house. There is nothing funnier than an amateur contest, and with the array of talent that has promised to be on hand to-night, there will be a great entertainment. Three cash prizes will be given, and a large number have already signified their intention of taking part.

EASTER MONDAY A HOLIDAY IN BANK CIRCLES

In spite of the fact that to-day was generally known to be a bank holiday there were a large number of business men, merchants, and "ordinary" citizens who forgot all about it until they tried in vain to gain admission. A little framed notice—it might be overlooked by one out of every three passersby—hung inside the door, announced that this was a holiday for the bankers, from the manager down to the boy that goes for the mail, and business people had to get along without their bank today.

SHOULD HEAR DR. GRENFELL

Peterborough, April 12, '09.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—It is to be hoped everyone who can possibly do so, will be present to hear Dr. Grenfell's address on Wednesday evening. He is a man who deserves from us a very hearty expression of approval and support. His personal sacrifices, his utter disregard for self, where the welfare of others is concerned, cannot be too highly referred to.

Apart from the fact that his remarks will be extremely interesting, a crowded Opera House will evidence our appreciation of his devotion to his great work, and will tend to encourage him in his efforts, already so successful, to improve the physical and moral condition of the fishermen of Labrador.

Yours,
E. A. PECK.

MR. BAILEY IS FLATTERED

Peterborough, April 10, 1909.

Sir,—I am sure I feel very flattered by the kind remarks of John Smith-

er- to-night, but it is far from my intention to make a mark in the literature of any country. That he should accuse me of adopting Canada is unjust and beyond my means. However, patriotism is not a question of geography but of principle, etc.

TO-DAY IN THE STOCK MARKET.

New York, April 12.—The stock market opened strong and higher. Owing to the closing of the London and European exchanges to-day, the volume of business was as great as on some days last week. There was no new feature to the market, it maintaining its advancing tendency so frequently shown the last three weeks, under the lead of Union Pacific and Steel Common. There was more snap to the Morgan stocks to-day, with an advance of over 3 in Louis. & Nash., 1 in Erie issues and activity in Southern Ry. But the predominating feature was the great strength in Steel common. Buying orders in seemingly unlimited volume were poured into the market and the stock rose steadily. Some huge blocks were thrown on the market, but they were quickly taken and bids made for more. This helped the industrial list and strength was shown in Coppers, Smelters, Colo., Fuel and People's Gas. It was said that London jobbers were short of Steel, and that advantage had been taken of the closing there to-day to run the stock up here and squeeze them.

EASTER MUSIC AT CHARLOTTE STREET

The Easter music in Charlotte St. Methodist church yesterday was of exceptionally high order. The anthems were splendidly rendered by a large and well balanced choir, the solo parts being most effectively taken by Miss Pringle, Messrs Brown and Harmer. Pleasing features of the services were a male quartette, composed of Messrs. Lee, Tannie, Harmer and Skitch; and a tenor solo from the Passion music of the "Messiah," by Mr H. Lee. Miss Pringle, of Newmarket, recently engaged as soloist, possesses a clear, high soprano voice of much sweetness and power, and her rendition of "The Resurrection Morn," by Rodney, in the morning, and "Hosanna," by Granier, in the evening, were greatly enjoyed by the large congregations present. Charlotte Street Church is to be congratulated upon securing the services of so accomplished a vocalist and Miss Pringle will be a decided acquisition to the musical circles of Peterborough.

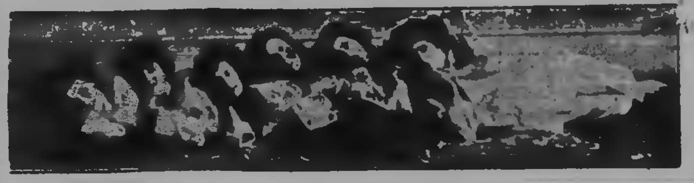
SALE OF SEATS OPENS TO-MORROW.



The Pyjama Girls in "The Land of Nod." At the Grand, Thursday, April 15.

Interest in the forthcoming production of the famous musical comedy success, "The Land of Nod," which occurs at the "Grand Opera House" next Thursday, April 15, is indicated in the large number of requests that seats. These have not been equalled advance sale opens, and in the extraordinary number of mail orders for seats. These have not ben equaled except upon very few occasions in this theatre. It appears to be generally understood that this production of "The Land of Nod" is an unusual affair and the conditions surrounding the advance sale are the same here as elsewhere. This means that all seats are quite likely to be sold before the great company arrives here. A special train service is required to transport the 75 members of the organization and two 60 feet baggage cars are necessary to carry the scenery and other effects. There are few companies of this magnitude touring the country. It is not only unusual in this respect but it is a company of comedians, singers and dancers and specialists who have won distinction by their extreme cleverness. This will be one of the distinctly interesting performances of the season, and it is a foregone conclusion that it will be witnessed by as many people as can be crowded within the four walls of the theatre. The advance sale of seats opens to-morrow (Tuesday) morning.

Easter's Signification To True Followers Of Christ

The Main Thought of Rev. J. A. Wilson's Sermon at Knox Church Last Night to One of Largest Congregations Ever Assembled in That Building—Anniversary Services Conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilson.

AN INTERESTING SERMON

The anniversary services at Knox Church were held yesterday being conducted by Rev. J. A. Wilson, B.A., pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Hamilton, who preached to two of the largest congregations that have ever assembled in Knox Church. In the evening the seats even in the gallery were all occupied and some of those present had to remain standing throughout the service. While this fact is a testimonial to the rapid growth of the congregation it was also a mark of respect and welcome to Rev. Mr. Wilson, who was the first minister to preach in that church on the occasion of its opening. There were not a few of the members of other congregations in attendance, among them being quite a number from St. Paul's Church.

Rev. Mr. Wilson preached two eloquent sermons full of thought, power and inspiring advice. His text in the evening was from the Book of Job, 14:14. "If a man die shall he rise again?"

Different classes of people look forward to the different festive occasions throughout the year. The little child longs for Christmas and the happiness it brings. There are holidays which arouse the patriotic spirt in men on the commemoration of some event of national importance. But to those of us who are nearing the journey of life, who are expecting at any time to lay aside their earthly burdens no event has a greater bearing and significance than Easter. It is a reassurance that there is something beyond this worldly sphere, something which he believes is awaiting him and for which his innermost nature has a longing.

Merely a Blank to Some

..Those who know not Christ reply in the negative to the important question the text conveys. To them the future must be a grave, dark and fearsome. Our lives are all too short. After a few brief score of years we pass away leaving so much still to be done, so much still to learn, so much to add to our being to make us that which we ought to have been. Is it not reasonable that God should cut us off from this life and transfer us to another grander than this?

Not only do we believe this but there is something in us which tells us that Elysian fields are awaiting the worthy in the life after death. He who created the universe, who guides the course of worlds in their unerring orbits, who caused worlds to appear and could cause them to disappear, would we say that He cannot take our little lives and transport them to another realm.

Rev. Mr. Wilson then confined a part of his sermon to a contradiction of the theory that death means annihilation. One experience that many persons have had is that of being present at the death of another. A strange gaze comes into the eyes of the dying, sometimes, just before the tiny flicker of life is extinguished for all time, something in the eyes that seems to be fixed on a far away object believed to be a vision of the mystery of death which is soon to be disclosed to another of God's saints.

In conclusion Rev. Mr. Wilson urged the congregation to place their trust in God that when the time of their summons should come their souls should be prepared to join the eternal kingdom of God.

SIMPSON RAN A SPLENDID RACE, SAY TORONTO CRITICS STORY OF SATURDAY'S RACE

The Toronto Globe says of the Simpson-Appleby race:

Fred Appleby, the English runner, who holds the world's fifteen-mile record, and two victories over Shrubb at that distance to his credit, was beaten in a twenty-mile contest with F. Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, at Rosedale Saturday. The Indian won in 2.03 3-5, and finished alone, Appleby quitting in the fifteenth mile. Simpson's time, considering the weather and track conditions, is very creditable indeed. The Ojibway ran a much better race than that against Shrubb at the Armouries some weeks ago.

The race was not run on the banked clay track, but on the quarter-mile turf track, which was laid out inside the clay course. The attendance was very small and the weather very unfavourable. A strong, cold wind swept over the course from the northwest and competitors and spectators were most uncomfortable. Appleby is not accustomed to running in such weather as prevailed Saturday, and while he visited Simpson after the race and congratulated him, and freely expresed the opinion that the better man, under the conditions, won, he blames the weather for his failure to live up to the reputation he enjoys as a very fast tnd hard man to beat at any distance over ten miles. Appleby had a similar experience to Saturday's in the English trial Marathon, which was run in hail, slush and mud a year ago this month. On that occasion the two-time conqueror of Shrubb ran twenty-one miles in very fast time before collapsing. He was playing with the big field at the fifteen-mile mark, but the cold and heavy going got to him before the end of the race and down he went. On Saturday the weather began to affect him before he had gone three miles, and, as he expressed it, he "froze up" during the early stages and was anything but himself after going a few miles.

Simpson is a full head taller than the little Englishman, who is a smaller man than Shrubb. The Indian took advantage of what protection Appleby afforded, and ran close in behind him until the Briton quit. The latter broke the wind from the Indian, as the latter ran with a few feet of him. At no stage of the journey did the going or wind seem to have the same effect on Simpson as on Appleby, and Simpson ran well within himself at all times. He ran in much better form than in his race with Shrubb at the Armouries. The Englishman is a stylish runner, with a gait very similar to that of Shrubb. Perhaps he strides a little longer, but at that Simpson strode much longer than the man he beat. The runners were always close to the time made under similar conditions in the big Marathon Derby at New York.

"I do not wish to belittle the splendid performance of Simpson," said Appleby, "but I feel that under circumstances more suitable for long-distance running I can beat him, and are now endeavouring to get another race with him. There are several attractive engagements open to me in the old country, but I would like very much to have the opportunity of demonstrating to the American and Canadian public that I can run as fast as any of the professionals who are now taking part in the big races both on this side and across the border." The time by miles was as follows:

EDMONTON TEAM WILL LIKELY CHALLENGE FOR THE CUP AGAIN

With the close of the hockey season the question naturally [illegible] the minds of the hockey enthusiasts of Edmonton what is Edmonton going to do in the line of hockey next year? There is a strong feeling in the city in favour of another trial for the Stanley Cup. The officials of the Edmonton Hockey Club are in favour of this and should they decide to issue a challenge to the Ottawas, winners of the cup, they will doubtless receive the moral and financial support of the general public.

A meeting of the hockey club executive will be held shortly when the question of whether Edmonton will challenge again for the Stanley Cup will be definitely decided. The club this year finished the season with a deficit and some decision will be reached regarding the best method of clearing this off, so that should Edmonton send a team east next year they will start the season without being burdened by any old debts.

There are two ways of looking at the proposal to challenge again for the Stanley Cup, both of which should appeal to the average citizen. One is from the sporting side. Edmonton is and probably should be the home of the best hockey in Canada. There is plenty of good keen ice here in the winter, the game is popular with the public and is well supported. Edmonton already has the best hockey team in the West and with one or two additions should be able to lift the cup from its present resting place in the capital of Canada and bring it to Alberta. It would prove a stimulation to all sports in the west and would force the east to recognize that there are just as good sports and atheletes in the West as there are in the cent belt.

The other and more materialistic way of looking at the question is from the standpoint of advertising. Edmonton was certainly well advertized last winter by means of the trip east of the Edmonton hockey team. The city council, board of trade, and business men generally, all recognized that this eastern trip was of benefit to the city. It was for this reason as well as for that of sport, that they gave the hockey club financial assistance in the past and will do so again.

Should Edmonton decide to try again for this silverware, the challenge will probably be issued very shortly in order that if accepted the games might be played off before the regular hockey season in the east opens. It is probable that next year's team will be selected from the following players: Winchester, Ross, Lester and Frank Patrick, Whitcroft, Miller, Deeton and Boulton.

SIMPSON'S VICTORY ON SATURDAY WAS A MOST CREDITABLE ONE

It was win or back to the farm with Fred Simpson on Saturday and the Peterborough Indian won, and won handsomely, much to the satisfaction of the few Peterborough people who have maintained all along that the redskin had the goods and could produce them if given an opportunity. Unfortunately there have been far too many people in the city who have taken advantage of every opportunity to knock Simpson, and these people are still loth to give him credit for his performance on Saturday, one going so far as to say that in beating Appleby he was beating a second rater. Such people fail to take into account the fact that Appleby is the world's champion runner at fifteen miles and that he has twice beaten the great Alfie Shrubb at that distance. Appleby has stepped fifteen miles faster than any runner living or dead, and Simpson's putting him away has a notable scalp to his credit. Of course the weather conditions undoubtedly were in favour of the redskin, but at that he ran a "heady" race, dogging Appleby until the Englishman tired and then going away from him with a rush that took the heart out of the sturdy little galloper from over the seas. The time, up to the period that Appleby quit, showed that Simpson was there with a classy performance. The time for ten miles was just 17 seconds slower than St Yves' mark in New York the previous Saturday and the conditions were totally different. At New York the weather did not interfere with the runners. It was wet, but just cool enough to suit the competitors, and the track was in fairly good shape. On Saturday, however, the runners were called upon to go twenty miles on a cold day, with a bitter wind that blew down the stretch with a force that knocked many seconds off the time and also stiffened up the runners.

Of course after Appleby "blew up" Simpson loafed the last five miles, which accounts for the comparatively slow time of the finish, although at that 2.03 for twenty miles is good going, considering the conditions.

Simpson has another hard race on his hands Saturday when he will be called upon to meet Svanberg, the Swedish runner, who finished seventh in the English Marathon, and who was also well up in the Olympic Marathon at Athens, when Billy Sherring brought fame to the land of the Maple Leaf. The two are to run the full Marathon distance at Celtic Park, N.Y., and if Simpson gets away with the Swede he will be right in line for the cashier's desk.

ADVANCE COPY OF REACH'S GUIDE

American Baseball League Guide Contains More Information and Interesting Facts Than Ever Before.

Reach's Official American League Guide for 1909, published by the A. J. Reach Company, of Philadelphia, and edited by Mr. Francis C. Richter, of "Sporting Life," is out, and is, as usual, first in the field, thus making it the harbinger of the baseball season. It can be said without any qualification that, excellent as all of the editions of the Reach Guide have been in recent years, the 1909 Reach Guide is the best hand book of the kind ever issued by this or any other publisher. The special distinction of the 1909 Guide is, next to the text, quality of paper used and the number and beauty of the engravings furnished, the worlds' champion series being specially well dowered with splendid action pictures. The American League Guide for 1909 is in all respects a first-class hand book of the National game and a decided credit to the American League and to the publishers, the Reach Company. This is the eighth annual issue of the Reach Guide as the official hand book of the American League, and the twenty-seventh consecutive year of its publication as a book of record and reference for the entire base ball world.

The book gives a complete review of the American League's eighth eventful season as a major league; complete records and averages of the American League 1908 race and players; a graphic story of the American League's part in the memorable post-season world's championship series of 1908; a synopsis of all remarkable American League pitching feats and also all of the noteworthy games of the 1908 season; and a general review of all matters affecting the American League during the whole of 1908 up to date of publication. In this section is also given a review of the remarkable happenings during the 1908 race. The illustrations comprise portraits of President Johnson, publisher A. J. Reach, Editor F. C. Richter; a group picture of the American League umpires; pictures of the champion batsman, Tyrus Cobb; of the leading base runners, Dougherty and Hemphill, and of the leading pitcher, Ed. Walsh; and specially designed group pictures of all the American League teams of 1908. It may be justly said that these illustrations alone are worth more than the modest price of the volume.

In addition to the above there is a great deal of general information contained in special articles, namely the Chronology of 1908, a record of all major inter-league games of 1908, details of numerous record-breaking events in 1908. Special chapters are devoted to the no-hit games of 1908; the deaths of 1908; and a review of the many wonderful extra-inning games of 1908, several new records having been established. The work of the great minor league body, the National Asociation and of the supreme National Commission, is also detailed. The Guide also contains the new uniform Playing Rules Code for 1909, and the 1909 championship schedules of the American League and National League. In short, everything of interest or value will be found within the covers of this great book. The Reach American League Guide for 1909 is for sale by all news dealers at 10 cents per copy.

CORDAGE WORKS TEAM FOR SENIOR BASEBALL LEAGUE

Prospects are bright for a good senior league in Peterborough. The Strathconas and T. A. S. A. C. are already in line and now comes the announcement that the Canadian Cordage Company will be represented by a team that will make them all step some. They are very enthusiastic over the game down at the rope factory and arrangements have already been made for the securing of uniforms for the club. A number of good players are available for the rope men, and they should give a creditable account of themselves.

CARPET WORKERS' FOOTBALL TEAM

The Carpet Factory Football team will hold a meeting in the Grand Hotel to-night at 7.15 o'clock, for the purpose of considering organization. The team is considering entering the Midland League. They have a number of good players and ask that all interested in the game attend the meeting. Among the Old Country-men are expert footballists and an effort will be made to get the most of them into the game.

HOCKEY

An executive meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club is called for this evening at 8.15 o'clock at the Examiner Office. All members are requested to be present.

WALKING RACE TO START MAY 10

The Six Day Walking Race will be held in the Brock street Rink during the week of Monday, May 10th, instead of at the end of this month, as previously announced. The change has been made in order that the track may be gotten into good shape, as well as to allow the competitors an opportunity to finish their training. The success of the walk is assured by the fact that W. A. Hoagland, of Auburn, is assisting the promoters, and will bring over with him from the other side one of the classiest fields of walkers that ever faced a starter. The big success of the walk last year has stimulated the peds in Yankeeland, and they are all anxious to take part here so that no difficulty will be experienced in getting a good field together. Jim Harrison, the local crack, has already commenced training for the big event and a number of other men will commence at once to get in shape. Some dark horses are in the number and may prove a surprise when the walk is on.

HURTUBISE HAS A MATCH ON FRIDAY

Will Meet Chris Miller The German Champion At The Star Theatre.

Gene Hurtubise has a big match on his hands this week when he will be called upon to go up against Chris. Miller, the German champion. The match is to come off at the Star Theatre, Toronto, after the show on Friday night next, and promises to be a hummer, as Miller has a great reputation. The local grappler is in fine fettle, however, and should give a good account of himself.

FRENCHMAN IS TO RUN SHRUBB APRIL 24

New York, April 11.—Henri St. Yves, the Frenchman, who won the recent international Marathon Derby, has been matched to meet Alfred Shrubb of England in a fifteen-mile race at American League Park on Saturday, April 24.

The race will take place at night, and wil be run in the glare of hundreds of electric lights, especially strung for the occasion.

ST. YVES BEAT MALONEY EASILY

Providence, R.I., April 10.—Henri St. Yves, the winner of the $10,000 Marathon Derby in New York last Saturday, to-day defeated Matt Maloney of Yonkers, N.Y., in a twenty-mile race at Eastern League Baseball Park by three laps and twenty-five yards. Time, 2 hours, 2 minutes, 2 seconds.

BASEBALL

Connie Murphy, left-fielder for the Peterborough Midland League championship team last season, was in the city for Sunday, saying good-bye to friends here before leaving for Edmonton to report to the North Western League team of that place. "Murph" played for Hamilton against the Toronto players, who are to play professional this season, the Queen City bunch winning by 5-4. Clements, last year with Peterborough, pitched for the Torontos. He will go West with Murphy, about the end of next week. The ex-Peterborough players should do well in the west.

* * *

There will be a meeting of the senior City Baseball League to-morrow night in the Y. M. C. A., at which all teams intending to enter are asked to have representatives present. It is important, if the League is to be gone ahead with, that some steps be taken immediately to get things in shape for the season and therefore all teams who have any intention of playing in the senior league should be on hand to give their views to-morrow night.

* * *

Peterborough will have a city baseball league this year. The electric city ought to be able to put a pretty good team in the Midland league, if one is formed. They have a batch of pretty fast amateur players and a team of homebrews, it is said, would receive good support from the fans, who are thoroughly sick of pro. ball.—Lindsay Post.

* * *

"You can depend upon it," said a well-known baseball crank this morning, "Lindsay will have a ball team this year, and if there is a Midland league conducted on amateur lines we will certainly figure in it. All the boys need is a little encouragement and a good executive to look after the team.

It begins to look as if the town will have a pretty good junior league this year, and when the grass shows signs of sprouting a meeting will be called to discuss the prospects.—Lindsay Post.

LACROSSE

The national game is good and dead in this district. Beaverton, which at one time figured prominently in the game, and had a provincial reputation as a lacrosse centre, will likely be without a team this year, while Peterborough sports are making frantic efforts to awaken interest in the pastime. Reports from Port Hope say that the "nothin' doing" sign is displayed there. It was not like this in the olden days! Is professionalism responsible for this state of affairs?—Lindsay Post.

BOWLING

The Examiner B team has been forced to drop out of the Bowling League owing to the fact that it was impossible to get the players together for the League games, and therefore the games for the Bs, scheduled for this week, will be off. The schedule of the other games for the week is as follows:—

Tuesday—Belmonts vs. Grays.
Wednesday—Pacifics vs. Lockworks.
Thursday—Hams vs. Bankers.
Postponed games—B.A.C. vs. Lockworks.
B.A.C. vs. Grays

* * *

A meeting of the members of the executive of the City Bowling League will be held at the City Bowling League Alley, on Wednesday, April 14th, at 8.15 o'clock. All the representatives from the different executive teams are asked to be present. The schedule is almost completed and there are matter that require attention before the league closes.

BASKET-BALL.

Max Fife is playing right forward for the Edmonton Y. M. C. A. team. They played against Calgary on Good Friday.

4 New Films will be given at the "Grand" to-night. See the Amateurs. Prices 5c and 10c.

INSPIRATION IN MEETING HIM

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review Speaks of the Work of Dr. Grenfell.

In speaking of Dr. Grenfell, who is to address the public in the Opera House on Wednesday night next, the Woodstock Sentinel Review says: "There is an inspiration in meeting such a man. He is human to the heart's core. His creed is so simple that a child may master it in a few minutes. Yet, at times, he stands apart, a combination of hero and saint, an embodiment of Christian chivalry, such as the poets have dreamed of, but the world failed to produce except at rare intervals."

Anniversary Congregational Re-union Of Knox Church

Most Successful Affair Was Held Last Night—Address by Rev. J. A. Wilson, B.A., Was One of the Features.

FINE PROGRAMME GIVEN

Knox Church was well filled last evening on the occasion of the anniversary, when Rev. J. A. Wilson delivered an excellent address on "A Nation's Best Asset." Mr. Wilson, who is well known in Peterborough is always greeted by appreciative audiences, his remarks being both interesting and instructive.

The chair was taken by the pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith. The first number on the programme was a splendidly executed piano duet by Misses Sisson and Chiles. This was followed by a banjo solo by Mr. J. R. Clark, which was well received. The choir then rendered an anthem, "The King of Kings" with solo by Miss Bryce.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Millbrook, happened to be in the city last evening and was invited to the anniversary by Mr. Keith. He congratulated the congregation on the splendid progress they were making. He was interested in Knox Church because it was a part of the Peterborough Presbytery and he shared with the people in the prosperity they were enjoying. He also bore a high tribute to their esteemed pastor.

Rev. Mr. Wilson was given an ovation on rising to speak. It gave him great pleasure, he said, to return to Peterborough. He had spent two very pleasant years here and he believed that they had been, as it were his apprenticeship, fitting him for the more responsible work in Hamilton.

He began his subject by remarking that there were times when every business man stopped to consider his assets and liabilities. In the life of individuals, too, the same stocktaking was necessary. "Everyone looks into his life to see what powers and faculties he had been endowed with that he might use them most advantageously in the uplifting of mankind and in the performance of the duties devolving upon him."

Nations, too, were accustomed to consider their assets. England, the speaker remarked, counted her assets in her number of Dreadnoughts and in order that she might not be found wanting in this line, Australia, New Zealand and Canada were thinking of each presenting England with one. A nation's soldiers were a great asset. Wherever the British flag flew, there could be found one of England's best assets, and everyone was proud of the spirit that characterized the soldier of Britain. A country's assets are counted in its resources, its fisheries, its mines, and its wheat fields.

There were different ways of looking at a nation's assets. "Are the above mentioned the best assets we can have?" the speaker asked. Rev. Mr. Wilson did not think so. He believed that the country's best asset was to have within its borders, manly men and womanly women. According to prominent writers a nation's asset, then, is small. Real, true, honest, genuine men were few. If a country was to be great it must have men and women who will lift themselves above sin, men and women who will think right thoughts, speak right words and do honest things. He did not think that a country's best assets were its ships and its resources but its men and women. But not women who thought that they must be heard in the House of Commons and not men who went into every kind of vice. Those who constituted a nation's best asset were the men and women who had the nation's welfare at heart and the spread of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Mr. J. Morrison was called upon to make a few remarks. He said that he was sure that the people of St. Paul's and Knox churches were delighted to hear Mr. Wilson again. On Sunday he had set before them an ideal and last evening he gave some excellent advice. It gave him great pleasure to move a vote of thanks to Mr. Wilson.

Mr. R. Clifford seconded the motion which was conveyed to Mr. Wilson, in a few well chosen remarks, by Rev. Mr. Keith.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford, of Park St. Baptist Church, said that it gave him great pleasure to be present and able to meet his old friend, Rev. Mr. Wilson, with whom he had worked most harmoniously for two years in Hamilton. He had listened with a great deal of interest to his address and he believed that in a few years, the assets he had mentioned as those that made a nation, would be characteristic of Canada. Men and women were day by day realizing their duties to God and their country. He congratulated Knox congregation on the prosperity they were enjoying and hoped that Knox and Park St. congregations would always work harmoniously in the cause of Christ.

Miss Bryce rendered a vocal solo which was enthusiastically encored and Mr. F. R. Clarke gave a banjo solo. The meeting closed with benediction by Rev. Mr. Wilson.

THEY FIXED UP THE POSTMASTER

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured His Lumbago and Sciatica.

That Was Three Years Ago and He Is Still Cured—Why You Should Try Dodd's Kidney Pills First.

Elliston, Trinity Bay, Nfld., April 12.—(Special.)—That Dodd's Kidney Pills not only relieve Sciatia and Lumbago, but cure it once and for all, is the experience of Mr. Alfred Crew, postmaster here.

"Yes," the postmaster says in telling his story, "it is three years since I was cured of Lumbago and Sciatica. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it, and I am happy to say the cure was permanent.

"I had Pains in my Back, Cramps in my Muscles, Shooting Pains across my Loins, and I often found it hard to get any rest at night, and when I did my sleep was unrefreshing. I was medically attended, but without getting any benefit, and at last I was persuaded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I used six boxes altogether and they took the pains away and quite cured me."

Nearly every cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills tells of trying something else first. If you use Dodd's Kidney Pills first you will never need to try "something else." They always cure all diseases of the Kidneys, and all diseases that are caused by sick Kidneys.

Running Away From Bob.

By ETHEL FOWLER.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

With its expiring chug Janet steered the runabout into a convenient lane, puttered over it a bit, then dropped all useless effort to revitalize it. How many miles she was from her destination or her home she had no idea. It mattered little whether it was one or a thousand, she was anchored to stay as far as the machine was concerned.

She had set out with more haste than discretion and had left undone things that should have been done in preparation for so long a run; also she had neglected to take along other things that should have been taken in case of the emergency which was sure to present itself.

Emergency without recourse is never pleasant. Janet felt it almost tragic. It portended the failure of her undertaking. Intended to impress and subdue her family and—some others. Was it to end in this silly little fiasco? Never!

She set her teeth with determination and went down the road to reconnoiter. Nothing in sight either way. She climbed a large rock pile at the roadside and gazed long and intently in the direction of her destination, as if to materialize in the near distance the factory village whence she had meant to speed away on the prosaic but reliable railway.

She finally persuaded herself that she perceived spires and chimneys upon the blank horizon and with more determination returned to the car, gathered up her suit case, lunch box, raincoat and umbrella and set out to finish the journey with her small, fashionably shod feet.

Panting under her load, she eventually reached the rock pile, rested her remonstrating, aching little person a half hour and meekly, with great disgust, plodded back to the runabout as to a city of refuge.

When she packed so large a part of her personal belongings she had not considered the possibility of transporting it by main strength, like a hod-carrier.

She could abandon the treacherous car, but not her plumage. One cannot make a creditable entrance into a strange country without suitable adornment, and she felt that her future largely depended upon the impression her unknown relatives received of her at meeting.

Therefore she resigned herself to await the passing of a good Samaritan, hoping devoutly he would be possessed of a large touring car and tow her into port.

This was entirely a matter of chance, though, with the probabilities against it, as she had purposely chosen an unfrequented way to avoid the auto party she had deserted.

She kicked her heels and reflected upon her position with anger and self pity. Bob would go, of course, in his big new machine, and equally, of course, he would go for her—he could not avoid that—in spite of her emphatic refusal to accompany him.

Her refusal counted for little, or his reluctance either, with both families continually flinging them at each other in the most barefaced manner.

Her father had come home beaming the night before and informed her that Bob would be on hand, as he had taken pains to explain that she (Janet) was expecting him, as usual, the refusal being a mere bit of feminine coquetry, and her mother had laughingly added that she had met the young fellow that afternoon looking very despondent and had cheered him up by remarking that Janet never meant half she said and would be disappointed if he failed to come for her.

And, to crown all, Bob's mother had run in and assured her—as if she demanded such assurance—that Bob would be around early, as she had reminded him that Janet expected him to take her, as usual.

"'As usual?'" Jane quoted vindictively. "The poor fellow couldn't get rid of me if he tried, as I am sure he has sometimes!" She was not at all sure of this. "They'd push us to the very altar without a word from either of us as to willingness, and if I objected and Bob hung back they'd 'explain' and 'assure' and force me upon him. I just had to run away to relieve him. Though I haven't got far yet—I will! Some one will come along."

Some one did a few moments later—a farmer, going the wrong way, with a hayrack and a large curiosity concerning the machine, which he gratified by peering and prying until Janet was tempted to bid him "mind his own business." He proceeded to do that same, remarking that he was "mighty glad to see one o' the dad blamed things broke down; they'd skeered his hosses often enough." He departed, contorting with merriment at her predicament, and it was not exactly a blessing Janet sent after him.

Came next a barefooted boy, who stared for an unwinking five minutes, indifferent to her offers of reward if he would send some one to take her to the village, and who also passed on, exclaiming audibly that "he didn't know them skootin', tootin' things got tired."

Then appeared, headed villageward, a young man with a lumber wagon and a prancing team, which lost nerve at the sight of the shining monster and Janet signaling wildly and tore off in a whirl, the driver hurling maledictions over his shoulder at the "smarty city folks for playing tricks."

"As if any one would be idiotic enough to stop here for the poor sport of setting off his horses," Janet mused scornfully, watching the vanishing cloud of dust. "If I was only in that wagon with my things! But I expect I'd be bumped pretty hard."

A man on horseback from the little town told her civilly that if she was there when he went back he'd send some one out for her, though it might be dark and it would cost her considerable.

"So much, maybe, that I'd not have enough left for my fare and just have to sneak back home. You wretched good for nothing failure!" She jammed and rattled everything with handles and cried heartily.

After which she felt better, wiped up, powdered her shiny nose and prepared to make a melting appeal to the next passer, be who or what he might. Then she let out a screech of joy, for suddenly the panting chug of a heavy car smote the distance. Her troubles were at an end! Never an autoist so mean as to refuse aid to a stranded brother—or sister.

The approaching rumble bespoke the large car of her hopes, and she hastily assumed her most attractive manner and helpless look of appeal; then, fearing that the speed which it was evidently making would carry it past without the occupants perceiving her, she sprang up and leaned forward, with a cry for help.

Therefore when Bob dashed along Janet appeared to be waiting for him with outstretched hands and eager eyes. He stopped with a suddenness that invited catastrophe and stared incredulously, while Janet flopped down in her seat, too angry to notice his open astonishment. Bob! Victimized again—sent out to look her up—his day spoiled! Well, he'd find out it wasn't her fault!

"I couldn't have been more astonished at seeing a ghost," he said as he leaped out and came to her. "I supposed"— He stopped with an embarrassed glance at her sulky face.

"It doesn't matter what you or any one else 'supposed,'" she snapped. "You are not going to interfere with me."

"I can't imagine you are sitting here for pleasure," he said stiffly. "I beg your pardon, you have reason for offense. I will try and not add to it." he marched toward his car. Janet stared. That was unlike Bob, who was not resentful. She did not understand, but could not be left so.

"I will be greatly obliged if you will see what ails this thing and start it on," she requested formally.

He returned at once and examined it thoroughly. "I think it will have to be towed to a shop," he said finally.

"Very well. I was going to Eldon. I can wait until some one passes who will haul me in," Janet replied.

"I am not going to leave you like this!" he exclaimed. "Of course I'll tow you wherever you wish."

"Thank you. I will pay you for your trouble."

He flushed angrily and started off, but turned back, exploding: "Look here, Janet, I know it was a beastly thing to do! I see now I had no business providing a substitute. I apologize humbly. Cousin Hal was transported at the prospect of escorting you, and I suppose you annihilated the poor fellow. Pour your vials upon me, but believe my apology is sincere."

So he had tried to foist her upon another! Janet was furious. This was the first she had known of it, having stolen away early. "I am not in the least to blame for having burdened you so often," she cried. "I have resisted enough uselessly! I am determined it shall not happen again. You can be perfectly sure of that!"

"I have never found you burdensome in"— he began.

"Oh, you must say that, of course," she jeered.

He regarded her earnestly. "I am entirely sincere when I say that your company would have been my greatest delight if I could have felt that you bestowed it upon me freely, without pressure from others. Pressure was so glaring this time that to rid you of myself I broke all the laws of polite convention this morning and was taking myself off for good."

A great light suddenly turned Janet's world to a paradise of joy. "Running away from me?" she inquired, dimpling, much to his surprise.

"Running away from the families," he said fiercely. "They've spoiled all chance I might have had with you, and I'm pulling out of it, but I'm not giving you up, remember. I mean to try to win you when they learn"—

He was interrupted by shrieks of laughter. Janet laughed till she was breathless. "Oh, Bob, Bob! I'm running away too! I'm 'pulling out of it' for the same reason, or was till this thing gave out."

"But it can't be for the same reason! Why, I want you, and you never had any choice in"—

"Why, I thought you hadn't either, Bob! I never thought that you"—

"Janet!" he cried, stopping the stammering speech by seizing her hands "Janet, if you only knew!"

They gazed into each other's eyes and both suddenly knew.

"Say, girlie," he proposed after a happy interval, "let's leave the cars at Eldon, be married and go on with the running away."

Which they did.

How Could He Know?

"What do you think of this old world anyway?"

"Bless God, I ain't got time ter think! Six chilluns, house rent an' de grocery bill takes up all my spare time!"—Atlanta Constitution.

HOW IT FEELS TO FLY.

A First Trip In an Aeroplane With Wilbur Wright.

One of the adventurous spirits who have been aloft in Wilbur Wright's aeroplane describes his sensations as follows: "I was wedged into a canvas covered, straw stuffed seat, mounted on the center of the oil bespattered wing of the aeroplane, with a wooden crossbar for my feet to keep me wedged tightly home. Wilbur Wright climbed over the wire stays and wooden bars that attach the forward rudder to the main wings and came around to his own place on my left. The familiar signal was given. Wilbur Wright fastened the two lower buttons of his jacket, as we had seen him do many a time before. Then, climbing into his seat, he pulled his peaked cloth cap well over his eyes, leaned forward, hesitated a second to see that the man at the wing tip was ready, released the catch, and we were off—yes, off, and with such a rush that we seemed to have been shot forth from the mouth of a cannon. Prepared as I was for a quick start, the terrific impetus staggered me.

"But almost before my thoughts had time to shape themselves definitely it was over. There was a thud in the rear—only the wooden bogy, which had dropped to the ground on reaching the end of the starting rail. No need to worry about that, and we were being gently swayed in a calm atmosphere. We were climbing upward moderately fast, to judge by the way in which the ground was slipping away underneath. But a minute later even this had stopped, and we were slowly advancing with a gently undulating motion which made one smile at the thought that this could end in disaster.

"But how deceiving it was! The sensation suggests that you are being cradled in the air. You are moving so gently that you could not come to any harm if you fell. There is not much wind, only a gentle breeze—nothing whatever to disturb you. And reason insisted: You are traveling at forty miles an hour. You have got nothing to support you. Down there, fifty feet away, under that purple heather, is the hard ground waiting to wreck you and the machine. If the engine stops, the air, which is now lulling you, will turn traitor and let you fall cruelly. If the pilot forgets himself for an instant, you may rush downward at the speed of an express train or you may overturn altogether.

"One, two, three and four rounds of the field. Minutes had lengthened out, the novelty had long ceased, and I alternately gazed around idly or watched the motionless figure that had never proffered a word or given a sign that he was aware of my presense. Presently we touch, when I do not know, for I felt no shock whatever, but after a few seconds of this silent glide the machine comes to a stop, and it is over.

"We step out together, and I break the silence with my congratulations and thanks. 'Yes,' replied Wilbur Wright briefly. Then, looking round: 'Now, wouldn't that make you tired? I thought I was close to my starting rail, and I am 300 yards away from it! The sun was in my eyes.'"—Chicago News.

The Treatment of Erysipelas.

Aspinwall Judd of New York recommends the use of strong carbolic acid painted on the surface in cases of erysipelas until the surface is whitened and then followed by swabbing with alcohol. The treatment must go a half inch beyond the border of the eruption to destroy all the germs. The unbearable itching, burning and throbbing are relieved at once, fever soon falls, and general symptoms are relieved. The author has treated successfully sixty seven cases and five cases in which it failed. No scarring results. The superficial layers of the skin come off as in mild sunburn, and the complexion is improved.—Medical Record.

JOHNSON'S JAG.

A Telephone Talk That Must Have Had a Queer Sequel.

McCarty has a fondness for a joke. If a really glittering opportunity turns up, his well controlled conscience is no obstacle to his devoting all the time necessary to the thorough and artistic performance of his jokelet, which is bad for business, but seems to be good for McCarty's digestion.

The other afternoon the telephone rang. A woman was on the wire. She had the wrong number, which made no difference to McCarty. He was in need of relaxation, and the following one sided conversation ensued:

"Yes—yes, this is humpty-umphsteen-seven Rector."

"Who? Mr. Johnson? Oh, yes, Mr. Johnson—sure," he lied pleasantly.

"Did you want to speak to him?" inquired McCarty sweetly.

"You're sure it's Mr. Johnson you want to talk to?"

Here McCarty held his hand over the mouthpiece and forcibly admonished the office boy, who, with humane intentions, had come to rescue the switchboard, suspecting trouble. "G'wan now! I'm doin' this," remarked McCarty, fixing the menial with an eagle eye.

"Could you give me the message, ma'am, and I'll deliver it to Mr. Johnson?" he resumed with engaging politeness.

"Oh, you must speak to him personally if he is busy?" McCarty's voice was an interrogation point.

"You want Mr. Johnson himself to step to the telephone, and you are Mrs. Johnson?"

"Well, ma'am, you see he ain't stepping much now—that is—I mean—he is—well—er—er"— He hesitated in elaborate confusion.

"Yes'm, I am explaining what's the matter. He—well, you see, your husband would be willing to come to the telephone, but he isn't exactly able."

"No, he's not just what you'd call busy."

"No, he's not ill. He's doing nicely."

"We have 'im on the lounge in the directors' room, and we're doing all we can for him"—

"Oh, no, ma'am, you needn't be at all alarmed. He's not able to walk yet, but we'll soon have him all right."

"No, no—not ill. I say he's not ill; he's dr—that is, intoxicated, ma'am, but you needn't— What's that?"

"You've never seen him intox—well, you ought to see him now. What?"

"You—I'll"—

"Oh. She's rung off."

"Now, who in the deuce—who d'yer s'pose Mr. Johnson is, and what d'yer s'pose will be comin' to him when he gets home? Oh, gee!" And McCarty gurgled with joy as he swung back into his seat, and his typewriter clicked innocently out upon the office atmosphere.

Skylarks.

John Burroughs relates that a number of years ago a friend in England sent him a score of skylarks in a cage. He gave them their liberty in a field near where he lived. They drifted away, and he never heard or saw them again. But one Sunday a Scotchman from a neighboring city called on him and declared, with visible excitement, that on his way along the road he had heard a skylark. He was not dreaming; he knew it was a skylark, though he had not heard one since he had left the banks of the Doon a quarter of a century or more before. The song had given him infinitely more pleasure than it would have given to the naturalist himself. Many years ago some skylarks were liberated on Long Island, and they became established there and may now occasionally be heard in certain localities. One summer day a lover of birds journeyed out from the city in order to observe them. A lark was soaring and singing in the sky above him. An old Irishman came along and suddenly stopped, as if transfixed to the spot. A look of mingled delight and incredulity came into his face. Was he indeed hearing the bird of his youth? He took off his hat and turned his face skyward and, with moving lips and streaming eyes, stood a long time regarding the bird. "Ah," thought the student of nature, "if I could only hear the bird as he hears that song with his ears!" To the man of science it was only a bird song to be critically compared to a score of others, but to the other it brought back his youth and all those long gone days on his native hills.

Bore the Test Well.

A famous dramatist was the hero of one of the most amusing marriage proposal experiences on record. When as a young man he fell in love with the pretty daughter of a pastor he was afraid to face the lady and so wrote her a letter. He was told to call the next afternoon and receive his answer. On reaching the house he was shown into a room and given a seat on a sofa. The servant said that the lady would soon appear. He sat and hung around in that room for fully two hours, often tempted to leave the house or make a break for further information, but not having the courage to do either. At last he could stand it no longer and rushed into the corridor, making for the door out of the house. Then he heard a shout of clear, silvery laughter in the room he had left. He hastened back and saw the face of his sweetheart peeping out from under the sofa, convulsed with mirth. "Do forgive me," she ejaculated. "I simply wanted to find out how long you would wait for me. You have borne the test well. Now help me to my feet."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Dogs and Smoke.

"And to you I bequeath the dog," said the New York man who was going to London to live.

The family that had been commissioned to take care of the dog liked the dog, but the dog did not like them. By and by his dissatisfaction became so pronounced that the first family passed him along to another friend of the expatriate. The second family was not so fond of the dog as the first family had been, but the dog did not in the least mind their lack of affection. Apparently he had struck a "homy" atmosphere that pleased him, so he settled down to a contented old age. One day the story of that dog's eccentricities was related to a man who knows all about dogs. The second family wondered why the dog had evinced such an unwelcome partiality for them.

"It isn't the people in this house that attract the pup," said the dog expert. "It's the tobacco smoke. His former master was a habitual smoker. He, his clothes, his rooms, everything about him, smelled like one big cigar. The dog was used to tobacco smoke. He liked it. Nobody smokes in that house where he first lived. He missed the scent of tobacco, and he wasn't satisfied till he got to another place where the air is blue with smoke."—New York Press.

Went Him One Better.

One of the occupants of a railway carriage was a gentleman who beguiled the time by telling some rather "tall yarns" of his experiences abroad. A solemn looking individual with a camera and tripod sat in a corner seat and listened without a shadow of a smile. The traveler, having concluded an impressive story, says London Punch, began again: "I never see a camera but it reminds me of a sad occurrence that befell a friend of mine while we were traveling in Italy. He was an enthusiastic amateur photographer, and when we climbed Vesuvius nothing would satisfy him but a near view of the crater. He wanted to go to the very edge. The guides told him of the danger. It was the last seen of my poor friend! Sad, wasn't it, sir?" he added, turning to the solemn man. The latter shook his head. "Do you doubt my word?" said the traveler. "No," returned the solemn man, "I don't doubt your word, but I fancy your memory is failing." "Eh? How so?" "Because," said the solemn man slowly and gravely—"because I am the man! And yet you don't remember me! I came out again on the other side of the globe, but I got my view!" There was dead silence for a few minutes afterward, and the traveler got off at the next station.

The Eternal Puzzle—Baby.

Not so very long ago it was customary to treat children as if they were stupid and naughty grownup people. Now there is a tendency to run to the opposite extreme and to treat them as if they were a great deal cleverer than their parents. There are even people who set themselves deliberately to "study" their children in much the same spirit as a bacteriologist would study a new kind of germ.

Here is a bit of advice that can be made work two ways—for the woman who is too thin and her too plump sister: Hurry and worry are twin foes to rounded curves. A good motto for the thin woman is, "Do not trouble trouble till trouble troubles you."

CANADIAN SPELLING.

Official Form of Geographical Names Is Little Known.

If three persons were asked to spell the name of the long lake which on the west separates the Province of Quebec from Ontario and washes the shores of the Cobalt country, it is more than likely that each would give a different spelling, that none would be right according to the official standard, and yet that each could find authority for his form of the word. There is only one way to spell the word that bears the stamp of official approval, and this is it—Temiskaming. The Geographic Board of Canada has said so, and that ends the matter.

This board is not a new thing, for it was called into being by order-in-council of Dec. 18, 1897, and yet the fact of its existence is not generally known, or is forgotten. It has control over our place names. It can change them, amend them, correct their spelling and determine between different spellings which one is to be retained. Being under the jurisdiction of the Marine Department, the Deputy Minister of that Department is its chairman, and its members number eleven, all high officials in the Federal service, besides nine representative members — one from each province. There is an executive committee of them, and probably these gentlemen do the work.

The board has laid down for the guidance of its members about a score of rules respecting nomenclature; for instance, when the priority of a name has been established by publication in any standard work, that name, if possible, should be retained; when there are two or more names or forms of the same name, all other things being equal, the most euphonious should be retained, possessive forms should be avoided, also the use of the hyphen to connect parts of Indian names. "The vowels are to be pronounced as in Italian and the consonants as in English." After reading that rule no one should stumble over the pronunciation of any name that adorns our map from Assinkepatakiso to Washeibemaga.

Every year the board publishes a report—the latest one being the seventh, and this report contains all the decisions made up to the time of its publication. These decisions fill about a hundred pages giving the spelling of names of which there have been several forms in use, and also changes made in the spelling of old names, the alterations being made for the purpose of conforming to modern usage. For instance, old possessives have been dropped, thus the little hamlet in Chateauguay county whose name used to be written "Allan's Corners" is now Allan Corners. There are a number of such cases. In Argenteuil county is a village whose name as a rule has been written Beech Ridge — two words — but hereafter it is to be written as one word—Beechridge—and other similar words are treated in the same way.

Abitibi, the name of the lake and district in northwestern Quebec, made known to the public by the building of the Transcontinental Railway through the country, is to be written as given here; and near Abitibi is a lake and river associated with a promising mineral region. Of the name of this lake and district several forms have been in use, but the one sanctioned by the Geographical Board is this — Chibougamau — not Chibougamou nor Chibougamoo. Just one more example of the board's decisions. In the northern part of New Ontario is a lake famous for its charms and its excellent fishing. It bears an Indian name and the name has had several spellings. The official correct one is "Timagami, not Tamagaming nor Temagami."

A Range of Mountains.

"If some natural obstacle, such as a mountain, divided Canada from the United States, and it cost $35 to carry each hundred dollars' worth of Canadian goods sent to the United States over that mountain, and $35 to carry each hundred dollars' worth of American goods this way, what would happen? The Governments of the two countries would at once devote their energies, by blasting or tunneling, to the removal of the mountain. By some means, no matter what the cost, the obstacle to free intercourse would be removed.

"But what do we find? We find that millions have been spent in bridging the St. Lawrence and Niagara, and in tunneling beneath the St. Clair, to the end that the flow of traffic backward and forward may be facilitated. Then, after having done this, a paper wall, a tariff wall, has been erected on both sides, and officers have been stationed on the Canadian side to see that no American goods pass this way without first paying toll to the extent of $35 on each hundred; and other officers have been stationed on the American side to see that no Canadian goods pass that way without being similarly tolled.

"Of all the legislative follies the world has witnessed there are few which can surpass those of which the Canadian and United States Govments have been guilty in regard to trade relations between the two countries." — Richard Stutt at Forest Grange.

Sidewheel Dawson's Pardon.

By D. H. TALMADGE.

Mr. Dawson's "fin" was weary from vigorous shaking, his back was sore from repeated slaps, his neck was chafed by the collar to which it had long been a stranger, but his state of mind was one of most excellent satisfaction.

A man who had been sentenced to twenty years of hard labor in the penitentiary and who comes forth free and in the full possession of his health at the end of five is certainly entitled to some felicitation. That was precisely what had happened to Mr. Dawson. He had killed his man under what appeared cold blooded circumstances to an intelligent jury. He had pleaded self defense conventionally, but the testimony was such that there seemed no doubt of his guilt. True, there had been no eyewitnesses to the slaughter. Those who testified merely told of threats he had made, of his bad reputation, of the peaceable character of his victim. The defense had called no witnesses.

"'Tain't worth while," Mr. Dawson had said to his attorney. "'Twould do more harm than good for any of me friends to testify to the gentleness of me disposition. Snapper Griffin 'd have had me dead in another wink if I hadn't jerked the trigger when I did, and that's straight. He begun the trouble and kept pushin' it on, while I tried me levelest to reason with him. He'd been dopin' with somethin', I think, but he didn't wiggle a wiggle when he pointed his gun. He was himself all right, and there's some comfort in knowin' it, for I'd hate like blazes to feel that the only man I ever killed wasn't responsible for himself. I've got a mighty tender conscience, whether you know it or not, and it's perfectly comfortable now. I'll take whatever the court gives me, and I won't whimper a whimper."

The first night he slept in the penitentiary his attorney was delivering in the levee district a message to his friends. "Hump yourselves to get Van Altren elected governor," was the burden of it. The levee gang did not know exactly what to think, but they were sufficiently well acquainted with Mr. Dawson to accept the instructions in good faith.

Mr. Dawson's message was entirely responsible for their action. To the contrary, it was only an important drop in a tolerably large tub of political suds. Their own candidate had "done them dirt"—quite by chance, certainly not by intention. He had allied himself in a moment of mistaken wisdom with the Prohibitionists. They were engaged in hesitating and grumbling and scowling when Mr. Dawson's message came, throwing the balance over to the Van Altren side. Sidewheel Dawson never did anything without a good reason, but what his reason was in this particular instance they could not conjecture. They were still in the dark on the day when Mr. Dawson unexpectedly and triumphantly returned.

"Say," said he after the first wave of welcome had passed and he was sitting comfortably in the rear room at Muggsy Kelly's place with a number of old and tried associates about him, "I'm owin' you boys a lot for the way you helped old Van to the puddin'. I was a bit leary you wouldn't get next to what I was up to, but it didn't cost nothin' to try."

"We didn't get next. We ain't next yet," candidly observed Mr. Kelly. "Is Van a partic'ler friend of yours?"

Mr. Dawson smiled. "No," he replied, "but he's got reason for believin' me when I tell him I shot Snapper Griffin 'cause Snapper Griffin was dead set on givin' me the long trip and for no other reason."

"We believe that," said Mr. Kelly. "We knowed your story was true, but we couldn't do nothin'."

"Course you couldn't. If any of you had stuck your mugs into the game I'd have been queered to the limit. Likely I'd have got the drop and gurgle, and then Van couldn't have reached me even if his gratitude was twice as long."

"Then Van was owin' you somethin'?" Mr. Kelly and the others looked at Mr. Dawson with a common expression of curiosity and admiration mingled. "You've got us in the air, Sidewheel. Take us down or we'll bust."

Mr. Dawson laughed this time and rubbed his hands together. "Sure, I'll take you down," he said. "'Twon't take me long to do it either. Muggsy, do you remember a little job we had on six years ago this summer down at Bayside, when"—

"When you was out all night and got nothin' but a pair of red eyes and a fit of sickness and a stink of gas?" Mr. Kelly put in. "Yes, I remember. I almost lost me faith in you that time."

"Yes?" Mr. Dawson chuckled immoderately. "I was to divvy what I got from the place—that dead easy place with the open cellar windows you spotted one Sunday afternoon when you was strollin' home from church. I was to divvy, and I got nothin' but"— He suddenly assumed a reflective attitude, his hand upon his smoothly shaven chin, his gaze upon the ceiling.

"But what?" Mr. Kelly spoke with the sharpness of a long starved and desperate inquisitiveness.

"But—gratitude. It was the rummiest go of me life. I followed the lay just as you'd give it to me. I went through the first floor first, gatherin' up stuff worth maybe a tenner of hundreds. If I'd quit right there I'd—well, I'd be lookin' forward to fifteen more years of it 'stead of bein' here with me future before me bright as paste. But everything was so nice and quiet I just says to meself, 'I'll tour the next floor.' So I piles me stuff by the grand exit, where I can pick it up when I strolls out, and climbs the stairs.

"And the first thing I know I'm takin' part in a high life tragedy drama. 'Twasn't no supe part either; 'twas the role of the hero that drops in when he's least expected and saves the whole cheese. I opens the first door I comes to, and I nearly faints owin' to gas. The room was full of it, and I closed the door, standin' for a minute with me hand on the knob, thinkin'. 'Twas no picnic of mine, of course, but I couldn't help feelin' that somethin' was wrong—that somebody was tryin' to croak and that it was up to me to save 'em if they was to be saved. That settles it. I draws in two bagfuls of wind and opens the door again, slidin' across the floor to a window and raisin' the curtain, and then I tumbles. There's a girl on the bed and a letter on the table—the same old layout. I tries to raise the window, but it won't budge. It didn't take me all summer to find the leak. The stench was comin' from a hole in the wall where a pipe—one of these things that sticks out about a foot—had been busted off. She must have hung her whole weight on that thing and jumped up and down! But she'd got an elegant flow of gas—way ahead of what she'd have got by turnin' on the burner, and the beauty of it was that nobody could turn it off. I couldn't see nothin' else to do but put me thumb over the hole, and that's what I done, takin' short breaths till enough of the vapor had got out at the door to let me pump somewhere near normal, and then"—

"And then?" Mr. Kelly had planted his elbows upon the table, contemplating Mr. Dawson fixedly.

"And then—I waited. What else was there to do? I couldn't sneak, leavin' things that way, could I? I'd have been ashamed to look an honest man in the face forevermore if I'd done that. And after awhile I hears a pattipat in the hall and a dopy voice say, 'Seems to me I smell gas.' 'You're dead right, me friend,' I calls. 'Hustle in here and don't strike a glim for your life!'

"And then I has the pleasure of makin' the acquaintance of the Hon. James Van Altren. He's in his pajamas, and his hair is tousled, and his feet have no coverin', and his eyes are blinky. 'Tis two minutes maybe before he can shake himself together. The first question he asks is a double header. 'Who are you, and what is the meanin' of this?' he says. 'I'm a thief,' says I, 'and the young lady on the bed there is one, too—at least she's been tryin' to rob the world of her presence.' 'Oh, horror!' says he, seein' what's up. 'And what are you doin'?' 'I'm holdin' me thumb over this gas well,' says I, 'and I'm gettin' weary.'

"'Oh,' says he and skins over to the bedside. He shakes the girl, and she sits up, starin' like a wild thing. Then he turns to me again. 'How long have you been here?' he says. 'I don't know,' says I, 'but plenty long enough to save the young lady's life. This room was a fright when I got here. Will you stick your thumb over this hole till I can rest my arm a bit?' And he sticks his thumb over the hole, and I bids him a courteous adieu and slides, leavin' him there. I didn't stop for nothin', not even me lantern. I was sick. I was afraid I wouldn't be strong enough to get to a safe place before I'd have to stretch meself. Maybe you remember, Muggsy, how groggy I was for a time after I got here?"

"Yes," responded Mr. Kelly, with a succession of nods, "I remember."

"Well, that was the string I had on Van, and after I'd served what I thought was a fair time for what I'd done to Snapper Griffin I writes to the governor, recallin' to him the circumstance. And he comes down handsome, as I was sure he would. He gives me the honor of a personal interview, and he falls on me neck in a sort of mild way and tells me that he believes me story regardless of the court, and he sends me a pardon, and that's all."

"Gee!" said Mr. Kelly after a thoughtful interval. "Supposin' Van hadn't been elected!"

"Don't!" said Mr. Dawson. "It gives me a horrible pain to think of it!"

"And the girl—what was the matter with her?" persisted Mr. Kelly.

"I didn't ask," responded Mr. Dawson. "'Twas none of me business."

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—Hogs Active at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, April 12.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 13¾c to 14¼c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10¼c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, April 12.—The receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were light—only 30 carloads, consisting of 577 cattle, 14 sheep and 61 calves.

Exporters—Trade in exporters was not any better than it has been, but there happened to be one or two finished loads which sold a little better. Export steers sold at from $5.40 to $5.85, but only one load, sold by McDonald & Halligan, brought the latter price. Bulls sold at from $4.25 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers—There was an excellent demand for finished butchers, which sold up to $5.40 per cwt., but that price has been paid several times before the Easter market trade. Prime picked lots and loads of butchers sold at $5.25 to $5.40; loads of good, $4.90 to $5.20; medium, $4.50 to $4.80; common, $3.90 to $4.40; cows, $3.40 to $4.60; canners and common cows, $2 to $2.75.

Milkers and Springers.

There were two cows bought by Fred Rowntree at $42 and $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Sixty-one calves sold at prices ranging from $4.50 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The market for sheep and lambs was none too brisk, and prices seem to have reached their limit. Export ewes sold at $4.25 to $5 per cwt.; yearling lambs were reported at $6.50 to $6.50 per cwt. for common and $7 to $7.75 per cwt. for choice, grain-fed lambs. Spring lambs are worth from $5 to $8 each.

Hogs.

Prices were quoted firmer, at $7.35 for selects, fed and watered at the market, and $7.10 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 12.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 10, were 983 cattle, 168 sheep and lambs, 1142 hogs and 2380 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 300 cattle, 705 hogs and 20 calves. As usual the first market after the Easter was one no different to any other year, it being a very quiet affair, owing to the fact that buyers generally had bought more stock than they wanted for their actual requirements last week in order to make a good showing in their shops. Consequently the bulk of them carried over considerable and will not require much beef this week. In consequence the demand was limited for cattle this morning, but as the supply was also limited the undertone to the market was steady and prices showed no important change. There was some buying for Quebec account, and this, coupled with what exporters and local butchers took, a good clearance was made. There were really no choice steers offered, and the top price realized for the best was 5½c and lower grades sold from that down to 4c, while good bulls brought 4½c to 5c and feeders 3½c per pound. There were no sheep or lambs on the market and in consequence trade in these lines was very slow, but dealers stated that buyers would pay 6½c to 7c per pound for yearling lambs, and 5c to 5½c for old sheep, while spring lambs were quoted at $3 to $6 each. The few calves offered met with a ready sale at prices ranging from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

The supply of hogs was light, for which the demand was good from packers and the feeling in the market remains strong, but prices show no actual change, sales of selected lots being made at $7.90 to $8 and straight lots at $7.80 to $7.85 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Veals—Receipts, 1400 head; slow and steady, $7 to $8.50.

Flood Peril In St. Lawrence.

Montreal, April 13.—Last night the ice in the river opposite the city began to move down the river at the Boucherville Islands. It jammed with the consequence that in less than half an hour the water at the lower end of the city rose eight feet, covering the high level wharves, which are supposed to be above the high water mark.

The civic pumping stations have so far been able to keep the water out of the cellars along the river front. On the other side of the river some fifty families in Longueuil have been flooded out and considerable damage has been done to property.

Bridgeworker Blown to Death.

New York, April 13.—John McShane, a young structural ironworker of Brooklyn, was killed yesterday by falling from the unfinished structure of the Manhattan Bridge over the East river. The coupling on a compressed air pipe burst beneath him and blew him off the structure. He landed 110 feet below in a backyard. A heavy projecting plank which the man struck half-way down in his fall, broke under him like a wafer. Another workman ducked the force of the explosion and managed to keep from falling by clinging desperately to the structure.

Little Girl's Trip.

St. Thomas, April 13.—Mary Manning, the 13-year-old daughter of Jas. Manning of this city, has arrived here from Waterford, Ireland, having made the entire journey alone. Her father had not seen her since she was an infant, when her mother having died, he put her in a convent and came to Canada. Recently he opened correspondence with the convent and succeeded in getting permission to have her come to this country.

Serious Riots In France.

Meru, France, April 13.—The striking button makers of Meru, whose demands for a continuance of the previous wage scale in the button factories, have been followed by violence and disorders, recalling the days of the revolution, have brought about a veritable reign of terror here, and in the neighboring towns of Crepin and Lormaison. About 2,500 soldiers and police are under arms.

Tug Captain Drowned.

Meaford, April 13.—Capt. John McInnis, owner of the fishing tug Primrose, fell overboard and was drowned off Cape Rich, in rounding which boats are compelled to run for some distance in the trough of the sea. The deck being coated with ice, McInnis lost his balance while going from the pilot house to the engine room. He leaves a wife and three young children.

Sealing Steamer Lost.

St. John's, Nfld., April 13.—The sealing steamer Decapo has not been heard from for several weeks, and it is feared she was lost between the Nova Scotia coast and Newfoundland last week.

The Decapo carried a crew of thirty men.

Revolt In Samoa Threatened.

Berlin, April 13.—The Berliner Tageblatt prints a letter from a German planter in Samoa, who says the natives are badly treated by the governor, Dr. Solf, and he sounds a warning of an uprising on May 1 if certain promised reforms are not granted.

Ice on Lake Superior.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 13.—A wire from Port Arthur last evening says the steamer Moore of the Booth Line arrived there yesterday afternoon from Duluth. Navigation is now open up Lake Superior from the Soo as far as Round Island, five miles above the locks. The ice is clear all the way from that point to Whitefish. Ice is still solid below the Soo, but is gone as far as Six Mile Point and the lake is still solid and there is still two feet of ice around Pipe Island, just this side of Detour.

Sir Wilfrid Returns.

Montreal, April 13.—The statement sent out early in the day to the effect that Sir Wilfrid Laurier came down here to see Lieutenant-Governor Tweedie of New Brunswick was not correct as the Premier's visit to Montreal, so it is said, was in connection with the Grand Trunk loan. Sir Wilfrid returned to the capital last evening.

Japan's New Torpedo Boat.

New York, April 13.—The Japanese Government is negotiating with an American builder of submarines for the purchase of plans and specifications for a new type of submarines of smaller model than the type now in common use, but of double speed.

Britain's Opportunity.

London, April 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Referring to the price of wheat, The Mail says the remedy is still open to Britain, for the resources of Canada are not yet approached to the limit and may be not merely developed, but also secured by a preference.

Winnipeg, Man., April 13.—The expected happened yesterday afternoon when the announcement was made that all leading brands of flour are raised ten cents per sack. Should present wheat prices hold, flour will undoubtedly advance again.

The Girl From the Country.

Said a visitor to a teacher in a west side business college:

"That girl from the country seems to be the brightest student in the room."

At the request of the teacher she designated more particularly the girl she had in mind.

"Oh, yes," said the teacher, "she is very bright. But how did you know she is from the country? She doesn't look countrified."

"Her habit of washing her hands so often gave her away," said the visitor. "I have been sitting here about two hours. In that time she has washed her hands three times. No city girl would have done that. She would have sharpened pencils or turned over dusty books and simply have polished her hands on her pocket handkerchief and gone on working. The country girl would find it impossible to work under such conditions. She must have clean hands. All country people have a mania for washing their hands. After each task down go their hands into a basin of water. City life cures most country habits. Frequent bathing of the hands is the last to go."—New York Times.

70,000 Americans Coming.

Seventy thousand people from the United States will arrive in Western Canada during the present year and will settle on homesteads in the three prairie provinces.

This is an estimate placed on the American movement by J. Bruce Walker, commissioner of immigration at Winnipeg. These newcomers will settle on 21,000 homesteads and will have under cultivation inside of the next two years over 5,000 square miles of additional territory.

The movement across the line is so far this season one hundred per cent. greater than last year, and it has been found necessary to put on extra inspectors at Emerson and North Portal to handle the work.

The greater portion of the newcomers are settling in the territory west of Moose Jaw. They are bringing their stock and household goods with them from the other side.

Underground In Paris.

Underground passages for pedestrians are to be built at various points beneath the Champs Elysees, which the constant stream of motor cars now renders impassable from morning till evening. The congestion of other Paris streets also has grown to an alarming extent, and all thoroughfares around the Opera are blocked with traffic for hours, morning and afternoon. If the Champs Elysees tunnels prove a success others will be excavated in the center of Paris, and foot passengers will in future cross not over streets, but under them.

Tyburn Tree.

The London county council has decided to commemorate, by means of a triangular stone placed in the roadway, the site of Tyburn gallows, at the junction of Edgware road and Oxford street. It is also the intention of his majesty's office of works to fix within Hyde park railings a bronze tablet bearing the inscription: "Tyburn tree. The triangular stone in the roadway, seventy-five feet north of this point, indicates the site of the ancient gallows known as Tyburn tree, which was demolished in 1760." — London Mail.

How It Read.

Charles Buxfon Going, poet, editor, scientific expert and business man, possible successor of the beloved Edmund Clarence Stedman, en route for Europe, sent a wireless message from Nantucket to his friends in New York. He dictated it thus:

"Everything comfortable. Going."

The New York office delivered it thus:

"Everything comfortable going. (Not signed.)"—New York Press.

Fatal Hotel Fire.

Swan River, Man., April 13.—The Empire Hotel was destroyed by fire Sunday morning.

Walter Livingston, a young homesteader, journeying from his parents' home in Minnedosa, was burned to death, while a comrade was rescued with difficulty.

Row In Turkish Cabinet.

Constantinople, April 13.—Serious misunderstandings have arisen between the Ministers and the Parliament concerning the economies to be realized in the budget. These disputes will certainly lead to some changes in the Cabinet. Parliament demands a general diminution of the salaries of the Ministers and functionaries and the dismissal of Government officials whose services are unnecessary.

Firm For Open Shop.

Detroit, April 13.—"Whatever the four package freight lines at Buffalo may have done in the way of a settlement with their engineers will make absolutely no difference in the stand of the Lake Carriers' Association for the open shop," declared President William Livingstone of the association yesterday.

Intervention In Persia.

London, April 13.—The situation in Persia is gradually developing in the direction of an Anglo-Russian intervention. British bluejackets were landed from the cruiser Fox at Bushire on Saturday.

The Storm Nose.

The curious name "storm nose" is given in Germany to the wave of high barometric pressure which often precedes a storm or a heavy squall. The barometer rises suddenly and then falls more gradually. It is believed that this phenomenon is responsible for sudden changes in the level of the sea. Observations on the seas surrounding Denmark have led to the conclusion that the change of level thus produced sometimes amounts to no less than three feet.

He who shall pass judgment on the records of our life is the same that formed us in frailty.—Stevenson.

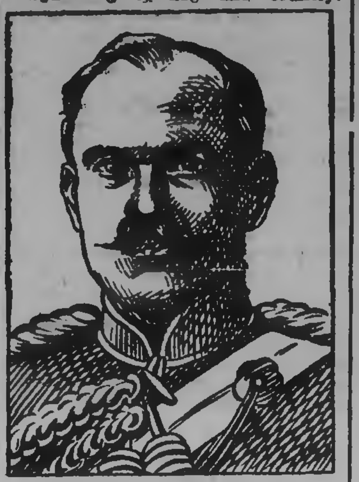
Strong Plea For Patriotic Military Service For Canada

Toronto, April 13.—"Had our people been alive to the true position in which we are, from a military point of view—a veritable fool's paradise—they would long ago have discarded our present military system in favor of patriotic military service. When I say the people of Canada, I mean, of course, those of our own time, for our forefathers were wiser, and, indeed, knew better what fighting for their country meant, after their hard lessons in 1812-13 and 14."

So said Lieut.-Col. William Hamilton Merritt, late commanding officer of the Governor-General's Body Guards and president of the Canadian Military Institute in concluding an address to that body last evening on "Patriotic Military Service." He added:

"What strikes an average Canadian more forcibly than almost anything else in the old world, is the real earnest serious tone that is assumed by even civilians when it comes to the matter of national defence, and the safeguarding of flag and country.



LIEUT.-COL. W. H. MERRITT.

Military and civilians alike seem keyed-up, under normal conditions, to what would be a war scare pitch in this country.

"No matter whether we like to allow ourselves to think it or not, the ordinary state of mind towards the military organization of our people by our people is that it is purely fool business waste of time and wholly unnecessary. Forgetting the lesson of a hundred years ago they ask who is going to attack Canada? War with the United States is unthinkable. Japan is our ally, etc.

"We can only give the old answer in reply: If we do not need an armed organisation capable of putting a real, earnest strong defence—a united people striking all together for their homes and country—then we had better not spend money uselessly, and we should do away with all military expenditure, above all we should not waste it on a hopelessly inadequate and obsolete system.

"The great lesson for our countrymen to learn is that because we have a great and a potentially rich inheritance other countries will some day, if not now, wish to possess it, and that, instead of sneering at patriotism and soldiering, it should be held and taught that the highest duty and aspiration of every male citizen is to fit himself to defend that inheritance with his own hands and his own body and his own life.

"This is but a feeble indication of what the fathers and mothers of the Japanese have from generation to generation instilled into the minds of their children, and the fruits of which amazed the world in the late war.

"When we become more unselfish, when the individual learns that on him rests an obligation to fit himself for the defence of his home, his flag and his country, then and then only will Canada be safe, and by safeguarding Canada we can claim to have made secure the future right hand of a greater Empire than has been."

Col. Merritt's remarks were supplementary to a previous paper of his on "Switzerland's Citizen Soldiery," and, by a review of the military systems of the civilized world, an endeavor to show that Canada's military system lags far behind as a practical means for safeguarding the country.

"The Canadian system might not improperly be designated the dollar system," he said. "Our city corps, who put in training at night in their local armories, might be compared to the abandoned volunteer system in Great Britain, who draw no pay; but to the main bulk of those attending the annual mobilization of our Canadian militia the dollar, with shelter and sustenance, is an extremely important factor.

"The Militia Department have been obliged to increase the pay to fill up the ranks with patriots." While Frenchmen draw one cent when in uniform, Canada, under the voluntary principle, has to adopt the 'dollar' basis to fill her ranks.

W. F. Moore, Dundas; Miss Janet Charteris, Chatham; H. J. Clark, Belleville; D. Williams, Collingwood; Rev. W. A. Bradley, B.A., Berlin.

In the afternoon Rev. W. A. Bradley of Berlin, the president, referred to the necessity of providing for the education of the artisan through the public library and the subjects for which at present he is largely dependent on U. S. correspondence schools. He believed that with a Government grant the average fee of $50 a year so paid, could be cut in two.

The secretary's report said that enquiries had been received from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba and Nova Scotia. The annual list of "best books" issued by the association has become a quarterly bulletin, and the question of an editorial board to supervise the issue goes before the incoming executive.

The treasurer reported a balance of $214.19; receipts were $411.21.

Library institutes were reported as "all alive and very much in earnest." The building of a new library at Ridgeway was the result of the visit of an institute.

The report of the committee on the bibliography of Canadian history and historical fiction was given by L. J. Brupee of Ottawa. E. A. Hardy in presenting the report on Government grants, notes that the bill introduced by the Minister of Education made an effort to meet the associations.

FRIENDS CARRY DISEASE.

Relatives of Quarantined Persons Must Be Careful, Says Experts.

Toronto, April 13.—"This meeting is to discuss mutual problems, and bring enlightenment from the experience of others," said Dr. W. J. Dobbin of the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives, in opening the third annual meeting of the Canadian Hospital Association yesterday at the Parliament buildings.

The principal item was a paper on "Germ Carriers," prepared by Miss K. Mathieson of Toronto Isolation Hospital and read by Dr. J. N. E. Brown. There were four types of "germ carriers" (1) Mild or unrecognized cases; (2) convalescents released prematurely from quarantine; (3) nurses, physicians, attendants, members of the family and articles which have been in contact with a germ carrier and who, nevertheless, harbor a specific germ.

A great difficulty which isolation hospitals had to contend with was the visitation of friends, and whether they come from homes of the poor or palaces of the rich, they should be treated alike in respect of rules governing control of infectious diseases. Every city should have a steam disinfecting plant for treating carpets, curtains, in order that they could be returned free from germs.

The advantage of a water filtration system was spoken of by Dr. Charteris, who said that Chatham had enjoyed immunity of typhoid on that account.

Moral Reform In Spain.

Madrid, April 13.—The old night life of Spain, the music and dancing that has been such an attractive feature to foreign tourists to Madrid and the southern cities of Seville, Cadiz, Benda, Malaga and Barcelonia, is a thing of the past.

A few years ago the Government decided that night Bohemianism was demoralizing the youth of the country, and King Alfonso issued a royal decree closing music halls, cafes and other places of amusement at 12.30 a.m. Formerly these places never closed their doors.

A new royal decree, designed to raise the tone of the music halls, has just been issued. The women of the stage are prohibited hereafter from entering that part of the building intended for the public or from addressing or otherwise coming in contact with the audience.

Toronto, April 13.—The senate of Victoria College met last evening and decided to confer honorary degrees of D.D. upon Rev. Thomas Manning, M.A., of Windsor, a graduate of about thirty years ago, and who has been prominent in Methodism; and upon Rev. W. B. Creighton, B.D., editor of The Christian Guardian, also a graduate of the college and gold medalist in divinity some fifteen years ago.

Montevideo, Uruguay, April 13.—A French professor, sent by his Government to study cancer in Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, has returned from Buenos Ayres. He said he was surprised at the great number of cases of cancer in the digestive organs and believes that certain fishes propagate the germs of the disease.

The President has signed the law completely suppressing religious education in the public schools here.

Bonus to Railway.

St. Mary's, Ont., April 13.—Blanchard and Usborne Towships voted yesterday on bylaws to bonus the St. Mary's & Western Ontario Railway to the extent of $20,000 for each township. In Blanchard the bylaw was defeated by 18, but in Usborne it carried by over 100. These bylaws were designed to carry this railway, which connects with the C.P.R. at Embro, one step further on its projected route to Sarnia. The bylaw in Blanchard may be re-submitted.

Whirled In Shafting.

Tillsonburg, April 13.—While Chas. Young of the Maple Leaf Harvest Tool Works was putting on a belt in the forgeroom yesterday morning he was drawn up by the belt by the right arm and whirled around the shaft. He dropped on an anvil which had two upright prongs on it, on which he was impaled. His arm was broken and the flesh stripped from it. He was badly injured on the head.

The increase of 15 per cent. on spirits and wines will it is expected increase the revenue by $3,000,000, mostly from champagnes. The agitation raised by the women against the proposed increases of duty on gloves, cotton hosiery and hats and bonnets has had its effect. The chief changes from the bill as passed by Congress are:

Fish—no change. Cocoa—put on free list. Cotton hosiery—back to old rates. Raw flax—duty restored. Wool—rates restored. Silks — slight reduction. Wood pulp—undecided. Hides—undecided. Coal—undecided. Hats and bonnets — 15 per cent. reduction. Gloves—rates restored.

The wife of ex-President Castro will not be allowed to land in Venezuela.

Evidence was heard at London against John Ward, charged with causing the death of Alex. Warwick.

T. S. Bonneau, a railway telegrapher, was found dead and frozen in a brook near the track at Farnham, Que.

A deputation from Montreal has gone to wait on Premier Gouin with the object of securing reforms in the civic administration.

Winnipeg Street Railway employes have refused an increase in pay offered by the company in lieu of their demands for shorter hours.

The man who was selling papers through a hole in the door at Hamilton made his escape from the building while four policemen were supposed to be watching it.

Equipment For C.N.R.

Winnipeg, Man., April 13.—"Every car works in Canada is now busy manufacturing cars for the Canadian Northern Railway and there will be $2,000,000 worth of equipment for the western lines delivered before the harvest."

D. B. Hanna, third vice-president of the C.N.R., made that statement after his arrival from the east yesterday morning.

"Of the new equipment there will be 2,000 box-cars and a large number of refrigerator and passenger coaches."

Niagara River Is Still Blocked With The Ice

Niagara Falls, April 13.—Conditions in the lower river are practically the same, and unless heavy winds blow more ice down the river to-day the damage done by the ice jam in the lower river will not exceed that already estimated, which totals at a reasonable estimate one million dollars. Already, before the jam has perceptibly started to break up, the gorge railroad has put a gang of 250 men at work repairing that portion of the track above the whirlpool, which can be reached. The lower portion is still submerged for five miles under millions of tons of ice. Yesterday morning a small section of the pack below the whirlpool broke away and swung out into the river. Then other sections broke off and the jam is now growing smaller. The change is going on very gradually. It is thought that when the rest of the jam goes out, the whole gorge track from Whirlpool to Lewiston may be carried away. The ice is breaking away in great masses of a ton or more and sections of the tracks are being carried away, poles and wire following the rails and ties into the river. Near the Cornell House, in Lewiston, the ice is piling still higher, although it is already 40 feet above the level of the river.

At the Ontario Power Co. hundreds of men are busy cleaning the machinery, which was flooded with ice and water on Saturday. The plant is now free from ice, and the machines are being dried, and until the powerhouse is opened for a full load, the Canadian Niagara Power Co. and Electrical Development Co. are supplying power to the disabled company.

The conditions in the river just below the falls changed yesterday. The ice bridge has worn away from the base of the cataracts and a huge bank of ice extends half way across the river above the upper bridge. The ice at this point is over ten feet above the normal level, having fallen about 30 feet.

William W. Campbell Scores Writers Of Modern Books

Toronto, April 13.—"You can all be Neros; do not fiddle while Ontario is burning," said William Wilfrid Campbell, M.A., LL.D., F.R.S.C., poet and moral mentor, to the Ontario Library Association last night.

This invitation to be up and doing referred to the necessity of stemming the tide of debasing influence of modern popular literature. The librarians and the newspapers were told. "You have bred the monster which is about to destroy you. He who in any walk of life descends to catering to what is called public opinion is dooming himself in the long run."

"Where books were once use magazines and newspapers are taking their place. The average library in its efforts to be popular is deteriorating the library ideal to the public appetite. Too much is being done to provide cheap American magazines for boys and girls and lounging men. The magazine list could be cut down to one-fifth with great advantage. The reading of newspapers and novels has become one of the vices of our age."

Librarians were exhorted to wake up to the fact of the terrible degeneration in fiction. "Back to Sir Walter Scott, the greatest and sanest of English writers, since Shakespeare" seems to be the poet's battle cry.

The speaker fell foul of the works of George Meredith, which he described as "false and pedantic, injurious to British and Canadian culture, disgustingly immoral, a decadent and an exceedingly nasty one, a literary and thical monstrosity."

"There is too much of the nasty in ordinary fiction. I tell you frankly the community won't stand it much longer. It is a sign of a terrible moral decadence. Hundreds of such books are on our library shelves to-day."

William De Morgan's "Somehow Good," was singled out for special execration. "There is no 'somehow' about it. I should call it 'altogether bad.' Its theme is unfit to be handled in a novel. The book has no excuse for being.

"You ought to be ashamed to allow such vicious literature to creep into your shelves."

Such books as "The Shuttle" were a gross libel on British family life. Incidentally he paid a high tribute to Nursey's book on Sir Isaac Brock, which, he declared should be read by every young Canadian.

"It is dangerous to drift, to allow all sorts of agitators to dictate our ideals. The duty of Canadian libraries is to inculcate the sound, old-time, ethical, British ideals. We worship smartness and forgive dishonesty. Any really great literature can only come from a sane, pure and God-like people."

A paper by Inspector T. W. H. Leavitts on "The Working Man and the Library," was read. It was high time he held, that Canada should shake off the lethargy of industrial indifference.

The following officers were elected: President, Judge Hardy, Brampton; first vice president, A. W. Cameron, B.A., Streetsville; second vice-president, D. J. Burpee, Ottawa; secretary, E. A. Hardy, B.A., Toronto; treasurer, Dr. A. B. Macallum, Toronto. Councillors, Dr. George F. Locke, Toronto;

Rocco Plucci, the Young Italian Charged With Stealing From G. T. R. Freight Sheds, Was Allowed to Go—In Court To-day.

TO WORK ON RAILROAD.

Rocco Plucci, the young Italian, who was found guilty of stealing from the G. T. R. freight sheds, was allowed to go on suspended sentence. Plucci had been in gaol three weeks, having been remanded. It was thought that the young fellow was not of sound mind, having acted strangely on several occasions, but since his confinement in the gaol, his condition is said to have considerably improved.

His Worship to'd Plucci's brother that they must leave their present boarding house, that being the condition on which the prisoner was being dismissed on suspended sentence.

The brother intimated that they would be leaving soon to work on the railroad.

THE BURNS-JOHNSON FIGHT PICTURES

The world's championship contest at the Stadium, Sydney, Australia, which took place on December 26th, 1908, between Tommy Burns of Canada, and the coloured fighter, Jack Johnson, was undoubtedly the greatest fistic event in the world's history. The realistic and lifelike motion pictures of this remarkable contest, which were taken at the ring side while the fight was in progress, will be exhibited here on Saturday, April 17, matinee and night, at the Grand Opera House.

A statement of the facts of the fight will be of interest to Tommy Burns' fellow-countrymen. The total gate receipts were $131,200.00 (more than doubling that of any other fistic encounter). There were 20,400 paid admissions. The Stadium, which was credited for this remarkable contest, is 480 feet by 360 feet, approximately four and a half acres, two thousand tons of lumber was used in its construction, and it took six weeks to build it.

The pictures will show that throughout the contest Tommy Burns was quite the equal of his coloured opponent, and those who have seen the pictures agree that he should be given another chance at the coloured champion.

IN C. P. R. WRECK NEAR KALADAR

Among the passengers on the special holiday section of the midnight on Good Friday morning was Miss Kato McGrath, who was on her way to Ottawa to spend Easter. Like the other passengers, she is still at a loss to understand how the accident was attended with such slight casualties, and all are thankful that the escape was so fortunate. While the engines, express and baggage cars were badly shaken up, the passengers did not suffer anything outside a slight shock. Miss McGrath returned home this morning.

THE CITY OF ROCHESTER TRANSFORMED INTO VERITABLE INFERNO BY A FIRE WHICH FANNED BY GALE IS SPREADING EVERYWHERE

NEW ARMOURIES HAVE BEEN FORMALLY HANDED OVER TO THE MILITIA OF PETERBOROUGH

Mr. T. W. Fuller, Government Architect of the Public Works Department, with Mr. G. . Proctor, of Sarnia, contractor for the new armouries, inspected the building this morning and speaking to an Examiner reporter expressed himself as highly pleased with the work. There are yet several small items to be fulfilled such as fittings, the tenders for which will be called in a few days.

The handing over of the armouries from the Public Works Department to the Department of Militia took place this mornig, the militia being represented by Colonel Young, of Kingston, Major Deroche, of Ottawa, and Majors Clegg and Young of Peterborough. The building is now in the possession of the Militia of Peterborough.

Next Monday evening the regiment will at the conclusion of their first street parade march to their new quarters. The contract calls for the pulling down of the old drill shed by the fifteenth but it will most likely be delayed a few days.

No Scarlet Fever Cases Have Been Reported Since March

The regular meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning, Dr. Burnham occupying the chair and the following members being present: Mayor Rush, Chief Roszel, Dr. Young and Jas. Edgar.

A communication was read from a resident of McDonnel street,, asking that the terrace on the south side of McDonnel, west of Bethune street, be connected with the sewer. The Board instructed Mr. Armstrong to write the owner of the property ordering him to have the necessary connections made out and to have the closets closed by May the first.

Mayor Rush stated that during the past winter, the relief officer had engaged nurses to attend scarlet fever cases where there was immediate need of assistance and where the cases were deserving of help. An account for $200.00 for nurses' fees had been sent, and His Worship asked that the Board of Health order it to be paid. It was suggested that the bill be sent to the Council, and that an explanation be made, and that the Board be given power to act in such a matter.

Dr. Young reported that there had been no contagious diseases reported since the last of March.

Anglers Saw Part Of Rice Lake Cleared Of Ice In One Night

The members of the C. G. E. Angling Club have an interesting story of how the wind broke up the ice in Rice Lake during one night. The whole lake was still covered with ice when they arived at their cottage on Good Friday morning. The next morning the ice had disappeared from Bewdley to the old bridge that at one time crossed the lake between Harwood and Hiawatha. This seemed to form a bulwark protecting the ice on the east side. The wind of Wednesday and Thursday had undoubtedly started the disrupting of the ice, which, in a remarkably short time had been cleaned out of a large section of the lake. It will not be long now before Rice Lake will be free of ice, and will slowly take on those conditions which point to summer and all the pleasantness of outdoor life on the lake and around its delightful shores.

Trespassing On Grass In The Park Is Punishable By Law

It has been reported that there was no provision in the statutes to protect the parks from trespassers. Such however, is a mistake. Upon looking up the latest amendments it was found that a clause was added, including lawns, etc., without a fence around them in the trespass clause. To walk across lawns or pull flowers from the bed [illegible] de offence and the parks come under this clause. The chief of police was duly notified and he has instructed his men to keep an eye open for trespassers. The Horticultural Society has also notified their men. In future anyone caught walking on the grass at Victoria or Central parks will be prosecuted. It will be well for the public, or at least the individual to keep off the grass.

Mr. W. J. Coleman Is Home From Trip To London And New York

Mr. W. J. Coleman, of the firm of Coleman Bros'. Confectioners and Caterers, returned to the city on Saturday last after an enjoyable time during the last three months, visiting his parents and friends in the Old Country.

Mr. Coleman was fortunate enough to be in London in time to meet both his sisters, one of whom left for the British Embassy in Paris, the other for Windsor Castle.

During this visit Mr. Coleman made the most of the time at his disposal and availed himself of the opportunities that presented themselves for greater experience and pointers, which will enable the firm to surpass any of their previous efforts in catering in an up-to-date manner. Their patrons may be assured that all the latest and best for afternoon teas, receptions, weddings and parties will be given.

Mr. Coleman went all through the works of Fry, whose goods his firm have been importing direct for over a year. This firm use the milk of over 2,000 every day. He got many pointers from Forti's, the renowned Bath Oliver Biscuit firm, whose exportations go all over the globe. There is not a country under the sun that they do not ship to.

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETING HELD AT SPRINGVILLE

The annual meeting of the Springville Presbyterian Church was held last night, with the pastor, Rev. Dr. Marsh, in the chair, and a very large attendance of members and adherents of the church present.

The various reports read from the different departments of the church work, showed that the year has been one of progress, and that every branch of the church is in a flourishing condition.

Following the business part of the meeting, Rev. Dr Marsh gave a most interesting address on the Dominion Government's [illegible] expedition to Labrador in 1905, of which he was a member. The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides and proved most instructive and interesting.

Broke Out After 11 o'clock---Wind Carried Firebrands and Sparks Long Distance Starting New Conflagrations---Fire Department Disorganized by Hopeless Task Telegraph For Help.

THE LATEST REPORTS.

J. N. Barber Special Wire.

Worst fire in Rochester's history.

Started at corner of Gibb's and Gibbs and North Avenue, between 1 and 12 o'clock.

Is now raging in three localities, widely separated.

Flames leaped across streets.

Gale carried flaming brands to start other fires.

Firemen helpless against awful devastation.

Million dollars damage in first hour.

Aid called from other cities.

Fifty houses in one row burned.

Churches, residences and business houses.

Smoke seen in Cobourg.

Rochester, April 13.—Rochester, the beautiful city of flowers and fair residences, is being seared and devastated in many sections by a fire that is spreading consternation among the whole populace, and threatens to wipe out wide areas in the residential and business sections.

The fire department is helpless. A strong gale blowing from the south caught the sparks, carrying them long distances and at present there are three distinct conflagrations, which, fanned by the fierce flames are vieying with one another in the destruction they are causing. The fire department, early in the day, realized their inability to cope with the fierce blaze and telegraphed to Buffalo, Syracuse and suroundlng cities for aid.

FIRST FIRE.

The first fire broke out after 11 o'clock at the corner of Gibb's St. and North Avenue, and with the breeze sweeping it on, it gained on the firemen in spite of their heroic efforts, and within an hour two churches, a large factory and apartment house were enveloped and lost in a seething, whirling mass of flames and smoke, from which came the crashing of falling walls striving to outdo th memorable destruction of Troy.

SECOND FIRE.

Rochester, April 13, 1.15 p.m.—The second fire broke out about 1.15 p.m. at East Main and Good streets.

SEEN AT COBOURG.

Cobourg, April 13, 1.30 p.m.—The clouds of smoke hanging ominously over Rochester are plainly seen from the tower of the local town hall.

Rochester, April 13, 2.30 p.m.—Fifty houses in one street have been deseroyed all in a row. St. Peter's church, the Jewish Temple, the Selden building and others are a mass of ruins. Sparks ignite buildings far removed from the place where it was originated.

A WHOLE BLOCK.

The entire block bounded by Main St. East, Gibb street, Grove Place and Windsor street is threatened and all hope of saving it seems lost.

LATER NEWS.

Rochester, April 13.—When the row of flats on the south side of Grove Place caught fire, the flames started tojump across the street and spread to Gibb Street, the firemen being helpless. The south wall of the Selden building fell at 1.15 p.m. Beirth Kodesh Temple caught fire at 11.45, and is totally destroyed. One man is said to have been killed by the falling walls, at 12.15 o'clock. One of the towers on St. Peter's fell with a crash, and it was seen that the fire had gained a hold in the roof. At the same time the towers of the temple were on fire and burning briskly. Several firemen are reported to have been injured by falling walls, which went down within 20 minutes after the fire started. Two of them are said to have been injured so severely that they had to be taken to the hospital. The others were taken to their homes.

GOING TO PRESS.

Rochester, April 13, 2.45.—The other two fires are on Chatham street and one on University Ave. Fifty houses are on fire on University Ave. On Chatham street a church and ten houses are on fire.

Rochester, 2.45 p.m.—Unless help arrives very soon the whole south side will be a total loss. The flames are gaining on the firemen every minute. They appear to have no control over it whatever.

Peterborough Man Held Up And Robbed While In Port Hope

Mr Mowry, of Peterborough, who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Walter Pilling, Park street, was held up and robbed here on Saturday evening.

According to Mr. Mowry's story a Port Hoper became quite friendly with him, and they walked together down the Midland track. When just south of the Dorset St. crossing the companion struck him a blow on the head and then rifled his pockets, taking a quantity of silver and his watch. Chief Bond was notified, but the description given of the robber was so light that it is hardly likely an arrest will follow. Mr. Mowry told the Chief that he pleaded with the thief to return the watch, agreeing to allow him to keep the money but this would-be-friend would not part with the time-piece.—The Guide.

"Big 5" Dance At Havelock Was Enjoyed By Seventy Couples

The "Big 5" Club of Havelock gave another dance last night in the Town Hall which was attended by about 75 couples, and was in every way a most enjoyable success. The floor was in splendid condition and the programme of dances was voted a most enjoyable one. "Big 5" has conducted other socials during the past winter, but it is doubtful if any of them could equal in every respect that held on Easter Monday night. Guests were present from Norwood, Campbellford, Peterborough, Hastings and other places.

DIAMONDS IN OPS TOWNSHIP

Examiner Special (2:45 p.m.)

Mount Pleasant, April 13th.—It is believed that diamonds have been discovered on the farm of Patrick Tracey, Ops township. The clay is said to resemble that of Kimberley, and on Sunday a stone like a diamond in the rough was turned up. The excavations are closely guarded.

Examiner Special (2:45 p.m.)

Gananoque, April 13th, '09.—While out on the river here, three boys were thrown into the water. Frank McCabe and Albert Wheeler were drowned, but the third, William Gauthier, was rescued.

THE EASTER MUSIC AT SAINT PETER'S

The Easter music in St. Peter's Cathedral was of exceptionally high order. The Mass in F, by Loesch, being splendidly rendered by a large and well-balanced choir. The solos, duets and quartettes were most effectively taken, both morning and evening by Misses L. Hallihan, A. Simons, A. Pruneau, J. Delaine, W. Simons, G. Clancy, A. Milloy and Messrs. H. Quinlan, E. Keon, F. Hickey, and J. Mercier. At the offertory Wiegan's Regina Coeli.

In the evening musical vespers, O Salutaris—Lauceleve.— solo was sung with much sweetness and expression, by Miss A. Simons; chorus by choir. Miss L. Hallihan, who possesses a beautiful high soprano voice of much sweetness and power, was heard to great advantage in a solo in Millard's Tantum Ergo, with very brilliant chorus by full choir. Mrs. M. Doherty presided at organ.

BRIDGE IS SWEPT AWAY BY ICE JAM

Special to The Examiner.

Bridgenorth, April 13th.—The moving of the ice down Chemong Lake has resulted in breaking the swing bridge. There is a high wind blowing this afternoon, causing the ice to break up, moving it down towards the bridge. Several farmers not knowing of the accident, drove as far as the bridge, but on reaching it were obliged to turn back and cross at the head of the lake. Persons going from Peterborough to Ennismore are reminded of the accident and much tfme will be saved by going by way of the head of the lake instead of by Chemong.

SHOULD HEAR DR. GRENFELL'S LECTURE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir:—May I use your columns in order to say a good word for the lecture of Dr. Grenfell, the "Dr. Luke of Labrador," to be held in the Opera House on Wednesday, April 15. I have given up my week night prayer meeting in order to give my congregation the opportunity of hearing this noble hero of the work for fishermen in the cause of Christ. Nothing can do us more good in the way of enlisting our best energies, than the story of the life work of such a humble minded and consecrated servant of Christ.

Faithfully yours,
E. A. LANGFELDT.

WILL GIVE LECTURE IN CITY THIS WEEK

Mr. Alex. Marshall, the well known evangelist who wrote the literature for Messrs. Torry and Alexander, is coming to Peterboro this week and is to give three lectures here, the first two in the Gospel Hall on Thursday and Friday nights, and the third on Sunday night, but just where has not yet been decided. Mr Marshall has just returned from spending six months in the West Indies, and his remarks will no doubt be interesting and profitable. Further announcements will be given later.

Be sure to hear Dr. Grenfell's lecture in the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night, April 14, which will be in the interests of "The Sailors' Institute" at St. Johns, Newfoundland. Admission to all parts of the house, 25 cents.

THE TREES WERE NOT CUT DOWN

Mr. Wm. Dinsdale Makes a Correction in Regard to a Recent Case.

The publication of the following letter was inadvertently delayed and the Examiner publishes it to-day with apologies for its non appearance earlier:

210 Antrim St., City.,

Correction

To the Editor The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly correct a statement in your last issue, regarding cutting down shade trees. They were not cut down, merely tapped, in the least injurious manner known. Also the trees have always been considered by myself and previous owners as part of the property; and certainly at his disposition as regards trimming or even cutting down, as being so close and large (nearly two feet through) as to be almost a nuisance. And, by-the-way (knowing exactly whence the information came) the ridiculous absurdity appeals to my sense of humour, as coming from a tenant, and not, as one might suppose, from one who had any real interest in the beauty or welfare of the city or locality, and does not own a foot of property, but simply sought an excuse to vent a petty spite.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this valuable space.

Yours respectfully,
WM. DINSDALE.

WHAT EVA FAY SAYS

In Regard to Kinrade Affair She "States" That Police Have Correct Theory and Will Untangle The Mystery—Oh, You Eva!

IS NOW IN HAMILTON TOWN.

Eva Fay, who appeared with her husband at the Grand Opera House two years ago in a "mysterious" performance is now in Hamilton, and a few days ago at the Bennett house was asked about the Kinrade affair. The "Times" 'refers to the incident as follows:

Eva Fay created a flutter at the Bennett house last night when some one asked if the police were on the right scent in the Kinrade case, and if they would succeed in solving the mystery. Mrs. Fay replied that the police had the correct theory and that they would eventually, succeed in untangling the mystery. The theatre was packed to capacity. There was a hush of suppressed silence when the question was asked, and Mrs. Fay's answer aroused a great deal of interest.

The late William Jobe was well-known in this city and in the whole country. A number of years ago his name was a household word for home-made candy, in the manufacture of which he was particularly skilled, and as a result had a wide and paying trade. He was a familiar figure on the market on Saturdays, and conducted a store on George St., enjoying a large business. The deceased was 47 years of age, and was born in Warwickshire, England. He was the son of the late William Jobe. Twenty-five years ago he married Ellen Miller, who, with a family of eleven children, survives him. Of these children all are at home, exceptin Harry, of North Dakota, and Florence, of Rochester.

MUSKRATS REPORTED SCARCE AT THE LAKE

Muskrats are reported scarce at Rice Lake. The same news comes from trappers in other sections of the country, and it begins to look as if the Indians are not going to have as rich a harvest as they had last Spring. The water is said to be too low. However, the Indians and other trappers are still on the hunt, persevering, and a fairly large sum will likely be realized as the result of their work.

THE PRESS VISIT

To the superficial thinker or observer the recent visit of some 250 members of the Canadian Press Association, to Peterborough might seem to be a mere junketting journey or holiday trip. It was this and more. The visit of a corps of trained observers, men accustomed to see everything there is in what they see, coming to Peterborough with the specific purpose of "spying out the land" and incidentally sharing our hospitality, means a great deal. It means that over two hundred newspapers scattered all over the province, contained detailed and enthusiastic reports of the visit to this city, and appreciative reports of the few of our industies they had time to see. Necessarily all the references made were complimentary to Peterborough's industrial importance, its transportation facilities and its general character of commercial and popular thrift. The advertising value of such a visit thus treated, is incalculable. It is recognized that the basic principle of advertising is to keep one's name and business before the public. This has been admirably done in respect of Peterborough,s name and advantages by the visiting pressmen of the province. On behalf of the city the Examiner begs to gratefully acknowledge the recognition of Peterborough's hospitality, as reflected in the reports of the several members of the provincial press we had the honour of endeavouring to entertain on Saturday, March 27th.

Though an angel should write, still 'tis devils must print.—Tom Moore.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

The eightieth birthday of General Booth, the earthly head and front of the Salvation Army, has a greater significance than the mere fact of a grand old man reaching a patriarenal age. For years he has been the object of the veneration and loyalty of one of the greatest corps, of the church militant in Christian history—which has won great triumphs under the leadership of General Booth. But its moral victories have not been won by loyalty and devotion to the leadership of a man; but by loyalty to a greater Leader, whose way of dealing with humanity they have followed. It has modeled its work on the plan of the Great Master, whose care embraced the bodies as well as the souls of men. The work of Jesus Christ was among the lowly, the humble and the poor. The Salvation Army has found its work chiefly among the submerged tenth, and its great strength is that it has applied the only true means to the solution of social problems, the practical religion of the Saviour of man. Its methods have been unique, but effective. At first despised and harried, it has by the intensity of its zeal and the direct thrust of its methods disarmed opposition and became a recognized and respected world-wide social and moral force, and if any danger confronts this wonderful organization it lies in the acceptance it finds with the great and the powerful, the danger of spiritual pride, which is the rock upon which great moral movements which once worked from the bottom of the social fabric, have, in some degree, split. The Army has no theology, but it has a great, warm, and deep store of religion. As has been remarked, the Army is little concerned in the controversies that rage in the thin and pallid airs of the higher criticism, it is too busy doing the work of Christ, living and applying his theology as expressed in His life on earth. To feed the hungry, heal the sick, raise the fallen, comfort the broken-hearted, is the Salvation Army's replica of the work of its great Prototype. Hardly a community in civilization or in many foreign lands, but knows to its joy its work and honours the devoted "soldiers" that fight so valiantly under the banner of the Cross, representing the greatest crusade in the life of the world—applied Christianity, the wheat of the Word, for the chaff of the higher critics.

Every year the Salvation Army furnishes ten million meals and six million lodgings as the twentieth century parallel to the miracle of the loaves and fishes.

INDEPENDENT JOURNALISM.

The latest issue of the Canadian Courier contains an article on independence in journalism, credited to the editor of the Kingston Standard. In this article, ably written, are expressed many pretty sentiments and much praise of the journalistic courage that will yield treatment of public questions independently of party, considerations or influences. In the Standard of Monday, doubtless from the same pen, that theorizes on indepnedence so beautifully in the Courier, appears the following paragraph:

> "The Conservatives in Ottawa are certainly in fighting trim, and it is encouraging to note that the war horse of Leeds, Mr. Geo. Taylor, is in the vanguard of the fighters. And Mr. Taylor knows how to fight!"

Nothing but the most hide-bound, thick-skinned partizanship, emptied of every atom of independence, could speak with approval of the most despicable trick a public man can be guilty of. But The Examiner is willing to believe that the paragraph quoted above was "writ sarkastic"; for the Standard, under its present "redaction," could not certainly seriously approve of what Mr. Taylor did—committing verbal forgery—a trick that would do credit to a ward-heeler, in the roorback line in the heat of an election campaign. Mr. Taylor, the chief Conservative whip, in the House of Commons the other day, was criticizing the expenditures in the Marine Department. Conveying the idea that he was quoting from the Auditor General's reports as to expenditures connected with the steamer Montcalm, the government ice-breaker, he read as if verbatim "seven ladies' blouses," "one lady's cloak," "eight ladies' costumes," and proceeded to comment severely upon the extravagance and worse of wasting the public money in such a manner. Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, at once exposed Mr. Taylor's trickery, and showed that Mr. Taylor had dishonestly and deliberately misled the House. The Auditor's-General's report showed no mention of the word "ladies." The "blouses" mentioned were blouses for sailors and not the kind that ladies wear. Mr. Taylor was squarely caught in the most dishonourable action a man, under the circumstances, could commit—a deliberate attempt to build a charge against his political opponents on a foundation of falsehood. This, however, is only one mark of the recrudescence of the policy of slander of the session of 1908, which Mr. Foster revived, which Mr. Taylor continued, and which is being systematically directed against Hon. Mr. Pugsley, through suppressio veri, on the part of a partizan commission ,instead the facta ficta of Mr. Taylor. Last year's policy of scandal utterly failed, on test, as an election card. The present Conservative Opposition must be in extremis when they again resort to it.

During the past three years Montreal has received more wheat from the interior of the continent than have done all its rival United States ports.

THE PURSUIT OF MR. PUGSLEY

(The Globe.)

Ever since Mr. Pugsley gave publicity to the size of the Conservative campaign fund in New Brunswick for the general election of 1904 he has been pursued with rancor almost unexampled in the history of Parliament. He has betrayed no resentment at this treatment, but, on the contrary is distinguished above all men in Parliament for his courteous and conciliatory demeanour. To some extent this has disarmed his foes in the Commons. His foes in the Provincial arena have been busy, however. Soon after his translation to Ottawa the Conservatives under Mr. J. D. Hazen, achieved a victory in the Provincial elections. There has been every indication that heaven and earth were to be moved to accomplish the overthrow of New Brunswick's representative in the Dominion Cabinet. Affidavits with false dates were published, the evident object of the falsification being to connect Mr. Pugsley in time with events which were alleged to be discreditable. The Mayes-McAvity case has never been investigated, because the Opposition seemed to be afraid to put their insinuations to the test. But even in advance of investigation it is plain that Mr. Pugsley's attitude towards Mr. Mayes was the proper attitude of a departmental chief dealing with a contractor. Mr. Pugsley held him to the strict letter of his contract, despite cajolements, followed by avowed threats, of Mayes and his friends.

Now a commission appointed by Mr. Pugsley's Provincial antagonists has reported on an inquiry into the affairs of the New Brunswick Central Railway. The commission reports that there is a discrepancy of $134,000 in the accounts, and connects therewith the names of Lieut.-Governor Tweedie and Mr. Pugsley. The latter declares the commission was a partisan one, and makes a statement tending to show that the accounting fails to include important items from the totals. It is a controversy that cannot be settled in the columns of newspapers. Fortunately the commissioners recommend that Messrs. Tweedie and Pugsley should be proceeded against for a recovery of the $134,000. The New Brunswick Government must accept this recommendation. The whole matter will therefore be submitted to the calm scrutiny of the courts, where even a Liberal may hope for justice in New Brunswick.

HEAT OF THE BODY.

Climatic Variations Do Not Affect Internal Conditions.

MAN'S NORMAL TEMPERATURE

It is 98.6 Degrees When Taken Under the Tongue Whether One Lives In the Arctic Regions or In the Tropics. Some Record Fever Temperatures.

The normal temperature of a human being is generally given as 98.6 degrees, but the statement must be slightly qualified. It is the normal temperature when taken by placing the thermometer under the tongue or in the armpit or the groin.

The surface temperature of the head, hands or abdomen varies from 96 degrees to 93 degrees or even lower. That of the internal regions may go up to 102.2 degrees, that being the average heat of the blood circulating in the liver and some other organs.

But 98.6 degrees is called the normal temperature of a human being, and it doesn't matter whether he lives in the desert of Sahara or in Greenland, according to a writer in the Technical World. Awake or asleep, at work or just loafing, a man's temperature remains practically at this level.

When it varies more than the fraction of a degree it is because the heat regulating mechanism is disarranged by disease or by abnormal conditions of some sort. Excessively high measures of heat may be borne for several minutes by an individual without raising his temperature more than a fraction of a degree. Persons who sometimes are styled human salamanders have given exhibitions of their ability to stand high temperatures.

There is an authentic case recorded of Martinez, the so called French salamander, a baker by trade, who exposed himself to high temperatures from boyhood. He remained in an oven erected in the Tivoli gardens for fourteen minutes when the temperature in it was 338 degrees. His pulse on entering was seventy-six a minute and had reached 130 when he came out. He often duplicated this performance.

Chamouni, a celebrated Russian salamander, who called himself "the incombustible," used to go into an oven and stay while a leg of mutton was roasted there, not coming out until the meat was well done. He eventually lost his life in one of these performances.

Fever is a rise of temperature above the normal level. This rise is seldom beyond 106 degrees. Mental and nervous influences may so act for a time as to disorder the control of the thermotaxic nerve center and cause fever.

It is interesting to note some of the high temperatpres which are on medical record as having actually occurred in certain diseases. Guy's hospital in London records the case of a hysterical woman afflicted with tuberculosis of one lung who showed 120 degrees.

At a meeting of the Association of American Physicians in 1895 Dr. Jacobi of New York reported a patient in whom fever reached the almost incredible figure of 148 degrees F. This case occurred in a hysterical fireman who had suffered a severe injury from a fall.

In the discussion which followed the report of this case among the members of the association Dr. Welch of Baltimore referred to a condition of hyperthermy that had come to his knowledge in which the temperature was recorded as 171 degrees F. Of course such exceedingly high temperatures are of only short duration or death would ensue.

Fever is not the only disturbance which may alter temperature. Certain conditions, especially those due to diseases like tuberculosis, acute alcoholism, melancholia, convalescence from fevers, poisoning from various drugs, and so forth, may cause the bodily warmth to become subnormal. Injuries and surgical shock also originate the same effect. Starvation always induces a gradual fall.

Low temperatures are always dangerous, and unless a reaction quickly ensues, by aid of relief measures, a fatal termination may be expected. The lowest recorded during life that may be regarded as reliable is one reported by Duffy in which the thermometer registered 84 degrees F. Death ensued the following day.

The body, however, can withstand extreme cold more readily than it can extreme heat before the regulating center becomes disordered, and so, other things being equal, freezing to death is not as common in cold climates as sunstroke is in warm.

Refused to Accompany Her.

A noted German lyric soprano, who may as well be nameless here, as she is no longer before the public, developed in her later years a habit of singing out of tune. One night at a small company, being asked to sing, she promptly consented, and her hostess then went to Otto Lessmann, the German critic, who was present, and said:

"Herr Lessmann, will you accompany Madam Blank?"

"With pleasure. Where is she going?"

"Why, to sing."

"No, pardon me, not there."

A Remarkable Race.

The Lapps are very fond of stimulating drinks. They think nothing of drinking fifteen or twenty cups of coffee a day, while their consumption of punch is on a vast scale. It is no uncommon thing to see numbers of helplessly drunk natives in the streets of Tromso, especially when the sale of reindeer flesh has been profitable. Yet robbery and, indeed, crime in general are practically unknown among them. The innate honesty of the people is quite extraordinary.—Wide World Magazine.

Japanese Delicacies.

Under the head of "Japanese Delicacies" the Berlin Prometheus gives a list of some of the queer things which are served to citizens of the Flowery Kingdom who "have a refined taste." In the provinces which are so distant from the sea that fresh fish cannot be obtained readily, and where meat is not abundant, snakes and lizards are considered good food and are prepared in many ways. Grasshoppers rank among the real delicacies. They are always kept in captivity without food for a day, then bathed and decapitated and made legless. Heads and legs must be torn off, never cut. They are served in various ways, but dry, with a salad dressing, is the most popular. An insect of the bee family which lives in the earth is also much sought. This is served with sugar or honey when eaten raw, but it is also made into a porridge. The chrysanthemum exists not only in the poetry and art of the Japanese, but has an important place on the table, where it is met as salad, candy and stew.

The Right Hand Seats.

The Philadelphia Record quoted an observant street car conductor to the effect that the right hand seats are always filled first. He could not account for this except on the theory that, as most persons are right handed and accustomed to turning to the right, it might be simply force of habit. "There is another probable reason which he did not think of," says the Record. "It is generally believed that the right side of a car is safer. An old traveler once said to the writer: 'In traveling always sit in the middle of a car and on the right hand side. The middle is safer than the ends in a collision, and the right side is not likely to be "side swiped" by projecting objects on trains, cars or any vehicles passing on the adjacent track.'"

BRINTON'S FOOTBALL TEAM ORGANIZED AT AN ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING OF "SOCCER" PLAYERS

The Brinton Football Club was organized last night at a most enthusiastic meeting held at the Grand Hotel. There was a large attendance and the enthusiasm shown indicates a successful season for the Brintons. A large number of good players have signified their intention of turning out with the team and a strong aggregation will be placed in the field that will make the other clubs of the district step some.

Mr. A. Giles was in the chair and Mr. C. Downes acted as secretary pro tem.

The following officers were elected:

President—Mr. Wadely.

Vice-President—W. E. Whitehead, D. B. Patterson, C. Hyrons, G. Osborne, J. W. Pierce.

Captain—H. Davis.

Asst.-Capt.—A. Bishop.

Sec.-Treas.—C. Downes.

Executive Com.—Messrs. R. Murdock, W. Jackson, F. Barnes, T. Edwards, G. Egan, H. Bourne, G. Skelding, H. Rew.

Representatives to the Midland League meeting, April 24th, Messrs. H. Davis and C. Downes.

The club colours decided upon were red and white jerseys with the emblem B. F. C. and knickers of blue material.

The club will practise on the Exhibition grounds and will make their headquarters at the Grand Hotel: Mr. Nixon having kindly granted them the use of the building for meeting purposes. Mr. Wadely, the president, has made a very liberal offer, which was accepted last night, and a hearty vote tendered him for his generosity.

The club is anxious to secure as large a membership as possible. It should be understood that the membership is not confined to employees of the Brinton Carpet Company. Any one wishing to join is invited to see Mr. C. Downes, the secretary.

The Club will enter the Midland Football League and will make a big effort to carry off the trophy.

LOU MARSH PAYS TRIBUTE TO FRED SIMPSON'S SPLENDID WIN

Lou Marsh thus comments on the Simpson-Appleby race:—

Fred Simpson, the Indian Marathoner, decisively defeated Fred Appleby, the diminutive conqueror of Alfred Shrubb, in a 20-mile match race at Rosedale Field, Saturday.

He made Appleby quit after 15 miles of tough campaigning, and went on and finished all alone in 2.03.35.

The Ojibway Thunderbolt was a joke runner after Alfred Shrubb walloped him seven laps in a 12-mile race in the Armouries several weeks ago.

But Freddie Simpson is a merry ha-ha in the athletic arena no longer.

Saturday he showed the 2,000 people who braved the chilly wind at Rosedale that he is entitled to the title of Ojibway Thunderbolt, and that in any Marathon race he will be a decidedly dangerous factor.

Saturday Simpson ran like the real runner his loyal friends claimed him to be. When he conquered Appleby Saturday, Simpson beat one of the best distance men in the world—the holder of the world's 15-mile record of 1.20.04 3-5, the man who led Lord, Beal, Duncan, Jack, and the rest of the pack in the British Olympic Marathon trials to the 20-mile mark in 1.56, and the split favourite with Longboat in the great Olympic Marathon Race itself.

Tom Eck showed the crowd that his claim that his Ojibway protege was sick when he ran Shrubb was no trumped-up excuse to explain an ignominious defeat.

To say that Simpson's superb work electrified the crowd is putting it mildly. Fully 95 per cent came to see the famous conqueror of the famous Alfred Shrubb run. They figured on Simpson only as a piece of scenery for the setting of Appleby's first professional appearance.

The other 5 per cent figured that Simpson was about due to hand somebody a walloping, and Appleby's reputation did not scare them a little bit.

The big, yet [illegible] little Englishman—Appleby is thin of face and slight of chest and shoulder, but he has sturdy legs and thighs and [illegible] like a [illegible] distance man—clad in a heavy white sweater, a pair of black running tights and big woolen gloves, pounded along in front, and behind him came the gaunt Indian. The fair little Old Country champion was in direct contrast to the Ojibway [illegible]. Fair of complexion, thin of body, and short of leg, he galloped along, a [illegible] little fellow, who stared out as if he had been to the races before, and knew exactly what he intended to do.

Behind him came six feet of bronzed [illegible] to the point of gauntness, black of hair and determined of countenance, clad in a heavy black sweater with a red band, a pair of white running trunks, and a pair of gloves, right on the little 5-foot-4 Englishman's heels glued the Indian, and away they pounded the first mile. Simpson dropped his gloves at the end of the mile, and the crowd settled back to await the fireworks that did not come until the end.

Appleby Sprints

Appleby felt the Indian out with three good stiff miles, but the Ojibway, with his long stride, clung on like a shadow. Not an inch did he back up. Then the little record-holder from over the water threw in a few sprints. When he would open up the throttle he would shoot away from the Redskin before the bronzed boy would wake from his dream of the papooses back at Hiawatha, but when he did rouse up to the stern realities of the race, he simply lengthened out his stride and ran all over Appleby.

In fifty or sixty yards he would be up on Appleby's heels, and throwing on the brakes to keep from going right over top of him.

Betting Commenced

Along about eight miles the crowd woke up to the fact that Simpson had a glorious chance to win.

The Indian himself was strolling along contented with the pace. Every once in a while he would smile over into the grand stand where his loyal little wife sat, and proceed to show her how he could walk right up on Appleby any time he wanted. The Simpson money commenced to loosen up, and when the Old Country brigade, led by Alf Shrubb, who was betting 3 to 2 on Appleby, got enough, about $1,500 had gone up.

Simpson Strong

At eleven miles the experts saw that Simpson had a royal chance to win. He had stood the first 10 miles without turning a hair, while Appleby was commencing to fidget and his handlers were worrying about him. Harry Rosenthal, Duke McInerney, Red Hawk, the Indian runner, and a few more of Simpson's staunch friends were signalling him to go out and worry the man in front, but the Indian, as cool as a cucumber, stayed where he was in obedience to wily Tom Eck's advice. Tom knew better than to start fireworks before it was dark. Finally, at the fifteenth mile, Eck saw that the pace and cold had sapped the Englishman's speed and stamina. He signalled Simpson to open the throttle.

A Great Sprint

The Thunderbolt cut loose with a sprint of such sudden fierceness that the crowd almost fell out of the grand stand. A cheer went up as the Thunderbolt tore by the Englishman as if he were standing still. Appleby gamely tried to hold on, but he might as well have tried to hug a March wind. The Ojibway gained 125 yards in the first lap. When Appleby reached his training bench opposite the grand stand, he quit. His brother, George Appleby, and his manager, Harry Bruno, rubbed him and tried to get him to continue, but Appleby refused.

Blames Cold Wind

"I'm chilled to the bone. The life's frozen out of me. I cannot beat that man in such a chilly wind," he said, and he was carried to the clubhouse to get warm. His hands were numbed. The hard work he had done out in front in the chilly wind had sapped his vitality, and the grim, determined Indian shadow behind, which came and went in tantalizing fashion in the early stages, to finally flit by like a leaf on the wings of a gale, robbed Appleby of his courage and completed the disastrous defeat.

Fred Appleby, the 15-mile record-holder, had been run off his feet at his own favourite distance in the first professional race of his career by an Indian who had always been knocking on the door of victory, but who never before in his life won a good race.

At one fell swoop a world's champion had been dethroned, and a comparatively unknown runner boosted into the limelight where bask St. Yves, Shrubb, Dorando, Svanberg and Longboat, flanked by a rampart of big money.

LACROSSE

There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club to-night at the Crown Hotel, when business of importance will come up. It is important that there should be a large attendance of members.

BASEBALL

The Senior Baseball League will meet to-night at the Y.M.C.A., when some very important business will come up in connection with the work of the season. Every club that intends to enter should have a representative present.

FOOTBALL.

The Y.M.C.A. Football Team will meet to-night at 7.30 o'clock. A full attendance of members is expected.

Not Worth It.

A young man, after his banns had been twice announced, called upon the busy vicar early one morning. He wanted to have a private word with him about the banns.

"Well," said the vicar, "what is wrong?"

"Oh, it's the girl's name."

"Hasn't it been given correctly?"

"Oh, yes, it's correct enough, but I want you to put another girl's name for the third calling. I've changed my mind and would rather marry Mary 'Arris instead of Sarah Jenkins."

The vicar lectured the youth upon his fickleness and told him if he wanted any alteration it would be necessary to make a fresh start and have the banns published afresh.

"What, and pay another shilling?" gasped the lover.

"Certainly," replied the vicar.

"Well, in that case you had better let it be as it is, and I'll marry my first love."—Pearson's Weekly.

Enlivened His Sermon.

A minister of Crosmichael, in Fife, frequently talked from the pulpit to his hearers with amusing and indeed irreverent familiarity. Expounding a passage from Exodus one day, he proceeded thus: "'And the Lord said unto Moses'—sneck that door! I'm thinking if ye had to sit beside the door yersel' ye wadna be sae ready leaving it open. It was just beside that door that Yedam Tamson, the bellman, got his death o' cauld, and I'm sure, honest man, he didna let it stay muckle open. 'And the Lord said unto Moses'—I see a man aneath the laft wi' his hat on. I'm sure, man, ye're clear o' the soogh o' that door there. Keep aff your bannet, Thamas, and if your bare pow be cauld ye maun just get a gray worsted wig, like mysel'. They're no sae dear —plenty o' them at Bob Gillespie's for 10 pence apiece." The reverend gentleman then proceeded with his discourse.

A Sample of His Nerve.

Buck Taylor, the showman, was a great friend of Captain William O'Neill, the rough rider who was killed at Las Guasimas, Cuba, in the Spanish-American war. O'Neill was sheriff of Tucson, Ariz., when Taylor became acquainted with him, and on more than one occasion the cowboy rendered the easterner a service.

"Did O'Neill deserve the reputation he held for nerve?" Taylor was once asked.

"Well," he said and then hesitated, as if careful to choose the right words. "I don't think there was anything that Bucky O'Neill was afraid of. Once he went into a den where ten of the pals of a murderer and train robber he was after were gathered, laid his hand on the man's shoulder and walked him out. He had not a friend or ally within sight or hearing. Was that nerve?"

She Had Tested the Oyster.

Dora, the pet of the household, was very fond of oysters, and after eating her lunch of oysters and crackers she thought of her dear mother busy at her sewing machine. She selected a nice large oyster, put it in a plate and carried it to her mother, who, pleased with her little daughter's thoughtfulness, ate the oyster and said:

"It is most as good as my little girlie."

"Yes," answered Dora, "I know it is good 'cause I licked it all the way from the kitchen."—Delineator.

What to Do in an Emergency.

Shipwrecked.—Go ashore as soon as possible; remove wet clothing and relate your experiences to nearest reporter. Add photograph if possible.

Baby, Cat, Asleep on Face Of.—Remove cat.

Train, Run Over By.—Remove train, using force if necessary. Upon release acquaint nearest station master with the facts and proceed as in case of shipwreck.

Pantry, Burglar In.—Procure a copy of the Tariff Reform league's latest publication on free food fallacies and read same to intruder, taking care to elucidate most telling arguments. The contrite cracksman will at once turn over a new leaf and express his sorrow. Under the circumstances you will do well to accept his assurance of regret.

Crime, Having Committed or Being Suspected Of.—Apply to nearest music hall manager for an engagement. Insist on being put among the "star" turns and demand a salary proportionate to the gravity of the crime in question.—Punch.

A Way to Wealth.

Upon one occasion the late Earl Poulett, who, by the way, was a great spendthrift, was paying his physician and on handing the medical gentleman 400 guineas in gold asked him if he knew how to grow rich. The doctor replied in the negative, and the earl advised him never to pay an account by check, but always in coin, "for," he added, "the more you look at your money the less inclined you will be to part with it."

His Mean Comment.

Wife (reading)—Here's the advertisement of a matrimonial agency offering to supply any man with a wife for a guinea.

Husband—Oh, of course; it costs less to get into trouble than it does to get out again.—London Scraps.

Cheered Him Up.

The prisoner was downcast.

"Cheer up," said his lawyer. "I've got a jury of twelve men too stupid to find out that you're guilty."

Naturally the client took a more hopeful view.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"SPRING FEVER"
The need of a spring medicihe seems to be universal. This is due to the fact that during the winter the blood becomes impure on account of the hearty food eaten. This causes that tired, weary, all-gone, don't-care-to-work feeling which is so prevalent at this time of year.
BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS
That Tired Feeling
Mr. F. H. Leard, Saskatoon, Sask., writes:—"I have used Burdock Blood Bitters as a blood builder and think it an excellent remedy. Everyone should take it in the spring to cure that tired feeling that comes to so many at this time of year."
Uses It Every Spring
Mr. H. Langley, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I have used Burdock Blood Bitters as a spring tonic, and I find it the best thing I can take. It builds me right up and I use it every spring. It is excellent for the blood."

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.—

New York, April 13.—There was a reactionary tone to the stock market today, and losses up 1 to 2 points were general all around. The reaction seemed to be a perfectly natural one, there being no news of a disturbing nature and the decline was a very orderly one. New York Central showed strength in the first hour, gaining a point, but later sold off with the others. Ice took a precipitate fall of over 2, and then rallied sharply. The pool in Denver was active, but couldn't make much headway against the general current. The leading bull interests seemed to be working for the Tuesday reaction, which has come regularly now for six weeks. The failure of a brokerage house, believed to be short of wheat, had no effect.

Keep The Kidneys Well

Health Saving Explained by a Peterboro Citizen Who Knows From Experience

Many Peterborough people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for a great amount of suffering and ill health.

The reason so many use Booth's Kidney Pills is their quick relief for all Kidney weakness. Here is what a Peterborough citizen says:—

Mrs. Geo. Hawes of 857 Water street, Peterborough, Ontario, says: "I had suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble and although I had tried many remedies and doctors I found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull, bearing-down pain settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy. I soon found them to benefit me and continued their use. In a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever and without a symptom of the painful and long standing disease."

Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. Booth Company, Limited, Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

Cobourg, April 9.—At the annual meeting of the Cobourg Football Club it was decided to enter a team in the Midland League. The colours of the club will be green and white. The following officers were elected: Hon. presidents, Hon. J. D. Hayden, Dr. Wilson and F. W. Hargraft; president, T. S. Chatterton; vice president, W. Lawrason; secretary, W. Buttars, treasurer, L. Wilson; match committee, E. Robinson, J. Smith, and W. Lawrason.

Easter Vestry Meetings Of Three Local Anglican Churches Much Progress Has Been Made

The annual Easter Vestry meeting at All Saints' was well attended last night. It was most harmonious in spirit. The reports of the various societies showed a most prosperous year. The Rector was in the chair, and Mr. A. E. Wilson acted as vestry clerk.

The report of the Women's Auxiliary was presented by Mrs. Gilbert, showing net receipts of $170.23. One life member had been added to the roll during the year.

Mr. Davis presented the reports of the Women's Guild and Miss Buller the Girls' Guild, showing net receipts of $464.23 and $84.03 respectively.

The Men's Association and Boys' Club were reported by Mr. Metheral, and Mr. Wilson, respectively, showing receipts of $100.00 and $26.75. The Boys' Club had been entirely reorganized during the year with younger boys and had a membership of forty.

Mrs. Blois reported $45.00 receipts from the Jr. Girls' Auxiliary, the sending of bales and an average attendance of 25.

Miss Cairns reported on the work of the Chancel Guild. The receipts were about $15.00. The work of this Guild is much appreciated by the congregation.

Other reports were the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, by Mr. Flowers, the Poor Fund, by the Rector, who also reported that the P. M. C. collections by the W. A. and the Women's Guild would this year, for the first time, pass the $100.00 mark.

Among all the encouraging reports none were more so than the Sunday School. The average attendance for the year had been 215; for the past six months, between 250 and 260. The spiritual side of this work, the devotion of the teachers, and the discipline and order had showed even greater improvement. Mr. S. D. Manley reported $260.00 receipts.

Mr. James Edgar read a most encouraging financial statement of the receipts for current expenses and building fund. The wardens had received over and above the amounts handed over by the various societies for these funds $2,349.03, and $563.73 respectively. He made the interesting statement that the average Sunday collections for the past six months had increased between 25 and 30 per cent. When the envelope arrears were all paid in there would be a balance of $100.00.

The Rector reported since last Easter 28 baptisms, 10 marriages, 13 burials, 21 confirmed. There had been a very large increase in the morning congregations. The evening congregations couldn't increase. The midday communion had been more largely attended. There was need of more work among the young men, and in the choir, and the method of closing the warden's books on Easter Monday should be changed, as e. g., this year there were only 51 Sundays to pay the expenses of 52.

The election of officers for the ensuing year were as follows:

People's Warden—Mr. J. Edgar.
Rector's Warden—Mr. J. Hogan.
Lay Delegates—Messrs. E. L. Davis, W. G. Howden, and T. H. Hooper.
Finance Committee—Messrs. Buller, Hooper, and Mulholland.
Charity Board—Alderman Buller.
Auditors—Messrs. Davis and Dryland.
Committee to appoint ushers—The Wardens and Mr. R. N. Jones.

The usual votes of thanks were given, that to the wardens being by standing vote. Mr. Edgar also reported that in two weeks sufficient stone would be on the ground to allow the contractors to begin building operations.

The annual meeting of the vestry of St. John's Church was held in the guild room of the school house last night, with a good attendance of members.

The Rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, presided. After routine, Mr. H. Walkey, vestry clerk, read the financial statement of the wardens. This showed total receipts, including balance brought forward, of $5,346 16, with disbursements of $5,120.49, leaving a surplus of $225.67.

Mr. Mitchell explained that the Easter offering of $500, added to the balance on hand at the credit of the church debt reduction fund, made a total of $550 to be applied to this purpose, and he also pointed out that in one year, in addition to meeting the current demands of the church, the congregation of St. John's had practically erected and paid for the splendid new vestry and choir rooms.

The report was referred to the auditors.

Previous to the election of wardens the Rector acknowledged the effective and faithful service given during the year by the retiring wardens, Messrs Jos. Mills and C. H. J. Mitchell.

Mr. Jos. Mills was elected People's Warden, and the Rector was asked to defer his nomination of Warden till the adjourned vestry meeting.

On the request of the Rector Mr. Mitchell consented to discharge the duties of Warden for a fortnight longer.

Mr. W. H. Walkey was re-elected Vestry Clerk.

Mr. Robert Fair was elected representative of St. John's on the Nicholls Hospital Board.

The Rector, the Wardens, Dr. Halliday and Mr. H. Long were appointed a committee to consider appointments to constitute the Advisory Board, their report to be presented at the adjourned meeting to be held on April 26th.

At the subsequent congregational meeting, on motion, Messrs. W. R. Morris and Frank Linton were appointed auditors.

Messrs. Macfarlane Wilson, Jos. H. Bell, and W. E. Conway were elected lay delegates to the Synod.

A most enthusiastic and harmonious meeting was held last night at St. Luke's, to receive the annual statement from the Warden regarding the affairs of the church. The Rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, was in the chair. After devotional exercises the business of the meeting began. Mr. G. R. Browning, the people's warden, gave his report, which showed the finances of the church in a most satisfactory condition, and a handsome surplus on hand. The election of the people's Warden was proceeded with, resulting in the re-election of Mr. G. R. Browning, who has proved to be a most successful Warden, and who received very many complimentary remarks regarding his work. The tenure of office of Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, the Rector's Warden, having expired, Dr. Langfeldt appointed Mr. G. L. Hay his Warden.

The election of sidesmen resulted as follows: Messrs. Wm. Maniece, G. G. Pratley, H. C. Potter, Chas. Crane G. L. Hay, H. Gaskins, A. Fitzgerald, L. Whittaker, G. R. Browning.

Mr Harry Adams was re-appointed Vestry Clerk, with hearty words of commendation for his good and efficient work.

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of vesting the choir to report at the adjourned meeting.

Resolutions of condolence were passed to the family of the late Col. J. Z. Rogers and Mr. A. Fitzgerald.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. R. M. Roy for presenting an enlarged photograph of Col. J. Z. Rogers; also to Mr. Turner's Bible Class for the substantial support given the finances of the church.

After the vestry meeting had adjourned, a congregational meeting elected Messrs. G. L. Hay, William Maniece, G. F. Warde Lay Delegate to the Synod.

The Rector dismissed the meeting by pronouncing the benediction. The adjourned Vestry meeting will be held on Monday, April 26.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Taking advantage of the fact that the schools are closed this week the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. has arranged a big programme for the school boys and the big building on George street will hum with activity during the week.

The doings will commence on Wednesday morning at 9.30, when the boys will have a paper chase, starting from the building. A long run across the country will be taken and the appetites that will be brought back will play havoc with culinary arrangements at home.

In the afternoon, commencing at 2.30 there will be a series of games in the parlour croquet tournament.

Thursday morning, at 9.30, the parlour croquet tournament will be continued, while in the afternoon there will be wrestling for the boys' department, beginning at 2.30 o'clock. There will be matches for the following classes: 85 pounds and under, 100 pounds and under 125 pounds and under and over 125 pounds.

On Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, there will be mile races for boys fourteen and under and for boys over 14 years.

All members of the Y. M. C. A. are invited to take part in those events.

The programme for the business boys will be announced later.

First Parade Of The Regiment Will Be Held Next Monday

Last Drill in Old Building—Officers Had Group Picture Taken—Orders Announced After Drill—General News.

A FEW REMINISCENCES.

The 57th Regiment held probably their final drill last night in the old armouries. To-night they move their effects to the new armouries and in a few days the work of razing the old wooden structure will be begun, and another leaf in the city's history will be turned over, and the records of the events in the new building will be introduced. The old wooden cobbles will be torn up after their long term of service and in a few short years the "Drill Shed" will be forgotten by the populace but not by the officers of the 57th whose memories will ever retain the pleasant associations of the past. The regiment is about to move into its modern home, and while pleased with the prospect there is still a fond regard for the old wooden pile, ungainly, gloomy and inadequate though it has always been.

The orders announced last night were as follows:

Headquarters,
Peterborough, April 12, 1909.
Orders by Officers Commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

No. 1. The following extract from militia orders No. 247, Wednesday, October 28, 1908, is promulgated for the information of the Regiment. "Certificate of Military Instruction has been granted as follows: Lieut. J. H. Eastwood, 57th Regiment, Special Lieut., Captain R.M.S."; also from Militia Order No. 248, Thursday, October 28, 1908, "The undermentioned officers have been examined in equitation by Board of Officers at camp at Barriefield and Aldershot and has been issued with a certificate of qualification: Lieut. J. H. Eastwood, 57th Regiment."

No. 2. Detail of duty for the week ending April 19th, 1909. Captain for the week: Captain Mills, next for duty, Captain Cluxton, subaltern for the week Lieut. Langford, next for duty, Lieut. Kelly.

No. 3. The regiment will parade with both bands, stretcher section and signallers at the Drill Hall at 8 p.m. Monday, April 19th, 1909, for the first marchout for the season. The regiment will leave the drill hall at 8:15 p.m., proceed east on Murray St., north on George St., east on Simcoe St., North on Water St., west on Murray St., and return to the Drill Hall. It will then march into the new Drill Hall and take possession of the quarters therein allotted to it.

No. 4. Officers commanding companies will see that all extra clothing equipment, etc., will be placed in the several company boxes ready for removal into the new armouries on Tuesday, April 13th, 1909. The boxes will be locked and the O.C. will retain the key. Major Bennett is hereby detailed to take charge of this transfer.

No. 5. The commanding officer desires to call particular attention of all officers to regimental orders Nos. 2 and 3, April 1st., 1909. These orders refer to the syllabus of instruction for the year and no departure from regulations will be permitted.

No. 6. Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Lieut. J. D. Clarke.

No. 7. The C.O. has been pleased to make the following promotions: A Campany—to be Col. Sergt., F. W. Levell; Vice-Col. Sergt. J. G. Giles is discharged.

G. W. BENNETT,
Major, Acting Adjt.

Flashlight Taken

At the conclusion of drill last night the officers assembled in their mess and a group flashlight was taken by Roy. It will be one of the remembrances of the old quarters when even the officers themselves have disappeared, and the old armouries will be unknown to the genration then existing.

Reminiscences

Colonel Miller this morning was recalling some of the events of the past which the gloomy old rafters looked down upon. "There have been many good men turned out of the old place" he remarked, "and many and many a hard drill we have put in." He told also of the teaching of the "non-coms." classes during the winter months when the men would be nearly frozen, the old building offering no protection. Colonel Miller mentioned a list of the officers who in taking their equitation had fingers, toes and heels frozen. But there, a whole volume would not record even a fraction of the history of the old drill shed.

A Good Turn Out.

The regiment had a splendid turn out last night. The companies are fast picking up their strength and it will not be long before the full complement is reached. Those intending to join should apply at once.

Returning to Peterborough

Sergeant-Major Rundle, formerly of the 57th Regiment paid a visit last night to the old armouries. He has been in Toronto for years and is now returning to Peterborough.

PREPARING FOR THE DAIRY SEASON

Douro Farmers are Getting Ready for the Opening of the Factories.

Examiner Special.

Douro, April 13.—The recent snowfall has caused very bad roads in this neighbourhood; many farmers who intended to start the spring work right away, will have to postpone doing so for a week or more.

Mr. George Brooke, a former cheesemaker of Douro, has purchased a farm on the Dummer road from Mr. Charles James and, it is said, intends to build a butter factory in the near future.

Mr. Patrick McMurray intends changing his place of residence. His brother Frank has purchased his farm and Patrick is about to move on to the place recently left vacant by Mr. John J. Allen.

Mr. Thos. Walsh, of Kenora, Ont., is visiting relatives in Douro.

The rattle of the milk waggons will soon again be heard on the roads. Much of the milk in this vicinity will go to the Indian River cheese factory which is resuming operations, and Mr. Jeremiah Dwyer will be in charge of one route. Mr. Wilson, the local cheesemaker will also have a large factory and prospects are bright for a very successful season.

Mr. Daniel Kennedy was in Lakefield on Friday last, transacting business for his employer.

The Misses Laura and Zita Mober visited friends in Slopeville last Tuesday.

Mr. Frank Whibbs predicts a late spring, as the woodchucks have not all left their burrows yet.

The village constable had a slight attack of la grippe a short time ago, but nothing extraordinary happened.

We are all pleased to learn that Mr. Lewis Sullivan is rapidly recovering from a rather dangerous malady contracted last January.

ORDERS FOR WOMEN

MANY DECORATIONS FOR MERIT ARE OPEN TO LADIES.

Most Nations Have Orders For Bestowal Upon Women Who Distinguish Themselves on the Field of Battle, in the Hospitals, For Charitable Work and For Distinguished Service of Many Kinds.

The decoration of the Royal Red Cross which King Edward recently conferred upon Queen Elena of Italy for her conduct at Messina, is one of many orders of merit that may be won and worn by women. The oldest of these is the Order of the Axe, established in the twelfth century by the last Duke of Barcelona, Ramon Berenguer. Its establishment was inspired by the devoted courage of the Spanish women in repelling the Moors, with whom the Spaniards were then engaged in a life and death struggle.

The first order in recognition of women's personal bravery on the field of battle was founded in Russia. In the battle of Pruth, when Peter the Great led the Russian army against the Turks defeat seemed almost inevitable. For long the fortunes of the Russian Empire hung in the balance, and the Emperor declared afterward that if he had not been accompanied by Catherine the entire army would have been decimated.

On the conclusion of peace Peter instituted the Order of Liberty and bestowed it upon his wife. During his lifetime it was conferred on no one else, but in 1797 Paul I., modified its character so that it might be conferred upon the higher nobility connected with the imperial house. Each member was especially charged with the care, manners and morals of a pupil in the royal household. It is now the Order of Catherine.

The most highly prized order for women in Germany is that of Louisa, established in 1815 by Frederick William III. It was to commemorate the self-sacrifice of the women of Germany during the Napoleonic campaign which terminated at Waterloo. The women of Prussia then sold their jewels and rings to raise money for the soldiery, and many accompanied the army into the field of battle to minister to the wounded and dying.

After the Franco-Prussian war the Service Cross for Women and Girls was established, in recognition of their aid during the war.

The Legion of Honor is now the only French order left, all others having been abolished during the revolution. It was established first as the order of the Eagle by Napoleon in 1802. The first woman to wear it was Marie Jeanne Schelink. In 1792 she enlisted in the Second Belgian Battalion and went through several campaigns, in the course of which she was wounded more than once. After the battle of Austerlitz she was made a lieutenant-colonel and was decorated with the order by Napoleon himself.

Noble work in the cause of humanity entitles a woman to the Order of Sidonia, which was established in 1870 by King John of Saxony.

The Cross of Mary was founded to encourage service among the sick and wounded in time of war. The decoration is that of the Teutonic knights, and was originally limited to members of the Catholic faith, but that limitation no longer obtains.

In England there are three orders confined to women. In 1877, when Queen Victoria assumed the title of Empress of India, she founded the Imperial Order of the Crown of India, which may be conferred upon princesses of the royal house and wives and female relatives of Indian princes, and of the holders of high office in India, such as the viceroy and commander-in-chief, etc.

The Royal Family Order of Victoria and Albert, founded in 1862, explains itself. The third British woman's order is that of the Royal Red Cross, founded just fifty years ago as an acknowledgment of services in nursing the sick and wounded.

The Order of Merit, instituted by King Edward in 1902, is really a man's order, but it was conferred on Miss Florence Nightingale.

The Ladies' Order of St. Anne at Munich was founded by the widow of the Elector Maximilian III. in 1783, and originally was composed of ten women who could prove sixteen generations of nobility. There are now three classes with twenty-five members in the first, forty-two in the second, and a third class to which daughters of military officers are eligible.

The order of the Starry Cross was founded by the Empress Eleanor of Austria in 1668. After a great fire had destroyed the imperial palace there was found in the ruins a little crucifix said to contain a relic of the true cross. According to the traditions of the family, it had been worn by and protected the Emperor Maximilian in the perilous campaign against Martinsward. It was preserved in a casket of crystal and enamel, and after the great fire was entirely uninjured.

Out of gratitude for this miraculous preservation, the Empress decided to commemorate the event by establishing an order for ladies. Pope Clement IX. confirmed the order and entrusted the spiritual management to the Prince Bishop of Vienna. The order is conferred only on ladies of royal blood who have done notable work for the relief of the poor and among the sick in hospitals.

Quite one of the most exclusive orders is that of Maria Louisa of Spain the membership of which is confined to the ladies of the royal house and thirty ladies of noble lineage.

The order of Isabella of Portugal is conferred on those who do good work among the poor. On the decoration appear the words, "Pauperum solatio," or "Consolation of the Poor."

The most notable decoration of the east is the order of Nishani Shefakat, conferred by the Sultan on distinguished English women during the Russo-Turkish war.

GROWTH OF CRYSTALS.

A Mystery of Nature That Is a Puzzle to the Scientists.

One of the greatest mysteries in the world is the growth of crystals, and one of the most delightful occupations of men of science is the search for the crystallic forms that adorn the museums of geology and mineralogy. There is something almost startling in the suggestion of lifelike forces presented by the regular shapes of many crystals.

There is a remarkable resemblance between crystalline growth and the growth of animals and plants, especially with reference to the power of healing and repairing injuries.

If some of the lowest and simplest forms of animal life are torn asunder they are not killed, but each separate part grows into a perfect animal form. In plants this power is much more completely developed, while crystals possess it to an astonishing degree. It has even been shown that a crystal that has been injured will under some circumstances suspend its growth over the remainder of its surface until the injured part has been repaired. Yet there is no real life in the crystal, but simply a force that causes its particles to arrange themselves in geometric forms.

Some crystals, it is believed, have had their growth suspended during millions of years, after which enormous lapse of time the growth has been renewed. Such a process would be impossible to animals and plants, although some imaginative story writers have treated their readers to wonderful accounts of suspended animation in man.

In one respect, it has been pointed out, crystals possess a great advantage over human beings—they are able to renew their youth. This is not because they have discovered a counterpart of the marvelous fountain that Ponce de Leon so vainly searched for, but because the forces of crystallization are able to renew their action even after the greater part of a crystal has been destroyed through age or accident.

Archbishop Magee was once present at a full dress debate on the eastward position, when doubts were expressed as to the exact meaning of the words "before the table." After a speech or two Dr. Magee seized a piece of paper and wrote: "As to the phrase, 'The piper player before Moses,' doubts have arisen. Some believe its meaning to be that the piper played before Moses—that is, at a period anterior to his birth. Others hold that the piper played before Moses in the sense of preceding the great lawgiver when he danced, while others teach that the piper played (coram Mose) before or in the presence of Moses when the son of Amran dined. All these are wrong. The phrase is to be understood as implying that the piper played at the north end of Moses, looking south." The document was handed up to Archbishop Tait, who looked grave.

Murat Halstead, the great journalist of war times, went to General William T. Sherman's headquarters once for the "latest news from the front." Halstead was armed with many fine introductory letters, but decided to rely mainly on one given him by Thomas Ewing, Sherman's brother-in-law. He found the general and presented Ewing's letter. The general opened it somewhat impatiently, read a few lines, folded it and said:

"Ah, you come from Ewing, and you desire to have 'all the latest news,' the 'next probable move' of our army, eh? Well, there's a train leaving this town for Cincinnati at 2 o'clock. Here, take this ticket and step over there and get your dinner and then get on that train."

"Well, but, General Sherman"— began the newspaper man. But Sherman waved him off.

"Go over and get a good dinner. We have plenty and always strive to treat our friends well. But be sure you don't miss that 2 o'clock train!" And Halstead obeyed.

A social and concert under the auspices of the Mission Band of the Methodist Church was held on Friday evening, April 9th, in the church. Alma's Overcookery.

By HENRIETTA CRAWFORD.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

There were at least two persons who loved Jennie Norris in spite of her very extreme and thorough shortcomings in a culinary way. One was her younger brother, Frank, and the other her sweetheart, Ned Barnes.

There were also two persons who most emphatically did not love her. One was her rival for the heart and hand of Ned, Alma Goodwin, and the other was Mrs. Barnes, the mother of her sweetheart.

Alma was a natural cook and especially proficient in the baking of pies, and Mrs. Barnes had two great weaknesses or, rather, strengths.

One of these was an overwhelming love for good cooking, and the other was a still more overwhelming love of economy and thrift. Miss Alma had always showed great aptitude for the latter virtues, and that, added to her pies, had won the heart of Mrs. Barnes.

One day Farmer Norris came in with the announcement that Mr. Barnes had broken his leg. This caused Jennie to look very sad and to mingle with her sorrow the selfish thought that Ned would be kept at home more closely in bearing his father's share of the work.

"It's too bad, just as the husking season is on," observed Mr. Norris.

A bright thought seized Jennie.

"Father, why don't you suggest to all the farmers in the neighborhood to go over to the Barneses and husk for a day? They wouldn't miss a day from their work, and it would do wonders for Mr. Barnes."

Jennie's brain was very active in reference to all things concerning Ned.

"That's a good idee, Jennie, and I'll hook up now and go and call on all hands around."

When Mr. Norris returned from his campaign he said that all had willingly donated a day's services to the cause and Thursday had been the date set for the husking bee.

"I stopped in to see Barnes and told him about the huskin', and it did him good. I told him that it was all your idee, and I spoke up real loud so Mrs. Barnes could hear. She looked quite pleased like, and Ned spoke up and said as how you was always thoughtful. I cal'late you made a ten strike, as Frank says."

Jennie's face brightened, and her father continued: "When I come past Almy's she run out to ask about Ned's pa, and I told her about the huskin', and she was let down for a minute, then she perked up and looked real chipper."

"She's thought of something to do," sighed Jennie. "Alma's so clever."

"You always let her outwit you, Jen," said Frank indignantly. "She's full of mean tricks, and no one sees through her but Ned and me."

"She's got Ned's mother, body and soul," said Jennie.

"She knows how to pull the wool over her eyes. Why don't you, Jen?"

Jennie shook her head. She would not stoop to deceit.

"I won Ned fair without any tricks, and I want to win his mother the same way, if I ever can."

Just then the telephone rang. When Jennie had answered it and turned from hanging up the receiver her father asked, "What makes you look so disturbed, Jennie?"

"Alma has gone me one better, as usual. She's been around to the homes of all the neighbors or telephoned them and asked them to send in donations for dinner 'to save poor Mrs. Barnes feeding all those men.' She has told each one what to bring—Bates, beans; Hayes, doughnuts; Lukes, biscuits, and so on. Of course she's going to send mince pies. She makes the best of any one about here."

"What did she ask you to bring?"

"Pumpkin pies," replied Jennie bitterly. "She knows that mother is away and that I can't make a pie fit to eat."

Toward dusk Frank Norris appeared in the Barnes' kitchen.

"I came over, Mrs. Barnes, to see if I couldn't fetch wood and water or do anything. Don't you want me to wipe dishes?" he suggested, observing the dishpan piled full of crockery. "I never break them."

"Oh, Frank, I wish you would. Libbie was just mean enough to leave me in the lurch at the time I needed her most."

Frank caught up the dish towel and was soon dexterously at work. The act of dishwashing is quite apt to promulgate confidential chatter between washer and wiper, and Mrs. Barnes unbent in her thoughts of Jennie to the extent of remarking how thoughtful she had been. "But Alma," she concluded, "has taken such a load from me. I never could have cooked a dinner with Mr. Barnes sick and all."

"Yes, it was real thoughtful in Alma," acquiesced Frank. "Say, Mrs. Barnes," he added in lowered tones, "won't you ever tell if I tell you something?"

"No," she promised eagerly. "What is it, Frank?"

"You know ma is away, and Alma asked Jennie to bring pumpkin pies, and she makes the very worst ones you ever ate. Jen's so polite she didn't ask if she could take something else. It's too bad to waste good stuff in something no one can eat."

"I think so, too," agreed Mrs. Barnes, who ever preached and practiced economy.

"Jennie makes awful good butter," continued the young diplomat, "and you'll need a lot for potatoes and biscuits. Why don't you tell her you'd rather she'd bring butter?"

Now, butter was bringing a pretty fair price at the present time, and the selling of that article was one of Mrs Barnes' chief revenues.

"Why, yes," she said affably; "I'd rather she'd bring butter. One kind of pie's enough anyway, and Alma makes such good pies no one would touch any other kind but her mince."

When Frank returned home he told Jennie Mrs. Barnes wanted her to bring butter instead of pies.

Blithely did Jennie sing as she worked the churn the next morning. Buttermaking was her one achievement. She worked the rich, golden, clover scented substance into rose stamped pound pats and sent ten of them over to Mrs. Barnes, each reposing in a crisp lettuce leaf. Lavishness was a Norris characteristic.

"Well, Jennie can make butter, that's sure," exclaimed Mrs. Barnes as she feasted her eyes on the platter of pats that represented so much coin to her.

"I'd rather have good bread and butter than pie any day," asserted Ned.

Frank's Italian hand had still work to do. On his way home from delivering the butter he stopped at the Goodwin home.

"Jennie got her pies baked?" asked Alma sarcastically.

"No," replied the lad. "Mrs. Barnes said no one would touch any pie when they could get a piece of yours, so she asked Jennie to send butter."

Alma's plain face beamed at this compliment.

"Well, I'm going to beat my record this time. I am making the best mince meat ever."

"Let me taste it," pleaded Frank.

"All right. I wish you would and tell me how you like it. I can't bear the taste of it before it's baked."

She brought forth the mince meat, which Frank proceeded to sample.

"It's prime, Alma. If I were you I'd put in a little more brandy and bake a whole lot more. Pa said that was what he liked about your pies—you were never stingy with the pies or the brandy."

"I'll put in a little more, then," said Alma, going into the pantry.

As soon as she was out of sight Frank hastily took a great case bottle from his pocket and poured a good quart of brandy into the mince meat. The empty bottle was back in his pocket when Alma returned.

"Just a little more, Alma," he advised as he stirred the mince meat.

Alma baked her pies that afternoon and carried them over to the Barnes homestead.

"Let's have one for supper," proposed Mrs. Barnes. "There'll be plenty for tomorrow."

When she carried her husband's supper in to him she put a generous cut of pie on his plate. He promptly ate a piece of it.

"O Lord!" he ejaculated. "Taste this once!"

Mrs. Barnes did so and held up her hands in horror. "What extravagance!" she said. "It's awful! Why, pa, there's enough brandy in that mince meat to last a good housekeeper for a year!"

When she came out into the dining room Ned was the picture of disgust.

"I hope," he said sarcastically, "that you'll never hold Alma's cooking up to me again. This isn't pie; it's a drink!"

When, in addition, the flattered Alma capped the climax by sending over at least twice as many pies as the whole assemblage could possibly eat her cup of iniquity was full and overflowing in the sight of Mrs. Barnes. "Waste and prodigality," said she. "Anybody can be a good cook with such extravagance. I'll have no daughter like that."

Ned carried the glad tidings to Jennie that night.

Alma never learned how her hopes and plans had come to such sudden shipwreck. No one ever did until a year later, when Ned was told in confidence by his young brother-in-law.

That Was Different.

"You are the plaintiff in this case, I believe?" said the counsel for the defense to Mr. Ferry.

"I am."

"And you are suing Mr. Train for ten feet of ground more than you own?"

"But I own it. That's why I'm suing for possession."

"You think your land extends ten feet east on what Mr. Train claims as his?"

"Yes."

"How long have you claimed this ten feet?"

"Ever since I had it surveyed two years ago."

"Why did you not bring a suit for it sooner?"

"I was trying to obtain it amicably without going to law."

"Mr. Ferry, so recently as last December you laid no claim to this ten feet now in dispute."

"What's that?"

"Did you not one day last December tell Mr. Train that your ground came only to the point which he claims as his? Now, refresh your memory and remember you are under oath. The occasion I refer to was on Tuesday afternoon, and Mr. Madox was present."

"W-e-l-l," replied Ferry after a thoughtful pause, "that was when we were shoveling the snow off our pavements."—Detroit News.

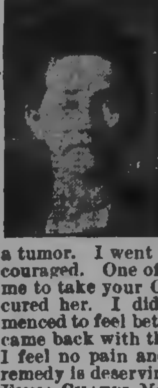
SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.



Another Operation Avoided.

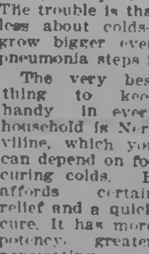
Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

HEAVY COLDS

During the census year in United States there were nearly seventy-seven thousand deaths due to pneumonia, and although consumption leads this by 62,000, pneumonia is responsible for more deaths than diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox, and cancer combined. The trouble is that people are too careless about colds—let them run on—grow bigger every day—finally old pneumonia steps in.

Nerviline Not Only Prevents, It Quickly Cures

The very best thing to keep handy in every household is Nerviline, which you can depend on for curing colds. It affords certain relief and a quick cure. It has more potency, greater penetrating and curative power than any other liniment.



When a cold is starting, give the chest and throat a vigorous hand rubbing with Nerviline, gargle the throat with Nerviline, and take a good stiff dose in hot water, you'll be surprised how fast the cold will disappear. Of course the chest should be protected by a Nerviline Porous Plaster, which will absorb all congestion and inflammation. You won't need to fear pneumonia, Grippe, Bronchitis or cold of any kind if you keep Nerviline handy.

EXPENSIVE HUNTING.

The Cost of Ex-President Roosevelt's Trip Into Africa.

Before Theodore Roosevelt may lift his gun to shoot when he lands on the African continent he must obtain a license at a cost of $250, which will entitle him to kill sixty animals. Among these he may include two elephants (male only), two rhinoceroses, two hippopotamuses, two zebras (except the mountain variety), two cheetahs, two male ostriches, two each of the large species of antelope and gazelle and ten each of the smaller species, ten of each species of wild pig and ten of the smaller cats and jackals.

The expense of the trip will be very great, but should Mr. Roosevelt so desire he can defray every item of it with the trophies of his hunt. The sportsman who is so fortunate as to secure a white rhinoceros may dispose of it for a small fortune. Full or half grown animals delivered alive at the Uganda railway will bring a varying price of from $100 to $323.

Mr. Roosevelt will not be restricted in the number of lions, leopards and crocodiles he may shoot, but the wild ass, the secretary bird, storks and okapi are by law made safe from his gun.

The president will be equipped with the most modern patterns of firearms. The rifles, shotguns and pistols which he will take with him would be sufficient to stock a small armory. Chief among his weapons will be the 35 caliber automatic Remington, which is capable of stopping anything from a tiger to an elephant. It carries five cartridges in the magazine, which go in on a clip, and when fired the rifle automatically loads and cocks itself. When the bullet strikes an animal it mushrooms and crumples every bone it may hit. A soft nosed bullet would be discharged from such a rifle with sufficient force to penetrate ten inches of solid oak or five-sixteenths of an inch of steel armor plate and would go through ordinary cast steel as easily as through a soft pine board.

In his complement of weapons will also be a number of 303 caliber rifles and in all probability an English express rifle of 500 caliber. The overland journey after Mr. Roosevelt arrives in Africa will cost him about $15,000, his retinue of servants consisting of 100 porters and gun bearers. There will also be five white men in the party, including the president's son Kermit.

Mr. Roosevelt will be a guest of the king of Uganda when he reaches this region in Africa, and the town band at Entebbe will serenade him with their tomtoms and dried bone clappers and other native instruments.—Van Norden's Magazine.

Modest Marconi.

It is a somewhat curious fact perhaps that as a boy Mr. Marconi, the value of whose system of wireless telegraphy has been so strikingly demonstrated by the saving of the passengers of the ill fated Republic, showed little signs of cleverness. One of his teachers, in fact, once said of him that he could never learn anything by heart. Nevertheless he was only twenty-one when he began to startle the world with his demonstrations of wireless telegraphy. In spite of his fame Marconi is one of the most unassuming of men and hates demonstrations. He was once recognized while walking in Rome. Immediately a cheering crowd assembled. Marconi bolted into what he thought was an empty carriage. But it contained a lady, who was too frightened to expostulate. The inventor quickly made his apologies, and the lady allowed him to remain until they were free of the crowd.—London Tit-Bits.

The $3.98 Kind.

Some consumers wonder how certain city retailers can sell chinchilla sets, evidently composed of several skins, for $3.98 when reputable furriers tell them that one chinchilla skin is worth about $20. They should consult Br'er Rabbit, for an ancient writer tells us that the "conies are a wise folk."—Fur News.

Best Known Man of His Time.

A writer in the Century says of Mr. Roosevelt: "He leaves the presidency the best known man of his time. His name and features are known to more persons throughout the world today than those of any other living person."

Wives and Mothers Suffer With Backache

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, women often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories and on a farm are weak ailing women, dragged down with torturing backache and bearing down pains.

Such suffering isn't natural, but it's dangerous, because due to diseased kidneys.

The dizziness, insomnia, deranged menses, and other symptoms of kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr Hamilton's Pills, which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURE ALL WOMAN'S ILLS

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend aid to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known. Recommended for girls and women of all ages. 25 cents per box at all dealers. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

This World-Famed Place Owes Its Existence to a Lottery.

No city in the world offers more curiosities for sightseers than London, though the places of greatest interest are miles apart, such as St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey, the Guildhall and the Parliament Buildings.

The British museum is in that part of the capital known as Bloomsbury, which at one time was the abode of the elite, but now is the boarding-house district. This institution is really the centre of artistic interest, for it contains one of the richest and most costly collections in the world.

It is not generally known that the institution owes its existence to a lottery. The famous Sloane collection, worth $1,000,000, was offered to the British Government for $100,000 in 1753, and Parliament voted that the sum should be raised by a lottery, under the auspices of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor and the Speaker of the Commons. This was done and the required amount raised. Three other costly collections were obtained and transferred to the Montague palace in Bloomsbury, which at that time was situated on the outskirts of London. Public interest had been aroused, and from that time on patriotic Britons have emptied their priceless relics into the institution.

The British museum has the largest library in the world. It requires forty-five miles of shelving to house its books, ad there is an annual increase of 100,000 volues.

The library has a Chinese encyclopedia consisting of 5,000 volumes and an endless amount of valuable manuscripts. In 1907, when for the first time in fifty-two years there was a general housecleaning in the palace, it took just six months to do it, at a cost of $10,000.

Too Tight a Squeeze.

John Fiske, the historian, was a man of enormous stature and extremely sensitive about any reference to his unusual size. On one occasion when he was visiting a friend at his home in a beautiful town in Connecticut the hostess and her daughter invited Mr. Fiske to drive with them one morning. The road is a picturesque one, which winds along the river at the foot of the mountains. At one point the hostess suggested that the party alight and walk a short distance through the field to get a particularly attractive view. Around this field was a high fence with no opening but a narrow stile. The ladies passed through and turned to wait for their guest. For a moment he contemplated the opening. To squeeze through was impossible; to climb over was equally impracticable. Finally his deep bass voice broke the silence, "Ladies, I think we would better continue our drive."

National Nicknames.

Like individuals, the nations of the earth have nicknames. The appropriateness of some is quite evident. But to explain the origin of others would be difficult.

Englishmen have submitted to the name of John Bull as suited to the national character. A Scotchman is Sandy. The Irishman gets his nickname, Paddy, from his national patron saint, while an ancient nursery rhyme records the fact that Taffy was a Welshman. In England the Frenchman is sometimes rather contemptuously alluded to as John Crepaud. But in France he is Jacques Bonhomme or, as a bourgeois, Monsieur Prudhomme.

Cousin Michel is the nickname by which the German is known to the continental nations. Mynheer Closh, an abbreviation of Nicholas, is the name applied to Hollanders, and the Switzer rejoices in the name of Colin Tampon.

A Monument to a Horse.

There are some very curious monuments to animals scattered over the countryside. The one with the most remarkable story crowns Farley mount, near Winchester. Underneath it lies buried, as an inscription on the exterior records, 'A horse, the property of Paulet St. John, Esq., that in the month of September, 1733, leaped into a chalk pit twenty-five feet deep a-fox hunting, with his master on his back, and in October, 1734, won the Hunters' plate on Worthing downs and was rode by his owner and entered in the name of Beware Chalk Pit." This inscription, which is a copy of the original, was restored by the Right Hon. Sir William Heathcote, Bart., in 1870. A duplicate is in the interior, which is provided with three seats intended for the accommodation of wayfarers.—Wide World Magazine.

Work of the Rivers.

The annual rainfall on all the land surface of the globe amounts to 29,000 cubic miles. Only one-fifth of this, or 6,500 cubic miles, drains off through rivers. The rest is absorbed and evaporated. But each cubic mile of river water carries in solution on an average 762,000 tons of dissolved foreign matter. By all the rivers 5,000,000,000 tons of solid substance is thus carried annually to the sea. Suspended sediments, or silt, the enormous mechanical load of streams, are not included in these figures. Only the dissolved matter is considered, representing the chemical work on rock and soil which the percolating waters have accomplished. The Mississippi carries past New Orleans each year 98,369,000 tons of dissolved salts, the product of chemical erosion.

Nougat Blancmange.

Heat one quart of milk and one cupful of sugar to boiling point, dissolve four tablespoonfuls of cornstarch in a little milk (reserved from the quart) and stir in, also have ready two tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate melted over boiling water and stir this in. Cook five minutes. Just before removing from stove stir in one cupful or less of chopped nuts. Pour into individual cups and cool. Put whipped cream over the top, sprinkle finely chopped nuts over top and place two raisins in centre of top. Enough for two servings.

Why, Indeed?

Mrs. Meeker—Wake up, John! I hear a noise downstairs. I'm sure there are burglars in the house Meeker—Nonsense, my dear! Why should burglars want to make a noise!

SIBERIAN HARD TACK.

Many Uses of a Bread Much Favored In Cold Countries.

Of all the hard tack breads of the universe I have found by actual experience the small-ringed bread of Siberia the most substantial. When the Russian engineering parties were constructing the Siberian railroad this white ring bread (with the coarse rye bread) was their main staff of life.

It is made without salt or yeast and is first steamed, then lightly baked to expell the moisture. Some curious uses were made of these breads by the engineers. When soaked in hot pure tallow for a few moments till they sank they were used in soups or soaked in and eaten with tea during the severe winter months. This tallow bread was considered the most heat producing article in the dietary. It should be utilized by our Arctic explorers.

Another curious use to which it is put is as an extempore candle or coffee pot boiler. A nail is used to make about eight holes in the tallow ring bread. Wax vestas are placed in these and ignited. It will burn slowly for about an hour, emitting a strong heat, sufficient to warm and light a small tent and boil the tea or coffee water. There is a rather strong odor of toasting bread, but that is tolerated in preference to smoke. While sojourning with the engineers in Siberia I have also seen them using the larger sizes of ringed bread as makeshift quoits for Sunday afternoon sport in their tents, and the bread would stand the knocking about pretty well and would eventually appear in the soup at the evening meal.

Small Siberian storekeepers also use the ringed bread as an abacus or primitive counting apparatus for calculating small sums in rubles and kopecks and simple figuring. Three strings are suspended above the counter. Ten breads are strung on each. The top line represents the rubles, their money transactions rarely going above ten, and the two lower strings stands for the kopecks. Of course the strings of bread can be increased to mount into the thousands and up if desired.

After Waterloo.

This morning (four days after the great battle) I went to visit the field of Waterloo, * * * but on arrival there the sight was too horrible to behold. I felt sick in the stomach and was obliged to return. The multitude of carcasses, the heaps of wounded men with mangled limbs, unable to move and perishing from not having their wounds dressed or from hunger, as the allies were, of course, obliged to take their surgeons and wagons with them, formed a spectacle I shall not forget. * * * At Hougomont, where there is an orchard, every tree is pierced with bullets. The barns are all burned down, and in the courtyard it is said they have been obliged to burn upward of a thousand carcasses, an awful holocaust to the war demon.—From "Reminiscences of European Travel, 1815-1819," by Major W. F. Frye.

Striking a Match.

"It's a woman," said Lecoq, the detective, heatedly. "We're on the trail."

"It looks like a man to me," the reporter murmured.

"But didn't you notice how she struck that match," said Lecoq. "She struck it away from her—a sure sign of her sex. Men always strike matches toward them."

After the arrest of the suspect—a woman, sure enough—Lecoq amplified his match statement. "It is tobacco that causes this difference between the sexes in match striking," he said. "All of us unconsciously strike matches toward what we are going to light. Woman always is going to light a lamp or fire—that is, farther off than the match—so she strikes her match away from her. But man is always going to light a pipe or cigarette—that is, nearer—so he strikes his match toward him."

Breaking Out the Colors.

A pretty sight aboard ship is the breaking out of the flags on reaching a port. At the appointed time a seaman takes his station at the forward mast and another at the rear mast. In his hand is a small silken bundle, tightly rolled. This is sent aloft. When the signal to break out the colors is given a cord is pulled, the bundle unrolls, and a splendid silk flag flutters out into the breeze. At the foremast is that of the nation whose port the ship is entering, while that on the rear mast is the flag of the steamship company, the ship's nationality being advertised by a large flag at the stern. The latter is lowered, or dipped, by way of salute when another steamer is passed out in the ocean.—H. J. Blanton in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Senatorial Temper.

A good way to tell the disposition and temperament of a senator is to watch him when he gives the three rings for the senate elevator. The rule is when three are given, no matter who is on the elevator or where it is going, the elevator man must hasten the car in answer to the rings. If the senator who rings is at peace with the world and the White House he will permit the car to go to its destination with the passengers. If the bell ringer is a grouch he compels the car to be stopped, and he has to be carried to his objective point, no matter who is aboard or how much hurry they may be in.

Arizona's Wonderful Canyon.

How many Americans trot off to Europe in search of something new who have never seen and probably never known of the Grand Canyon of Arizona, the most stupendous, awful, mysterious, beautiful and attractive natural wonder in the world! It has a depth of 6,000 feet, is over 60,000 feet wide and incloses a magnificent river, framed in by giant peaks with all the colors of the rainbow. This magnificent canyon has been brought within easy reach by Pullman car from our great cities. A trip can be made from New York in three days and from Chicago in two.

Observations on Baldheads.

"If you care to observe the baldheaded row," remarked the theater goer, "you will find that there is great variety in baldheads. There are elliptical bald spots, circular bald spots, elongated egg shaped bald spots, bald spots that are almost square and bald spots whose shape can hardly be described for the reason that they include the entire circumference of the head, with the exception perhaps of a slight row of finishing fringe between the head and the neck. If it wasn't for the baldheads the theater would be a bore before the rising of the curtain."—New York Press.

Curious Prayers.

Of curious prayers a writer says: "I have heard a layman utter this petition during his prayer: 'O Lord, be thou with us in our upsittings and our downrisings' — a variant of the text in the Psalms, 'Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising.' A minister occasionally introduced a Latin sentence into his prayer and forthwith proceeded to translate it. Another minister in his early days experienced considerable difficulty with the long prayer before the sermon. In nonconformist churches this usually occupies a quarter of an hour, but long before this period had been reached he was wound up. On one occasion, while in this dilemma, he startled his hearers with the words, 'And now, O Lord, I will relate unto thee a little anecdote!'"—London Standard.

Anthem Titles.

A certain Edinburgh organist, who "posts up" his Sunday service lists at the church door, had recently a very practical illustration of the risks that may attend the shortening of anthem titles. The late Dr. E. J. Hopkins of the City Temple wrote an anthem, "I Will Wash My Hands In Innocency."

The organist in his haste no doubt set this down as "I Will Wash—Hopkins," and was surprised when next day some wag sent him a cake of soap "to help wash Hopkins!"—Glasgow News.

Mahogany.

Mahogany wood was first imported by England in 1724, although in 1597 Sir Walter Raleigh demonstrated the great value of this wood, which was used in repairing his ships at Trinidad. From 1724 until the discovery of the mahogany forests of Africa by Stanley England and continental Europe were heavy purchasers of mahogany from the West Indies, Honduras and Mexico. A great part of the mahogany used in this country in early years came from Europe, it having first reached there from the West Indies, Mexico and Honduras.

The Label Failed.

Gunner—You can't get the best of those blamed baggage smashers. I labeled my trunks "China" and thought they would handle them with unusual care. Guyer—And did they? Gunner—No, but blamed if they didn't ship the trunks all the way to Shanghai, and I haven't seen them since.—Chicago News.

Cupid and Conversation.

By SUSAN E. MORLEY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Mrs. Naughton came out of the parlor and shut the door carefully behind her.

"It's too cold for you to set in there tonight," she said. "My, you can't see out of the windows! There's no sense in freezing this room to let the heat go in there."

She knelt down before the battered sheet iron stove and ran the poker vigorously through the redhot coals within. "You can set in here tonight, Dena," she went on. "For myself I prefer this room any day to the parlor."

Dena listlessly swept up the ashes and did other trivial things, as her mother directed. The room had the shabby, much used look which no amount of care could transform into cheer or even homeliness.

Dena felt it anew each time she returned to it after her absence as a district schoolteacher. If she could have bought a new carpet and a chair or two and a stove with isinglass and nickel she might have made it look to her liking, but her mother would not allow it.

Beauty in Mrs. Naughton's eyes was of trivial consequence indeed, although there were times when she regretted volubly her daughter's apparent lack of it.

Mrs. Naughton unfolded her skirt and smoothed out an imaginary crease. "You better set the teakettle on, Dena. And stir up the kitchen fire. It hain't quite supper hour yet, but I like to have everything ready in time."

Dena hurried from the room. There were tears in her eyes, and her face looked flushed and wistful. What was the use of it all? she thought bitterly as she filled the teakettle.

"NOW RUN UP AND GET READY," HER MOTHER COMMANDED.

Had she not dressed obedient to her mother's bidding these four Saturday nights in succession in the foolish hope that he might come? She set the teakettle on, stirred the fire and went upstairs.

In the second drawer of the bureau lay the pink albatross waist folded in white tissue paper and sprinkled with rose leaves gathered the summer before from the La France rosebush that grew in the yard.

She had worn it four times vainly and twice not in vain—those two precious evenings when he had really come. She would not put it on tonight, no matter what her mother said. She could not bear to sit another evening in it waiting and listening to every footfall with hope and longing and ultimate despair.

A sob burst from her, and she flung herself upon the bed, with her hands over her face. But she did not cry. She dared not. It would not do, for her mother to see her tears or to suspect that she cared poignantly.

Why could not her mother see that he would not come again and cease torturing her with expectations? Her little first romance was over almost before it had begun, and in her heart she knew what had ended it.

It shamed her to think of it; but, after all, she could not blame him. And she could not blame her mother either, foolishly ignorant of the ruin she had wrought.

Dena was twenty-four years old, and she had never had a lover. For six years she had taught steadily without anything happening and she was growing very tired when he came. He was the son of the people with whom she boarded, and he had been away a long time.

Dena liked him instinctively. She had never seen any one she liked so well so strong and thoroughly self reliant he looked in the week that was left to her before her school closed. They became good friends, and he told her when she went away that he would come to see her.

The doctor told Dena when she went home that she must rest for the remainder of the winter. Her mother grumbled openly. She did not like to see the girl ill, but she became reconciled to it when she discovered that Dena had an admirer.

It was her belief that every girl should marry before she was twenty-five, and in Dena's case there was little time to lose. She set about hurrying up this possible match.

The first evening Nick came it was she and not Dena who entertained him. Her nimble tongue scarcely paused. She gave him Dena's exact history from her first tooth to that day. Dena sat by and heard with Nick in an embarrassment of silence that she could hardly have broken had she been permitted.

Never had her mother been so voluble with that destructive volubility which wearies and sickens. At intervals she glanced at Nick's puzzled amused face and clasped her hands harder to keep from crying out.

All that week her mother discussed her prospects and gave the advice her own experiences warranted. Once Dena cried in agony, "But can't you see that he may not even think of marrying me?" and fell thereafter into tearful silence.

But the following Saturday evening he came again, and again Mrs. Naughton sat in the room and talked every minute. Nick and Dena parted without having said half a dozen words to each other.

But this time Nick looked neither puzzled nor amused. His eyes narrowed speculatively as he watched Mrs. Naughton.

When at last he went away Dena knew to a certainty that he would never come again. But each Saturday evening her mother made her take up her role and play it through. She had to dress and sit and wait.

Tonight she would not—she would not. For once in her life she would assert independence.

"Now run up and get ready," her mother commanded as they rose from the table. "I'll do the dishes."

Dena turned and faced her desperately. "I'm not going to change my dress," she said breathlessly.

"You ain't? Do you want him to see you in your common clothes?"

"He won't see me."

"What do you mean? What ails you?" Mrs. Naughton was astonished.

Dena turned wearily away. "I mean that he won't come again—ever," she said and escaped upstairs to her room. Mrs. Naughton looked after her, her restless eyes steady enough for once and her restless tongue still.

Dena heard her moving about; the dishes rattled violently. Presently she called from the foot of the stairs:

"I'm going out for a spell."

Dena was lying on her bed crying now unrestrainedly. She lifted her head and managed to ask:

"Where?"

"Over to Mis' Henderson's."

Dena's head went down with a groan. She knew that her mother would drag her poor little secret forth and dissect it mercilessly before the hungry eyes of the old gossip who was almost her only friend. The outer door opened, closed, and then all was still. Dena cried until she could cry no longer.

The doorbell jangled, and she sprang off the bed, polished her cheeks hurriedly with her damp handkerchief and ran downstairs. Her hands trembled as she opened the door, too dazed to realize who was waiting to enter.

"Good evening, Dena," said a pleasant voice. "May I come in?"

He put her aside gently, entered and closed the door himself. Dena stood motionless with surprise and joy.

"Aren't you glad to see me? Did you think I was never coming again?" He took her hands and looked down at her tenderly. Then Dena's voice came, and she looked up at him.

"Yes, I did think so. And I didn't blame you, for I understood. Oh, Dick!"

He took her into his arms. "But I found, dear, that nothing on earth was a sufficiently big obstacle to keep me from loving you and wanting you and seeing you again to tell you so. If I come back in a month for you, can you, will you be ready to go with me?"

"Oh, Dick!" Dena cried, and her six weeks of trouble and doubt and despair melted from her like a garment of snow in this new sunshine.

He Got the Ticket.

"Seamen's return" tickets are issued by most British railways at seaport towns to sailors at reduced rates. A rather well groomed young man demanded one to Birmingham; the booking clerk at Hull demurred.

"'Seamen's returns' are only issued to sailors," he snapped.

"Well, I'm a sailor," was the reply.

"I have only your word for that," said the clerk. "How am I to know it is correct?"

"How are you to know?" came the answer. "Why, you leather necked, swivel eyed son of a sea cook, if you feel my starboard boom running foul of your headlights you'll know I've been doing more than sit on a stool bleating all my life, and you'll haul in your jaw tackle a bit."

"Give him the ticket," said the passenger superintendent, who had overheard the dialogue; "he's a sailor, right enough."—London Scraps.

When you buy Paint, get the real thing

It is extravagant and foolish to buy and pay for paint, and instead of paint, get a mixture containing cheap adulterants.

Pure paint—the real thing—spreads easier, covers more surface (and covers it better) and wears longer than adulterated paint. Pure paint is far more economical to use. Pure paint gives the handsomest finish.

Pure paint insures you against paint "troubles", the cracking, the peeling, scaling, etc. that comes from the use of impurities.

"English" Liquid Paint is pure paint—made from 70% pure white lead (Brandram's B.B. Genuine) 30% pure zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. It will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money on your paint bill.

Made by Brandram-Henderson Limited, in 45 shades in addition to black and white. Come in for a color card. 3

HIS WIFE'S CHOICE.

The Worried Man, the Wall Paper and the Comment of the Clerk.

With an apologetic air the worried man, who had been gazing in the decorator's windows, finally entered and asked to see samples of wall paper.

"About what price?" asked the clerk.

"Fifty cents a roll," said the man. "My wife won't pay any more."

"Well," said the clerk, taking down a roll, "here is something in light colors that"—

"Oh, no; that won't do. My wife says the children get light colored paper soiled too quickly."

"Here is something in a darker shade with"—

"That won't do at all. My wife wouldn't like that because it makes the room too dark."

"Here is a design in a medium tone"—

"I'm afraid not," said the man nervously. "That has a small figure, and my wife says small figures are always monotonous."

"Then how about this?" asked the clerk wearily, "with the big roses in it and the"—

"I'm sure that wouldn't suit my wife," was the answer. 'She thinks the room is too small for large figures."

"We have a very pretty pattern done in a conventionalized"—

"Oh, please don't say that!" begged the man. "My wife told me particularly not to get anything of that kind. She thinks they are too dead looking."

"In that case," said the clerk desperately, "we have the very thing—medium background, with small flowers springled on it in neutral colors, altogether a very"—

"I'm afraid that is hardly it," said the man, looking more worried than ever. "My wife says flowers on wall paper never look like anything but smudges."

"Say," said the clerk, rolling up his stock, "you don't want wall paper. You want a divorce."

The Wise Though Gentle Reader.

In an armchair of a Pullman smoking car on the way east from Louisville a polite but resourceful man was trying hard to read a novel while his next neighbor kept up a running fire of chatter. With the light of a desperate resolve in his eye, yet cloaking determination with exquisite politeness, the reader presently said: "Pardon me, but my memory for names is not to be depended upon. Your name is"—

"Shepherd," replied the voluble one cheerfully.

The one-sided conversation kept on awhile longer, the light of desperate resolve meanwhile burning brighter and brighter. Then the reader raised his eyes to a stranger, his neighbor across the aisle, and suddenly demanded, "What is your name, sir?"

"Ward," said the stranger.

"Yes, yes, of course!" cried the reader briskly. "Mr. Ward let me introduce Mr. Shepherd."

By which simple but ingenious expedient the torrent of extraneous chatter was diverted to poor Ward, and the reader read happily ever after.

A Real John Doe.

"There goes a man who would be justified in changing his name," said the city salesman. "His name is really Doe, and John in the bargain—John Doe. Moreover, he has a sister Jane. I wonder what kind of joke their parents were trying to perpetrate on those helpless mortals. Doe as a surname was bad enough without adding to the offense by tacking on John and Jane. When I first met John Doe I didn't take his name seriously. I thought the man who introduced us was enjoying a little pleasantry at my expense or maybe at the expense of John Doe. I smiled. John Doe did not smile.

"'You don't believe it,' he said, 'but unfortunately it is true. I am the famous Doe.'

"Later I met his sister Jane and the rest of that particular Doe family. They assured me that there are a number of Does in town. I presume there are, but I trust that in most cases the old folks had sense enough not to christen their offspring John and Jane."—New York Press.

The Moor and His Horse.

The horsemastership of the Moors is primitive and entirely successful. A Moor never walks when he can ride and never by any chance gets off to ease his beast. How a Moorish pony would have chuckled at the weary walks enforced on tired men by well meaning cavalry colonels in South Africa! He would have said to himself: "I don't think much of animals that can't carry fifteen stone fifteen hours a day. I must be a really superior kind of beast." The Moorish (and Goumier) horse always spends his nights in the open. He is never groomed or clipped. His youth is passed wandering untended over the vast fields. When in work he gets all the barley he wants at night and a drink before his feed in the evening. From 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. he expects to work and to work hard without bite or sup. His saddle is a wooden tree superimposed on at least half a dozen folded blankets, the thickness of which often reaches six inches, and he never gets a sore back.—London Spectator.

Too General.

What's in a Label.

There is a good deal of art in advertising, and it has to be adapted to the public it seeks to meet. Edward Reeves in "Brown Men and Women" makes clear that what attracts the American market may not serve that purpose in the islands of the south seas. He tells an experience which a food firm had with one of those sea girt communities. The natives get very tired of fish, but are fond of canned beef, which they buy whenever they have money. That they are nothing more than children in their ideas the traders find out to their cost if they are not careful. An exporter of canned meat was nearly ruined by clinging to the trademark of a dragon's head. Shipment after shipment was sent out from San Francisco, each can branded with the flaming dragon. The natives shuddered at the sight of the hideous thing. They were not going to eat the disgusting beast. In vain the agents tore off the labels; the natives were suspicious and would not buy. The whole shipment had to be returned and put in fresh cans with a fat ox or sheep on the label. All the natives fully believed that the figure on the label was a true picture of what was inside.

Persuasion.

Dr. A. is a specialist in nervous ailments. In his most successful cases "persuasion" has played an important role. Six-year-old Frank has evidently had opportunity to imbibe his father's views on the efficacy of persuasion, which, Dr. A. contends, appeals to the highest psychic functions.

It was only a few mornings ago that Mrs. A. overheard an altercation in the kitchen between Master Frank and the cook. Mary's voice rose in loud protestations. Mrs. A. hastened to the scene and arrived just in time to see her son seize a convenient broom and threaten Mary.

"Why, Frank," she exclaimed in horrified amazement, "what are you doing?"

But Frank was equal to the occasion. "I'm just trying to persuade Mary for some angel cake," he explained in a matter of fact way.

If this treatment may not have appealed to Mary's highest psychic functions it at any rate tickled her sense of humor. Frank gained his point.—New York Times.

A Woman Soldier.

Eleonore Prochaska, born March 11, 1785, at Potsdam, was the daughter of a sergeant. After being brought up in the military orphanage of that town she became a cook in some citizen's house. When the great war against Napoleon broke out in 1813 she was led away by enthusiasm to quit her town secretly. By selling her poor belongings she procured male attire and weapons and enlisted under the name of August Renz in the Lutzow corps. On account of her tall, slender figure her sex was not discovered until she was mortally wounded. This happened in the encounter in the Gohrde forest, Regierungsbezirk, Luneburg, Kreis Dannenberg, Sept. 16, 1813. The Prussians were there attempting to storm a hill occupied by the French, she acting as a drummer. In 1863 a monument in memory of her was erected in the churchyard at Dannenberg and another in 1889 in the old churchyard of Potsdam.—London Sketch.

Stone Eaters.

Sir James Ross in the course of his travels noted a curious fact with regard to the penguin—namely, the habit of swallowing stones. In one specimen he found ten pounds weight of quartz, granite and trap. Other animals, reptiles, fishes and mammals exhibit the same strange fancy. In a paper contributed to the proceedings of the Bristol Naturalists' society W. H. Wicks has collected a number of facts connected with such stomach stones. The fact noted by Mr. Wicks that the pebbles are usually white quartz is interesting, but does not appear to throw any light on the strange habit.—London Globe.

A Rude Youth.

"How do you account for this, ma'am?" And he held aloft a lump of coal which he had just dug out from the sirloin steak.

The landlady slightly flushed.

"I suppose the poor cows sometimes stray along the railroad track," she said. "But you must admit the steak is tender."

He thumped the coal with his knife.

"Yes," he said harshly, "locomotive tender."

And the meal progressed in silence.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Concrete.

Concrete itself is, of course, very old. The concrete stairs of Colchester and Rochester castles still show the marks of the incasing boards. The dome of Agrippa's pantheon, which is 142 feet in diameter, is of concrete, and fragments of concrete buildings are found in Mexico and Peru.—London Spectator.

The Fate of Foglio.

What is said to be the most extraordinary feat of criminal vengeance on record happened at Algiers in 1899. A man named Foglio was arrested by the French police at the instance of the Italian Government. He was suspected of complicity in a Sicilian murder crime, and it was known that he was a member of the Mafia. In jail he weakened and promised to tell the whole story on condition that his life was spared. Two mornings later his jailer, visiting his cell, found Foglio on the floor, stabbed to the heart. The dagger was still in the wound, and on the body lay a scrap of paper with the words, "So perish traitors," in Italian. To this day the mystery of that death wound has never been solved.

Baronet Selling Newspapers.

There is a queer little romance hidden in the page of Debrett devoted to Sir Henry Kellett, Bart., whose address is given as High street, Kew, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia. No hint is given that this address is a news agency and stationer's shop, of which Sir Henry is proprietor. To a recent interviewer he said he did not use his title because, he added, "it would be absurd for Sir Henry and Lady Kellett to be selling newspapers from behind a counter." Sir Henry had a hard struggle to build up his suburban newspaper agency, working from early dawn until midnight, but the business is now fairly flourishing. During its early stages he trained a dog to carry newspapers and assist him in his work.

Economical.

A lecturer, talking of economy, cited the case of a leading lady as told to him by her manager.

The manager one Monday night entered a leading lady's dressing-room with a huge bouquet in his hand.

"The florist just sent this over, with the bill," he murmured confidentially behind his hand. "I'll have it—er—thrown on at the end of the trial scene, eh?"

"No, don't throw it on," said the leading lady. "Let an usher hand it up. I want to use it all this week."

A Diplomatic Postponement.

"I thought you were going to be married this month," said the tall girl.

"I had expected to be," said the blue eyed girl, "but I have put it off three months because my birthday comes this month, and if I get married then my wedding anniversary and birthday will come right together in future years and I'll get only half as many presents, because everybody will make one present do for both occasions."

Grasping the Chance.

The pantomime in a provincial town has fallen very flat, and the manager is extremely anxious not to lose an opportunity of infusing energy into his cast.

Comedian—I can't go on for a minute, sir. I feel funny.

Manager—Funny! Great Scott, man! Go on at once and make the most of it while it lasts.—London Mail.

A Tree Fountain.

In Perrysville, Ind., there is an oak tree from which flows a solid stream of water through a gas pipe. During the Cleveland and Harrison campaign in 1888 it was noticed that puddles of water collected at the base of the tree and that the bark was wet for several feet up the sides. The owner of the tree agreed to have the tree tapped if Harrison was elected. The agreement was carried out, and not once since has the water ceased flowing. It is thought by geologists that there is an underground stream with an opening at the roots of the tree.

Business Courtesy.

In a Canadian town recently a dry goods firm was burned out in the morning. In the afternoon a competing firm inserted the following advertisement in a local paper:

"We desire to extend our sympathy to our respected competitors in their loss by fire and to express the hope that their affairs may soon be so adjusted as to enable them to continue business without undue loss of time."

Something Similar.

"Have you a copy of the 'Stolen Rope?'" inquired a visitor to a music seller.

"I am afraid I don't know of such a song."

"Why, it goes like this." And the customer hummed the tune.

"Why, you mean 'The Lost Chord!'" said the assistant.

"Ah, that's it!"

Highly Flattered.

"Your glasses," she said, "have made a great difference in your appearance."

"Do you think so?" he asked.

"Yes. You look so intelligent with them on."—Chicago Record-Herald.

OPPOSES MILITARISM.

Trustee at Convention Says It Is Not Wanted.

Toronto, April 14.—"Lively" is a mild term with which to describe the proceedings of some of the sections of the Ontario Educational Association which opened its 48th annual meetining at Toronto University yesterday.

The inspectors were declared by the high school teachers to be "tyrants"; military training in the schools "barbarous"; and an educational rebellion was boldly advocated by a visiting speaker.

A climax was reached in the trustees' department over Mr. Trueman's denunciation of military training. President R. McKnight, Owen Sound, had some difficulty in preserving order. Mr. Trueman said there was no popular demand for military training. Its establishment meant the creation of an army of inspectors and drill masters. Military drill was founded on the idea of brute strength. Canada included in her citizenship many strangers from European countries who had come to escape from military service. The pioneers who cleared the land to make Canadian homesteads had no military drill. Physical culture was admirable, but military drill was akin to barbarism.

The sentiments of the speaker were applauded by some trustees from the rural districts, who in a turmoil, a number endeavoring to speak at once, voiced the view that the burden of military drill would fall upon the agricultural community, which would have to supply not only the men, but also the sinews of war.

Rev. W. T. Wilkins, Trenton, protested against the views set forth by Mr. Trueman, as not treating the subject in an adequate way, and as ignoring the patriotic aspects.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Sydenham glass factory at Wallaceburg was burned. Loss $125,000.

Contraband liquor worth $1,500 was poured into the sewers in Buffalo yesterday.

Prof. George Cross of McMaster University has been chosen to fill a chair in the Newton Theological Institution.

William G. Moffatt, who lived in Toronto for a number of years, was found dead in a hotel reading-room at Guelph.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Ennis & Stoppani, a New York brokerage firm which has branches in several Canadian cities.

Gilbert Lee, a settler from Minneapolis, was found suffocated in a car with his stock at Pinto siding. It is supposed his lantern exploded while he slept.

Street railway conductors at London, Ont., have been provided with yellow cards containing a notice against spitting in the cars, which they hand to offending passengers.

He May Really Be Charlie Ross.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 14.—The persistency of William Grant Eyster, a railroad brakeman, in maintaining that he is the long lost Charlie Ross, who was kidnapped in Philadelphia thirty-five years ago, has caused the mother of the missing boy to send an emissary to this city to investigate Eyster's contention.

SITUATION IS VERY BAD JUST NOW IN TURKEY

Constantinople, April 14.—The troops of the garrison made a violent demonstration yesterday before the Parliament building against the committee of union and progress and the Government.

They demanded the dismissal of the grand vizier, Hilmi Pasha, the Minister of War and President of the chamber.

The outbreak was caused by an order issued to the troops to the effect that they must obey their officers under all circumstances, even if called upon to shoot down their co-religionists.

The mutineers as the first move seized all the officers of the committee of union and progress and held them prisoners.

Only a few of the troops refrained from taking part in the demonstration.

The latter, which were chiefly artillerymen and cavalry, were massed at the War Ministry.

They had orders to fire on anyone approaching the building, and during the course of the day a number of persons were killed or wounded.

Deputies were escorted to the chamber in order that they might vote on the question of forming a new Cabinet and appointing a new president, but owing to the Easter holidays it was impossible to form a quorum.

The Cabinet met at the Porte early in the morning and after a long consultation, the Ministers sent in their resignations to the palace.

The Sultan's principal secretary read to the chamber an irade announcing that His Majesty had accepted the Cabinet's resignation and that a new Ministry was in process of formation.

Measures had been taken, the irade continued, to preserve order throughout the country.

It was announced that the mutinous troops had been pardoned and that they could return to their barracks and people to the occupations.

The irade was received with enthusiastic cheers for the Sultan.

More Particulars Of The Big Blaze In Rochester Yesterday

Rochester, N.Y., April 14.—Fire breaking out at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the Palmer building, a four-storey brick structure devoted to manufacturing interests at Main and Gibbs street, was the starting point of a conflagration in Rochester yesterday.

The fire spread over a wide area, jumping nearly a mile and started a second series of fires, of such proportions that the local fire department seemed inefficient to cope with the situation.

Aid was summoned from Buffalo and Syracuse, both of which rushed companies to Rochester. By the time of their arrival, however, the local firemen were masters within both fire areas.

The outside companies were held on reserve duty in the centre of the city, every Rochester company having been called out by the long series of alarms.

Although accurate estimates cannot be made at this time, the loss is estimated at least $500,000. This includes $60,000 on the Palmer building, $100,000 on the Hunting Company, manufacturing plumbers' supplies, which occupied the first floor; $90,000 on the beautiful Jewish Temple, Berith Kodesh, which is in ruins, and the rest in small amounts, is apportioned among smaller manufacturers, house owners and tenants.

More than 100 families are homeless, most of them being Polish Hebrews, who have not recovered from their fear of earlier in the day that the second coming of the Messiah was at hand, fear brought on by the pall of smoke and rapidly falling fire brands in their section of the city.

Mayor Edgerton last evening issued a call for relief funds for these families. Some of them are quartered in precinct houses, and a large number of them are spending the night at public school No. 9. Militia, with loaded rifles, are patrolling the fire area to-day, and will remain on duty until order is restored.

A heavy rain set in at 6 o'clock last night and while it helped in extinguishing the smouldering ruins, it was hardship on the homeless, especially those whose household effects are in the open. Thieving, which started early in the day, has been stopped by the presence of the militia.

Because of the numerous fires which Rochester has had lately, the board of fire underwriters has increased rates here on all buildings except dwellings 25 cents on every $100. The increase went into effect at 5 o'clock yesterday.

Draymen reaped a harvest. A large number of rigs of various descriptions invaded the district and offered for $5, $10 or more to remove goods to places of safety. Any amount asked was given by the half-crazed Polish Jews, and they stored as many of their goods as possible into the wagons, never knowing even their destination.

To-day Rochester is terror-stricken. Yesterday's fires are a culmination of an uninterrupted series of fires of weeks, many of which have been charged to incendiarism. Added to this natural fear is the fact that, although both of yesterday's fires have been under control since 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the flames are still smouldering in a dozen places. The wind is increasing in velocity and a close watch is being kept in those districts which are in its path.

Will Address The House Later On In The Session

Ottawa, April 14.—It was expected that Hon. Dr. Pugsley would make a statement in the Commons yesterday relative to the statements made by the New Brunswick Royal Commission, reflecting on himself and Lieut.-Governor Tweedie. The Minister of Public Works, however, has decided to postpone his reply to the strictures of the commission until he is in possession of the printed evidence taken by the commission, and is able to refute circumstantially the charges made.

The House resumed its deliberations after the Easter recess yesterday afternoon amid a buzz of excitement, which was in a large measure attributable to the assiduous efforts of the Opposition press to work up a crisis over the New Brunswick Royal Commission's report.

But for a question put by Mr. Foster, and a few words from the Prime Minister by way of reply, the New Brunswick affair, to the disappointment of the crowded galleries and an expectant gathering of members, was not mentioned.

Mr. Foster rose and observed: "I would like to ask the First Minister in view of the report of the commission at St. John, which affects to a certain extent two officers of this Government, he has yet decided on his course of action, or if he has anything to communicate to this House?"

"I have not seen the report," replied the Prime Minister, "except some extracts in the press, and at this moment I have no comment to make on it."

Mr. Monk then asked if there had been negotiations with Germany with regard to the improvement of trade relations with that country.

Mr. Fielding said there had been no negotiations, but from time to time representations along that line had been made by gentlemen interested in German trade.

To Mr. Foster, the Finance Minister said it was his intention to make his budget statement on Thursday. If it becomes necessary to postpone the statement, he would give due notice.

Mr. Monk was desirous of learning if Mr. Fielding proposed to make any tariff changes. It was rumored that there might be a change on tin.

It was never possible, replied Mr. Fielding, to make any statement in regard to tariff changes in advance of the budget speech.

Haughton Lennox brought up the question of the protection of the woollen industry. He pointed out the importance of the farming industry, showing that 3,798,000 of the people of Canada are supported by farmers. In Great Britain more than one-ninth of the population is supported directly through the textile industry and in Germany [illegible] are supported by this industry to one supported by all other industries.

We could not build up a great woollen industry so long as we exported our fleeces and bought them back as manufactured goods. We must not only raise wool, but spit it and card it and weave it and wear it. The woollen trade of Great Britain and the United States secured a foothold and was fostered and built up by means of trade and tariff laws, and the condition of Canada, he said, were eminently adapted for the development of this industry. The present unsatisfactory conditions of the industry was in the main the result of the existing tariff.

Mr. Thoburn (North Lanark) urged increasing the ad valorem duty a little and putting a specific duty on shoddy goods, in the interests of the working man.

C. L. Owen (E. Northumberland) observed that last year Canada imported twelve million dollars' worth of cloth goods and he claimed that we could manufacture at least one-half of these goods in this country. He advocated the barring of shoddy goods, by the imposition of a heavy specific duty.

The northwest provinces were well adapted for the raising of wool and it would be in the interest of the farming community to foster this industry.

Dr. McIntyre (Strathcona) said the real question was the bolstering up of tottering industries. It was not the duty of the Government to make it hard for the people, who are struggling hard for existence, to buy the necessaries. It was not a national policy that protected one class of people to the advantage of another class. He hoped there would be no increase in the tariff on woollens.

Mr. Blain was in favor of a tariff high enough to keep out of Canada every dollar's worth of goods that we could produce. When Dr Schaffner introduced a resolution favoring a reduction in the tariff on agricultural implements from 17 1-2 to 10 per cent Dr. McIntyre was not present to support him. This was proof of the insincerity of the gentleman. Mr. Blain declared that many of the Liberal members had become converted to the doctrine of higher protection. Mr. Mackenzie of Cape Breton had advocated an increase on coal, while Mr. Sealey, another ardent free trader, wanted higher protection for pork.

Mr. Fielding closed the debate at 12.30 this morning. He said he was not free to express the conclusions of the Government on the question in advance of the budget speech.

He also said that on account of requests of two or three members of the Opposition for information he would postpone his budget speech till Tuesday next.

END OF LEGISLATURE.

Record Is Created by Members in Passing 166 Bills.

Toronto, April 14.—The first session of the 12th Legislature of Ontario was prorogued by Lieutenant-Governor Gibson yesterday. In all 166 bills were assented to, which is the largest number passed at any single session since confederation, 146 having been passed in 1908, and 126 in 1907.

Prayers were omitted in order that his honor should not be kept waiting, and the House passed a bill amending section 17 of the Statute Amendment Act, 1909. This section relates to sheriff's sales of tax lands in Parry Sound and Muskoka, and exempts any where litigation has been commenced. Such a proceeding has happened only once before, viz., under the late Hon. A. S. Hardy.

Hurried telegrams were despatched hither and thither to members Monday night, calling them to Toronto that a quorum might be present, and about 40 responded to the call, including two Liberals and Allan Studholme (East Hamilton). T. R. Mayberry (South Oxford) kept a lonely vigil on the Opposition benches until he was joined by Valentine Stock (South Perth).

Occupying members' seats were Chief Justice Sir William R. Meredith, Justice Riddell, Justice Teetzel, President Falconer and Hon. R. Southerland, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons.

A guard of honor was provided by the Queen's Own Rifles and the 9th Field Battery fired the usual salute of 13 guns. A detachment from the Royal Canadian Dragoons acted as cavalry escort.

His honor was met by Sir James Whitney and was preceded to the Legislative chamber by Lt.-Col. Septimus Denison, who acted as chief of staff in the absence of Gen. Cotton, Major J. Macdonald, A.D.C., Capt. Douglas Young, A.D.C., and Capt. A. E. Gibson, A.D.C.

"Although this, the first session of the 12th Legislature of Ontario, has not occupied a long period of time, the number, the variety and the important character of the enactments placed upon the statute book bear witness to the intelligence and the industry with which you have applied yourselves to the performance of your public duties," said his honor.

"Recent events have made it again clear that constant watchfulness is necessary to prevent interference with the jurisdiction of this and the other provinces through the medium of Federal legislation, and it is to be hoped that a permanent understanding will be reached by means of which this danger may be removed."

Mention of various measures passed by the Legislature was then made in congratulatory terms, and Dr. Pyne declared the House prorogued.

Dumont's Flyer.

Paris, April 14.—M. Santos Dumont, who has been "lying low" for some time so far as aeronautics are concerned, during the last eight days has attracted considerable attention by the experiments he is making with his diminutive monoplane flying machine at Saint Cyr.

This monoplane, which is named "Mademoiselle," probably to indicate its slight build, can easily be carried on an automobile. The apparatus is less than 20 feet long and 15 feet broad. Its total weight, when M. Santos Dumont is on board, is only 330 pounds. A 24-h.p. motor with which it is fitted is sufficient to give a speed of 70 kilometres an hour.

Mademoiselle is built of canvas and bamboo. For starting purposes it runs along the ground on three bicycle wheels.

Split In Labor Party.

Edinburgh, April 14.—The recent factional brawls in the ranks of the Independent Labor Party, which have militated against the usefulness of the party in the House of Commons, came to a climax at yesterday's session of the annual congress of the organization, when James Keir Hardie, Philip Snowden, Ramsay MacDonald and Bruce Glasier resigned their seats as members of the national administration council.

The immediate cause of the trouble was the adoption by the congress of what amounted to a vote of confidence in Victor Grayson between whom and Mr. Hardie there has been a feud of long standing.

Progress of G.T.P.

Ottawa, April 14.—William Wainwright, vice-president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, who is here, says he has no knowledge of any difficulty with contractors in the west over the non-payment of moneys due them.

Mr. Wainwright says that rails are now laid from Winnipeg to Battle River, 675 miles, and the balance is graded to the foot of the Rockies. By June the line will be in operation from Winnipeg to Edmonton and from Edmonton to Fort William in time for the fall carrying trade.

Five Years For Robbery.

Chatham, April 14.—William McCathern, colored, of Dover, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on a charge of robbery and assault by Judge Houston.

McCathern entered the grocery store of Donald Ross, Chatham Township, and after beating him insensible, looted the store.

Family of Seven Deported.

Brockville, April 14.—An English family of seven persons who resided for the past year at Portland Village, where they have been a charge on the community, were taken charge of yesterday by Inspector Devlin of Kingston, and conveyed to St. John, N.B., where they will be deported to the old land.

Thirty Ladies Robbed.

Montreal April 14.—Thirty young ladies taking part in an entertainment at St. James Methodist Church Monday evening left their furs, wraps, purses and other personal effects in a room adjoining the schoolroom. During the entertainment thieves broke in and made a clean sweep.

Protest Against C.P.R.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—A spirited meeting of merchants was held yesterday in protest of the alleged discrimination by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

TORONTO MAN FOUND LYING IN A POOL OF BLOOD DIES TWO HOURS LATER AND FOUR PEOPLE ARE NOW IN CUSTODY ON A CHARGE OF MURDER

Joseph Dillon, Well Known to the Police, Was Picked up on Jarvis Street in an Unconscious Condition---Was Supposed to Have Been in a Row.

DID HE ASSAULT THE WIFE OF ONE PRISONER?

Examiner Special (2:45 p.m.)

Toronto, Ont., April 14.—Joseph Dillon, aged about 40 years, who was found lying in a pool of blood outside 113 Jarvis street late last night died at St. Michael's Hospital at three o'clock this morning. Two hours before Dillon died, Harry Snider, his wife, Eva, Harold Evans and Bessie Prayle, occupants of the house in question, were placed under arrest. The man appeared in the police court this morning charged with murder with the women as material witnesses. No evidence was taken, the case being remanded for a week. Dillon, who was well known to the police, is alleged by Snider to have gone to the latter's place and tried to assault Mrs. Snider, receiving the injuries which resulted fatally in the row which followed.

May Stop The Chinese Habit Of Blowing Water Upon Clothes

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, April 13.—Chinese laundrymen in Ottawa may shortly have to desist from their practice of dampening clothes by squirting water from their mouths.

The attention of Dr. Robert Law, medical health officer for the city, was directed this morning to the action recently taken by the Board of Health at Chatham, Ontario. The health authorities there have warned the Celestials that they must adopt a new method of sprinkling the clothes they are laundrying, as disease is spread through their habit of blowing water upon articles of wear.

"There is no doubt that disease might sometimes be communicated in that way," said Dr. Law. "I shall look into the matter, for it is a question that deserves investigation. I may make a recommendation to the Board of Health in this matter."

Nearly every Chinese laundryman in Ottawa blows water on the clothes previous to putting them under his irons. They become expert at this blowing business, and can spray a bundle of clothes in a very short time in this manner. However, they will have to adopt some other method if the medical health officer's investigation leads him to believe that it is in the best interest of the health of the city that they should do so.

Barbers' Petition For An Early Closing Is Sufficiently Signed

A few changes are being made in the location of some of the barber shops. Mr. D. Hall has moved into the grocery store vacated by Lillico in the Lendrum buildings on Charlotte street. Mr. Irwin has moved into Mr. Hall's former stand.

It is reported that the petition for an early closing hour on Saturday nights is already signed fully, and will be presented to the Council before long. The barbers are asking that Saturday night's closing hour be 11 o'clock, instead of what they call "any old time" as at present. Sixteen names are required on the list, and already there are seventeen names.

Those candidates who failed will be required to attend the rest of the session, and write on the examination to be held in June, 1909.

The marks of unsuccessful candidates, as well as the certificates of the successful candidates, will be forwarded without delay to the addresses reported to the department of education.

Permanent second-class certificates will be issued to those of the successful candidates who are 21 years of age and interim second-class certificates to those under that age.

Candidates who have been admitted to the course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, will find cards of admission enclosed with their certificates.

The standing of such candidates will be reported at the earliest possible moment.

Farmers Ask More For Cattle Than Is Offered On Market

"You cattle buyers ought to take a few of the farmers down to Montreal with you on your regular trips and open their eyes to what good cattle really are," said a retired farmer on the market this morning during the course of a conversation on the present cattle supply throughout the country.

One of the buyers stated that the farmers are asking a price that cannot be secured even on the leading markets and they will hold on to their demands with bulldog tenacity. The cattle, in most cases, which they sell to buyers, and which they have long thought deserving of a high price look like third-raters and stockers when they are ranged beside the others on the Montreal and Toronto markets.

"What do you want for this old bandbox?" is the regard in which the majority are held and those cattle from these parts which compare favourably with the best are, indeed, the exceptions. The buyer has his own troubles according to the tales recited between the arrivals of farmers with cattle. They have first to dicker with the farmer, they have to deliver them at the prominent markets and then they have to sell them and their success is known only to themselves.

A SENSATION EXPECTED

Hamilton, April 14.—Interest in the Kinrade case was revived here to-day by a statement from the authorities that it had been definitely decided to place Florence Kinrade in the witness box once more in the hope of getting some further information from her. A well known detective who is closely in touch with the case has declared that he looks for a sensation in a few days.

ITALIAN WAS DISCHARGED

Nicolas Marcocci Assaulted Angus McDonald Last Night But Assault Was Provoked and Magistrate Allowed Him To Go.

McDONALD WAS FINED.

Spattered with mud and blood, Angus McDonald walked into the prisoner's box at the police court this morning. Angus had better not start any more fights, or they might end like the one he participated in last evening. In addition to getting a "trimming" at the hands of Nicholas Marcocci, an Italian, he was fined two dollars by the magistrate to-day.

McDonald, it was stated, called the Italian, a dago and other uncomplimentary names, at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets last night. Marcocci would not stand by and be insulted and a lively "set to" ensued from which McDonald came forth with blood streaming from his face and his clothes covered with mud. The Italian was unscratched. The police were telephoned for and P. C.'s Meharry and Meagher were soon on the scene and placed the two under arrest.

They appeared before the magistrate this morning, each charged with being drunk and disorderly. McDonald pleaded guilty and was fined two dollars to be paid in ten days. His Worship discharged the Italian, stating the assault and disorder on his part was provoked.

CASE AGAIN ENLARGED

Charge Against Fire Chief for Assaulting Frank Reynolds on Saturday Evening, April 3rd, Could Not Be Heard This Morning.

COMPLAINANT IS VERY ILL

The charge against Fire Chief Howard of assaulting Frank Reynolds at the fire station on Saturday night, April 3rd, was to have been heard this morning at the police court, but owing to the serious illness of the complainant, the case had to be again enlarged for eight days. The counter charge against Reynolds, laid by Chief Howard, for trespassing, of course, had also to be enlarged until Thursday next.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams, counsel for Reynolds, stated that his client was quite ill with pneumonia, and it may be some days before he will be able to attend court.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Little Evelyn Foy, East City, Who Was Seriously Scalded on Monday Last, Passed Away Early This Morning.

FUNERAL HELD TO-MORROW

Little Evelyn Foy, who while playing with a number of other children on Monday last, fell into a pan containing boiling water and was badly scalded, succumbed to her injuries this morning. The immediate cause of her death was convulsions resulting from the burns. She was burned from the waist, down the front of the body. The child was only two years old and suffered great pain. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foy, 74 Hunter street, East City. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing parents in their sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

HE DIDN'T KNOW THAT QUEEN VICTORIA WAS DEAD OR THAT THERE HAD BEEN A WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA

Examiner Special.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 13.—Lost in the desert for fifteen years, Albert Courtney, a mining prospector and British subject, heard yesterday for the first time that Quen Victoria was dead. The name of Theodore Roosevelt was strange to him, and nothing of the Boer war had reached his ears. Naturally ping pong, diabolo the plays of Geo. Bernard Shaw, the defeat of Bill Squires, the suffragette movement—all the great facts and occurrences of recent years were matters of which he was ignorant.

Courtney was a recluse and did not see a book or newspaper during the entire period from the time he buried himself in the desert until he emerged therefrom in San Bernardino to ask among other things, after Queen Victoria's health.

"'Ow is the Queen?" was one of his first queries.

He was told, once his question was understood that it is now King Edward.

An automobile shot past and the man from the desert backed hastily into a doorway for protection.

"And so Queen Victoria is dead? I can 'ardly believe it," he murmured, but the victory in South Africa raised his spirits and he gave three British cheers on the spot.

Courtney is 70 years old and is well preserved, physically and mentally.

PAPER CHASE BY BOYS OF Y.M.C.A.

The boys of the Y. M. C. A. were out on a paper chase or what is now often called "hare and hounds." The route led out to Jackson's Park, swerved northward and eastward to the liftlock. Forty-five minutes were spent in the chase. The hounds gained two minutes on the hares. Twelve of the boys turned out for the run and enjoyed it very much.

BANCROFT MAN BADLY SLASHED WITH A KNIFE

Louis Saucier Returned Home From Lumber Camp to Find His Wife Living With Another Man---He Threatened to Have Him Arrested.

AS A RESULT HE WAS STABBED BY USURPER.

Bancroft, April 13.—Louis Saucier returned from the lumber woods on Monday to find his wife living with a man named Emmanuel Hannah. A row took place, and he threatened to have Hannah arrested. The latter retaliated by pulling a knife and stabbing Saucier in the abdomen, inflicting a dangerous wound. Dr. Embury, of Bancroft, was called, and a telephone message was received from him this morning, in which he stated that Saucier was badly slashed, and he could not say what the result would be. Hannah skipped out immediately after the row, accompanied by Mrs. Saucier, but a warrant was issued for his arrest, and placed in the hands of a local constable, who succeeded in capturing him, and he is now on his way to Bancroft, where he will be given a preliminary trial before Police Magistrate Jarman. The parties lived in Raglan township, on the border of Hastings county.

Price Of Flour Advanced 15 Cents Per Hundred To-day

A prominent flour mill man informed the Examiner to-day that the price of flour would in all probability advance within the next week. The present wholesale figure per hundred weight is $2.75 and owing to the rise in the prices of Manitoba wheat, this price will have to be put up ten or fifteen cents.

Ontario winter wheat is very scarce, and practically nothing is being offered. Farmers are not disposed to sell what they have stored, and many are asking $1.22 per bushel delivered to the mills.

The present wheat prices, it is said, will last, and unless an unexpected slump takes place, there will be a further increase in flour prices.

The Closing Of The "King's Daughters'" Tea Rooms

During the past winter season the Kings' Daughters have conducted a new enterprise in the interest of the funds for the promotion of the splendid work of practical benevolence they carry on.

Tea-rooms, conducted by, and under the auspices of, the King's Daughters were opened in the old Bank of Montreal buildings, Simcoe street, where tea was served in the afternoons to ladies whose business or pleasure brought them down town during the day. The opportunity of having a cosy corner to drop into to have a cosy chat and a comfortable cup of tea and a nibble at dainty refreshments was abundantly appreciated. The tea rooms received a liberal patronage and they served a far more important function than merely giving opportunities for tea drinking and incidentally adding to the charitable fund of the King's Daughters. They brought together ladies of all denomination affiliation and, in addition to strengthening the ecclesiastical entente cordiale, strengthened social ties and led to the forming and improving of many meritably agreeable acquaintances.

To signalize the close of the tea rooms for the season, a high tea will be served in the rooms to-morrow (Thursday) evening from four to six p.m. Features of the occasion will be a "silver collection" and tables where home-made candies, cakes, etc., may be purchased.

The rooms will remain open till Saturday, when they will be closed for the season, after a very successful winter's operation, to be opened again next year.

Entries For The Camera Club Exhibit Are Coming In Fast

The entries for the exhibition of the Peterborough Camera Club, which will be held from April 26th to 30th, are coming in fast, the total number now in the hands of the Secretary, Mr. N. A. Howard Moore, being 115, of which 72 were telegraphed last night. The local entry list closes on Friday, April 16th, and entries from outside clubs will not be received later than Tuesday of next week. This extra time is allowed owing to the fact that the Montreal Exhibition does not close until Saturday. Three clubs from Montreal, Ottawa and Jamestown, N.Y., have promised entries. The informal opening will be held on Monday, April 26th, and on Tuesday, the 27th, His Worship Mayor Rush will formally open the exhibition. Entries may be left with the secretary at his residence, 121 King street. Further announcements will be made in the near future.

Warsaw, April 13.—At a meeting held in the Morgan House on Saturday evening, the Warsaw Football Club was reorganized for the coming season.

DR. GRENFELL DRAWS

Dr. Grenfell and the great work he has done among the neglected fisher folk of the bleak Labrador coast, have drawn to him the eyes of the world, and the applause of all those interested in single-eyed, stern devotion to philanthropic work—the big heart translated into the busy hand. But Dr. Grenfell has drawn more than that. He has drawn practical help and now he has attracted a disciple who must be devoted or the work would not be contemplated, so great is the arduousness of it. The despatches announce that Miss Marguerite Carr Harris, daughter of Prof. D. Carr Harris, late of the Royal Military College, Kingston, is to become an assistant in Dr Grenfell's deep sea mission work and that she will enter upon her duties the coming summer. Great is the influence of noble example. Miss Harris in resigning the comforts of home, the refined associations of society and all that contributes to the normal delights of civilized life is making a great sacrifice; but in so doing she is following the example of the great Sacrifice who made such a life the highest and noblest; the most beneficent to humanity, and the richest in result and reward. Those who perform the duty of hearing Dr. Grenfell at the Grand Opera House to-night, will hear more of Miss Harriss and a great deal of the work which has been accomplished and remains to be accomplished upon the eastern and rocky threshold of the Dominion.

"He hath borne himself beyond the province of his age, doing in the figure of a lamb the feats of a lion."

IMPROVING BUSINESS

When the clouds of hard times began to gather in the business and financial sky it was safe prophesying as was done, that, for reasons, hard times would strike Canada with lesser force than other countries. It was safe to argue that millions of dollars spent in railway construction and in the wide radius of industritl and commercial interests to which its influence would spread, would ease the stringency and act as a buffer to the impact of hard times. A good idea of how wide-spread have been the effects of railway construction in connection with only one railway, upon general trade activity is furnished by a consideration of the important distribution of large orders in Canada by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Among the orders reported and published are to be found: Twenty-five eight-wheel locomotive engines to be delivered next July by the Montreal Locomotive Works, 22,000 tons of eighty pounds steel rails for the prairie section to be delivered at Fort William on the opening of navigation by the Algoma ("Soo") Steel Company. The Nova Scotia Steel Company has secured an order for 15,000 tons of steel rails for the mountain section of the Grand Trunk Pacific, to be delivered at Prince Rupert, by way of Cape Horn, by August next. It is also to be noted that the Grand Trunk Pacific has placed on order for twenty-five Mogul engines with the Kingston Locomotive Works. These are well under way and are to be completed for delivery by July. Here we have Canadian industries producing seventy-five million pounds of steel rails and fifty locomotives, giving employment to thousands of workmen and calling into play numberless tributary industries, mining, smelting and coaling, not to speak of the great demands made upon a wide range of industrial and commercial activities in the supply of construction materials in furnishing picks, shovels, explosives, ploughs, scrapers, harness, horses and supplies for workmen. The Grand Trunk Pacific amply justified as a national transportation necessity—a national development necessity—has, in its construction been the means of contributing to the warding off of hard times as they have them elsewhere and tiding the country over the stormy spots till the calm waters of good times now coming and in many respects here, are reached.

In 1907 Canada's mineral production was $86,183,477. In 1886 it was only $20,000,000

WHAT STUFF WE READ.

William Wilfrid Campbell, the Canadian poet, said some things in an address before the Ontario Literary Association in Toronto, which should please decent people as much as his literary work has done. He denounced the modern decadence in popular taste for reading—the bent towards the evenascent froth of the average magazine and the pernicious "problem" novel—the apotheosis of dirt. In view of the moral danger threatened he compared literary Ontario to Nero at the burning of Rome, serenely fiddling while the mistress of the world was going up in smoke. He points out that where books were once read, magazines and fiction are now taking their place and this fiction has too much of the nasty to be wholesome. This is a sign of terrible moral decadence, and Dr. Campbell calls upon thinking men and women to stem the tide. Such an appeal comes in good time, or, rather, perhaps, too late. Much of the mischief deplored as doing is already done. Sound taste in literature is deeply vitiated and moral sense and sense of decency deplorably deadened. It comes as a shock to one of the older school to note how the free manner of discussing sex relations, that so coarsely and frankly obtained in the eighteenth century, has become revived in our modern drawing rooms. It was not till the "problem" novel and its congeners in literature had done their deadly work, exercised their insidious sapping of moral tenderness, that one could hear as one hears to-day, married women and unmarried young men, discussing in a morbid matter of fact way, in mixed assemblies, the relative filth, and, inferentially, relative attractiveness, of the latest modern novel of the salacious school. As a man thinketh so is he, and as a man and woman read so they think and so they become. One need not be gratuitously pessimistic to note the general downgrade modern tendency. Our reading, our pastimes, our amusements, and even our religion, are in the lighter vein. We make a business of amusement, and recreation, and, to a deplorable extent, we necessarily make a comparative pastime of business and the more serious affairs of life. We do not read so much to store and develop the mind as to tickle it, with piquant literary condiments. We, as a generation, delight more in the spice than in the solids of a proper mental menu. Dr. Campbell's conclusions are worth noting. He says.

"It is dangerous to drift, to allow all sorts of agitators to dictate our ideals. The duty of Canadian libraries is to inculcate the old-time, ethical British ideals. We worship smartness and forgive dishonesty. All really good literature can only come from a sane, pure and God-like people." We need to have our ideals raised, not debased as has been done by the washy wave of modern literature

We, have not read an author till we have seen his object, whatever it may be, as he saw it—Carlyle.

GREAT MINING DEVELOPMENT COMING

(Toronto World.)

The pulse of national expansion is beating firmer to-day than at any period since 1906, and the current year should pass into history as one of the most notable in the industrial life of this country.

Of the now perennial growth of the agricultural areas of the Dominion, a great deal has been said. Moral progress is doubtless being made in the campaign for the conservation of the natural resources of the country. Things are "stepping along." The western City of Winnipeg throws out her chest with $12,000,000 of building permits already for 1909. Vancouver talks of being the second city of the Dominion, and tells a story of wonderful building activity along the waterfront, and in the wholesale districts. From coast to coast the country vibrates with the note of renewed confidence and developing prosperity.

It is in the mines that Canada will experience this year a new national impulse. Cobalt is great and growing better. What is important, it is gaining international recognition. It has dared to rival Goldfields and has left the new boom camp of the republic away behind.

New areas rich in minerals are being opened up, and with these will be made much of the mining history of 1909.

It is safe to say that six months from to-day Canada should know with reasonable certainly the possibilities of the new fields. Fine plants of machinery have gone into the Montreal River country and to Gowganda. In proper time the development work now in progress will tell its story of success or failure. It looks now so much like success that men have divorced themselves from large sums of money as an earnest of their faith. In six months there should be sufficient ore, and enough development done to indicate the future. The great silver belt will be prospected this season by a great army of men, and if the country holds anything wonderful that has not yet ben heard of it should be revealed this coming summer.

The rush into the north this spring will have no equal in mining history unless it be that phenomenal and unprecedented rush or precipitation into the gold field of the Yukon. Singularly this greatest of mining movements was to a Canadian camp.

The silver fields of the north will be tested in 1909. The coal mines of the West are being opened up. At Sturgeon River and Rainy River interest is developing in the gold deposits. At Temagami a quiet gold devlopment has ben going on for some time, and there will soon be shippers there. New York capital is about to open the Olive gold mine near Mine Centre. Near Ville Marie copper deposits are coming to the front. At Sellwood the Moose Mountain Iron Mine is being equipped with machinery of greater capacity. As the man from Fort Frances said recently: "The eastern part of the province has its Cobalt, Gowganda and Montreal River, but we have our Seine River and Rainy Lake gold fields, which, with proper management and development, will make a name for the western part of New Ontario."

NAVAL SUPREMACY MUST REMAIN

Speaking in the British House of Commons on March 23rd, Premier Asquith spoke on the naval situation, actual and in relation to Germany. He said in part:

My object is a much simpler one. It is to dissipate, as far as I can—and I trust I shall be able to do so completely—the absurd, the mischievous legends to which currency has been given as to the supposed naval unpreparedness of this country. A more unpatriotic—a more unscrupulous misrepresentation of the actual situation—(renewed ministerial cheers)—than that which is now being presented in some quarters I have never experienced. (Loud ministerial cheers.)

I want to see what the situation actually is. How do we stand as compared with Germany at this moment, and how shall we stand in 1912? First of all, take the actual Dreadnought construction.

Valuable Experience

Our first Dreadnought was commissioned in 1906. She has now been twenty-seven months in active service, and has cruised over 30,000 miles, and I venture to say we have gained invaluable experience as to the methods of this particular type of ship, as to the improvements which can be made in it, as to developments of which it is capable—an experience which becomes in the highest degree invaluable when you are dealing with a new type, and which makes it inadvisable to stereotype our construction until we have got the knowledge and experience which use alone can give. (Ministerial cheers.)

We have at this moment four more Dreadnoughts in commission, and we shall have a fifth at the end of next month; and at the end of the year we shall have seven capable of taking their part in the British fleet. Germany has not got a Dreadnought in commission state. It is expected that one will be ready for commission early in the autumn, and at the end of the year she may have two. At the end of the year we shall have in commission seven Dreadnoughts, displacing 135,000 tons, carrying sixty-four 12-in. guns, as against Germany's two Dreadnoughts, displacing 36,000 tons. Well, there is nothing very alarming in that. (Ministerial cheers.)

Old Women Can Sleep O' Nights

Old women of both sexes—(laughter)—whose slumbers have been disturbed by fantastic visions of German Dreadnoughts landing an invading army upon our shores, can dream in peace for the next twelve months. (Laughter, and ministerial cheers.)

The fact is, our naval strength has not been sufficiently brought to the front or appreciated in the course of these debates. A very inadequate conception seems to prevail as to the vast fleet of battleships of ours which belongs to the pre-Dreadnought era. The tendency of modern naval science has been to shorten, for the purposes of effective fighting power, the duration of the life of great battleships from twenty-five to twenty years; but taking the lower figure, how shall we stand in 1912 in regard to this class of pre-Dreadnought ships, many of them still in the first bloom of youth, and with their teeth hardly cut?

In that year (1912) we shall have no fewer than forty first-class battleships of the pre-Dreadnought era. Germany will have twenty. The displacement of the British ships will be 585,000 tons, as against a displacement of German ships of 24,000 tons.

As to armament, the forty British ships will have 650 guns of from 6-in. to 12-in., whilst Germany will have 384 guns of from 5.9-in. to 11-in. We have 152 12in. guns against their forty 11-in. guns. Of the forty first-class battleships no fewer than thirty-eight have 12-in. guns

Not Inferior in 1912

Therefore it is ridiculous to pretend that we shall be in a position of inferiority as compared with Germany or any other power in the world in 1912.

Coming to armoured cruisers, we, in Great Britain, have thirty-five, as against Germany's eight. The displacement of our thirty-five is 416,000 tons, as against their 78,500. In armament we possess 470 guns, as gainst their 112. So here again the difference is even more marked.

It is essential that these facts shuldo be known, and with the knowledge of this gigantic fleet, the result of years of expenditure, of skill, ingenuity, labour, British science and British naval architecture, it is absurd to pretend to suggest that we are in a position which ought to excite alarm and disquietude, and that we are not able fully to meet all the Imperial responsibility devolving upon us. (Ministerial cheers.)

I make this statement, upon the authority of the government, in view of the agitation which is now being manipulated. (Ministerial cheers and cries of opposition dissent.) I do not propose anticipating the discussion on the question of the Dreadnoughts, but when we come to that, I think I shall be able to give an equally good account of our respective positions. (Ministerial cheers.)

In the meantime I do make this appeal for a more cautious estimate of our naval position—not from any party point of view, but in the interests of the nation as a whole—and I say that, whatever party is in power, the first care of every British statesman who is worthy of his name is to maintain intact, unassailable, invulnerable that naval supremacy upon which our independence and freedom depend. (Cheers.)

BABY FELL ON THE STOVE

Mrs. T. S. Dougall, of 523 Flora Avenue, Winnipeg, says: "My baby girl was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes-rack beside the stove, when she fell, and her hand, being thrown out to try and save herself, came in contact with the side of the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn, and her cries and screams were terrible.

"I sent out to the druggist for the best remedy he had to use on a burn. He said there was nothing to equal Zam-Buk, and sent back a supply. I applied this, and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed through her tears. I bound up the hand in Zam Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured. The little one was soon able to go on with her play, and we had no trouble with her during the time the burn was being healed. I feel very grateful for this cure, and would recommend all mothers to keep Zam-Buk handy for emergencies like this."

This is good advice. Zam-Buk, being purely herbal in its composition, is particularly suited to the delicate skin of children. While a powerful healer, it is also highly antiseptic. Applied to a burn, a cut, a scald, in fact—it will kill all disease germs, and removes all danger of festering, blood-poisoning, or inflammation. At the same time, it stimulates the cells to great activity, and fresh healthy skin is soon produced to repair the damage. Fifty cents spent on a box of Zam-Buk has saved scores of people as many dollars, to say nothing of saving hours of pain.

SIMPSON TO RUN IN CANADIAN MARATHON DERBY ON MAY 1

The long-expected Canadian professional Marathon Derby is a reality.

The $3,000 Canadian Marathon Derby!

That is the title.

The date is May 1, and the scene of the racing and chasing will likely be Rosedale Athletic Field. Frank H. Elmore, of the Mail and Empire, Toronto, is the secretary of the club that is promoting the race, and the contest is open to residents of Canada only.

The two first entries in are:

Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt, who trimmed Fred Appleby, the 15-mile champion; and Red Hawk (Henry Jackson) of Midland.

John D. Marsh's entry was promised a week ago by his manager, James Bell, but he has not signed up yet, and among those who are expected are:

Hans Holmer of Halifax.
W. R. Cumming, of Toronto.
Jimmie George, the Georgina Island Indian.
Abbie Wood of Montreal.
Hilton Green, of Six Nations Reserve.

Tom Longboat is not barred. As a matter of fact, if he does enter there will be a barrel of money bet that Simpson will wallop him. Simpson, on Saturday's form, will make the best of them step lively to lead him to the wire.

There are a number of Indian runners training around the various reserves, and several entries are expected from them. "We have not decided whether we will limit the entry list or not," said Mr. Elmore today. "A three-thousand-dollar purse will attract a big field, and there is a proposal from the club to limit the field to 12 runners. Let the runners send in their entries, and we will decide before the week is out how many we will start. I think this race will bring out a bunch of good new men."

A professional race with a $3,000 prize, too, is likely to pull some good amateurs from the ranks of the Simon pures.

CUBS OPEN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE SEASON TO-DAY WITH NEW MATERIAL

When the world's champions open the National League season at Chicago to-day with St. Louis the entire baseball universe will wait to hear how they stack up. As a side issue Pittsburg starts the year at Cincinnati, Brooklyn at New York, and Philadelphia at Boston. But these battles will be subordinate to the game at Chicago.

The cubs will be minus the services of Johnny Kling, Johnny Evers, Artie Hofman and Henry Schulte. However, old and tried men are in their places, and George Browne, who used to make errors and base hits, sensational catches and nifty bunts out at Diamond Park for the Toronto club, is to lead off for the Cubs. The line-up:

Chicago—Browne, cf.; Sheckard, lf.; Stanley, rf.; Chance, 1b.; Steinfeldt, 3b.; Zimmerman, 2b.; Tinker, ss.; Moran c.; Overall, p.

St. Louis—Byrne, 3b.; Shaw, cf.; Bresnahan, c.; Konetchy, 1b.; Evans, r.f.; Delehanty, lf.; Charles, 2b.; Osteen, ss.; Rhodes, p.

FOUR TEAMS ALREADY ENTERED IN SENIOR CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Four teams are now entered in the Senior City Baseball League, the Strathconas, Cordage Works, Y. M. C. A. and T. A. S. A meeting was held last night when the constitution was drawn up and will be presented for adoption next Wednesday.

The West Ends are not going into senior ranks and the Lakeviews are doubtful. However, if only four teams stay in the game that number should be sufficient to guarantee enough games and a fair quality. The Straths were represented by W. Metherall, the Y. M. C. A. by Mr. Collings, the Cordage by Mr. Schneider, and the T. A. S. by W. Landry. The four teams have the pick of the city's material and it is generally conceded that the going will be fast. The Cordage works mean business and intend to be in the running.

It is up to the managers to get after their men early in order to be ready for the distribution of the certificates when the men will be signed up.

Economy in the use of the certificates is another point the managers are reminded of. A certificate for a man who is not fast enough, or who will not turn out or who is leaving the city is a certificate wasted.

INTERMEDIATE CITY LEAGUE'S ANNUAL MEETING IS CALLED

The annual meeting of the Intermediate City League has been called by President Lang for next Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. building. There is every prospect of a large membership of clubs from the statements among the junior players. All the teams intending to play should have their representative on hand in order that the work may be carried on at once. The season is growing and the baseball spirit is getting stronger every day. It is expected that there will be a larger number of teams in the League than last year. The Wellingtons, Lakeviews, T.A.S. and Strathconas of last year state that they will put teams in this league and the Y.M.C.A. and Karnots are also spoken of. The Collegiate Institute and other organizations are talking along the same lines. If there is not a boom in baseball this summer among the juniors, some one's guess goes wrong.

THE CHANGES IN SCORING RULES

One Point In Which the Rules Might Well Have Been Amended.

The new scoring rules for baseball are very fine, so far as they go, but in one instance the men who made the changes did not go far enough. The rule that does not permit the scoring of a stolen base when a double steal is attempted, and one of the runners is retired, is a mighty welcome change. And the new rule that gives a batter the credit of a sacrifice hit on a fly ball that ought to have been caught is also approved by the ball [illegible]. But it is the rule that gives a pitcher or a catcher an error if a batter reaches third base after a third strike that does not look right. The rule makes it compulsory to give a pitcher an error if the third strike goes wild, or the catcher gets an error if he permits the third strike to get away. Now, there is nothing said about a run that is scored from third base on a wild pitch or a passed ball. Or if a runner advances from first to second or second to third on a passed ball or wild pitch. Why has this rule been drawn so fine? Is it an oversight, and, if not why discriminate between the two plays? Surely it is a most glaring error if the catcher has a passed ball that permits a man to race home from third with a run that may prove the winner, or if the pitcher makes a wild chuck and a runner comes across the plate. Indeed, such a "battery error" is more dangerous than if a batter gets to first after having three strikes called on him.

LETTER FROM A FORTY-NINER

Here's a simple, interesting and sincere letter from a rugged pioneer of '49, who braved the dangers and hardships of the overland trail to California. It should appeal to all catarrh victims.

Santa Rosa, Cal., May 5, 1908
Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs—I was afflicted with catarrh and tried a number of remedies but received no relief. I purchased an outfit of Hyomei, and before I had used the bottle I noticed a marked relief. I used it for a month or so and thought I was cured and stopped using it for a year or so. Thought I was getting catarrh again, and started using it again. I use it every morning and keep myself clear of catarrh. I consider it the best catarrh medicine that is used. I have often recommended it to my friends. I am 81 years old. I came to California in 1849 and of course am not as vigorous as I was 58 years ago. My address is 841 4th Street. Yours truly, W. Mock."

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is guaranteed by Wm. Madill not only for catarrh, but for grip, coughs, colds, bronchitis and croup. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs only $1.00 extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, cost but 50c.

CRICKET

A special meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club will be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday evening, 19th inst., at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing a Captain and Executive Committee. All those interested in the game are cordially invited to attend.

Cancer Is Curable.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—Cancer may be effectually cured, according to an address by Dr. James G. Mumford Monday at the Harvard Medical School.

"Cancer is incurable," he said, "only if you make it so by delay. It is readily curable if undertaken by a properly qualified surgeon. Patients come too late to the surgeon, partly because they are ignorant. The early symptoms of cancer are trifling. A slight, persistent sore on the tongue or lips; a painless lump in the breast; an occasional slight hemorrhage; a slight persistent dyspepsia, which does not yield to treatment, such are the symptoms of early cancer."

Six Suitors Fight.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 14.—In a riot at Manifold, a mining town above this city, early yesterday, six foreigners were seriously injured, two of them fatally. Daggers and revolvers were the weapons used.

The six injured men were suitors for the hand of Lizzie Moezeka, the belle of the settlement. The father, to help the lovers, proposed drawing lots to decide the question. A foreigner named Chenzo won, and the five other suitors vowed vengeance. Early yesterday a free-for-all fight started and all the lovers were seriously injured. The police have arrested eight persons.

Jury Acquits Editor.

Sydney, N.S., April 14.—In the Supreme Court yesterday, before Judge Longley, the jury brought in a verdict for the defendant in the case of Dr. Kendall, M.P.P., against The Sydney Daily Post, for alleged criminal libel.

The action arose out of an article which appeared in The Post previous to the Dominion election, which contained the following: "Dr. Kendall was induced to forego the nomination for the south riding of Cape Breton for a "consideration."

Suffragettes Begin Campaign.

Chicago, April 14.—Two hundred suffragettes of Chicago and other Illinois cities began their invasion of the Legislature yesterday when they left here on a Chicago and Alton special for Springfield. Speeches will be made from the rear platform at several towns by members of the delegation, which includes Mrs. Helen M. Henrotten, well known as a club woman; Mrs. Jane A. Adams, the settlement worker, and Katherine Waugh McCulloch, Chicago's only woman justice of the peace. The Legislature agreed to give the women a hearing.

Robbed of $15,000.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 14.—A man who gave his name to the police last night as J. H. F. Blue of Montreal, reported that his hand bag containing negotiable securities worth $15,000 had been lost or stolen somewhere between Niagara Falls and the Lafayette Hotel here. The loss was discovered at the hotel when the porter brought in a satchel that looked like his.

A School In Airology.

Berlin, April 14.—The Aerial Navy League announces that it is making arrangements to found an "Air Man's School" at Friedrichshafen which, it is probable, will be opened in October.

The course of study will cover three years and the pupils will be trained in the handling of dirigible airships.

Ten Great Walls In China.

New York, April 14.—Back from an extended trip of exploration in China and Thibet, during which he made interesting discoveries along the Chinese great wall, Dr. William Edgar Geil, of Doylstown, Pa., arrived yesterday on the steamer Minnehaha from London.

Doctor Geil traced the great wall a distance of 1,800 miles from the coast to the northern border of Thibet, discovering about 200 miles of the wall that had not yet been mapped. He found evidences, he said, of the existence of at least ten great walls apart from the famous one.

Dr Geil confirmed reports of the existence of a wild race of Chinese pigmies in the mountains north of the wall, where they have dwelt for twenty centuries.

Joseph It Is.

London, April 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Joseph Martin, K.C., of British Columbia, is the Liberal candidate for Stratford-on-Avon.

Mr. Martin, addressing the Stratford Liberals, declared himself an out-and-out free trader, favored votes for women, denounced colonial preference as a policy of greed and selfishness, and said he would abolish the House of Lords.

Martin's candidature is attracting considerable interest. He is warmly welcomed by the Liberal press.

Thornbury Votes a Bonus.

Thornbury, April 14.—The Town of Thornbury yesterday passed without a dissenting vote a bylaw to loan by way of bonus $10,000 to the Thornbury Transportation and Reduction Co. to establish a works at that place. In addition they also give as a free grant a site for twenty years, with harbor and water privileges. This company, besides employing a line of steel vessels, intend operating an iron smelter. The company is composed largely of Meaford and Toronto capitalists.

Petroleum—Refined steady, 7½d.

New York Dairy Market.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Butter—Firm, unchanged; receipts, 13,182.

Cheese—Firm, unchanged; receipts, 2128.

Eggs—Barely steady; receipts, 31,461, state, Pennsylvania and nearby, fancy, selected, white, 23c; do., fair to choice, 21½c to 22½c; brown and mixed, fancy, 22½c; do., fair to choice, 21c to 22c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Firm at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, April 13.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 13¾c to 14½c per lb. for Canadian steers, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 13.—The railways reported 55 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 811 cattle, 898 hogs, 132 sheep and lambs and 374 calves.

Exporters.

Steers for export purposes did not reach as high as at Monday's market; in fact, there were not more than two loads on the market all told—one straight load at $5.75, and then a few odd lots sold at $5.25 to $5.65. But there were a few cattle of export weights that were bought for butcher purposes, as there were so few choice cattle on the market. Export bulls sold at $4.25 to $4.80.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butchers sold at from $5.30 to $5.50, but not enough to make a load brought these figures; loads of good, $5 to $5.35; medium, $4.60 to $5; common, $4.20 to $4.50; cows, $3.85 to $4.50; canners, $2 to $2.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports receipts of feeders and stockers as being very light; in fact, everything with any flesh on it in the shape of a feeder is being taken for butcher purposes on account of light receipts. Mr. Murby bought 80 stockers and feeders at the following quotations: Steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $4 to $4.75; steers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $4; stockers, 500 to 700 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were light, but plenty to supply the demand. Trade slow at prices ranging from $30 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of calves were larger than for some time, with prices easier, at $3 to $6.50 per cwt. There are too many young calves, that is, calves not more than a week old, and some less, that are being marketed, and dealers as well as butchers complain of not being able to get enough of decent quality to supply their customers.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, but plenty, considering the general quality and the prices they are selling at. Export ewes, $4.50 to $5, with a few light sheep for butchers' purposes at $5.25, rams, $3.50 to $4.25; yearling lambs of choice quality, $7 to $7.50 per cwt.; common, $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, $4 to $6.50 each.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris reports another rise in hog prices of 15c per cwt. Hogs f.o.b. cars at country points, $7.25 per cwt.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 13.—Cattle—Active and steady; prime steers, $6.40 to $6.75.

Veals—Receipts, 75 head; slow and 25c lower, $7 to $8.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 2800 head; slow; pigs 10c higher; others steady; heavy, $7.75 to $7.80; pigs, $7 to $7.10, dairies, $7.25 to $7.65.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 3200 head; sheep and heavy lambs slow; handy lambs active; lambs, $6 to $8.35.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Beeves—Receipts, 1030, all for slaughterers, nothing doing in live cattle, feeling steady. Exports to-morrow, 4150 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 82; steady feeling; poor to medium veals, $4 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 3176; sheep nominal; lambs slow but steady; fairly good Buffalo lambs (unshorn), $8.15.

Hogs—Receipts, 3425, all for slaughterers, nominally steady.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Cattle—Receipts, estimated at 1500; market a shade higher; beeves, $4.85 to $7.20, Texas steers, $4.60 to $5.80; western steers, $4.40 to $5.90, stockers and feeders, $3.55 to $5.60; cows and heifers, $2.10 to $6; calves, $5.50 to $7.75.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at 10,000; market 5c higher; light, $7.10 to $7.45; mixed, $7.50 to $7.55; heavy, $7.25 to $7.60; rough, $7.20 to $7.35; good to choice, heavy, $7.35 to $7.60; pigs, $6 to $6.85; bulk of sales, $7.40 to $7.50.

Round-Up In Gowganda.

Toronto, April 14.—Sixteen convictions, $800 in fines, and three now in jail because they did not have sufficient cash to pay up, is the result of the license inspector's first visit to Gowganda, according to information gleaned at the Parliament Buildings yesterday.

With the recent amendments relating to seizures of liquor in unorganized districts, blind pigs will have no chance to live in Gowganda under Provincial Secretary Hanna.

Aeronaut May Be Lost.

London, April 14.—Serious fears are felt here for the safety of a French aeronaut named Bellamy who went up in a balloon from the Crystal Palace Monday. His balloon was last seen 24 hours ago passing over the Isle of Sheppey at the mouth of the Thames. The airship was then flying low, but Bellamy threw out some of his ballast and disappeared in the clouds over the North Sea.

OLD LANDMARK OF WARSAW GONE FORMER METHODIST CHURCH HAS AT LAST BEEN TORN DOWN

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, April 14.—The evening of Easter Monday, which for some years has been chosen by the Methodist people of this place as a time to hold a gathering in connection with the church was this year the date of a delightful tea and entertainment.

Supper was served in the basement of the church from 5 until 8 p.m., and although the seating capacity was large, there were few places vacant during the interim.

For quality and quantity it would be difficult to imagine a more elaborate spread than that under which the tables groaned.

Following the supper a programme consisting of vocal music, readings and addresses was given in the church. Miss Jordan, of the College of Music, Toronto, soprano, sang several numbers and made a most favourable impression, possessing a very sweet and well controlled voice, and using it to good advantage.

Though not a stranger to a Warsaw audience, Miss Kline, of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, has not been heard here for some time and the very warm welcome given her on this occasion is evidence of her popularity as a vocalist. Miss Kline has a voice that is remarkably sympathetic and expressive, sweet and yet powerful, showing artistic cultivation. Her manner, entirely natural and free from all evidence of effort immediately gives her the confidence and sympathy of her listeners.

Miss Marvin, daughter of Rev. Dr. Marvin, the pastor, who was home from Albert College, Belleville, for the holidays, gave two readings which were greatly enjoyed. Miss Marvin shows considerable talent as an elocutionist and was deservedly applauded.

Excellent addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Currie, of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Mr. McLeod, Baptist minister.

The following was the programme rendered:

Prayer—Rev. Mr. McLeod.
Vocal Solo—"O Canada"—Miss Jordan.
Vocal Solo—Selection from the Country Girl—Miss Kline.
Reading—Miss Marvin.
Solo—Miss Jordan.
Address—Rev. Mr. Currie.
Solo—"Daisies"—Miss Kline.
Solo—"Hold Thou My Hand"—Miss Jordan.
Reading—"Mince Pie"—Miss Marvin.
Solo—"Sing Me to Sleep"—Miss Kline.
Address—Rev. Mr. McLeod.
Solo—"To-morrow Will Do"—Miss Jordan.
Short address by the chairman, Rev. Dr. Marvin.
Prayer.

In the tearing down of the Canadian Order of Forester's Hall, probably better known as the Old Methodist Church, this place is losing one its oldest and most prominent landmarks. Situated as it was on a hill to the west of the village it could be seen for miles, and strangers coming into the village along almost any of the roads radiating therefrom were first made aware of their approach by the sight of the high steeple. The steeple was a very useful ornament inasmuch as from its summit the direction from which the wind came was announced by a weather vane in the form of a fish. This indicator will be greatly missed by the residents of the village. The building was erected about forty years ago by the adherents of the Methodist Church and was used by them as a place of worship until the year 1898, when they erected a new edifice on Water street. The old church was purchased by the Canadian Order of Foresters and was used by different societies as a place of meeting and concert hall. The building, now being in rather a shaky condition, owing to the foundation sinking, it was decided to accept the offer received from Mr. Wm. Aitken for the property rather than attempt repairs.

Mr. Aitken is using the material in enlarging his house and will supply the brick for a new house being erected by Mr. Albert Helps.

Mr. Peter Bell was the victim of a distressing accident at the Selkirk Mills on Thursday last. While watching the operation of sawing off a board he was struck in the face by a slab in the hands of one of the workmen, and a severe gash was inflicted.

Teachers Protest Against The Action Of The Inspectors

Collegiate Institute Principals Register a Protest Against High Handed Methods of Those Men Who are Appointed as Inspectors

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE

At the meeting of the Ontario Educational Association, Mr. Robert W. Doan, general secretary, said the indications were that from nine hundred to one thousand delegates were in attendance at the meetings of the association in Toronto.

"Tyranny" and "autocracy" were the words used by the High School masters yesterday in stating their opinion of the methods of the High School inspectors and the system under which they worked. To put their protest into immediate effect, they appointed a committee to draw up a "remonstrance" signed by all the principals in attendance, and to be presented at once to the Minister of Education.

Principal W. A. Ellis, of Kingston, introduced the question. He called attention to the fact that several changes had been made suddenly in the rules, regulations and curriculum of the High Schools, without notice to or consultation with the High School principals or their representatives on the Advisory Council.

This complaint of Principal Ellis was a mere wavelet to the storm which developed top of it.

One of the "Not Approved"

Mr. A. W. Burt, principal of Brantford Collegiate, was the next speaker, and he spoke strongly. His school was one of those "not approved" by the inspectors. He said one of these inspectors had come round one session and interpreted the regulations to be such and such. Then another year they were read to be exactly the opposite.

He strongly condemned the policy adopted by the Superintendent of Education, Dr. Seath, and the High School inspectors, Messrs. Spotton and Weatherell."

"Of course we have to conform to the directions of the autocracy that governs the High Schools of the Province of Ontario," he remarked.

"The tyranny of examinations," went on Mr. Burt, "is nothing as compared with the tyranny of inspectors."

A Voice from Kingston

The Brantford man was seconding a motion made by Dr. Ellis, principal of Kingston High School, which was to the effect that a committee be appointed to "insist" that the principals have a chance to discuss proposed changes in the High School courses.

"I don't know anything better that we can do," said Principal C. A. Mayberry, of Stratford, "than that all the principals who are here to-day go in a body to the Minister of Education and make a vigorous protest against this tyranny of inspectors."

Principal Ellis gave an imitation of a certain inspector examining a class. He didn't mention the inspector's name, he said his colleagues could guess. Apparently they guessed correctly, and laughed heartily at the stalwart principal's attempt at burlesque.

Did a Little Burlesque

One recital of a passage from the botany curriculum particularly amused them. It called for birds and flowers in November.

"We get our flowers and birds here in the spring," Mr. Ellis told the inspector.

"It doesn't matter," said the inspector. "It's in the book here for November, and that's when you've got to teach it."

Other recitals of Mr. Ellis' were equally amusing.

Principal C. L. Creswellor, Sarnia, said he thought it was not so much the fault of the inspectors individually as the system under which they worked.

Mr. Burt recalled that it was said of the Superintendent of Education that he once boasted that at any moment he knew what was being taught in any country.

"That's about where we are drifting to in Ontario to-day," said Mr. Burt.

Principal John Henderson, M.A., of St. Catharines, said he thought no inspector should have the right to condemn an organization that another inspector had approved of.

"So far as I am concerned," said Mr. Henderson resignedly, "I let them go on condemning and approving just as they please."

What They Want Goes

Principal A. P. Gundy, Clinton—"The inspectors have the ear of the Minister of Education, and any little regulation or amendment they want to make gets in."

Send a Remonstrance

Principal Embree, of Toronto, said that if the grievances brought before the section were just, there should certainly be a remonstrance sent to the Minister. He moved and Mr. Henderson was of like mind, that a remonstrance be prepared and signed by all the principals to-day.

This was carried by a standing vote. Messrs. Burt, Mayberry and Ellis were appointed a committee to draft the remonstrance.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. Track and Field Club will meet to-morrow evening at the close of the Bible study banquet to make arrangements for the season's campaign and to arrange, if possible, for a meet here on May 24. In the event of a track being laid at Riverside Park, as proposed, it is quite likely that the "Y" Club will hold a big field day there on the holiday and outside athletes may be invited to take part if the affair is decided upon. It was stated to the Examiner to-day that no difficulty would be experienced in securing a number of prominent athletes if a meet is held. In view of the military demonstration on Victoria Day a meet in the afternoon should prove a popular success.

TO REPEAT HIS PLAY IN LINDSAY

Mr. Irving Beers Will Stage "All The Comforts of Home" There Again.

Irving Beers, who directed the local production of "All the Comforts of Home" here this season, is in town for the purpose of reproducing the piece, providing the local amateurs are once more willing to go on the boards. On the next presentation of this clever play a chorus of forty or fifty voices will be introduced, which will add greatly to the success of the production, and the play itself will go much better next time. In addition to this four-act comedy a beautiful one act play entitled, "The Littlest Girl," will be put on as a curtain raiser. This will no doubt prove to be one of the events of the present theatrical season.—Lindsay Post.

Be sure and hear the lecture by Rev. A. L. Geggie of Toronto on "The Rose, Shamrock and Thistle," on Tuesday evening April 20th., in St. Paul's S. S. Hall, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Mr. Hazeldeen, tenor soloist, will sing illustrated songs. Tickets 25c. 6d-84

REV. FR. COLLINS IS ILL AT BRACEBRIDGE

Was Formerly a Member of the Cathedral Staff Here and is Well Known.

The Lindsay Post says: Rev. Father T. Collins, the highly respected parish priest of Bracebridge and son of Mr. T. Collins, of Lindsay, is dying in that town, and all hope for his recovery has been abandoned. His father and brothers, Charles, of this town, and Rev. Father J. Collins, of Sandwich, left this morning for Bracebridge.

The news of Rev. Father Collins' serious illness will be received with genuine regret by his many friends in Lindsay and district. The reverend gentleman was born in Ops township and pursued his studies at St. Michael's College, Toronto, and the Grand Seminary, Montreal. After his ordination to the priesthood he was stationed at St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, and afterwards appointed to the parish of Bracebridge. He is held in high esteem by all classes in his parish.

Mr. Wm. Brooks, of the Trent Valley Canal staff, is busily engaged getting the light houses along the Scugog river in readiness for navigation.

Mr. Sam Clegg, Trent Canal overseer, who was in town to-day, stated that as soon as the ice left the upper waters the steamers Bessie Butler and Bob Hall would commence operations. The latter vessel, with several scows is at present at Gamebridge.

The water in the river has risen considerably the last few days.—Lindsay Post.

PRESENT AND YET FORGOTTEN.

In his poem of Peterborough, Nineteen hundred and Nine,"
Although I know it's no business of mine,
John Bell forgot some things to mention,
To which I will kindly draw your attention.

First, to St. John's, with its high, old tower,
It's beautiful ivy and many a flower,
The liftlock, which fore'er must be
The water way to the raging sea.

You must start at Nassau with your little "skiff-boat,"
Down through the Little Lake let it float,
Below the locks, two miles or three,
You'll find a terrible raging sea.

Here, on the coast, when the weather's fine,
When the wind is low, and the sun does shine,
Most every morn the farmer's son
Goes out to hunt with his "rifle gun."

But come back now to the Electric City,
Where all the streets and shops are pretty,
The street cars running half the night
All illuminated by electric light.

Then south, down George street, let us go,
And see the "creek-pond" proudly flow,
By lumber piles and sawdust heap—
The water there is three feet deep!

Then there's all the stores with their things so cheap,
And the old goose pond, and the rubbish heap,
And many a hotel, too, you know,
Where the evil spirits meet and flow.

Dave Hartley lives here, whose boots you know
Are in the museum now for show,
The ones he walked in and got beat
'Cause they were tight and hurt his feet.

And many more things he forgot to tell.
This is very forgetful, Mr Bell;
I've no more time in which to write,
But if I had, 'twere my delight

But Mr Bell in your dogged persistence
If you should ever need assistance,
If I your affections have kindly stirred,
Just hunt me up or send me word.

SUNNY SUE.

"TRUE IRISH HEARTS" REPEATED

In everything except in the point of attendance the presentation of "True Irish Hearts," by the dramatic section of St. Peter's T. A. S., at the Grand Opera House was a most pleasing success. Unfortunately the elements were against the promoters and the rain kept away many who had intended to be present.

Artistically the event was in every way commendable and the young people taking part are once more to be congratulated upon the excellence of their work. The play went with a dash and swing, there were no embarrassing hitches or delays, and from curtain to curtain the interest was well sustained, the climaxes being carefully worked up to.

Every member of the cast scored a triumph and the audience small in numbers was not correspondingly in applause. The vocal numbers by Miss Hallihan and Mr. Geo. Lynch and the step dance by Mr. S. Houlihan, were extra numbers that were thoroughly pleasing and effective. It is unfortunate that a larger audience was not present as the company showed themselves worthy of a crowded house.

POST LENTEN DANCE A SUCCESS.

A most successful post-Lenten society event was the dance held in the Conservatory of Music Hall under the auspices of the gentlemen of Peterborough last night. Nothing that tended to make up an agreeable and enjoyable evening had been neglected by those in charge and the result was an occasion of unmitigated enjoyment. The attendance was large and congenial, pleasure was the key note of the gathering and the affair will be remembered as one of the most pleasing events in the calendar for 1909. Fralick's orchestra from Toronto furnished the music and it is sufficient to say of these talented musicians that they never were in better form in an appearance here. Their music added much to the enjoyment of the evening and they were generous with their encores. Supper was supplied by Mr. T. H. Hooper, who catered for the occasion with his usual pleasing success. To the honorary secretary, Mr. W. S. Davidson, and to the others who had the arrangements in charge, the thanks of those present are due for a delightful evening.

The patronesses were: Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. John Crane, Mrs. Jas. Hamilton, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. T. D. Mulholland, and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, while the stewards were: Messrs. Chas. Barber, John Crane, P. Campbell, C. R. Cameron, Graham Ferguson, Hon. J.R. Stratton, M.P., Messrs. Dickson Hall, R. R. Hall, Jas. Hamilton, T. D. Mulholland and Dr. A. W. MacPherson.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.—

New York, April 14.—There was little feature to the Stock Market to-day. During the early dealings the market showed a disposition to recover, but turned back later and sold down to last night's closing. The volume of business was the smallest for some time. The Gould stocks showed notable strength in the first hour, but failed to hold the gain. This reaction will undoubtedly benefit the technical position of the market and should pave the way for better prices a little later.

Stock News.

London settlement began to-day and quotations are now for the new account.

London expects further reduction in the bank rate before the end of the month.

Reactionary party in Turkey revolts successfully and constitutional party is no longer in control.

Assembly at Albany reports favourably on Public Service Commission's new law.

Town Topics: We do not favour the long side of Coppers, Smelters and Steel stocks generally. Tenn. Copper, however, is good for a long pull.

Bailing: Advise purchase of U.P. near 187; Denver 52; St. Paul 149; Steel 50; Rock Island, Mo. Pac., and Penna. Copper will sell at 95 this summer. Look for higher prices this week.

Toronto.— Cobalts featureless and rather heavy.

London.—After the heaviness on the Turkish developments, the securities market now show improvement. Consols have rallied. The contango rate is 3 per cent. A feature of the market was a drive at Grand Trunks, causing a decline of 1 to 1 1-2. Foreign issues lack stability. Mining stocks hardening. One small failure is announced of a jobber short of U.S. Steel stocks.

Grain News.

Chicago, April 14.—The big fight between the bears and Patten was still being waged in the wheat pit to-day. Patten stuck by his guns and took all the wheat offered, while the bears still sold on all bulges. The result was a see-saw market within a cent fluctuation, neither side gaining ground. The local crowd was looking on waiting to see which way the cat would jump and then trail along. No feature to corn or oats, but both were firmer.

Liverpool close: Wheat 1-8d. to 3-8d. lower; corn 1-4d. higher to 1-2d. lower.

Two daughters and one son are left to mourn her loss. The daughters are Mrs. Thomas Black, and Mrs. Jas. Gregg, of Bridgenorth, and the son is Mr. James Bowie, of Souris, Man.

Splendid Remedy For Stomach Trouble.

Will Regulate Digestion and Strengthen the Stomach So You Can Eat Any Food.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread indigestion or dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals; they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though indiggestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of Pape's Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after taking there would be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, or heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no belching of gas or eructations of sour food, debilitating headache, nausea, water brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat without the aid of the stomach.

Diapepsin is a wonderful stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no gas—then indigestion and all stomach trouble will go.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient to usually throughly cure the most chronic dyspeptic.

PRESENT AND YET FORGOTTEN.

In his poem of Peterborough. Nineteen hundred and Nine,"
Although I know it's no business of mine,
John Bell forgot some things to mention,
To which I will kindly draw your attention.

First, to St. John's, with its high, old tower,
It's beautiful ivy and many a flower,
The liftlock, which fore'er must be
The water way to the raging sea.

You must start at Nassau with your little "skiff-boat,"
Down through the Little Lake let it float,
Below the locks, two miles or three,
You'll find a terrible raging sea.

Here, on the coast, when the weather's fine,
When the wind is low, and the sun does shine,
Most every morn the farmer's son
Goes out to hunt with his "rifle gun."

But come back now to the Electric City,
Where all the streets and shops are pretty,
The street cars running half the night
All illuminated by electric light.

Then south, down George street, let us go,
And see the "creek-pond" proudly flow,
By lumber piles and sawdust heap—
The water there is three feet deep!

Then there's all the stores with their things so cheap,
And the old goose pond, and the rubbish heap,
And many a hotel, too, you know,
Where the evil spirits meet and flow.

Dave Hartley lives here, whose boots you know
Are in the museum now for show,
The ones he walked in and got beat
'Cause they were tight and hurt his feet.

And many more things he forgot to tell,
This is very forgetful, Mr Bell;
I've no more time in which to write,
But if I had, 'twere my delight

But Mr Bell in your dogged persistence
If you should ever need assistance,
If I your affections have kindly stirred,
Just hunt me up or send me word.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.

New York, April 14.—There was little feature to the Stock Market to-day. During the early dealings the market showed a disposition to recover, but turned back later and sold down to last night's closing. The volume of business was the smallest for some time. The Gould stocks showed notable strength in the first hour, but failed to hold the gain. This reaction will undoubtedly benefit the technical position of the market and should pave the way for better prices a little later.

Stock News.

London settlement began to-day and quotations are now for the new account.

London expects further reduction in the bank rate before the end of the month.

Reactionary party in Turkey revolts successfully and constitutional party is no longer in control.

Assembly at Albany reports favourably on Public Service Commission's new law.

Town Topics: We do not favour the long side of Coppers, Smelters and Steel stocks generally. Tenn. Copper, however, is good for a long pull.

Baring: Advise purchase of U.P. near 187; Denver 52; St. Paul 149; Steel 50; Rock Island, Mo. Pac., and Penna. Copper will sell at 95 this summer. Look for higher prices this week.

Toronto.—Cobalts featureless and rather heavy.

London.—After the heaviness on the Turkish developments, the securities market now show improvement. Consols have rallied. The contango rate is 3 per cent. A feature of the market was a drive at Grand Trunks, causing a decline of 1 to 1 1-2. Foreign issues lack stability. Mining stocks hardening. One small failure is announced of a jobber short of U.S. Steel stocks.

Grain News.

Chicago, April 14.—The big fight between the bears and Patten was still being waged in the wheat pit to-day. Patten stuck by his guns and took all the wheat offered, while the bears still sold on all bulges. The result was a see-saw market within a cent fluctuation, neither side gaining ground. The local crowd was looking on waiting to see which way the cat would jump and then trail along. No feature to corn or oats, but both were firmer.

Liverpool close: Wheat 1-8d. to 3-8d. lower; corn 1-4d. higher to 1-2d. lower.

Splendid Remedy For Stomach Trouble.

Will Regulate Digestion and Strengthen the Stomach So You Can Eat Any Food.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread indigestion or dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals; they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of Pape's Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after taking there would be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, or heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no belching of gas or eructations of sour food, debilitating headache, nausea, water brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat without the aid of the stomach.

Diapepsin is a wonderful stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no gas—then indigestion and all stomach trouble will go.

Each 50-cent case contains sufficient to usually throughly cure the most chronic dyspeptic.

Notices of Births, Marriages and Deaths, 25 cents each insertion in either the Daily or Weekly Examiner.

PRENEVEAU ITEMS

Examiner Special.

Preneveau, April 14.— Preneveaultes were nearly snowed in during the recent storm, but the snow is nearly all gone again.

Mr. George Dunk spent Sunday the guest of his brother, Mr. Albert Dunk, of Preneveau.

The prizes, presented by the teacher of S. S. No. 2, Belmont, were awarded to Miss Mabel Armstrong for excellent conduct, Master Jesse Smith for being the most diligent pupil, and Master F. Ketchen for regular attendance.

The Blairton Station will be moved to the crossing known as Kelly's crossing. This change will make it much more convenient for the travelling public.

Mrs. Warren and her daughter Mrs. Anderson, left for Toronto on Friday. Mrs. Warren is spending a few days in the city, but Mrs. Anderson returns to her home in Cobalt.

We are sorry to say that Mr. William McMullen has had the misfortune to break the saw of his machine again.

Miss A. J. Petrie is spending some time with her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Warren, of Preneveau.

Mr. Jason Roe lost a horse the other day, valued at $150.00.

A great number of families are quarantined with small pox in the neighbourhood of Stanwood and Menie. The majority of the cases seem to be light ones. We think great care should be taken so that the disease does not come in the Preneveau direction.

There is some talk about the Blairton Mines going again. We all hope that such will be the case, for a prettier spot for a town could scarcely be found.

A number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. Charles Chase on Friday evening last, and all report a most enjoyable time.

Miss Irene B. Smyth, teacher of S. S. No. 2, Belmont, spent Friday and Saturday with Marmora friends.

CHEMONG BRIDGE WAS LET GO

The special report received last night from Bridgenorth to the effect that the bridge had been taken by the action of the wind and ice was somewhat premature, as it has been learned to-day that the couplings of the one of the sections was let go to prevent the bridge being damaged. A severe wind blew the waves and ice against the bridge with growing force, straining the bridge almost in its entire length. To let the ice go through and relieve the pressure one of the sections was opened and swung out into the lake. Not long afterwards the wind veered and none of the other sections were required to be opened.

Among the first official acts of Rt. Rev. Bishop Sweeny of the Diocese of Toronto, is the appointment of Rev. Rural Dean Langfeldt to the vacancy on the Anglican Mission Board Executive, caused by his elevation to the bishopric.

ARMENIANS ARE BEING MASSACRED AT MORSINA APPEAL TO THE CONSULS

Examiner Special (2:45 p.m.)

Constantinople, April 15.—A massacre of Armenians is in progress to-day at Mersina, a seaport of Asia Minor, on the Mediterranean. Enraged at the murder of two Moslems by an Armenian, and the fact that the assasin was not apprehended, the Mohammedan population of Mersina, which counts a total of 100,000 inhabitants took the law into its own hands and attacked the Armenian quarters. The Christian communities of Mesina are appealing to the consuls here for help. Two Armenian missions are represented at Mersina.

FIVE MEMBERS OF FAMILY GO VIOLENTLY INSANE AND ARE TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Examiner Special (2:45 p.m.)

Shelburne, Ont., April 15. — James Johnston, a wealthy farmer of Mulmur township, has had his wife, daughter and three sons taken into custody, charged with threatening injury to himself and property. All five are violently insane. Constables who came from Orangeville yesterday afternoon had much difficulty in making the arrests; three men were needed to hold Mrs. Tod Jane Johnston, the wife and mother, who is 80 years of age. The children are: Mary Jane, David, Albert Edward and James. The women were in a nude condition in the farm house and the officers had to find clothes for them. Taken to Orangeville this morning, their cries interrupted the assizes going on in the Courtroom above.

OLD HOUSE ON McDONNEL ST. NOW BEING TORN DOWN WAS ONCE A METHODIST CHURCH

Workmen Tearing Down Building at 168 McDonnel Street—To be Replaced by Handsome New Residence—Property Purchased by Mr. J. C. Shook.

OVER SEVENTY YEARS OLD.

An old landmark of Peterborough that is significant of the history of the rapid advancement made by the Methodist Church in this city is being torn down this week. The place referred to is the house at 168 McDonnel street, until a short time ago occupied by the late Mrs. J. Frise. It is being taken down and will be replaced by a handsome new residence which Mr. J. C. Shook, who has purchased the property, intends to erect on it during the coming summer.

Workmen are at present engaged in tearing it down and the passing away of this house calls to the minds of the older residents some interesting facts about it.

Originally a Church

Mr. D. W. Dumble in speaking to an Examiner reporter this morning stated that it was built about seventy years ago, at that time it being used for the Methodist Church and for many years after. As the congregation increased in numbers, a new church had to be built and the first one was turned into a parsonage. It stood on the site on which, Mrs. (Dr.) Sullivan's house now is, and the church was then, the double house at 523 and 525 George street, when the present George St. Church was built, the acre of land across the street on which was the old church was disposed of for residences.

The house which is being torn down was strongly built, the timbers in it being fourteen and fifteen inches in thickness.

Jewellery Traveller Well Known Here Tries To Commit Suicide In Toronto

Toronto, April 14.—Going down into the ravine near the Glen road bridge yesterday afternoon, C. W. Leach, a middle-aged traveller for Charles Horner, a manufacturing jeweller of Halifax, England, pulled a revolver from his pocket, and, placing the barrel in his mouth, pulled the trigger. The bullet went through his tongue and the back ot his mouth, lodging near the spinal column. Unless a serious swelling sets in around the wound Leach will probably recover.

Leach after shooting himself did not lose consciousness, and attempted to get up the side of the ravine again. He was helped up by a young man who discovered his condition, and P. C. Meag, who came along, took him to a house nearby, where Dr. A. A. Beatty, of Bloor street, dressed the wound. Later he was taken in the police ambulance to the general hospital.

The reason for the man's attempt upon his life is not known. He came to the city yesterday and registered at a downtown hotel, where he left considerable baggage in his room.

YOUNG MAN WHO MURDERED HIS WIFE SHOT HIMSELF SO AS TO EVADE BEING CAPTURED

Bingham, Me., April 13.—Following the murder of his young wife here last night Herbert Nottage was the object of a man hunt in which nearly two score of citizens and sheriffs, armed with revolvers, rifles, axes, pitchforks and other weapons, participated. The chase after the murderer was over a thick covering of snow.

Constable Sands, with a small posse finally came upon Nottage this morning. He was lying exhausted in a clump of woods about twelve miles from here. When aroused the man's first words were: "How is my wife?" and then, without waiting for a reply, he drew his revolver and shot himself in the mouth. He died within an hour

Nottage's wife, Mrs. Lucinda Nottage, but one year out of her teens, was shot four times at the Bingham House, where she had been working during the last fortnight, following a separation from her husband. The latter had stayed at their former home in Lexington when his wife left him, but came here to-day apparently to reach an agreement over the disposition of their only child, a baby not yet a year old.

Reaching the Bingham House the husband asked to see his wife, and was shown into the hotel parlour by the proprietor. The wife came down. Several minutes after that the hotel proprietor and the guests of the house were alarmed by the sound [illegible] shots. A passerby had seen [illegible] couple grappling in the parlour [illegible] rushed into the hotel, but at the same moment Mrs. Nottage staggered into the hotel office crying: "Save me! Save me! I have been shot!" The woman died soon after.

Meanwhile Nottage was making the most of the disturbance to effect his escape. He ran out through the hotel entrance, throwing from his revolver his empty shells as he ran. Within half an hour a band had been organized to conduct the search after the murderer. It was believed that Nottage had fled in the direction of Lexington, his home, and a large number of the searchers concentrated their efforts along the few roads in that direction, but without result. Progress of pursuers and pursued was hard as the ground is covered with between two and five inches of snow.

MR. PUGSLEY AND HIS ENEMIES

The persistent and really vicious pursuit of Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, by his political opponents is a practical tribute to his ability as an administrator and as a political force to be weakened, if no other way, by slander and political combination if not conspiracy. Ever since he entered the Liberal cabinet he has been subjected to systematic attack, his great offence having apparently been traced to his exposure of the political methods of his Conservative opponents in New Brunswick as expressed by the size of the Conservative campaign fund in 1904. Attacks upon his record as a minister have been made but they have been met by Mr. Pugsley with equamanty that did argue guilt even if specific desproof had been wanting. Failing to successfully impeach his administrative record his foes hark back to his pre-official days in the Federal Government. In the struggle that resulted in the success of the Conservatives in New Brunswick under Mr. Hazen, strenuous efforts were made to dethrone Mr. Pugsley in the popular favour, even crooked affidavits, false as to dates, were employed in the vain endeavour to connect him with questionable transactions. In the matter of the Mayes-McAvity dredging contract, the Conservative Opposition has never had the courage of their insinuations, to the extent of demanding investigation. In revenge for his efforts to defeat the Hazen combination in New Brunswick the attack on Mr. Pugsley was evidently renewed by the Conservative Government of that province. A partizan commission has made a report of an inquiry into the management of the New Brunswick Coal and Railway Company, to the effect that Mr. Pugsley, before his entry into Federal politics and Lieutenant-Governor Tweedie were responsible for a shortage of $134,000 in the accounts. This purely partizan commission consistently with their character, failed as Mr. Pugsley points out, to include important items in their accounting, which if included, would practically wipe out the alleged discrepancy, and therefore break the back of the partizan commission's finding, based on withheld evidence. There seems to be no doubt that the accusations made are emanations of pure partizanship, which will be made plain if the Conservative Government of New Brunswick has the courage to carry out the suggestion of its commission; that legal proceedings be taken to recover the $134,000 from Messrs. Pugsley and Tweedie. The matter is therefore practically sub-judice, and as our courts are at least free from partizanship, Mr Pugsley may expect a complete vindication; but till the matter is dealt with judicially, all fair-minded men will suspend judgment. But the party press are not fair-minded. They demand Jedburgh justice upon Mr. Pugsley, hold him as guilty upon the already discredited report of a partizan commission, and demand his resignation. But Mr. Pugsley will not resign, his portfolio. He has no cause for resigning. That course would be tantamount to acknowledging that partizan charges were true which as a matter of fact are not true. The whole matter has been threshed out in New Brunswick, and even if the charges made had not ben disproved they have no relation to Mr. Pugsley's conduct as a minister or member of the Federal Parliament. His enemies in the Federal Parliament have not ventured to father the scandal, and if they should do so Mr. Pugsley is ready to demonstrate the unjustifiable character of the accusation.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKS.

The City of Hamilton has the school Savings Bank system in successful operation in its schools. Speaking in reference to it the Hamilton Times says:

> The public school pupils have on deposit in the school savings bank $9,372.85. It is not a very large sum, when the number of the pupils is taken into consideration, but the lesson of thrift which is being taught practically may be much more important than the size of the deposit.

The Times utters a pregnant truth, when it tells of the formation of habits of thrift in juvenile character as the most important result fo the savings bank system in schools. The Peterborough Board of Education have had this matter urged upon their attention repeatedly, and at one time were like Felix of Pauline days, "almost persuaded to the Christians" in this matter. It is to be remembered that life is a practical business, and it should be the aim of educationalists to equip children by forming habits, and giving qualifications ,that will aid them in solving the practical problems that will confront them in adult life. Our schools may teach children how to count money, but they fail if they fail to impress upon children the value of money and the proper use of it. Knowledge which is a necessary equipment for the best discharge of the duties of citizenship, should take a practical turn. It will not be denied that, upon close analysis of causes and conditions ,it will be found that a greater part of the destitution, poverty, and human suffering that exists in the world, is due to waste of money, waste of means, to habits of unthrift. In this very city there are scores who come upon the charity list in winter who waste the earnings of the summer in frivulous amusements and thoughtless expenditures. These persons may not be altogether to blame; their early education, their early environments have not taught them the lesson of thrift or the weight of the proverb, about looking after the pennies and the pounds will look out for themselves. Children in our schools will be taught this lesson in a practical way through the penny savings banks in connection with the schools. Why not begin a system that will give us a generation of prudent, thrifty citizens?

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN GRANT

(Pulp and Paper Magazine.)

The usual differences of political opinion exist as to the wisdom of the Ontario Government's recently announced grant of 4,000 acres per mile for the proposed new Canadian Northern Railroad from Sellwood to Port Arthur. The Opposition's main objection is that the line would be built in any case, grant or no grant, as it is a necessity wherewith to connect the eastern and western sections of the Canadian Northern systems, and that, therefore, the grant is a waste of the people's assets. Against this it may be justly urged that, while no doubt the resources of that region would have been developed sooner or later, yet time is an important factor, and that something can with propriety be sacrificed for the sake of reaping that development sooner rather than later.

The clay belt, through part of which the road would run, is estimated to contain something like 16,000,000 acres of land, and many claim this land is as good as the Manitoba prairies for the production of crops. The Government retains certain powers as to the selection and treatment of the settlers who take up land along the railroad. Another feature which gives special interest to the deal between the Ontario Government and the Canadian Northern is the abundance of pulp-wood along the proposed line. A report made by the surveyors who traversed that country in 1900 is that in sevral districts there is an abundance of spruce and pulp timber, poplar mixed with spruce, tamarac, cedar and re pine. The Hon. Mr. McKay, leader of the Opposition, in commenting on the vastness of the Government's gift to the railroad interests, estibated that on much of the land to be granted there were 20, 30, 40 or sometimes even 60 cords per acre of pulp -wood, or including the value of the land, something like $52,000 per mile of railway.

We do not quite understand the Government's policy in this matter, seeing that Sir James Whitney has affirmed on more than one occasion that his Government would under no circumstances make land grants to railway companies. Looking at it, however, purely from the standpoint of the pulp interests there can be no doubt of the importance of the development that is likely to ensue at an early period.

LANDLORDISM GOING IN IRELAND

With piquancy and lightness of touch which it is to be hoped may be the augury of continued prosperity in Ireland, Chief Secretary Birrell introduced in the British House of Commons the other day, the new Irish Land Bill, which in all essential features was the same as had to be withdrawn last November, owing to there being insufficient time for its adequate discussion before the prorogation of the House at the close of the autumn session. The principal purposes of the bill are financial, and the financial aspect of the problem is more fascinating in this case than figures generally present. Ireland is described as at the present time in the midst of a gigantic agrarian revolution, which, unlike the majority of revolutions, has done nothing but good to the country.

The Chief Secretary, in that happy vein which is now quite generally known as Birrelling, declared that what has been called landlordism has been in the market for many years—"going, going, gone!" One of the features of the novel situation is that although there are no purchasers for this land at all, no market for it save the tenants and sons of tenants, the landlords of Ireland have by the judicious use of the Imperial credit been able to obtain a number of years' purchase for their land in excess of what their brethren in England have been able to obtain when they put theirs in the market. It appears that altogether twenty-eight millions sterling have been advanced for land purchase in Ireland, and that there are now pending agreements under the Land Purchase Act involving the advance of fifty-six millions sterling. The total area of the land sold and agreed to be sold exceeds seven and a quarter millions of acres of agricultural land still unsold. Mr. Wyndham, the author of the Purchase Act, thought one hundred million pounds would be sufficient to carry the measure through, but eighty-four millions had already been accounted for and there is every reason to suppose that the amount actually required will be no less a sum than one hundred and eighty-three million pounds, or $915,000,000. It is to provide for this rather colossal item that the bill has been introduced, but as the measure involves compulsory powers of expropriation to be vested in the Estates Commissioners and Congested Districts Board, there are signs that it will be fought at every step of its way through the House, and it seems that those who are to oppose it will be the very party that introduced the principle of purchase a half a dozen years ago.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Though the United States tariff revision, has not been completed, it is evident that the latest tariff adjustment lacks the element that designated former tariff arrangements that is a spirit of hostility to Canada. It is marked even by some instances of relaxation in favour of Canada. As in private life, a reasonable degree of self-respect is profitable so Canada in international attitude has shown that she can be independent of hostile United States tariffs; can even shine under them. We have thus shown a self reliance and self-respect that has disarmed the commercial hostility of our neighbours so far as it might be reflected in their tariff legislation.

ATTENDED SCHOOL WITH DR. GRENFELL

Mr. C. E. Pratt of Lakefield Met Former Comrade Last Night.

Among those who attended Dr. Grenfell's lecture last night was Mr. C. E. Pratt, of Lakefield, one of his old school chums at the private school conducted by Dr. Grenfell's father at Mostyn Hall, Cheshire, England. They were boys together receiving their primary education. At the conclusion of the address Mr. Pratt met his chum of boyhood days and was delighted by the interesting conversation they had. Dr. Grenfell while at Oxford played on the Rugby fifteen, thereby "winning his blue." He still retains the vigour that carried him along on the campus in his college heyday, which is now proving invaluable in withstanding the trials of the northern climate and all its rigours.

KAWARTHA LAKE SUMMER SCHOOL

The third session of the Kawartha Lakes Summer School, under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Conference Epworth League, will be held at Chemong Park from July 5th to 12th this year, and invitations and programmes are already being sent. There were 137 delegates present last year and this number is likely to be exceeded this year.

THE LABRADOR DEEP SEA MISSION FUND

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, whose guest Dr. Grenfell was during his visit to Peterborough, informs the Examiner that the net receipts from the lecture last night were about $60. That is the receipts for admission. But the lecture promises to bear fruit later. Dr. Grenfell stated that his institute for sailors and seamen at St. John's, Newfoundland, will cost $100,000.00. He has funds of $65,000 on hand, but in addition to the proceeds of his lectures, he solicits further contributions. If his address appeals as strongly to all who heard it as it did to one gentleman, who this morning placed $10 in Mr. Charles hand, the fund will be largely increased in Peterborough.

PAINTERS LOOKING TO BUSY SEASON

Among the tradesmen of the city whose work is relative to building operations, the painters are pleased with the prospects which they can see not so very far ahead, and which to a certain extent have arrived some time ago. Spring time, of course, is paint time, as many husbands realize these days when instead of their after supper reading with a quiet smoke, they are handed a paint pot and brush with the instructions to freshen the verandah up a bit, or to daub the kitchen floor. These are amateur painters. The professionals are receiving many promises of activities, and the noise of the scrapers taking out new cellars substantiates the statements that work is going to be plentiful.

A DAY'S DISORDER IN CONSTANTINOPLE

Quiet Is Again Restored After a Dangerous Crisis.

WERE LOYAL TO SULTAN

Both Soldiers and Populace of Constantinople Showed Confidence In Their Sovereign During Trouble—Tewfik Pasha Is Installed as Grand Vizier of the New Cabinet — Trouble Is Passed.

Constantinople, April 15.—After the stirring events of Tuesday and the early part of yesterday in the Turkish capital, the successful formation of the Cabinet and the issuance of an imperial proclamation, ordering the observance of the Sheri laws and the preservation of the constitution, served to bring about a comparatively peaceful situation here to-day.

The members of the new Cabinet, of which Tewfik Pasha is the grand vizier, have been installed in office.

Grand Vizier, Tewfik Pasha; Minister of War, Edham Pasha; Minister of Marine, Vice-Admiral Adjiemin Pasha; Minister of the Interior, Adil Bey; Minister of Justice, Hasan Fehmi Pasha, Minister of Finance, Nury Bey; the other posts are filled by previous incumbents.

During the whole thrilling momentous episode the salient features of the revolution were the loyalty of the troops and the people to the Sultan, whose name was frequently acclaimed, and the absence of attacks on the lives and property of citizens.

When it was learned that their demands had been granted the mutineers, headed by a band, marched to Yildiz Kiosk for the purpose of acclaiming the Sultan. They requested His Majesty to repair to Stamboul and wear the "Green Turban" in order to testify his respect for religion. On their way to Yildiz Kiosh the troops were cheered by the people, with cries of "Long live the Mohammedan religion."

The new Cabinet held a meeting last night to deliberate on the situation. The Grand Vizier and the Sheik Ul Islam arrived at the porte in state at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and were cheered by the immense crowd that had gathered there.

On the approach of the cortage an intimation was sent to the troops and the discharges of musketry ceased like magic. The precincts of the porte were crowded in every part, and the hall where the Ministry was installed was packed to overflowing. An imperial irade, appointing Tewfik Pasha Grand Vizier and confirming Zie Eddin Effendi as Sheik Ul Islam also ordains the strict observance of the Sheri laws and the preservation of the constitution "for the maintenance of the security and progress of the Government and country and the welfare of all my people."

Two Girls Commit Suicide.

Liverpool, April 15.—During the voyage of the Cunard liner Lusitania, which sailed from New York April 7, two young women who had occupied a second-class cabin together committed suicide by shooting. They were Margaret Clarke, 29 years of age, who killed herself the second day out of Brooklyn, and her companion, Annie Miller, 22 years of age, who four days later took her own life.

Neither left any address with the Cunard Line officials, who say that they were apparently not acquainted before sailing, as they booked passage separately and were assigned to the same stateroom merely by accident.

Important Changes.

Montreal, April 15.—The following Grand Trunk changes are announced:

G. T. Bell, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk, to be assistant passenger traffic manager of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific.

G. W. Vaux, assistant general passenger agent at Chicago, to be general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk.

H. G. Elliott of Montreal to succeed Mr. Vaux at Chicago.

W. P. Hinton, assistant general passenger agent at Montreal, to be general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific, with offices at Winnipeg.

Evelyn Thaw's New Plaything.

New York, April 15.—After a long hunt, process servers located Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw at a house on West 33rd street Tuesday evening, and served papers in the suit of a milliner, who got judgment against Mrs. Thaw last September for $253. Mrs. Thaw was found playing with a snake, which was coiled around her left arm.

Might Have Been Killed.

Galt, April 15.—James Mathews had a miraculous escape from death when a C.P.R. engine running light crashed into the baggage wagon he was driving, killing the horses and demolishing the wagon. Mathews was thrown some distance clear of the track, but sustained only injuries to his head and face.

Scratch Proves Fatal.

Windsor, April 15.—As a result of falling from his bicycle two weeks ago Morris Quatstrat, aged 11 years, died yesterday morning from lockjaw. The boy had scratched his left wrist, but symptoms of lockjaw did not set in until Monday.

No Australian Bisley Team.

Vancouver, April 15.—Australia will not send a team to Bisley this year, but Sergt. McC[illegible] of New South Wales will compete as a representative of the Commonwealth and is here en route to England.

Stoessel to Be Pardoned.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—Rear-Admiral Gregoriff and Lieut. Smirnoff, subordinate officers under Vice-Admiral Nebogatoff in the Russo-Japanese war, have been pardoned. It is reported that Gen. Stoessel and Vice-Admiral Nebogatoff also will be pardoned shortly.

WIFE AFTER HIM.

English Woman on Trail of Hubby Who Has Married Again.

Portland, Maine, April 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Webb, 57 years old, who arrived Tuesday on the steamship Dominion, told the immigration officers that she was on her way to Toronto in search of a husband who, she says, has married another woman.

She was married twenty years ago and lived with her husband at Pontepool, England. About a year ago, Mrs. Webb says that her husband came to America and the understanding was that she should follow him as soon as he established himself in business. She received many letters from him and some money. A few weeks ago Mrs. Webb got a letter from her daughter, who lives in Toronto, stating that her father had run away with another woman and married her.

Vowing vengeance Mrs. Webb left for Toronto yesterday, telling the officers that she would follow her husband to the end of the world to bring him to justice.

15,000 Mariners on Strike.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 15.—Insurance on shipping went into effect at midnight last night and marks the official opening of navigation on the great lakes. The labor troubles are still a long way from a settlement. Four package freight lines are ready to start with union crews as soon as ice conditions permit, and one line claims to have enough non-union men ready to man its fleet.

The Lake Seamen's Union, the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders' Association and the Marine Cooks and Stewards' Union have refused to work on boats with non-union engineers. These men, numbering about 15,000, are idle to-day.

Will Test Lemieux Act.

Winnipeg, April 15.—Efforts will be made to have the trouble existing between the Street Railway Co. and its employes settled by arbitration, and the men will apply to the Department of Labor at Ottawa for a board of conciliation and arbitration.

Magnus Sinclair, general officer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, is here from Toronto to bring about a settlement.

As organized labor, as a whole, is putting the act to test this year, Mr. Sinclair thinks this will be a chance for local union men to see the working of the act.

Skull Fractured by Hammer.

Edmonton, April 15.—With his skull fractured in several places as a result of blows alleged to have been delivered with a carpenter's hammer in the hands of Gus Sucht of Stoney Plain, a man named Ed. W. Englis, who lives about eight miles from the same place, is now at the point of death at the general hospital. MONTREAL, April 14.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings were 300 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 233 hogs and 1500 calves. There was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firmly maintained, owing to the limited supply and the improved demand from butchers. A fairly active trade was done, as buyers in some cases were short of stock. Choice steers sold at 5¾c; good at 5¼c to 5½c; fair at 4½c to 5c; medium at 4c to 4½c; good cows at 5c, medium at 3½c, and bulls at 3c, 3½c and 4½c per pound.

Sales of yearling lambs were made at 6½c to 7c and old sheep at 5c to 5½c per pound, while spring lambs brought from $4 to $8 each, as to size. The offerings of calves were large, which met with an active sale, but prices ruled low at from $2 to $5 each, as to quality.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs this morning, owing to the small run, and prices scored a further advance of 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $8 to $8.25, and straight lots at $7.80 to $7.95 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market there were 200 cattle, 40 sheep and lambs, 575 hogs and 1160 calves. The trade in calves was active, of which supplies were ample to fill all requirements, and sales were made at from $2 to $5 each, as to quality. The market for hogs was strong under a good demand and small supplies, and sales of selected lots were made at $8 to $8.25, and straight lots at $7.80 to $7.95 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

ERNEST KINRADE WILL URGE THAT SOME ACTION BE TAKEN AGAINST THE NEWSPAPERS

Parents are Now in Hamilton Consulting Their Counsel—Son is Very Bitter Against Some of the Officials.

GREAT INTEREST IN CASE.

Hamilton, April 14.—"I know what the people think, and it is all the result of one man's opinion," declared Ernest Kinrade, brother of the murdered Ethel Kinrade, this morning. "If I was father I wouldn't stand for it from the newspapers or anyone else, and I intend getting him and Florence to put in a couple of thousand each and I will do my share and we will get after some of them. I think he would be dead easy if he lets the papers and the people get away with that stuff," said he.

He declared that some of the officials who were conducting the investigation were bought, and by their actions were trying to shield others. It is a well established fact that professional crooks and desperadoes throughout the country knew that they could come into Hamilton, pull off a job and get out unmolested. "A couple of thousand dollars will turn the trick," was the way he expressed it.

While his father was living with him, Ernest Kinrade opened and read most of his letters for him, and he said that a large percentage of them were from people who would "turn a trick for a thousand," and who told him what was in the wind, that all was not straight and as it ought to be in regard to the officials whose duty it was to see that justice was done.

"Who says my father is in Preston? Do you mean to say he would go there without telling me. Ever since he has been in Toronto he has been in constant communication with me, and only last Thursday he wrote me and said he expected to be here about the 22nd. There is too much talk about us altogether," he concluded.

T. L. and Mrs. Kinrade arrived in the city at noon to-day from Toronto, and went direct to the home of their son, Ernest. They said they had not been in Preston, and had no intention of going there. They have been staying at the Aberly apartments on Sherbourne street, Toronto, and intend returning there to-night. The object of their visit was to consult with George S. Lynch Staunton and they will do that this afternoon. Florence and Gertrude Kinrade are in Toronto.

An important change has been made in the handling of the tickets for the coming inquest in the murder. Chief Smith has been relieved of that duty, and the power has been vested in Coroner Anderson. Asked the reason for this, Chief Smith said it was so that there would not be any overlapping. There was too big a crowd at the last inquest. Coroner Anderson issued about 70 and the chief issued a large number not knowing that the coroner was issuing any. The result was they clashed and there was altogether too large an attendance.

"Will there be any curtailment of the number of tickets issued?" Coroner Anderson was asked.

"Not the slightest; there will be the same number as the last time," was the reply.

J. M. Robinson, of the assessment department, who lived near the Kinrades in the east end some years ago, says he was called upon a few days ago by a man who claimed to be the representative of thirty American newspapers, requesting an interview on the murder case. Mr. Robinson refused to talk for publication however.

Electricians Wait Upon Fire, Water and Light Committee

In Reference to the Petition Presented to Council at the Last Meeting—Want to Have Contractors for Electric Wiring

WORK WOULD BE BETTER

Messrs. F. R. J. McPherson, Miller and R. McGregor waited upon the Fire, Water and Light Committee last evening in connection with the petition they presented at the last meeting of the City Council.

No action was taken in the matter but the committee promised to go thoroughly into it. The petition which has previously been published, asked that a by-law be passed providing that all persons doing such wiring and fitting for the purpose of providing the city with such light or power should be compelled to secure from the city a license to do such work for which they shall pay a fee of $25, and that each contractor shall be compelled to attach to job or contract a label bearing his license number and name, and such contract shall be open to the inspection of the Board of Fire Underwriters and that any person doing such work or accepting contracts for the same, otherwise than provided by the By-law, or without a license, as stated, shall be liable to a fine, or in default thereof imprisonment.

The electricians present at last night's meeting were heard. They pointed out that their object was to get the electrical wiring down to a basis where the work would be done properly and to guard against wiring of an inferior nature being done. By the licensing which was suggested, the electrician was made responsible to the underwriters. Thus the city would be relieved of any responsibility in the matter.

At present, it was explained, that some persons after having an electrician install a circuit of twelve lights would later add more to it, the work usually being done by an incompetent workman and then it would not pass the underwriters.

Alderman Buller, said that personally he favoured the appointment of a wiring inspector.

Alderman Hicks thought that it was a matter requiring great consideration. He did not think that the commission had sufficient information on the subject. He suggested that each contractor have similar forms on which to fill in contracts, in order that customers might receive the same work from any electrician.

Alderman Turner said that under the proposed by-law a man might have a license, do some wiring which would not pass the underwriters, and then leave the city. The citizen would be obliged to have his place rewired.

This concluded the discussion and the deputation was promised that the matter would be thoroughly investigated.

Addressed a Meeting in the Baptist Church on His Trip to the Holy Land.

Mr. T. F. Matthews lectured last Lindsay on Tuesday night and the Post has the following to say:

In spite of the inclement weather, there was a good attendance last night at the lecture on Egypt by Mr. T. F. Matthews, of Peterborough, at the Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Welch, occupied the chair and after a selection by the Baptist church quartette the chair man introduced the speaker.

Mr. Matthews was well qualified to handle the subject, he having, with other Peterborough citizens, visited the land of the pyramids as well as Palestine and the Holy Land. His lecture, therefore, was a rare treat, as the innumerable places of interest in the countries referred to were described with a thoroughness and the many scenes so vividly portrayed that the audience was entertained and were sorry when the word pictures ended.

At the conclusion of Mr. Matthews' admirable address a hearty vote of thanks was extended by Messrs. Kitchener and E. Sharpe.

BLACKLISTED MAN WAS REMANDED

Was Intoxicated in Court To-day—Only Put on "Indian List" About Three Weeks Ago.

A well known resident of this city appeared in Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk after having been placed on the black list. He was arrested only a short time before the Court opened, and had not recovered from the intoxication when he came before the magistrate. He had only been placed on the "Indian List" about three weeks ago. His Worship remanded him for eight days.

FARM LABOUR QUESTION YET

No Solution Offered by Those Out of Work in the City.

Mr. George Howson reports that the situation in regard to supplying farm labour is showing no signs of improvement. A few more of the city men out of work have made a bluff at trying to get farm work, but practically none of them have made an earnest effort. Any that may come from the Old Country will not arrive until almost too late, and the number is practically only a drop in the bucket.

NO ACCIDENTS IN NATURE.

Every Calamity, No Matter How Great Has a Definite Beginning.

There are no accidents in nature.

The avalanche that without a moment's warning rushes headlong down the mountain side is not an accident.

Neither is baldness an accident. The infinitesimally small germ which is the cause of Dandruff and Baldness, feeds silently and long before the result is seen.

CARUSO'S VOICE

Enrico Caruso, the Metropolitan Opera House tenor, sailed on the steamer Mauretania yesterday for Liverpool. The tenor was indignant at the reports that his voice was seriously impaired and he was going abroad to submit to an operation on his throat.

"The idea of my never being able to sing again is ridiculous," he said; "It may be just at this time that my voice is not up to the mark it may have set a few months ago, but the lapse is only temporary. I have been working my voice pretty hard. I am now in need of a rest and intend to get it. I do not expect to sing again until next September, when I will tour England, and in October make a brief tour of Germany. I expect to rehearse as usual at the beginning of the New York opera season." Mr. Caruso said he has not intention of giving up cigarettes.

Danial Ryan and his stock company opened the new opera house at Sudbury on Monday night to a crowd that occupied every seat. The company playing "A Vagabond King," wer given a most flattering reception. This company played in Peterborough during the present season. They are finishing the week in the new house.

WEDDING BELLS

HOOPER-BOYCE.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at All Saints' church at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. Wm. Hooper, of Orillia, youngest son of Mr. Thomas Hooper, Downer's Corners, was united in marriage to Miss Maud Frances Boyce, daughter of Mr. Harry Boyce, Orillia. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Trumpour, rector of All Saints', in the presence of a few intimate friends. The bride was attired in a navy blue travelling suit, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The bridal pair were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Hooper left on the afternoon train for Orillia, where they will reside.

New Striped Linen Wash Goods
THE VOGUE FOR 1909

LINEN, this season has a strong tendency to become the most popular fabric for two and three piece Suits—also for Empire and Princess dresses, but in most cases the less elaborately trimmed style is more suitable where the striped Linen is used as the material.

¶ In our beautifully comprehensive showing of Wash Fabrics this season will be found four lines of striped Linen Goods that are attracting much attention and expressions of admiration. The most popular, yet moderately priced is the plain weave in white ground with half inch stripes in colours showing equal colour and white ground, shades include: pink, wood brown and pale blue. Price 25 cents.

¶ Another, at the same price, is the coloured ground linen with clustered hair line stripes of white. This is very new and is much in vogue in the American cities. The shade includes: Hamburg blue, pink and green in plain woven fabric.

HAD COLD BATH IN THE SCUGOG

Lindsay Man Was Tipped Out of a Canoe Into the River.

Lindsay, April 14th.—To be upset into the icy waters of the Scugog on an afternoon like that of Tuesday would not be a very pleasant experience, but that is what befell Mr. George Meehan, while out for a little turn in his canoe. Mr. Meehan was enjoying a little ride in his new boat, and was just about to put it in, when a gust of wind caught the end of the boat and over she went.

Mr. Meehan, who is a strong swimmer, righted his canoe and pushed to shore. After a little difficulty he landed, cold and numb from his dip.

In the excitement the owner lost two cushions and a paddle, which he misses. He is, however, very glad that he escaped as well as he did.

Will Look Into The Matter Of Insuring The Firemen

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was held last evening, there being present Alderman Buller in the chair, Mayor Rush, Aldermen Turner, Hicks and Morgan.

A communication was read from Chief Howard, stating that on Monday last the brigade was called to East City to put out a fire in the sidewalk on Concession street. Damage to the extent of $25 was done. Received.

New horses are required for the fire department and Alderman Turner moved, seconded by Alderman Hicks, that Mr. Robt. Hull be authorized to buy horses, subject to the approval of the committee.

A petition from the residents of Gilmour street asking that the two arc lamps be removed and that 10 or 12 incandescent lights be placed on the street. The matter was left over until the committee make an investigation.

The question of whether the city should pay the doctor's bill for attendance upon Mr. W. Taylor, who was injured by a chemical explosion last summer and who was then assistant fire chief, was again brought up and discussed.

Alderman Turner thought a doctor might be employed by the city for such cases similarly to the way fraternal societies have them.

Alderman Turner moved, seconded by Alderman Hicks, that Mr. Armstrong be authorized to get information regarding insuring the firemen and to find out what policy is adopted in other cities to protect firemen.

Alderman Hicks suggested that the chairman and fire chief go carefully over the estimates for the supplies for the year for the station and keep within the amount appropriated.

On motion the order for the arc light at Jackson Park, for which the Township of Smith is to pay one-third was cancelled and the light will not be put up this year.

Alderman Hicks suggested that the committee ask the council to allow the committee to retain the $500 saved by the reduction in the cost of hydrants. A motion to this effect was passed.

The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. C. R. Drum, the secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. will open a series of meetings here to-morrow night when a union mass meeting will be held in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall, at eight o'clock. On Saturday at 7 p.m. there will be a mass meeting for boys to which all boys over twelve years of age are invited.

On Sunday at four o'clock there will be a mammoth meeting for men in the Grand Opera House, when Mr. Drum will speak on the subject of "An Honest Man." There will be special music.

To-night an informal banquet will be held at the Y. M. C. A. when there will be a short Bible study.

The Anti-Cigarette League To Hold Meeting To-morrow Night

There will be a meeting for the boys of Peterborough to-morrow night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall under the auspices of the Anti-Cigarette League. Rev. H. J. Middleton, Public School Inspector Mowat, and Mr J. A. McKone.

A strong effort is being made to stop the rapid growth in the number of cigarette smokers, especially among boys in Peterborough and the meeting to-morrow night will be the first step in the movement. There will be special music and everyone is cordially welcome.

Close Season For Fishing Has Begun To-day—Lasts Two Months

The close season in fishing begins to-day and the fisherman in his illicit work tries to elude the inspectors who will for the next two months devote special attention to the stretches of river devoted to them to be closely patrolled. The fish that are placed under the law in these parts are mostly bass and lunge. They come up into the creeks and shallow parts of the river and are an easy prey while spawning to the gaffs and nets which the law breakers spread out for them. It is reported that there are going to be a few changes in the patrolling of the Otonabee but the announcement has not been made public.

What One Man Has Done For His Fellowmen On Labrador's Bleak Coast

An Inspiring Lecture by Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell on What Has Been Accomplished and What Remains to be Done for the Fishermen Who Dwell Along the Unfriendly Atlantic Coast—A Man as Wonderful as His Work.

LABRADOR'S PATRON SAINT.

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell has been styled "The Patron Saint of Labrador" and not one of the large audience who listened to his address at the Grand Opera House last night but will admit the appropriateness of this title ascribed to him by the editor of "The Congregationalist" in a reference to his character and the sublime work which he took upon himself, and which, in the face of almost insurmountable difficulties, he has established so firmly that it will remain a lasting memorial to the manly and Christian qualities which are formed in what the world calls a man in every sense of the word. To those who saw him and heard him speak for the first time, yet had read of his great work, he was exactly what one's imagination had depicted. Quiet and unassuming, almost markedly so, he briefly described the efforts ,which, under his guidance, are being put forward for the uplifting of the fishermen along the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts. Words fail to convey an idea of the work which he has founded. Even those who have heard him speak, who have read of what he has done, those who are interested in his labours to help his fellow men, these have undoubtedly but a meagre conception of what he is contending with and is actually accomplishing. His earnestness to further the success he has already attained arouses a desire to help him and it is for this purpose that he is touring the country.

An Introduction.

Mr. J. H. Burnham was chairman for the evening, and Mr. D. Hughes Charles, who is deeply interested in Dr. Grenfell's work, was also on the stage with the lecturer of the evening. The address was accompanied by fine stereopticon views, taken by Dr. Grenfell himself. From his introductory remarks it may be said that his object in life is to help his fellow men; not only spiritually, but morally, intellectually and physically. To give a man faith in Christ is one of the best things in life, but as the editor of The Outlook says: "It seems to me there is only one way to reach the soul—that is through the body. For when the soul has cast off the body we cannot reach it at all."

A Young Doctor.

Having completed his medical course and being a man of some means, he cast around for some district in which he could use his talents to best advantage, or as he says, "where I could satisfy the aspirations of a young medical man, and combine with them a desire for adventure and definite Christian work."

In 1892 Dr. Grenfell sailed from England on the hospital vessel Albert. In three months, and with only miserable facilities at his disposal, he treated 900 patients. In the next decade, with much patient work and the generosity of a few friends, three small hospitals were built, at Battle Harbour, Indian Harbour and St. Anthony. In 1902 the Mission treated 2,774 persons, 110 of these being in-patients. In 1906 a new hospital was built at Harrington on the Coast of the Province of Quebec, thus directly bringing the work within our own borders and emphasizing our responsibility for it.

Other Work.

Besides these hospitals, Dr. Grenfell has established several co-operative stores. to combat the "truck system" of trade and the consequent loss of thrift and independence; a lumber mill to furnish work and much needed material; an orphanage where there are cared for those whose protectors have been taken from them by the insatiable sea, industries for women wage-earners, such as boot-making and weaving; and the care and raising of reindeer for milk, food and carriage.

And so the work goes on, slowly, hampered for lack of adequate accommodation, proper facilities, and sufficient support. It costs money to build hospitals, to give medical attendance, to provide nursing, drugs, surgical supplies, to maintain hospitals and vessels for the work, nay, even to teach the people how to live so that at the last they are not afraid to die. And for money this Mission may with confidence appeal to all. It knows no creed or sect, no shibboleth or "ism." Catholic or Protestant to it are alike. Need is the one essential, and to the needy is preached the gospel of help, the gospel of Him, who fed the hungry, healed the sick, was and is the Father of the fatherless.

The work staring Dr. Grenfell when he commenced in Labrador was limitless. He was the only doctor for a large part of the year to care for that large number of scattered and ignorant people. Further details of his address can not be given in a brief account in this form. He gave reasons for his expectations of the country becoming of importance from other sources than that of its fisheries.

His Present Aim.

Dr. Grenfell's present object, apart from his special work is to provide a suitable home for the fishermen at St.John's, Newfoundland. He is a strong champion of total abstinence from alcohol, and as a medical man he did not take it with him in any form into Labrador. On the contrary he was instrumental in abolishing saloons from the coast hamlets. The merchants of St. John have given him a lot on which to build a home, which will cost $100,000.00. Of the amount he has raised $65,000 in his tour, and hopes to realize the remainder before sailing on May 5th, otherwise he will relinquish this plan for the present year, not wishing to go into debt. Saloons, dives, and brothels await the homecoming fishermen at St. John's, no other accommodation being afforded and in these places they soon lose their money, besides morally ruining themselves. The home will be commodious, comfortable and provided with all the requirements for the fishermen.

A Grenfell Association has been formed in New York and incorporated to assist Dr. Grenfell and supplement his efforts by additional funds to advance the work.

In Peterborough the Treasurer is Mrs. D. Hughes Charles, who has been most energetic and zealous in assisting the work and in arousing interest locally. Anyone desiring to become a member of the Association may do so by communicating with her. The annual fee is $2.00.

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was passed to Dr. Grenfell, and Sheriff Hall referred to the worthiness of the work and that it deserved the most generous assistance. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem at the request of Dr. Grenfell.

Be sure and hear the lecture by Rev. A. L. Geggie of Toronto on "The Rose, Shamrock and Thistle," on Tuesday evening April 20th., in St. Paul's S. S. Hall, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Mr. Hazeldeen, tenor soloist, will sing illustrated songs. Tickets 25c. 6d-84

TRAMP FAMILY SOON EXPECTED

Railway Men Report That First Arrivals Have Not Been Announced Yet.

While other cities are reporting trouble from the tramp nuisance, Peterborough thus far has not been seriously invaded this Spring. The railway men at the stations and in the several yards have seen but few of the tramp family. This is about the time that they begin their "bumpers" tour of the country with tickets granting complete stopover privileges. Almost at any time now the first arrivals may be announced and homes near the points of entry will be called upon for charitable handouts.

Trustees Association Opposed To Compulsory Military Training

Toronto, April 15.—Interest at the Ontario Educational Association convention yesterday again centered in the stir at the trustees department over the question of military training in the schools. At the morning sitting a resolution by those opposed to compulsory training was proposed by J. I. Morrison, Arthur, seconded by J. S. Laughlin, Parkhill, and saying "That the Trustees Association approve a provision looking to the introduction of physical training in public schools, but is opposed to compulsory military training in the same, and believes that the matter should be left optional with the trustees of each school section."

President McKnight brought in the discussion at the afternoon meeting with the words, "We will now take up that all-important question raised in Mr. Truman's paper yesterday, which I hope will be discussed in a more calm and reasonable way than yesterday. It should be remembered that military training largely means physical training."

The mover of the resolution said it was an axiom "as our schools so our country." Then if the schools are turned into military camps so will be our country. There had much been heard of the necessity of agricultural education, but the tendency of agricultural training was towards the farm, while military training was away from the farm.

Trustee Henry, Collingwood, could not see why physical training would not suffice. The country from Fort William out to Vancouver was filled with settlers who had fled from Europe to escape the exactions of compulsory military service.

Trustee Little, Dufferin County, said: "Let any young man who wants to take military drill, join the volunteers." He had three sons who drilled in military camps, and he himself had served four years in the militia, but was opposed to military training being forced into the schools.

Mr. Little concluded: "We don't care for Lord Strathcona's millions, our boys have the shooting practice now. They can shoot the fox on the run, and the enemy on the run, too. We want our boys to go to school for practical education, but not for little red caps and guns. We can clothe them ourselves. We are determined in the County of Dufferin not to have it."

A. Weiner, secretary, said the department in sentiment was a unit. There is no division in regard to the willingness of every trustee to do his utmost for the defence of the Province of Ontario. The present public school act provided for optional military drill, and no action by the section was necessary.

Mr. Anderson, Welland, declared military drill all right if optional. It gave boys a clean, neat, manly step. England never had coerced her sons, and would never need to.

Rev. Dr. Eby said the promotion of military training was the thin end of the wedge of allowing the War Office to secure authority within the public schools.

Col. Farwell (Whitby) said there was no line, or suggestion of anything compulsory proposed. It was an optional system for teaching the boys of Canada how to do the right thing at the right time in the right way.

The debate was suddenly closed by the six months' hoist, moved by L. K. Murton, Oshawa, seconded by J. Wright, Sarnia, but immediately flared up again in a motion by C. Ramage, Durham, seconded by Rev. J. Bell, Laurel, that Mr. Truman's paper be printed in the report. After a short fervid debate the paper was ordered printed by a vote of 20 for to 2 against.

The public school section elected these officers: James D. Denny, Ottawa, president; Wm. Linton, Galt, vice-president; Chas. E. Fraser, Toronto, secretary; J. T. Curtis, Guelph, treasurer; J. W. Rogers and J. Burnett, auditors.

The continuation section elected these officers: R. H. Cowley, B.A., hon. president; A. C. Bernoth, Huntsville, president; J. A. Magee, Hanover, vice-president; T. E. Langford, Shelburne, secretary; W. W. Scott, W. B. Weidenhauser, N. W. Willson, Mrs. J. S. Burchill and Miss M. H. Tupling, councillors.

The mathematical section elected these officers: Hon. president, W. Taylor, B.A.; president, J. D. Dickson; vice-president, Jno. Elliott; secretary-treasurer, T. Kennedy, M.A.; councillors, J. T. Crawford, W. W. Nichol, J. S. Wren, E. T. Eaton and W. C. Spring.

The officers elected in the trustees' section are: Fred W. Wright, St. Thomas, president; Dr. White, Lindsay, vice-president; A. Werner, Elmira, secretary; J. B. Dow, Whitby, and J. S. Laughlin, Parkhill, representatives on the advisory council.

BEGIN AN ATTACK ON MR. PUGSLEY

Dr. Daniel Tries Hard to Read Mayes' Affidavit.

HOT DISCUSSION OCCURS

Comments of Conservative Members Are Objected to as Being Offensive and Unsupported by Any Charge —Speaker Leaves Chair at 6 o'Clock and Interrupts Debate —Will Be Resumed To-Day.

Ottawa, April 15.—That the Opposition are determined to leave no stone unturned to gain a party advantage at the expense of Hon. William Pugsley was demonstrated in the House yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Daniel precipitated a wrangle, which almost developed into a row, by resurrecting the Mayes affidavit that figured so prominently in the election campaign in New Brunswick. In presenting it, however, the Conservative member for St. John attempted to read the affidavit without accepting the responsibility for its charges, and at once the Opposition found themselves impaled upon a rule which Mr. Foster recently dug up, and which sets forth that no member can use offensive terms in regard to another unless he is prepared to make a specific charge.

It was all over the celebrated affidavit made by G. W. Mayes, dredging contractor of St. John, on the eve of the last election. The affidavit that Mayes was induced to withdraw his tender for dredging at 50 cents a cubic yard and substitute another tender at 55 cents, the difference of five cents a yard totaling $39,500, going to George McAvity, a Liberal politician. The affidavit was read by Premier Hazen of New Brunswick at a public meeting on Oct. 12.

Dr. Daniel yesterday attempted to move a resolution calling for an investigation of the McAvity-Mayes transaction, and calling on the Government to take steps to recover the $39,500 paid as rake-off to McAvity, but he was met at the very first with objections and the whole time at the disposal of the House was taken up with heated arguments over points of order.

Before the motion to go into supply, on which Dr. Daniel rose to move for the enquiry, the more recent matter of Mr. Pugsley's connection with the New Brunswick Railway & Coal Co. was referred to.

"I would like to ask the First Minister a question," said Mr. Foster, "in addition to the one I put to him yesterday, and that is, as to whether he has yet received any copies of the report of the New Brunswick commission, and if, when he receives them he will lay one upon the table of the House," to which Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied: "In regard to the latter request of my hon. friend, I have no hesitation in stating that I do not think we are called upon to lay the document upon the table of the House and to have it printed. I may say that I, this morning, sent to the library to get a copy of that report, and I received it about 12 o'clock."

Dr. Daniel began by declaring that the affidavit of Mayes was on all fours with the charges of Major Hodgins, which had been referred to a special committee to investigate. Yet the Government had not moved to appoint a committee to investigate the Mayes' charges.

"Does the hon. gentleman assert that there is an affidavit?" asked Mr. Pugsley.

"Yes," replied Dr. Daniel, "I have the affidavit." (Conservative applause.)

Mr. Pugsley asked that it be sent over to him, and Dr. Daniel proceeded to read the document.

Mr. Pugsley said all he asked was that the affidavit as sworn to and read by Mr. Hazen at the St. John public meeting be read by Dr. Daniel.

Dr. Daniel said he was reading the affidavit with the corrected date and re-sworn to.

Mr. Pugsley promptly objected. "I desire," he said, "to take objection to the hon. gentleman reading any statement reflecting on myself."

He appealed under the rule invoked by Mr. Foster recently, he added. He was willing that Dr. Daniel should read the affidavit, as read by Mr. Hazen at the St. John meeting, and as published throughout the press, but he objected to the reading of what purported to be an affidavit made months after the St. John meeting.

"If he desires to make a charge," asserted Mr. Pugsley, "he is at liberty to do so, and I shall welcome it, but he must take the responsibility as a member of this House."

Dr. Daniel said he was reading exactly as the affidavit was read by Mr. Hazen.

Mr. Crockett reminded the Minister that he (Crockett) had attempted early in the session to read the original Mayes affidavit and Mr. Pugsley had then objected to it.

Mr. Speaker ruled that if Dr. Daniels proposed to conclude with a motion asking that certain matters be referred to a committee, he had no objection.

That was exactly what Dr. Daniel intended, he said, and he sent his resolution to Mr. Speaker who, after reading it, said here was no charge against the Minister.

Mr. Foster began an explanation of the affidavit. Among other things Mayes swore that he met Mr. Pugsley and that the latter "wanted money."

Mr. Pugsley interposed an objection and called for a retraction of the last statement, but Mr. Foster held that he was only quoting the language of the affidavit.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had taken no part in the discussion up to this point, but he rose to say that the issue was whether the affidavit should be read. While that point was being discussed it was not allowable to read the affidavit or quote from it. If Dr. Daniel would take the responsibility of making a charge, the affidavit would be in order.

Haughton Lennox discussed the point of order. The affidavit about to be read by Dr. Daniel reflected upon the honor of a public man.

"I ask my hon. friend to withdraw that statement," demanded Mr. Pugsley.

Mr. Lennox refused to admit that there was anything to withdraw, and Mr. Speaker read the rule that no member may say an offensive thing of another.

Mr. Crocket asked if the Minister of Public Works admitted that there was a serious charge made against him.

Mr. Pugsley admitted it, but said Dr. Daniel now proposed to read a new affidavit. The statement in the affidavit was false and Mr. Lennox was bound to take his word. If Dr. Daniel proposed to read the original affidavit and place it upon the table he was satisfied.

"That's what I've been trying to do for the last half hour," replied Dr. Daniel, who resumed his reading, but Mr. Speaker interposed that he must not read any offensive words of another member.

Dr. Daniel contended that the words could not be offensive to Mr. Pugsley, since he had rested under them for months and not taken action.

The House wrangled for some minutes on this point till finally Mr. Foster made an appeal to the Prime Minister.

"Are we in a Parliament or a mad house?" asked Mr. Foster. "I leave the whole matter to the right hon. gentleman."

Sir Wilfrid said in reply to this query that, as on a previous occasion, it was for him to set the example. They had the rule that no member may speak offensively of another, but there was the exception in the case of a member who makes a charge, which, if he fails to prove, would leave him open to grave censure. He cited several cases where such charges were made. Dr. Daniel should proceed with his speech, remembering the caution of Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Mr. Haggart maintained that it was not competent for any one to make a charge against Mr. Pugsley who was not a member of that House in 1905, and it was "childish, boyish, babyish" for Mr. Pugsley to seek refuge in such a subterfuge.

Six o'clock arrived with the two parties still sparring and wrangling, and under the Wednesday rule Mr. Speaker left the chair.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis

Cured by "CATARRHOZONE."

A Breathe-able "Direct" Medicine.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at its source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing, balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas, if a liquid or tablet remedy were used, the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Catarrhozone; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every type of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness, and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief, exerts such an invigorating influence or so thoroughly and speedily cures throat troubles as "Catarrhozone." Doctors, hospitals, sanitariums—all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensable as "Catarrhozone."

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhozone, the only direct, breathable medicine. Two months' treatment guaranteed; price $1.00, smaller size 50c; at all druggists, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

BREATHE CATARRHOZONE.

FERROZONE CURES

"For years I had been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success. The disease increased, settled in my joints and muscles; these swelled, caused excruciating pains, and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were lame, and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength, and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better; it eased the painful joints, gave me energy, and a feeling of new life. Ferrozone cured my rheumatism, cured it so that not an ache has ever returned. Even damp weather no longer affects me."

THE TERRIBLE TURK WAS NO MATCH FOR CHAMPION GOTCH WHO WON IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Chicago, April 14.—It only took Champion Frank Gotch 10 seconds longer than 17 minutes to prove to the satisfaction of an enormous crowd that Yussiff Mahmout, the "Terrible Turk" is not near as terrible as his name might imply. Gotch won the world's championship wrestling match to-night in two straight falls in eight minutes and 9 minutes 10 seconds, respectively, and showed that the Turk was not in his class. The Yankee grappler handled Yussiff easily and the Turk seemed nervous and palpably afraid of the famous toe hold. His showing was a big disappointment to the crowd, as was the shortness of the bout, but they were delighted with Gotch's victory.

When time was called the two men met in the centre of the ring and Gotch took the aggressive. The Turk met his advances. They sparred for the opening and Yussiff pulled Gotch's head. The champion tried to get behind his opponent and failed. The Turk appeared to be excited. He jerked Gotch forward and both men began to get a little rough. Yussiff was aggressive and rushing in on Gotch pushed him around the ring trying for a waist hold. He failed again, and Gotch rushed him to the ropes which the Turk grabbed. The Yankee, however, pulled him off and getting him by the right leg dragged him to the mat, while the crowd went wild with excitement.

Gotch held his man down while both rested. Then the American succeeded in getting a crotch hold and gradually forced the Turk's shoulders to the mat, getting the first fall in eight minutes, with a crotch and half Nelson.

During the first bout Gotch showed himself easily the superior of the Turk and has improved wonderfully in the past year. The crowd did not anticipate any difficulty in the second bout, and their expectations were realized as Gotch made short work of the Turk.

At the beginning of the second Gotch seized the Turk with both arms, but Yussiff broke it and jabbed Gotch in the ribs with his elbow. The champion went right back at him and the Turk tried for a leg hold and failed. He pushed Gotch away, but the latter rushed at him and forced Yussiff to the ropes, when the Turk got behind his opponent and threw him to the mat on his knees, while the Turk was holding him around the waist, Gotch manged to get up but the Turk lifted him again and hurled him to the mat. Gotch got from in under and took the aggressive seizing the Turk by his ankle and right wrist. The Turk tried hard to break the hold but Gotch slammed on a toe hold, but the men worked off the mat and Referee Smith called them back, giving Gotch the same hold, although the Turk objected strenuously. Gotch won the second fall in nine minutes ten seconds with a crotch hold and half Nelson.

PARK STREET ATHLETIC CLUB HAS AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

A meeting of the Park street Athletic Club was held last night to talk over the summer sports. It is likely a baseball team will be entered in the Intermediate League. The prospects are also bright for a field and track team, and several of the fellows have signified their intention of turning out for a run.

It was decided to lease the club dressing rooms on Wednesday evenings and Saturday afternoons to the Victoria Harrier Club. This club will hold week end runs that should be popular.

On Tuesday evening, May 4, the public are invited to hear Dr. Langfeldt give his amusing lecture, under the club's auspices, on "The Evolution of a Boy." This will be a rare treat and will be well worth hearing.

AFTER ANOTHER TOM LONGBOAT

Harry Rosenthal is Trying to Uncork a Speed Marvel in Deseronto.

Toronto, April 14.—It don't take Harry Rosenthal, Tom Longboat's first manager, long to hit the trail when there is money in sight.

The ink in the newspapers telling of the $3,000 all-Canadian Derby, scheduled for Toronto, May 1st, was scarcely dry before Harry Rosenthal had signed up W. F. Cumming, of the Irish-Canadians to gallop for him, and to-morrow he leaves for Deseronto on the hunt for a Mohawk Longboat.

"There are half a dozen good boys down around the Thayendenaga Reserve," he said, "that I have had my eye on all spring. I'm going down to pick out the best one and bring him back with me. I have a good man in Cumming, and if I get a good Indian we'll get a piece of that purse or know the reason why."

Rosenthal thinks a whole lot of Cumming, because under his handling he ran Longboat, at his best, a neck and neck ten-mile race, and because he led Big Chief twelve miles in the 1907 Ward Marathon. Cumming in 1906 was about the best five and ten-miler in Ontario, and Rosey says he'll go the Marathon route. Another Toronto man interested in runners has gone to Georgina Island on the still hunt for another redskin Marathoner.

FLANAGAN'S POSITION IN REGARD TO SHRUBB RACE

Toronto, April 14.—Tom Flanagan put his position regarding Tom Longboat succinctly yesterday when he said.—

Alfred Shrubb and a whole lot of people who should know better, blame me for keeping Tom Longboat from fulfilling his fifteen mile engagement with Shrubb are crazy. Do you think if I could handle Tom Longboat I would ever have turned him over to Pat Powers. I cannot handle him and no other man on earth can handle a man who won't do what he is told. Tom Longboat is not afraid of Alfred Shrubb at fifteen miles, but I am not, or no other sane man will, stand behind him in such a race when he will not train, and show that he has a [illegible] of downing Shrubb. Shrubb is not [illegible], but no man can beat him without training. Tom Longboat won't train, therefore I have washed my hands of the whole business. The St. Yves [illegible] with Longboat is off, because no one [illegible] promote it on account of Longboat's erratic temperament. He might [illegible] and he might not—just as he saw fit. How can a man deal with a runner like that unless he has a substantial forfeit, and he won't put up a forfeit."

[illegible] whole lot of people [illegible] Tom Longboat is all in who will be coming back and patting him on the back in a few months when he beats St. Yves, Svanberg and Shrubb. Wait!"

KARNOTS WILL MEET TO-MORROW

There will be a meeting of the Karnot Baseball Club in the Y. M. C. A. to-morrow night for the purpose of organizing for the season. DOINGS IN BIG LEAGUES

In the National League opening games yesterday the world's champion Chicago Cubs played errorless ball behind Overall and won easily from St. Louis by 3 runs to 1. A base on balls and a wild throw, followed by a triple by Zimmerman, who is filling second base for Johnny Evers, gave Chicago two runs, and Chance's triple, with a long fly, counted for the other. Two wild pitches by Overall, who held St. Louis to three hits, gave Roger Bresnahan's team their only run.

At Boston the home team beat Philadelphia by 9-5, getting eight runs in the fifth, when the great Coveleski who pitched New York out of the championship last year, blew up, and allowed eight hits, a base on balls and a wild pitch. The Phillies were three to the good when the Polish twirler did his Wright Brothers' stunt.

Pittsburg shut out Cincinnati Reds on their own stamping ground by 3-0, although Fromme held them down to four hits, while Cincinnati collected six off Camnitz.

In the American League the feature was Mullin's great pitching for Detroit against Chicago, the champions winning at home by 2-0. It was a pitcher's battle, Smith only allowing four hits, while the White Socks gave him perfect support.

Addie Joss, pitching for Cleveland against the St. Louis Browns, was touched for eight hits, but won his game by 4-2, Powell pitching classy ball for St. Louis, but had one had one bad innings in which the Naps bunched three hits, while Ferris and Wallace had two slip-ups that were disastrous.

Philadelphia and Washington, and the National League game at New York were called off on account of rain.

FOOTBALL.

A meeting of the Midland Football League will be held in the Y.M.C.A., Peterborough, on Saturday, April 24th, when the schedule for the season will be drawn up. Every club is expected to have a representative present on this occasion.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.—

New York, April 15.—Heavy buying of Reading was the feature of the Stock Market to-day, which was characterized by cross currents and irregularity. Southern Ry. and Erie were also strong and higher while the other leaders were weak and lower. Traders were very much confused and sentiment decidedly mixed. Just where the selling was coming from could not be learned, but the tremendous strength in wheat had no doubt inspired some of it. At any rate, stocks were offered on all bulges and the supply was greater than the demand. Strength in Southern Ry. was caused by the announcement of a successful bond issue. It looked as though the bulls were trying to shake out a weak bull following in the general market, now that the short interest had about been driven in.

FARMER MURDERED.

Beauharnois, Que., Man Appears to Have Been Shot From Behind.

Beauharnois, Que., April 15.—Tuesday night Wilfrid Gendron of St. Etienne de Beauharnois, while proceeding about his work, remembered that he had not seen his neighbor, Domina Pelletier, for some little time.

Fearing that Pelletier had been overtaken by some calamity or other—an accident or an illness—he set out to investigate. He arrived at Pelletier's farm, and the missing man was soon found—stretched out dead on his own property, and with a bullet wound behind the left ear.

He was lying at the foot of a barn door, and had evidently been entering the building when shot from behind.

Help was summoned and a search made for clues. About 40 feet away, in the direction from which the shot had evidently come, an empty cartridge was found. It was lying behind the door of a second barn—a door which had been pierced to allow the passage of a rifle barrel.

Pelletier had been dead some time.

Prosecuting Fruit Frauds.

Ottawa, April 15.—A. McNeil, fruit commissioner, addressed the Commons committee on agriculture yesterday morning, and, speaking of fruit packing, stated that there is a gradual improvement, while the cases of fraud are diminishing. Last year there were 79 prosecutions for fraud in this connection, and violations are being watched for by a staff of eight permanent and 13 temporary inspectors.

Agents Are Benefitted.

Albany, April 15.—The bill of Senator Grattan, designed to permit an increase in the commissions of insurance agents, was reported yesterday by the Senate insurance committee and advanced to the order of final passage. One provision gives agents 14 renewals instead of nine as at present, and a 3 per cent. collection fee instead of 2 per cent.

All's Well That Ends Well.

Belleville, April 15.—George R. Irwin was before Magistrate Masson yesterday, charged with perjury. He got a marriage license and gave the girl's age as over 18, but the girl's mother said she was only in her 16th year. The magistrate dismissed the charge, the girl's parents gave their blessing, and the young couple went off on their honeymoon.

Awful to Contemplate.

Montreal, April 15.—Speaking of the excessive cost of the G.T.P. over the estimate The Daily Witness says that if there were any chance of a similar disparity between the estimated cost of building the Georgian Bay Canal and the actual cost, the country would be likely to hesitate very long indeed before embarking on that enterprise.

Kills Annexation Sentiment.

Montreal, April 15.—La Presse says that if there exists any annexation sentiment in Canada, which the paper does not believe, it would be driven out by the ungenerous treatment of French-Canadians in Lowell, Mass., and elsewhere, where they are forbidden to work in the cotton mills of the state unless they know English.

Didn't Know Bill Was Bad.

Welland, April 15.—Harry Evans of Toronto, charged with having attempted to pass a fifty-dollar Confederate bill at Fort Erie, had his hearing at Bridgeburg and was discharged. Evans, who is an Englishman, convinced the magistrate that he did not know the bill was worthless.

Mrs. M. W. Matchett Remembered By The Choir and Epworth League

A pleasing event took place on Monday evening at Mark Street Methodist Church, when Mrs. M. W. Matchett was presented with an address and presentation by the members of the choir and the Epworth League. Mrs. Matchett leaves shortly for Hamilton to join her husband, and her loss will be keenly felt in the different circles of the church work with which she has been prominently connected. At the regular meeting of the League during the course of the evening, Mrs. Matchett was presented with a silk parasol with handle of gold and mother of pearl; Miss Bessie Crowe making the presentation and Miss Alice Wand reading the following address:

Peterborough, April 12, 1909.

To Mrs. M. W. Matchett:

Dear Sister and Friend:—In this busy world, and interesting age, the ocupations, and engagements of life seem to demand frequent remorvals of families to new scenes and associations. And your many friends in Peterborough, and especially those in the Mark Street Church, among whom you have so long laboured for your Master, Christ, have learned with exceeding regret that you and your family have become involved in those demands, and are about to leave for another home.

For a number of years your devotion and ability, have been exercised ungrudgingly in connection with our Sunday School, our League and choir; whose interests have been very dear to you, and to sustain which you have toiled even beyond your strength.

In view of your early removal, and because of the value you have been to the church in general, and to the work among the young people in particular, we the members of the Epworth League and choir, wish to unite in their expression of our appreciation of your devoted service, and also of our esteem of your worthy Christian charac

From our point of view your departure can only be thought of with regret. In the interest of your home and family we shall hope and pray that your removal may involve larger measures of blessing, as well as larger opportunities of usefulness than even here enjoyed. It is in our hearts to present you with a small memento of this occasion, an earnest of our real affection, a pledge that you will often be in our thoughts. We therefore beg you to accept this gift, and as we pass the token to you, we do so hoping that it will ever mean much more than its intrinsic value. And our hope will be too, that you cherish the kindest recollection of its donors.

Signed on behalf of the Mark Street Choir and Epworth League.

J. H. CALLANDER,
ALICE WAND.

Mrs. Matchett made a suitable reply thanking her friends for their kind remembrance and assuring them that she would always remember the pleasant associations with the choir and Epworth League.

Mr. M. W. Matchett also made a short address. A short programme and refreshments completed the evening's enjoyment.

Consented To Have His Name Added To The Blacklisted

James Hayes appeared before the Magistrate at the police court this morning, charged with being drunk in a public place. He was arrested yesterday afternoon and to-day pleaded guilty. Chief Roszel stated that the prisoner had no objection to be posted and he believed it would be a good thing for him. Hayes drank liquor to excess. When drinking he was a source of trouble to people and to himself. He had been in court several times for being drunk and had expressed a wish to be blacklisted.

The papers were signed by the Magistrate and Hayes was served with the notice, blacklisting him, by Inspector Stewart before he left the court-room.

"Labrador" Writes About Dr. Grenfell's Lecture

Editor Examiner.

Dear sir,—Kindly give me space to express my appreciation of the golden value of Dr. Grenfell's lecture delivered in the Opera House last evening. It was a heart-warming, soul-stirring exposition of the genuine gospel of love translated into action, a lesson that we should have our religion at our fingers' ends, rather than at our tongues' end—do instead of declaim, practice instead of preach.

Dr. Grenfell's methods are applied Christianity, the gospel of love applied by a human man to human men. It is love reaching down to humanity and lifting them in its arms. Contrasted with its spirit and fruits, the modern way of propagating the gospel method seems to me like a man mining gold from an air ship. He is running his drills merrily among the clouds, infinitely out of touch with the golden ore hid in the rocks below. We have a grand plentude of gospe air ships sailing serenely or stormily in the lofty strata of the higher criticism, preaching doctrines and theories high over the heads of the human ore, hidden in the recesses of degradation and suffering in the dark places of the earth. Dr. Grenfell's Gospel, the Gospel of the Christ, gets in touch with humanity, stretches forth its hand and lifts it up. It does not answer the call for bread with stony facts or of fine theology.

I was surprised that only 540 persons, as I am informed, attended the lecture last night. We are told that there were 1,700 signatures to a petition to bring into operation an experimental temperance measure which may, and which may not, lessen the evils of strong drink, yet fewer than a third of this number were present last night to hear one of the most striking temperance lectures ever given in Peterborough; an address given in the interest sof the direct rescue of 80,000 Labrador sailors and fishermen from the perils of strong drink. I am afraid that the twelve or so churches in Peterborough have not raised our Christianity to a very high level when such an opportunity of hearing and doing good is neglected; when, as it seems, our citizens respond more warmly to an appeal to their heels than their heads and hearts. The New Year's dance in aid of the Deep Sea Mission netted some $130, while the treasurer tells me that the receipts of $130 last night after the $60 rental of the Opera House and other expenses are deducted, will leave only about $60 as the net result. Dr. Grenfell seems to be a more successful fisher of men than of funds in Peterborough.

a Yours truly,

LABRADOR.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. M. W. MATCHETT

The Sunday class of Mrs. M. W. Matchett, in the Mark Street Sunday School, met at her home, Mark street, last evening, where they spent a very pleasant time in games and music. During the evening Mrs. Matchett was made the recipient of a beautiful picture, accompanied by the following address, which was read by Joshua Gamble, the presentation being made by Wm. Succee:

Peterborough, April 14, '09.

Mrs. Matchett.

Dear teacher,—We, the members of your Sunday School Class of Mark Street Methodist Church, wish to convey to you our hearty appreciation of your kind and valuable instruction given to us.

We beg you to accept this picture from us as a slight token for the interest you have taken in our welfare.

As you are about to separate from us to another field of labour, we trust that your labour in this good work will not cease until the Master says. "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Wishing you every happiness in your new sphere.

Signed on behalf of class, Joshua Gamble, William Succee.

Mrs. Matchett leaves in a few days to reside in Hamilton. She made an appropriate reply, expressing her thanks and appreciation to the class.

Many sorrowing friends turned out to pay their last token of respect to the memory of the deceased. The pall bearers were Messrs. E. Mitchell, S. Gillespie, R. Gordon, T. Carson, A. Letellier and A. Breton.

Every farmer should have apart from the ordinary business of the farm, something from which the womenfolk can realize both pleasure and profit. They have made a distinct success of these.

FANCY POULTRY BREEDING.

From Farm and Dairy.

A visit that proved very interesting was paid by an editorial representative of Farm & Dairy recently to the farm of Mr. Jas. Baptie, of Springville, Ont. Mr. Baptie has been a very successful breeder and importer of numerous varieties of fowl including Silver Laced and Golden Laced Wyandottes, Silver Spangled, Golden Spangled and Black Hamburgs, Silver Grey Dorkins, bronze turkeys and White and Black Cochin Bantams. Birds bred and owned by Mr. Baptie have been shown successfully at not only all the leading Canadian shows but at exhibitions such as those held in New York and at the St. Louis World's Fair. His pens include a number of birds imported from Great Britain

The mating and breeding of birds, such as those bred by Mr. Baptie, is a science in itself. It necessitates the breeding of one type of bird for the porduction of cockerels as well as the breeding of another type of the same breed for the production of pullets. Later, Farm and Dairy expects to publish an illustration of Mr. Baptie's poultry plant and a description of some of his methods of breeding.

50 WITNESSES IN KINRADE CASE

Detectives Have Been Busy Since the Adjournment Was Called.

That the detectives have been exceptionally active during the interval since the Kinrade murder inquest was adjourned is evident by the fact that fifty witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear before the Coroner's jury when the investigation is resumed one week from to-night. It was generally believed when George Tate Blackstock, K. C., the Crown examiner, asked for a long adjournment to permit the detectives to make an investigation across the border, extending over a large area of territory, that the authorities had exhausted their list of witnesses. The police stated after the adjournment that they had a dozen witnesses whose evidence it was considered advisable to withhold until later in the investigation. This would indicate that they have discovered over thirty new witnesses in the last three weeks.

Crown Attorney Washington had a conference yesterday with police Magistrate Jelfs and Chief Smith. "We have thirty witnesses summoned," he replied to an inquiry as to the probable length of the investigation. He also stated that it was the intention to adjourn the inquest from Thursday night until probably Monday or Tuesday.

TURNIPY CHEESE.

From Farm and Dairy.

The patrons of the Shearer cheese factory, Peterboro County, Ontario, took a decided stand recently at their annual meeting, when they adopted a resolution to the effect that any patron of the factory who fed turnips or rape to his cattle during the next factory season, should not be allowed to send his milk to the factory.

The question was brought up for discussion by Mr. Edgar Wood, who moved that any patron of the factory who fed turnips or rape to his cows between the first of May and the first of November, 1909, should be fined $25. Mr. Wood pointed out that unless the management of the factory took a decided stand, some of the patrons would be sure to feed turnips or rape to their cows, with the result that the reputation of the factory for manufacturing good cheese would be injured.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, of Peterboro, a cheese buyer, informed the patrons that at one time he had an open order to purchase all the cheese from a certain factory, and that the price he was to pay for the cheese had not been stipulated. This had enabled him, at times, to pay a ¼ of a cent a pound more than the regular market price, for the cheese of this factory. The cheese always went through to the consumers in good shape. One fall, however, he noticed a slight turnipy flavor on the cheese. It was so slight, he decided to accept the cheese. They were passed by the buyers at Montreal, but when they got to Great Britain the firm that had been handling the cheese of this factory, sent word cancelling their open order for this factory's cheese. This meant a serious loss to the factory and was due to the fact that only one or two patrons had fed some turnips to their cows. During most of 1908, the cheese of Shearer factory, Mr. Gillespie said, had been of high grade, but in the fall he had got a lot of 22 cheese that were very turnipy. This cheese had gone to Montreal as Shearer factory cheese, and no person could tell the effect that they would have upon the reputation of the factory.

The cheese maker, Mr. James Hogan, stated that the buyers who had bought some turnipy cheese from Shearer factory in the fall of 1907 had had so much trouble in disposing of them, he was not willing to buy any more Shearer factory cheese in the fall of 1908.

It was pointed out that the factory did not have the power to fine patrons who sent turnipy milk to the factory. One patron said that he intended to feed turnips to his cows in the fall, and, if necessary, he would send his milk to another factory. This, however, did not prevent the patrons adopting, almost unanmously, the resolution which has already been mentioned. This resolution was moved by Mr. William Devlin, and seconded by Mr. John Topie. After the resolution had been carried, Dairy Instructor Ward stated that if turnip feeding is persisted in it will have a demoralizing effect on the consumption of cheese.

AUTOMOBILE LEGISLATION.

From Farm and Dairy.

Much was expected in the way of automobile legislation at the session of the legislature just closed. Small private bills were introduced early in the season looking to such regulation of the traffic on country roads as would make it possible for farmers to drive upon them with some degree of security. These were delegated to a sub committee of the Municipal committee of the legislature for consideration. On the special report of that committee, a bill was based and which passed the legislature without amendment.

The chief features of this bill are a compulsory license upon all drivers of automobiles for hire and increasing the penalties for violation of the speed regulations. All drivers of motor vehicles for hire or pay, must on the request of a constable, produce a license. No automobile shall pass a stationary street car at more than four miles an hour. For a first offence for violation of the speed regulations the fine is $50 or one week's imprisonment or both; for a second offence, $100, or one month or both; and for a third offence, imprisonment ing away without furnishing the name. For minor offences the present fine of $10 is changed to read up not exceeding six months, without the option of a fine.

Offences under the act are of two kinds: major and minor offences. The major offences are racing for a bet, inflicting a serious injury or driv- to $50.

Prior convictions shall be kept track of by the entering upon the driver's license by the convicting magistrate of the date and nature of the conviction. Where a driver comes up for a third offence, the license will be cancelled for three years. If the driver does not hold a license at the time of the conviction he shall not be allowed to take one out for a period of time which shall be determined by the magistrate. The motor shall be taken into custody for three months and the costs of storage shall be held against it. If the owner can guarantee that the car will not be drawn for three months, he may keep it, but if operated in that time it shall be considered to be without a license. The chauffeur and employer are both liable if the former works for hire. The employer is liable for the conviction along with the chauffeur

The committee was not unanimous, however, and a minority report was brought in, the chief feature of which was that between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Saturdays, and 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Sundays, no motor vehicles shall be allowed on country roads, or even remain stationary on them. On the final vote on the bill in the legislature an endeavor was made to have this restriction on country roads to certain hours incorporated in it; but without success.

RAISING CHICKENS.

From Farm and Dairy.

Poultrymen and others of Peterborough were fortunate recently in having Prof. W. R. Graham of the Ontario Agricultural College deliver his popular illustrated lecture on "How to and how not to raise chickens." The Professor reviewed the poultry industry of Ontario. He showed how all classes of people from the millionaire to the street cleaner are interested in poultry. Wonderful strides have been made by the poultry industry in recent years. If statistics are correct, there are over 25 per cent. more chickens on farms in Ontario to-day than there were two years ago, and these figures do not deal with the birds kept on lots smaller than 25 acres. There are over 12,000,000 chickens on Ontario farms. An increase in production with these hens of one egg per year would mean an increased yearly revenue for the province of $200,000.

The remarkable feature of the poultry industry at the present time is that in spite of decreasing exports the price for poultry and eggs as well as their numbers are increasing. Under such conditions there is no fear of overcrowding the markét.

"We need better quality in our poultry products," stated the Professor. "Our eggs are a little bit small. Our chickens before marketing need to be put in better condition. Every thin chicken placed on the market entails a great national loss. Chicken flesh can be produced as cheaply as hog flesh. The difference in the prices of the finished product is familiar to all, thus the loss in marketing unfinished birds is apparent."

A fine collection of slides were shown. They proved intensely interesting and of great value to all present. Some of the slides showed different varieties of birds. These were used to demonstrate such points as constitution, desirable type, etc. Poultry houses of different designs were illustrated. Many of the buildings at the O. A. C. poultry department, poultry scenes from the Trappist Monastery, Oka, Que., and scenes from Connecticut poultry farms were shown and commented upon. A number of slides illustrated chickens affected with white diarrhoea, and the raising of chickens in orchards and in corn fields.

While the slides were being run through much valuable information regarding poultry and its care was thrown out by Professor Graham and was much appreciated by his attentive audience.

THE FRUIT CROP OUTLOOK.

From Farm and Dairy.

There has been no apparent change in the condition of fruit trees and buds since last report. Present appearances give promise of good crops during the coming season The following reports from crop correspondents of Farm and Dairy state present conditions in some districts of Ontario that were not mentioned in last week's issue:

BRUCE CO., ONT.

Walkerton.—All trees and bushes seem to be in fine condition. The buds are healthy. The prospects are for an early spring. The winter was remarkable. The lowest temperature was five degrees below zero and that only once.—A. E. S.

MIDDLESEX CO., ONT.

Ivan.—The outlook for fruit is good. The long ripening season in the fall makes us look for a bumper crop of apples, plums and pears, which are the principal crops grown here.—E. T. C.

WENTWORTH CO., ONT.

Fruitland.—All kinds of fruit trees vines and bushes have come through the winter in good condition. Pear, cherry and plum fruit buds are abundant. In orchards near the mountain, peach fruit buds are in good condition, but nearer the lake, they are badly killed.—W. M. O.

HASTINGS CO., ONT.

Belleville.—Apple trees appear to have come through the winter in fine condition and the green bark trees appear to have escaped injury from mice during the winter. The show of fruit buds on apple trees is very promising.—F. S. W.

DURHAM CO., ONT.

Newcastle.—Most varieties of apple trees are full of fruit buds, also Bartlett pears and all kinds of plums and cherries. Strawberry rows are narrow because of the dry autumn. Will plant extensively apple and pear trees in this locality this spring. The Newcastle Fruit Growers' Association received good prices for apples exported this winter.—W. H. G.

FAVORS FORESTRY SUGGESTIONS

From Farm and Dairy.

Editor, Farm and Dairy,—Having considered the matter very carefully, I have concluded, after obtaining all the information that I can on the subject, that it would be a wise policy to begin at once upon a system of reforestry in Ontario. I am further convinced that the Counties of Northumberland and Durham offer exceptional advantages for this purpose. As you are fully aware Durham has some 6,000 acres and Northumberland 8,000 acres of land almost valueless for purposes other than the growing of pine. Its wonderful adaptability to that purpose has been well demonstrated in the past; I well remember the time when thousands and millions of feet of choice pine stood on the high sandy hills of Darlington, Clarke, Hope and Manvers townships. As this has largely gone into lumber years ago, I am firmly of the opinion that with care, and replanting, we can grow just such a crop of pine again and it would be a good investment.

Prof. B. E. Fernow's estimation of the cost of replanting should be well within the mark, viz., $10 to $12 an acre. Then, it would cost say $2.00 to $3.00 an acre or $1,000 to $1,200 to fence a 400 acre block, for it should be well protected during the early stages of growth. Large areas of this land have been deserted by its former owners, some falling into the hands of Trust and Loan Companies that would gladly sell at from $1.00 to $3.00 an acre. The total cost of reforesting this land should not exceed $13 to $20 per acre. Large quantities of this land would produce a big crop of pine if only properly protected without any replanting. If our Government advanced this money at 3 per cent. this should prove a capital investment in the next half century.

This matter should be taken up by the Farmers' Institutes, Agricultural Societies, Municipal Councils and County Councils, as suggested by Farm and Dairy and arrangeemnts made to hold a monster mass meeting say at the June session of the County Council. I should like to see a full and free discussion of this subject through the columns of your valuable paper.—A. A. Colwill, Chairman Agricultural Committee, Co. Council, of Durham and Northumberland.

SUMMER BOARDER QUESTION.

From Farm and Dairy.

I lived once in a beautiful town in Ontario where many Americans spent their holidays. Some of them played tennis and cards all Sunday morning and afternoon. Occasionally if the evening was cool they attired themselves in sporty costumes and attended the most fashionable church. They were a jolly party. What was the result? Why the young people flocked to see them, and their influence was soon manifested by the falling off in attendance at church. After they left the town some of the country boys and girls came back, but a few had drifted out too far to ever take the same interest again.

The very arrival of summer boarders gives a new impetus to trade, and arouses the people. There are instances where congregations have been aroused by the promise of a 'boarder' to do his part towards reducing the mortgage, if the members would do their share. I heard of a party of summer boarders last year who took such an interest in the little mission that they raised money, purchased paint, etc. Together with the young people of the church they cleaned and decorated the building inside and out. When they returned to their homes in the fall, they left the student with a full purse and a glad heart with which to come back to college. They provided new hymn books, collection plate and a splendid library for the school, and all the winter while enjoying their library and their cosy little church, that community will bless the day summer boarders sought out their pretty village.—The Pastor's Wife.

DAIRYING IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

From Farm and Dairy.

R. W. Hodson, B.S.A., Live Stock Commissioner, B.C.

Owing to the favourable climate of British Columbia, dairying is destined to become one of the greatest branches of agriculture. The dairy industry of the province is steadily on the increase; during the last two years many more creameries have been established at different points throughout the province. The number of creamery patrons has greatly increased, and more butter, of a better and more uniform quality has been turned out, also the market price paid for dairy produce has increased. Milk, cream and butter bring excellent prices in this Province, annual, average prices which are not surpassed by any province or state in America.

These prices are due partly to the market supply not equalling the demand, but largely to the high uniform quality of butter put on the market. Each year the demand for dairy produce becomes greater, and with the increase in demand, a higher figure is paid for B. C. creamery butter. In 1907, the average wholesale price per lb. was 32 cents; in 1908, 31 1-7 cents. During 1908, the dairy industry was worth over half a million dollars more to the province, than during the preceding year.

The dairymen realize what the industry is worth to them, and are grading up their herds, making use of the best and most up-to-date methods of caring for and handling the product. Not only are the herds being tested for production, and the boarders weeded out, but the tuberculin test is also being applied, and the reactors destroyed, or quarantined. By following these tests, healthy herds capable of larger production are being, and will be built up.

The breeders of this province are giving less prominence to the fancy points of the different breeds, but are wisely emphasizing utility for production. The beautiful, comfortable homes of the dairymen answer the question, "Is dairying profitable?"

THE Cowboy BARONET

PRAISES ZAM-BUK.

EVERYBODY has heard of Sir Genille Cave-Brown-Cave, "The Cowboy Baronet"! Most people know that this gentleman, whose home is at Stretton Hall, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, England, prefers the active life of a traveller and a worker to that of a titled gentleman. Sir Genille Cave, in his cowboy role, made himself well-known in several of the States. He has also lived at different times the life of a sailor, a soldier, a gold-miner, and a contractor, so that his opinion on many subjects is exceedingly valuable. Like most men of note, Sir Genille Cave is a firm believer in Zam-Buk. He has carried it with him to all corners of the earth, and proved its value in a thousand emergencies. He has used it when in the wilds of Australia, the deserts of Egypt, the plains of India, and the mysterious cities of China. When working as a "Cowpuncher" in the States, it was his great stand-by. Writing to a friend recently, he said of this great balm:—

"I feel it is only my duty to let you know what great benefit I have derived by keeping Zam-Buk handy, and having it in constant use. For the sprains and bruises which I have incurred in my cowboy life generally I have found it a reliable and speedy healer. Some of the best riders in the West that I know use Zam-Buk regularly with the greatest benefit. On one occasion my horse, "Bob," came down with me. He rolled over my limbs, bruising me generally, and tearing pieces of skin off my arms. By the use of Zam-Buk immediately, the wounds and bruises were cleanly and quickly healed, and the raw parts covered with new healthy skin.

"When on the plains I have used Zam-Buk for poisonous insect-bites, and have found it particularly beneficial for mosquito bites, and the aches and pains following malarial fever caused by mosquitoes.

"Zam-Buk has yielded me far more remarkable results and generally proved more reliable than anything could have done in the way of mere ointments and embrocations, and I think it is without equal as a healer of skin diseases and injuries."

No clearer evidence than that above from this well-known Leicestershire baronet could be needed in order to finally establish the reputation of Zam-Buk. Never before has any "First-Aid" preparation attained the success Zam-Buk has attained with the classes and the masses all the world over. This is because never before has such a rich, pure, and unique balm been discovered.

The secret of Zam-Buk's strength lies in the refined herbal extracts which form the essential feature of the balm, and to the ingenious manner in which these herbal juices are combined with one another. Parents in the home, foremen in the workshops and factories, and athletes in the field, cannot do better than "Keep a box of Zam-Buk Always Handy."

A BLIND ARTIST.

Sightless Painter's Work Shown at an International Congress.

There used to be a saying among the friends of the blind that "a blind man can do anything but paint a picture," but since Miss Winifred Holt came back from the international congress for the blind, held recently in England, it has fallen into disuse, for a sightless Russian has demonstrated that a blind man can paint a picture, and his work was shown at the international congress.

Miss Holt told of it at the last meeting of the Blind Men's Improvement Society in New York city. The blind artist keeps each of his colors in a separate box, and each box is marked with characters which to his touch spell the name of the color the box contains.

As might be expected, he is an impressionist. He knows that trees and grass are green and sky is blue and clouds are white, so he lays on his green and blue and white in generous patches, like any other impressionist, and the result is a picture.

"It wasn't a very good picture," said Miss Holt, who is herself a sculptress and may be supposed to have a critical taste, "but it was neither better nor worse than a great many other pictures that are sold right here in New York."

Another feat which was reported to the congress of the blind was the saving of two lives by a pair of blind English boys last year. Two sighted persons were drowning when the blind lads heard their cries for help, swam to them and got them safe ashore.—New York Sun.

Building on Sand.

In New York nearly all the tall office buildings have their foundations on the quicksand, in it or under it, and, as a rule, they are more difficult, dangerous and costly to build than anywhere else in the world. It is required to provide absolutely safe separate supports for from fifty to a hundred columns fifteen or twenty feet apart, each carrying loads of from 100 to 2,000 tons. Thirty feet below the surface the sand is found compressed to a hard, dense mass, which undisturbed will carry safely a load of 6,000 or 8,000 pounds per square foot. When, therefore, the building is not too heavy and there is no expectation of deeper foundations being built alongside, the new foundations are often laid on the surface of the sand, which has from one-half to the whole of its area covered with them.—Frank W. Skinner in Century.

An Organ's Secret.

Switzerland has a church which is very proud of its exquisite music. This is the Church of St. Nicholas at Freiburg. At first no startling novelty impresses itself upon the visitor, but when the magnificent organ begins to sound surprise and delight are mingled in the hearer. This organ is of immense size. It has four manuals, sixty-four stops and 4,163 pipes. Its great peculiarity is, however, its vox humana stop. There are vox humana stops in hundreds of organs, but none which in any way aproaches the perfection of this masterpiece. Mooser, the builder, was repeatedly begged to build others, but invariably refused, and his secret has been faithfully kept, for, except the organist, who is also the tuner, no one is permitted to inspect the interior of the organ.—New York Mail.

Worked Both Ways.

A popular hostess in Paris at whose dinners and receptions the best of the floating population may be seen has discovered a new way to make her dinner guests at ease. The day of the dinner a man guest received a note like this: "Mr. Blank will have the pleasure to escort Miss Dash. She is musical, dotes on 'Salome,' attends the lectures of Professor Knowall. She attended the Press club ball, has had gowns made at Worth's. Her father has much money, and she has traveled in Spain and Italy." "Great plan," said the man who had received the note. "I knew what to talk about, but when Miss Dash began to ask me about the last races and the next and some other things I began to think that she received a letter also."

Steer More and Blow Less.

If the same amount of effort expended on the automobile horn to get people to move out of your way were used to move the steering wheel slightly so as not to seem to bear directly upon the person in front, and if you should steer around wagons in the road, as nine times out of ten you must do in the end, rather than blow and blow the horn in vain effort to get them to move, much less friction would be caused and the speed increased. We think it is much better to pass carefully and as quietly as possible. Often you are noticed hardly at all, and you can generally tell if warning is necessary.—Outing.

The Last Miracle Worker.

The town of Michelstadt, in Hesse, has passed a resolution to place a memorial tablet over the house where Rabbi Seckel Loeb Wormser died. The latter was the last cabalist and miracle worker in Germany and is widely known as the "Baale Schem of Michelstadt." It seems to the generation living at present an almost inconceivable fact that sixty years ago a rabbi in Germany could write amulets which should heal sickness and insure success in business and the like. Still, such was the fact.—American Israelite.

A Table Plan that is Worth Studying. It is a Summary of the Work Accomplished in Eastern Ontario Last Year by the 24 Dairy Instructors

The great improvement that has taken place in the quality of the cheese manufactured in Eastern Ontario, has been due in a large measure to the splendid work of the Dairy Instructors under the direction of Chief Instructor, G. G. Publow, of Kingston. The table here shown was prepared by Chief Instructor Publow, and gives an idea of the work accomplished by the different instructors last year The instructors now have authority to visit farms and, if necessary, to compel patrons to keep their milk in sanitary conditions. Last year more of this work was done than ever before. It will be noticed by the table that the instructors paid 2,661 visits to patrons; the best work in this line was done by Instructor R. W. Ward, of Peterboro, who visited 501 patrons. Instructor R. E. Elliott paid 300 visits to farmholds. It is likely that this line of work will be greatly extended this year. It is disappointing to notice that the average production of milk a season of over 340,000 cows, was only 2,700 lbs. This shows the great field that exists for an improvement in the average production of the cows of the country. The Campbellford district makes the best showing as the cows in this section average 3,162 lbs. Apparently the Brockville district has set to work to improve, as it will be noticed that eight new factories were erected in that section last year. Brockville district also leads all the other sections by a big margin as regards the amount expended for improvements in factory places. All the figures are interesting.

GRANT SIGNED.

He Indorsed the Order "Till the Day of Judgment."

General Grant has fitly been spoken of as "an unaffected great soldier." It may have been the blending of this large mindedness and lack of affectation that invariably made him so courteously kind to any one who asked his assistance, so generous in his praise of an opponent, even when that opponent was fighting him to the death. The following little story emphasizes all these qualities:

After the fall of Fort Donelson, to prevent the needless violation of property by either the army or by camp followers, protections were issued by the United States government. To Miss C., whose six brothers were fighting in the Confederate army, such a protection was granted. It had been signed by all the commanders of the post in turn—by Buell, Rosecrans, Schofield, Sheridan, Grainger and many others—and the list was long and impressive. At last it became necessary for General Grant's signature to be added.

"When I entered the office," says Miss C., "the general was smoking, his feet higher than his head. But he seemed instantly to stand upright before me, and his cigar was thrown away in a moment.

"I handed him my protection.

"'You have rather a formidable list of names,' he said as he took it from me.

"'And I hope that you will add yours to it and make it even more formidable,' I replied.

"For answer he sat down again, ready to put his signature at the end of the parchment, when he suddenly stopped and looked at me.

"'For how long do you wish this protection for your estate, Miss C.?' he asked.

"'Until the day of judgment, general,' I answered boldly.

"Then he smiled that sweet, quizzical smile of his that made so many people, even when they were his enemies, love him and said:

"'My dear young lady, you have great confidence in your armies! But with such courage and with such a leader as General Lee I cannot wonder.' Then, with a great flourish, he added the words, 'Till the day of judgment, Ulysses S. Grant,' and handed it back to me."

AUTUMN LEAVES.

The Change of Color From Green to Red or Yellow or Brown.

Despite the commonness of autumn colorings, we do not yet know the full meaning of autumn colors of leaves. We do know that late in the summer the tree is preparing for the leaf fall by drawing the valuable substances of the leaf into the stem. It also ceases to make chlorophyl (the green substance of the leaf which aids in the making of the plant's food), and this gradually fades away in the bright light. By fading it exposes to view any other colors in the leaf, and all leaves contain yellow coloring matters called xanthophyl, whose function is not known, and it is these which give the yellow color to autumn leaves.

The red is formed differently. In bright light and cool temperature a new substance, called erythrophyl, is made from sugar and tannin in the leaf cells, and that has a red color. A brown substance is also sometimes formed, and, besides, the skeleton of the leaf itself turns brown as the leaf dies. It is the various combinations of these substances that give the many shades of autumn colors. Some students think these colors are a useful protection to the living protoplasm (life material) of the leaf after the green disappears, protecting it against the full blaze of light, which is injurious, but others think the colors have no use at all, but are simply the incidental chemical result of the processes in the ripening and dying leaf.

As yet the weight of evidence seems to favor the latter view, but the matter is still unsettled. It is generally thought that frost has something to do with it, but it has not, except to hasten it. Anything which affects the vitality of the leaf tends to hasten it, for which reason an injured branch of a maple will often show red autumn color even in summer.

The colors are brightest where the leaves receive the most brilliant sunshine.—Professor W. F. Ganong in St. Nicholas.

Borrowed Plumes.

Quiller—I am constantly writing for the periodicals.

Pogum—That so? I never noticed your name as author.

Quiller—Oh, I always write under the nom de plume of "Anonymous."

Pogum—That explains it. I remember now to have read many of your productions—some of which are very fine. Let me congratulate you.

Modern Complications.

It is pretty hard for a girl to tell whether it is better to be so polite as to pretend that she is not shocked when she is or so refined as to pretend she is shocked when she isn't.

There is also the complicated case of the man who won't work at all unless he is praised for it and when he is praised for it becomes too chesty to work.—Exchange.

Paganini's Cab.

On awakening one morning at his hotel in Vienna, Paganini, the celebrated violinist, was informed that the cabman whom the previous evening he had employed to drive him to the concert hall where he was playing was waiting to see him. On being admitted to his presence the man, after having advanced poverty and a large family as an excuse for the request that he was about to make, prayed the great musician to make his fortune. "What do you mean?" demanded Paganini. "Authorize me to write in large letters on the back of my vehicle these two words, 'Paganini's Cab,'" was the answer. Consent was given, with altogether satisfactory results.

Matrimonial Repartee.

She (in stern and rockbound accents)—You married me for better or worse, didn't you, Edgar?

He—Er—um—yes, I suppose so, my love.

She—Then what are you complaining about? I'm no worse than the average married woman, I can assure you!

He (meekly)—Well, if that is the case, all I've got to say is I'm mighty glad—

She (breaking in)—Glad?

He—Yes. Glad I'm not a polygamist. Er—um—looks a trifle squally over to the northeast, doesn't it, Miranda?

Lincoln on Money.

"Lincoln," said a senator at a banquet in Washington, "had no great admiration for mere financial success.

"'Financial success,' Lincoln once said, 'is purely metallic. The man who attains it has four metallic attributes—gold in his palm, silver on his tongue, brass in his face and iron in his heart.'"

BREATH OF SCANDAL.

By ELIAS LISLE.

Young Mrs. Verrell leaned on the rail of the yacht and looked with disappointed surprise at the approaching dingey.

"There are only Hugh and your cousin in the boat," she announced to her guest. "Mr. Cuthbert isn't there. I'm so sorry."

Her intonation implied that the sorrow was sympathetic rather than personal. Sibyl Beach resented it.

"You needn't be, Helen," she said, the curve of her lips straightening firmly.

"Why, I invited him to come, particularly on your account."

"And I wanted him not to, particularly on my account," said the girl.

"Why, Sibyl, dear, I thought you were such great friends or even more."

"So did I." There was a suspicion of tears in the bright eyes the girl turned to her friend. "So did I until—until he disgraced himself. Oh, you'll know all about it soon enough anyway. I may as well show you now."

She held out a clipping from a weekly publication which makes a business of purveying social sewage to its readers.

"It came to me in the mail—anonymous, of course," she said.

Mrs. Verrell took it with an expression of distaste.

"You wouldn't believe anything that wretched paper says, I hope," she observed. "Whenever I read it I feel as if I needed a bath to get clean again."

"The Era had a little notice, too, saying that Sid—Mr. Cuthbert—was there, and that is reliable enough. I only wish it weren't."

With pressed lips and frowning brow Mrs. Verrell ran over the clippings. It was a comment less veiled than is common with that paper upon the presence of Sidney Cuthbert at the funeral of a woman who had once been well known in that dim border of the theatrical profession where people of a more dubious world claim habitation.

"It will strengthen Mr. Cuthbert's reputation for generosity among his club and society friends," commented the paragraph, "that he should have borne the expense of the funeral from his own pocket. The woman who was once known as Viola Trevannion was buried beside her son, whose death two years ago was also the occasion of a burst of mortuary generosity on the part of young Cuthbert."

"Isn't that a nice thing to read about a man you had thought you could—could at least respect?" said the girl bitterly.

"I don't believe it about Mr. Cuthbert," began the other indignantly when the two men came over the rail.

After Verrell and young Dr. Dent had greeted the two women the latter turned to his cousin and said:

"Did I hear you speaking about Sidney Cuthbert, Beauty?"

"You may have if you were listening," said the girl. "And I do wish, Harvey, that you would drop that childish nickname. I've outgrown it."

"Well, I don't know about your outgrowing it," said Dent, looking at her flushed cheeks and shining eyes, "but you certainly haven't outgrown your childish—beg pardon—your childhood temper. But of course I'll drop it, Sib, if you don't like it," he added good naturedly. "But I was interested in Sidney Cuthbert because I used to know him when he was Typh 7 and I was house in Sawgums."

"What's Sawgums?" asked Verrell lazily from his deck chair. "Lunatic asylum? And was Cuthbert one of the numbered patients and you another? I understood you to say you were a house. Singular delusion."

"Sawgums is short for St. Augustine's hospital, where I disported myself as house physician when Cuthbert became typhoid case No. 7," explained the young physician. "As all the private rooms were full, he had to go into the public ward and live at a dollar per day between a profane and asthmatic car driver and a charity convalescent."

"Very good lesson in economy," observed Verrell virtuously.

"He couldn't give many dinner parties and send the kind of flowers he used to favor Sibyl with on that basis. Helen, if my feet are in your way I'll have 'em moved," he concluded, blissfully unconscious of his wife's savage glances. "Did Cuthbert like it, Dent?"

"Seemed to enjoy it tolerably after he got convalescent. He got up quite a friendship with another patient known as Tommy the Cod, presumably because he lived in an empty fish box down Fulton market way."

"Don't remember having heard Cuthbert speak of the gentleman," murmured Verrell. "Did he ever bring him to call, Sibyl? Helen, if you kick the only husband you're ever likely to have on the shins he'll rise up and desert you."

"The Cod's real name, as near as he could tell, was Hannigan," continued the physician. "Cuthbert's previous acquaintance with him was purely a business one. Tommy used to sell Cuthbert evening papers on Wall street until one day a truck ran over his ankle, and when we got him here we found he had a very interesting case of heart disease, so we kept him. Well, the Cod used to give Cuthbert all the news about the street that he got from his friends who used to visit him. It meant a good deal to Cuthbert, for he was keeping his illness a secret for fear it would bring his mother back from Newport and consequently didn't have any callers of his own. Tommy generously loaned him his visitors, and one day the superintendent, a pious old party, came in unannounced and caught them shooting craps on Cuthbert's cot. They had made dice out of lump sugar, and Cuthbert had won 8 cents, when old Barber raided the game. After that the two pals were more cautious. One other visitor the Cod had was a woman who said she was his cousin, but Tommy had other ideas. Certain acquaintances of hers had told Tommy that she was his mother. At any rate, she had 'treated him white,' as he informed me, on several occasions and had 'staked' him to a much needed dollar more than once when he was 'up agin it.'

"In those days we had a night orderly in our ward whom I always meant to poison, but somehow I never got time. He wound up a career of blunders one night by dropping a night lamp into a screen, and two minutes later he dropped the job of fighting the fire and hustled to save our cases. Just as we were congratulating ourselves that all were safely out Tommy the Cod seized the night nurse by the neck and yelled:

"'Where's my pal? Where's Typh 7?'

"'In the inner passage,' said the nurse, turning white. 'They must have taken him out the other way.'

"The first I heard of it was when the nurse came crying to me.

"'I tried to stop him, sirs, the little heart case No. 15, but he broke away from me and ran back into the ward. He thinks Typh 7 is in there.'

"I thought so, too, and ran for the entrance, and as I reached it a wall of black smoke rolled out upon me, somewhere back of which rose the voice of Tommy the Cod, who was exhorting his pal, and the rattle of a wheeled chair.

"'Keep yer head down, buddy. Air's fresher near de floor. Dere's de door ahead! Blast de chair! It's stuck!'

"'Never mind me, old man,' I heard Cuthbert say. 'Make a run for it. You can send back after me.'

"'Not on yer life,' began Tommy, but the brave words ended in a pitiful, strangling cough.

"Groping blindly, I stumbled upon the chair and with a rush brought my two patients out into the hall. Tommy keeled over, and we got him to open air unconscious. When he came to his first words were:

"'Did yer get my pal?'

"'I'm right here, Tommy,' said Cuthbert, catching the boy's hand.

"'Dat's all right, den,' said the Cod contentedly. 'But I guess I'm done. Dey always told me inhalin' wasn't good fer kids,' he added, with a faint grin.

"Cuthbert looked up at me appealingly, but I had to shake my head. Tommy's diagnosis was correct. Cuthbert climbed out of his chair—against my orders—and bent over Tommy.

"'Little pal,' he said, 'you saved my life.'

"Tommy waved the matter away airily. 'Dat's all right. It was up to me. Between pals, yer know, yer'd have done de same trick fer me.'

"'God knows, I'd have tried. And now there's nothing I can do,' said Cuthbert, his voice breaking. 'Isn't there anything, Tommy? Haven't you got any relations or friends I could help? I'm rich, you know.'

"'G'wan!' said Tommy faintly. 'Is dat right? I t'ought yer was a charity patient.' He pondered for a moment. 'There's dat fluffy haired loidy dat come to see me last week. She was pretty white to me. You might kinder look out fer her a bit. Dey said she was me old woman, but I dunno. Wot's de difference?' said Tommy the Cod wearily. 'She was white to me anyway.' And Tommy said no more.

"Cuthbert buried Tommy in style. I went to the funeral—professional interest, you know. Well, Cuthbert has been paying his debt to Tommy ever since, looking after the 'fluffy haired loidy,' as Tommy called her. She called herself Trevannion, I believe, on the stage."

"Trevannion," interrupted Sibyl Beach—"Viola Trevannion?"

"Why, do you know her?" asked her cousin in surprise.

"Yes—no; never mind," said Sibyl tremulously. "Harvey, I want you to go ashore and telegraph Mr. Cuthbert that we—that I am expecting him and sign my name. You needn't stare so," she added indignantly. Then she turned and hurried below.

"Well, upon my soul!" mused Dent as he went over the side to send the message. "I must have done that uncommonly well."

Rabbinical Wit.

Rabbinical wit is a vital element in the Talmud and Midrash, entering into the disquisitions of the sages and appealing to the people with magic power, when dry disquisitions and homilies without such spice would have driven the people away.

A preacher in those olden days noticed that his audience seemed to be asleep despite his eloquence. "Once," he cried, "there was a Jewess who had 600,000 children." The people were all wide awake now and demanded to know the woman's name. "Jochabed," was the response. "Was not her son Moses equal to 600,000 who came from Egypt?" There was no lack of attention for the rest of the sermon.

An English rabbi was asked by his congregation if there was any weighty reason against having a clock in the synagogue. "By no means," was the reply. "Have your clock, but put it outside the building, and then you can tell how late you come to the service."

Two rabbis were passing the beautiful synagogue in which one of them officiated. "How I envy you!" said the first. "You must be in a paradise." "Hold, friend!" the second exclaimed. "In the original paradise there was only one serpent, but in this congregation are many of them."—Abram S. Isaacs in Boston Post.

Rebuked.

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked a Dutch justice of a prisoner.

"Not guilty."

"Den vat you vant here? Go about your business!"

HE ARRESTED THE SENTRY.

Late Lieut.-Col. Turnbull Was Once Victim of the Man on the Bar.

The tragic death of Lieut.-Col. Thomas Turnbull, formerly of the Montreal Garrison Artillery, in Ottawa the other day, recalls an incident which took place in June, 1885, when that regiment was on its way home from the Northwest Rebellion to Montreal. The regiment embarked at Port Arthur upon the C.P.R. steamer Manitoba along with the Queen's Own, the Royal Grenadiers and the Ottawa Sharpshooters. The "boys" had had a good time in Winnipeg for the previous few days and there were a number of "sore heads" among them, as is natural when a body of men who have been debarred from the temptations of city life for weeks or months are again thrown into the vortex of metropolitan life. The consequence was that immediately upon the embarkation of the troops, the commanding officers detailed a sentry from each of the regiments to keep guard upon the bar, with orders to each not to admit any member of his regiment without orders from the officer of the day.

The sentry posted for the Garrison Artillery was a young chap who is now a newspaper man in Ottawa, and he took his orders very literally, for when Major Turnbull, as he then was, came along about midnight and wanted to get a drink, the sentry politely told him that he could not be admitted without an order from the officer of the day. The major got very angry at this literal interpretation of orders and, calling the sergeant of the guard, had the sentry placed under arrest for "insulting an officer." A new sentry was posted and the other spent the rest of the night in the corner of the hold dignified by the name of "guard room." The next morning there was a miniature court-martial and the sentry was exonerated on the ground that his inexperience had not taught him [illegible]at a staff officer had the right to [illegible] anywhere he desired.

Col. Clark, the Joker.

Stories of the peculiar drollery of Col. Hugh Clark, member of the Ontario Legislature for Centre Bruce, are innumerable, and the following one is a specimen:

It will be remembered that shortly before the general elections of June last the Liberal candidate in East Lambton, Mr. Montague Smith, committed suicide. Mr. R. J. MacCormack, M.P.P., took an eleventh-hour nomination, and to the surprise of everyone succeeding in defeated the sitting member, Mr. Hugh Montgomery. On the day the House was to assemble, Mr. MacCormack journeyed to Toronto, and at Guelph Junction Col. Clark, en route from Kincardine, came aboard. A mutual friend introduced him to the new member for East Lambton, and the humorist of Bruce responded:

"Oh, yes; I've heard about you: you committed suicide two weeks before the general election."

"I did not," said the astonished Mr. MacCormack.

"Oh yes, you did," said Col. Clark. "Weren't you the Liberal candidate?"

"Yes," said the new member.

"Well, I can prove that you did, for I have a paper at home that says 'Liberal candidate in East Lambton kills himself.'"

He Changed His Views.

One of the new members of the House of Commons is Albert Champagne, member-elect for the electoral division of Battleford. Albert is a native of Ottawa and is a brother of Napoleon Champagne, the French-Canadian member of the Board of Control of the Capital.

Now Napoleon is a staunch Roman Catholic and a red-hot Conservative, while Albert is just as strong a Grit. When Napoleon was asked to explain how it was that his brother should have been elected to the House of Commons as a Liberal, he replied with a twinkle in his eye:

"You can never tell what a boy will do when he leaves home! The first thing Albert did was to marry a Presbyterian and the next was to turn Grit."

Hordes of Wolves.

D. B. Nixon has shot 22 wolves in the neighborhood of Dog Lake this season. He came in with the ears of nine which he shot in a pack of 16. Wolves were plentiful all through the district, and considerable profit is being made in killing them for bounty.

SHELVING NECESSARY LEGISLATION.

From Farm and Dairy.

For several years there has been an agricultural committee of the Ontario Legislature. Until the present session this committee has been known largely in name only. A different policy has been adopted under the new Minister of Agriculture. The committee has been addressed this session by several deputations representing different branches of agriculture seeking legislation in their respective interests. The fruit growers, the horse-breeders and the sheep-breeders presented their claims for further recognition in the way of legislation. Nothing unreasonable was asked for, and yet the session closes without any of their requests being granted.

If the agricultural committee is to be used as a means of shelving necessary legislation in the interests of the farmer, then it had better be relegated to its former standing of being merely a nominal adjunct to the legislative machinery that could do little harm if it did not do any good. It is always well to weigh carefully all requests for legislation, but it would seem als if the agricultural committee this session was all "weigh" and no action. The results will be unfortunate as some of the legislation asked for should have been granted at this session.

For instance, there is no sufficient reason why the request of the fruitmen, that the San Jose Scale Act be enlarged to include certain other insect pests injurious to fruit, should not have been granted at this session. The situation is urgent. Codling moth and other pests besides the scale played sad havoc with many orchards last year. To postpone a matter of this kind for further consideration indicates that the members of the committee and the government do not grasp the seriousness of the situation and that the country is going to have to suffer on that account.

The request of the sheepmen should have been granted this session also. The amendments asked for in regard to the Act have been before the sheep breeders of the province for several years. The question has been discussed pro and con till it is almost worn threadbare. And yet the committee decided upon a postponement till next session under the plea that a fuller consideration of the question was necessary.

The licensing of stallions and legislation regulating the breeding of horses is a big question and there was some excuse for postponing action. And yet this is a matter that has been thoroughly threshed out by the Horse Breeders' Association and at the winter fairs as well as at meetings held all through the province, where all classes of farmers had an opportunity to have their say. Surely the information that the legislators have had at their disposal for many months past should have enabled them to have come to some decision on this important question at the present session. A draft bill at least might have been submitted to the legislature, and its final enactment postponed for another year. This would have brought the question forcibly before the people and given an opportunity to hear from those opposed to such legislation being enacted, in the interval.

Some of the legislation asked for was just as urgent as that granted to the dairymen and should have become law at this session of the legislature. This being the first session with Hon. Mr. Duff as Minister of Agriculture, some allowances will have to be made on that score. Lack of time to thoroughly acquaint himself with the details of much of the legislation asked for may be given with reason as an explanation for more not having been done. Better things will be expected at the next session of the legislature.

THE CHEESE AND BUTTER CROP

From Farm and Dairy.

We hear about the grain crop, hay crop, fruit crop, calf and lamb crop, etc., etc., but this crop of cheese and butter although one of the most profitable of farm products, is generally dubbed country produce. I suppose because it is a finished product and does not admit further manipulation.

The most protfiable business (on the farm or of the farm) is the business that can be worked without impairing the capital stock. We have on the farm a few of those lines such as the production of eggs, the fruit crop, the maple syrup crop, the honey crop, the wool crop, as well as the cheese and butter crop. True it requires a lot of labor to produce this crop of cheese and butter, too often the cow is charged up with the labor and feed consumed and only credited with the amount received from factory cheque, forgetting that the calf she has dropped, the milk cream and butter that has been used by the family, and the other by-products such as whey and skimmed milk.

The bacon producers of Ontario are very much concerned about the unprofitableness of the hog at the present time and are anxious to make enquiry in Denmark. The secret of their success is that the Danes are great butter producers. They feed their skim milk to hogs and these poor hogs can't help but grow big and get fat. The Danes know which to credit, the cow or the hog.

What we want is two profits, one at the producers' end, to get the largest quantity of the richest milk at the lowest possible cost, and the other profit at the consumers end that the quality of the product is such that it commands the largest possible price.

The Agricultural Department could not do a better thing for the dairy industry than to issue a bulletin showing the value of milk, cheese and butter, comparing them with other foods and that such comparison be continually kept before the public.

OUR SEA.

The Sea! The Sea!
Our own home-land, the Sea!
'Tis, as it always was, and still, please God, will be,
When we are gone,
Our own,
Possessing it for Thee,
Ours, ours, and ours alone,
The Anglo-Saxon Sea.
The stripped, moon-shining, naked-bosomed Sea.

No jerry-building here;
No scenes that once were dear
Beneath man's tawdry touch to disappear;
Always the same, the Sea,
Th' unstable-steadfast Sea.
'Tis, as it always was, and still, please God, will be,
When we are gone,
Our own,
Vice-regents under Thee,
Ours, ours, and ours alone,
The Anglo-Saxon Sea.
The mighty-furrowed, moody-minded Sea.

New suns and moons arise;
Perish old dynasties;
For ever rise and die the centuries;
Only remains the Sea,
Our right of way, the Sea.
'Tis, as it always was, and still, please God, will be,
When we are gone,
Our own,
Our heritage from Thee,
Ours, ours, and ours alone,
The Anglo-Saxon Sea.
Our good, grey, faithful, Saxon-loving Sea.

—From "The Gentleman," by Alfred Ollivant.

Seeing and Thinking.

Most people see an object when they think of it. They can see before their eyes a geometrical drawing or the figures on a chessboard when they think of them. In order to think at all most men make use of images, though they may be of different kinds. Thus one man when he thinks of "Italy" sees just the printed word; another sees the country's outline on a map; another may see the country spread out before him, with its villages and towns. Psychologists are beginning to classify the different aids or images of which men make use. Some, for example, hear the words of their thought within themselves; others read them, as if the words were written generally in black on a white ground.—London Post.

To Pluck Them.

Lord Justice Mathew once tried a case in which a money lender sued a youth who had fallen into his hands. The plaintiff demurred at counsel's referring to him constantly as a "money lender" and protested that he was something in addition to that.

"What is the addition?" inquired the judge.

"Well, I'm—well, a dealer in—er—birds."

"Certainly—pigeons?" quietly asked the judge.—London Telegraph.

Got What He Could.

The great specialist's patient, after many weeks of treatment, had at last been declared cured of an "incurable" disease, and with a grateful feeling he asked the physician the amount of his bill.

"That depends, my dear sir," said the specialist. "Whenever I treat a man I always make it a point to determine his occupation and how large a family he has to support. Then I make out my bill accordingly. May I ask what you do for a living?"

"I am a poet," replied the patient soulfully.

"In that case," said the physician, "if you will give me the money in cash now, it'll be a dollar and a half."

You Lose Weight During the Night.

Don't rush off at once to the doctor if you find that during your sleep you have lost nearly four pounds. And don't get worried if you find that a brisk walk has involved a similar loss. Scientific investigation shows that the healthy human being is losing and gaining weight through the whole twenty-four hours. You are lightest just before breakfast, but one hour later you may have gained twenty-eight ounces, while, after losing and gaining off and on during the day, a good dinner in the evening will add no less than thirty-four ounces to your avoirdupois. The biggest drop takes place while man is in the arms of Morpheus, the average loss being three and a half pounds.

His Sermon on Women.

An English preacher in the seventeenth century, speaking to the text, "To be or not to be," said that woman should be like and unlike three things. She should be like a snail, always keep within her own house, but not like a snail, to carry all she had on her back. She should be like an echo, to speak when she was spoken to, but not like an echo, always to have the last word. She should be like a town clock, always keep time and regularity, but not like a town clock, to speak so loud that all the town might hear her.

WHALING IN FAR NORTH

CANADA HAS REMARKABLE COLONY ON HERSCHEL ISLAND.

Little Group of Whale-Hunters Away Up on Our Arctic Seaboard Have Taken Fourteen Millions' Worth of Bone and Furs Since 1891—Inspector Jarvis, R.N.W.M.P., Tells of Their Habits and Customs.

On our Arctic coast, not far from the mouth of the Mackenzie river, there is a bit of territory about forty square miles in extent, consisting largely of rocks, but with some soil, which, during the brief summer of the Far North, is covered with a luxuriant growth of grass sprinkled with beautiful wild flowers. It is known as Herschel Island, and here our Royal Northwest Mounted Police maintain a post principally for the purpose of assuring that all goes well with the whalers, who often make the island their winter headquarters.

The whale these fishermen seek is known as the bowhead. The first was taken in Canadian waters in 1891. Since that time the catch in those waters has been 1,345 whales. On an average each whale yields 2,000 pounds of whalebone, for which the average price during the past five years has been $5 a pound. This whalebone, therefore, had a value of $13,450,000. If to this be added the value of the fur trade carried on with the natives of the district the total reaches the sum of $14,850,000 — a trade certainly worth looking after. The trade in the bone of the bowhead whale is practically controlled by one firm of New Bedford, Mass., and buyers go to there from England, France, Germany, and practically from all parts of the world. The bone is used in the manufacture of corsets, parasols, and other like articles.

Fifteen years ago these whales were taken in large numbers around Herschel Island, but the whales are each year being driven farther and farther to the eastward. At various times whales have been taken bearing the heads of harpoons with which they had been wounded many years before. For instance, in 1886 a whale was caught, having stuck into it the head of a harpoon marked "Ansel Gibbs," a ship wrecked fifteen years before on Marble Island, in Hudson Bay. Another case is that of the whale taken in 1893 by the ship "Norwhal," the whale carrying a flint harpoon-head. Such heads had not been used for twenty-five years, so that the whale must have carried it at least that length of time.

In the vicinity of Herschel Island lives two tribes of natives. Those living on the island and along the coast are known as Kogmollicks, and naturally they subsist chiefly on fish, seal, and white whale. For some unknown reason they are looked down on by the Nuntalmutes, or the inshore natives, who subsist chiefly on what they kill in the mountains, such as mountain sheep and deer.

No people could be given a higher character than Inspector Jarvis, of the Herschel Island R.N.W.M. Police post, gives of these residents of the Arctic coast, the despised Kogmollicks. "They are quite religious," he says, "holding services on Sunday, and doing no work on that day. Their religion they carry into their everyday lives. They neither beg nor steal, and slander is unknown among them. They are as near 'God's chosen people' as any I have ever seen. After my experience of this world I could almost wish I had been born an Esquimo Kogmollick. They are very fond of their children, and take the greatest care of them. The children never require to be chastised, and are very obedient. One never sees any quarrlling or bickering among them. They show the true sport in their games of football and baseball, playing these games on the hard snow when the thermometer registers 25 degrees below zero.

"There has been no crime reported in the district to date."

Four marriages took place on the island during the year, one of which was quite noteworthy, writes Inspector Jarvis. The bride was a young widow, not more than 17 years of age, and she had lost both her feet three winters before, when they had been amputated after being severely frozen. The bride was given away by a brother-in-law named Supidido, which in English meant "Sour Potatoes," certainly a remarkable name, and not a very cheerful one for the master of ceremonies at a wedding. "The wedding breakfast," writes the inspector, "consisted of seal meat, whale meat and frozen rotten fish. The ceremony took place at the Igaloo or house of the brother-in-law, there being about fifty persons present. The size of the Igaloo was ten by twelve feet. I was invited, and got as far as the door. The odor arising from the preparation of the breakfast was more than I could stand, and I had to retire.

It is quite possible, thinks Inspector Jarvis, that minerals may be obtained in this far northern quarter of the Dominion. "It has been generally known here for many years," he writes, "that the natives to the eastward have been using copper for cooking utensils, harpoons, needles, etc. Capt. Klengenberg, who wintered at Prince Albert's Landing, brought down a good many specimens of copper from there. I am informed by the natives that there is a great deal of graphite and other minerals in the vicinity of Richard's Island. I am of the opinion that within the next few years we shall be called upon to act as mining recorders in this district. Along the coast are what are called the Smoking Cliffs. They consist of cliffs 200 feet high, and the smoke is said to arise from burning sulphur."

Hotel Dieu Alterations.

Extensive alterations are being made to the Hotel Dieu. Part of the building, which will be 250 years old in July, is to be remodelled, and an additional storey will be put on, which will be utilized for new wards. The Hotel Dieu was founded in 1658, and the old building, which is being altered, was constructed.

Deputy Warden Killed With An Axe By Convict Serving For Life

Edmonton, Alta., April 16.—While superintending six convicts in the penitentiary carpenter shop yesterday, Deputy Warden Richard Stedman was suddenly set upon and murdered with an axe by Gary R. Barrett.

Barrett, aged 55, is serving a life sentence for the murder of his stepson about a year ago on the homestead near Battleford.

No reason is known for the crime, which was witnessed by five other prisoners.

The blow half severed the head from the shoulders. The deputy warden was taken unawares, sank to the floor and in ten minutes was lifeless.

After the blow the murderer quietly surrendered and was locked up in his cell. The deputy warden had left the office of Warden McCauley about 10.25 for a tour of the building. He went direct to the carpenter shop, which is in a part of a new building recently erected at the rear of the yard. Entering the shop, in which were Instructor A. Pope and six convicts, to speak to the instructor.

In an instant Barrett had picked up a short carpenter's axe that was lying nearby, and advancing a step towards the unsuspecting man, struck him a fearful blow with the sharp edge of the instrument. The axe struck the back of the head at the base of the skull and half severed the head from the trunk.

There had been no quarrel with the deputy warden, and the fatal blow was delivered without warning or provocation. The murderer has never been a troublesome prisoner, but was constantly complaining about his health, and claimed that he did not get a fair trial. He was always morose.

Known In Ontario.

Toronto, April 16.—Ex-Ald. R. J. Score is a brother-in-law of the deceased, who came to Canada from Arundel, Sussex County, England, about 35 years ago. For some years he stayed in Toronto, being connected with J. Ross Robertson of The Telegram. His father was a doctor in England. He was warden of the Penetang Reformatory for over 25 years, leaving for Edmonton about three years ago.

He leaves a widow and two sons, John, in the N.W.M.P., and Thomas, in business in Lacombe, Sask.

JAILS OWN FAMILY.

Dufferin Farmer Seeks Protection From His Relatives.

Orangeville, April 16.—As the result of information laid by James Johnston, a well-known and wealthy farmer of Mulmer Township, near Lavender, five members of his own family are now in jail here, charged with threatening to injure the person and property of the informant. They are:

Mrs. Tod Jane Johnston, his wife, aged 70.

Jane Johnston, daughter, aged 37.
David Johnston, son, aged 23.
Albert Edward Johnston, aged 25.
James Johnston, son, aged 27.

Constables William Laverty, Joseph White and George Waltam encountered many difficulties in arresting them, and it was only after a struggle that the informant's wife was handcuffed. Three men were necessary to hold her down.

The constables found the two women in a nude state and it was with difficulty that they found enough in the house to dress them before bringing them to town.

Not quite as much difficulty was encountered with the other members of the family, but several attempts were made by the son on the journey to town to escape.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The beatification of Joan of Arc will take place at Rome on Sunday.

A gas explosion killed three miners at Farmington, W.Va., yesterday.

Revolts threaten in various parts of Turkey. The private soldiers are masters at Constantinople.

A second fire in the course of three hours destroyed Dr. Caverley's residence at Belleville. Loss $7,000.

It is doubtful if the creditors of Ennis & Stoppani of New York will get more than two cents on the dollar.

No news has been received of Bellamy, the French aeronaut, who went up in a balloon from the Crystal Palace three days ago.

Mr. James Elliott, general manager of the Molsons Bank, will retire, and a number of other bank changes are announced at Montreal.

In an electoral address Mr. Joseph Martin characterizes the adoption of tariff reform as the greatest calamity that could befall Britain, with the exception of war, famine or pestilence.

Priest Starts Fatal Riot.

Mexico City, April 16.—Rioting occurred at Velardena, a mining camp in Coahuila, 32 men being killed and many injured. The trouble was instigated by Father Ramon Valenzuela, parish priest, it is asserted, who lies in a hospital hovering between life and death. Fourteen of the rioters were executed by troops.

The fighting occurred when the mayor attempted to stop a religious procession headed by the village priest, the laws of Mexico forbidding such parades. A thousand parishioners followed the priest, wishing to witness the annual burning of Judas and when the orders of the mayor became known the mob stoned and later burned the house of the mayor, and then started on a general rampage.

Father Valenzuela was arrested. One of his followers smuggled a knife to his cell and the priest stabbed himself six times.

Scientists Cannot Incorporate.

Quebec, April 16—The Upper House of the Legislature killed yesterday the bill to incorporate the first congregation of Christ Scientists in this province, situated in Montreal.

The leaders of both political parties supported the measure, but the rank and file, headed by the medical men in the House, and their friends, killed the measure by their opposition to the principles of faith cures, supporting themselves on extracts read by them from Mrs. Eddy's writings.

Swinburne Buried.

London, April 16.—The body of Algernon Charles Swinburne, the poet, was laid at rest yesterday in the churchyard of St. Boniface, Bonchurch, Isle of Wight. In accordance with the wishes of the poet, the burial ceremony was omitted. Mr. Swinburne's sister, his nearest relative, and his friend, Watts-Dunton with whom he lived, were prevented by illness from being present at the interment.

C.P.R. Tackles Jim Hill.

Winnipeg, April 16.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to invade North Dakota in competition with the Hill lines.

It is announced that the road will at once extend its branch, which now ends at Mowbray, in southern Manitoba, to Dakota, to connect with the Soo line. The Soo line also will be extended to Brandon, Manitoba, giving a direct line from Brandon to Minneapolis, running parallel and between two Hill lines, which now run into Manitoba, one ending at Brandon, and the other at Portage la Prairie.

This follows Hill's announced intention of building an air line into Winnipeg from the boundary and of building extensive terminals here.

London, April 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Two hundred Salvation Army immigrants sailed yesterday.

The Hudson Bay and Pacific Development Companies have registered with a capital of $750,000. Its objects are to construct and operate railways, tramways, telegraphs, and telephonic systems in Canada and elsewhere.

Important steps have been taken by the council of the Surveyors' Institution, with a view to establishing reciprocity between the Governments and examining bodies throughout the Empire.

Sealing Schooner Lost.

St. John's, Nfld., April 16.—With but a short distance separating them from their port and a market for their catch, the 200 men composing the crew of the sealing steamer Vanguard were forced to abandon their ship, and all the results of a month's strenuous work. The steamer's main shaft was broken among the icefields. The steamer Algerine picked them up after their own craft had sunk. A catch of 9,000 seals went down.

"Blackhand" Duel In Streets.

New York, April 16.—Andrea Gambino, a young Italian barber, who three years ago killed a man with two loads from a shotgun, was himself killed in a running battle with three countrymen through Brooklyn streets, while thousands of persons looked on. Petro Zarcone, a butcher, who started the shooting, told the police that Gambino approached him and demanded $50 under penalty of death.

Inquest Perhaps on Tuesday.

Toronto, April 16.—There is a possibility of the Kinrade murder inquest being brought on next Tuesday instead of Thursday evening, as the crown has some 50 witnesses yet to call, and it will be impossible to hear them all at one sitting, and it is likely that several more sessions will have to be held.

"Broke" Milton Jail.

Milton, April 16.—A prisoner named William Murray escaped from jail here yesterday. Before he escaped he stole a brown suit of another prisoner and it was an hour before his escape was made known.

Got Drunk In Witness Room.

Orangeville, April 16.—There was an unusual occurrence in the courtroom at the Assizes when Justice Clute ordered Thomas McLellan, a witness, from the box and had him placed under arrest for intoxication.

The court was informed that liquor had been taken into the witness-box and McLellan admitted that he had been given liquor there, but by whom he said he did not know.

PATTEN'S PLUNGE IN JULY WHEAT

Six Cent Slump Pinches Bull Traders in Winnipeg.

J. A. PATTEN BUYS 3,000,000

Big Bull Operater Checks Downward Movement Precipitated by Winnipeg Drop and Makes Heavy Purchase For July Delivery—Winnipeg Dealers Suffer Badly From the Fall In Chicago.

Chicago, April 16.—It was a day of tumult and sharply shifting fortunes in the wheat pit of the Board of Trade yesterday. July wheat following a docile advance to a new high level, suddenly dropped an extreme 4 3-8 cents. The "pyramider" fortunes of small speculators vanished in a trice and the day was saved from rout only by the vigorous exertions of the bull leader, James A. Patten.

Within the last fifteen minutes of trading Mr. Patten bought 3,000,000 bushels of wheat for July delivery, while he chewed the stub of a cigar and ran his fingers reflectively through the unshaven grey stubble which there had been no time to remove from his face.

"Nothing but a flurry," he said, but that was after the turbulent pit had been deserted for the day.

The speculative day on the board opened without indications of the sensation to come. May and July wheat quietly rose to new high prices, the former to $1.29 1-4, and the latter to $1.18 7-8. The July price was the highest since 1877, when a European war exhausted reserves, but neither mark created unusual comment.

It was fifteen to twenty minutes before closing time when the selling tornado hit the pit.

Here Patten purchases made their influences felt and the close of the season found July at $115 5-8 to 3-4; May at $1.27 1-2 to 5-8, and September at $1.06 1-4.

Winnipeg, April 16.—For a time yesterday morning it looked as though the long-expected slump in wheat prices had come and the bottom had fallen right out of the market. Pandemonium reigned in the trading pit, and scenes unprecedented in the history of the local exchange were witnessed. Eleventh-hour speculators found themselves at the tender mercies of the bears, and they got a squeezing they will not soon forget.

Adrift In Small Boat.

Rochester, N.Y., April 16.—Without a mouthful of food for more than 24 hours, and living in momentary expectation of being swamped in his frail boat, Edgar L. Brown, of Port Hope, who was reported to have been drowned, when a boat, in which he had fallen asleep, was blown out to sea, reached Port Hope, according to a telegram yesterday. Brown was fishing on Round Pond near here, fell asleep in his boat and was carried out into the lake. Word was sent to the life-saving station, and Capt. Forbes manned the boat with his crew. After four hours' fighting, they had to give up.

Four Men Drowned.

Glace Bay, N.B., April 16.—Four men, Michael Driver, Geo. Hancock, Harry Gardiner and William McLeod, were drowned yesterday off Big Glace Bay by the capsizing of a boat. Another, Thomas Wrench, was rescued in an unconscious condition, and has not yet sufficiently revived to give an account of how the accident occurred. Two of the men were found tangled up in the sail, and the remaining three discovered a short distance from where the accident happened, and about three-quarters of a mile from shore. The water is quite shallow. Driver leaves a wife and seven children.

Wealthy Detroiter Wanted.

Windsor, April 16.—Crown Attorney Rodd has applied for extradition papers for W. D. C. Moebs, a wealthy Detroiter, on a charge of robbing and endangering the life of Miss Celeste Lootens, now of this city.

She claims that while in company with Moebs at a roadhouse in Sandwich West Township, he attacked her, threatening her life with a revolver and choking her, and that Moebs grabbed some valuable jewelry from her. She found it unsafe to remain in Detroit and has taken up her residence here. Moebs has engaged counsel to fight against extradition.

Thousands Homeless by Fire.

Mexico City, April 16.—A great forest fire is raging in the Zitacisro Mountains in Michsocan. Hundreds of the men who have been fighting the flames have been compelled to give up the unequal struggle, and the mountain is now burning from end to end, a distance of many miles. Thousands have been rendered homeless.

New Bishop of Moosonee.

Winnipeg, April 16.—The house of bishops of Rupert's Land assembled yesterday, the principal business being the election of two missionary bishops.

Rev. George Holmes, former missioner bishop of Moosonee, was elected Bishop of Athabasca, and Rev. J. G. Anderson of St. Peter's, succeeds him at Moosonee.

Barrie Stallion Show.

Barrie, April 16.—Ideal weather favored the spring stallion show in Barrie yesterday and the town was alive with farmers. The show was pronounced by Judge Brockbank of the Department of Agriculture, the best he had yet attended in Ontario.

Travel Long Way to Die.

New York, April 16.—Unfamiliarity with the use of gas yesterday caused the death of Mrs. Jennie Stratigakis and her cousin George, aged 17, and probably will result in the death of Aspasia Stratigakis, all of whom arrived from Greece Wednesday.

CATTLE DEALER SAYS PRICES ON LOCAL MARKET ARE MUCH BETTER THAN TORONTO OFFERS

If a cattle buyer told a farmer of Peterborough county that they can get better prices for their cattle and hogs than they can in Toronto they would call the honest buyer a descendant of Ananias. But according to the statements that are heard now and then within the precincts of the market clerk's office such is the case. Two men who attended the Toronto market yesterday stated that they saw cattle sold there for $4.35, which could not be bought in Peterborough for less than $4.80. They also remarked that the butchers of this city are in some cases bringing their beef from Toronto. Aim high is apparently the motto of the farmers of this district and from all accounts they are aiming higher than they think. Opposition on the big markets is what is bringing down the prices and the buyers suffer most if any one does.

Fifty Men Heard Mr. Drum At Banquet At Y. M. C. A. Last Night

There were fifty present at the informal banquet held at the Y. M. C. A. last evening, at which Mr. C. R. Drum, the Secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. gave an interesting and instructive address. His remarks were followed by a conference on the best method of producing more efficient and a larger number of male teachers in the Sunday school. As a result of the conference much valuable information was imparted to Sunday school workers, and a resolution was passed urging the religious committee of the association to co-operate with the Superintendents of the Sunday Schools in the organization of a male teachers' training class.

The supper, which was participated in by almost fifty men interested in Sunday school work, was supplied by Coleman Bros., and the menu provided was up to their usual high standard of excellence.

Mr. Drum was given a most enthusiastic reception on rising to speak. He was introduced by Mr. J. F. Thornton, chairman of the religious committee.

He spoke at length on the value and necessity of Bible study, and suggested ways in which the church could use the Young Men's Christian Association in the study of the Bible in fields that are not now reached.

Rev. Mr. Keith made a few remarks on the subject of more Bible study in the church, and Mr. W. B. Warne spoke on the need of Bible study in the Association.

To-night Mr. Drum will give an address in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate. His subject will be "The Boy."

Three Small Boats Locked Through—Open Navigation

Navigation on the Trent Canal was opened yesterday for the season of 1909 and all the bridgetenders and lockmasters are on duty. The lift locks are not yet open as the painters are not yet through with their work. The locks have been thoroughly ovedhauled during the winter and are ready for operation. At the present time there are 14 men handling paint brushes and they are rushing the work so that the locks will be ready in a few days. If there were any boats to lock through there would be no trouble as the painters could stop, but as yet the big boats are not ready.

At the Peterborough locks three boats were let through. Two gasoline launches, one of which went down and two came up, and the Rob Roy were the first to navigate the river. The Otonabee Navigation Company's steamer Monarch is ready at Rice Lake and will be up on Saturday and the Rainbow is also expected up to-morrow.

On the Lakefield section the government boat Empire, is running between Lakefield and Young's Point, while on the Lakefield division, Baker's tugs have started bringing logs down from Scugog lake.

The fourteen lighthouses on the Lindsay river are now being fixed up and will be ready next week for the season.

The ice is all out of the canal waterway except in Clear Lake, but even that is not very bad and a steamer could navigate with a little trouble. It is not expected that the ice will last for more than a few days. Stony Lake is now practically clear as are also the other lakes and in rivers further up the canal south to Rice Lake, there is no more ice than there is in summer.

All the navigation companies are busy with their boats getting them ready and it is anticipated that the freighters as well as the passenger boats will have a busy season.

Sunday School Convention Is To Commence On May 3rd

A convention under the joint auspices of the City and County Sunday School Associations will be held in the City of Peterborough, commencing at 8 p.m., on Monday, May 3rd, and continuing throughout the next day and evening.

The Monday evening meeting which will also be the annual business meeting of the City Association, will be held in the Schoolroom of St. John's Church, and will be addressed by Rev. Canon Green, of Orillia, President of the Ontario Sunday School Association.

On the forenoon of Tuesday, May 4th, there will be three conferences:—

Conference of Primary Workers, conducted by Mrs. E. D. Lewis, Peterborough.

Intermediate by R. W. Clarke, Millbrook, former President of the Ontario S. S. Association.

Adult Bible Class by J. A. Jackson, B.A., Toronto, General Secretary, Ontario Sunday School Association.

At the afternoon session addresses on different phases of the work will be delivered by [illegible] of Norwood; Rev. H. [illegible], of Peterborough; Dr. Harrison, of Keene, and Mr. Jackson, of Toronto.

The evening meeting will be addressed by Rev. S. T. Bartlett, Superintendent of Methodist Sunday Schools, and by Mr. M. Parkinson, of Toronto, on the Adult Bible Class.

While it is expected that all Sunday School workers as far as possible will make an effort to attend, every school is urged to appoint delegates, who will represent the different departments of the work. Billets will be provided in the City for those who desire it, if notice is sent to the Secretary, R. Lees, 193 Smith street, not later than April 26th.

Tuesday's meeting will be held in St. Paul's Church.

Mr. R. C. Heard is President of the County Association, while Rev. H. J. Keith is President of the City Association.

Marathon Race Thrown In With Turf Club's 24th May Matinee

At a meeting of the Turf Club last night it was unanimously decided to hold a matinee on May 24th, and to offer a good list of prizes in order to encourage a large field of entries.

The prizes decided upon were as follows

Free-for-all: first, one set of hobbles; 2nd, one heavy wool blanket, 3rd; one cooler, 4th, one pair of quarter boots.

Slow Class (2.50)—First, one set hobbles; second, one heavy wool blanket, 3rd, one cooler; 4th, one pair of quarter boots.

There is also to be a five-mile running race for men, to use a hackneyed term, a five-mile Marathon. It is open to all, and the prizes that are being offered are such that it is expected a large field will enter.

The first prize is a gentleman's gold watch; second, a Signet ring; third, a new hat.

This matinee will be held in the afternoon of the holiday and should be largely attended. Those who saw the Matinee on December 24th will not soon forget it. One of the races went six heats before it was settled, in the gloom ofwhat was practically night. The Turf Club gained many friends by the events of that day, and they will be glad to hear that another matinee is to be held. The same horses will be back and others also, as both races are open. In the 2.50 class any horse in the country that has no mark will be permitted to enter. The Turf Club will make further announcements regarding the event.

MUST SHOP EARLY NOW

The Drygoods Section of the Retail Merchants' Association Close Stores at 9.30 To-morrow Night—Others Will Follow Suit.

THIS IS A GOOD MOVE.

The Retail Merchants 'Association have made rapid progress in their efforts to have the local stores close down as early as possible on Saturday nights. The dry goods and millinery sections of the trade will start the ball rolling to-morrow night by closing down at 9.30 o'clock sharp, and will continue the practice every Saturday night. The following firms have already signed the agreement: Robt. Fair & Co., T. H. Adams, A. W. Cressman, R. Hall and Son, T. C. Elliott, Mrs. W. Darnley, Miss E. M. Allen and Ennis and Armstrong, and A. G. Dickson.

The publis are reminded that the agreement is to come in force to-morrow night, and are asked to do their shopping early in order to help along in the good work. Other sections of the Association will sign a similar agreement for early Saturday night closing.

SAWMILL TO START WORK NEXT WEEK

The Dickson Company's mill at Burnham's Point, East City, will commence operations for the season next Thursday. There is a large number of logs in the Little Lake which will keep the mill busy until the drives begin to come down. The first supply is expected will be down about the middle of June.

THE RACES WERE FAST

Y. M. C. A. Held Contests for Boys This Afternoon—N. Phelan Won the Junior in Fast Time From a Large Field—W. Eastwood Senior Winner,

GREAT INTEREST TAKEN

The mile races for junior and senior boys held by the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. this afternoon were warmly contested and proved very interesting, a large number of people gathering at the Y. M. C. A. to witness the start and finish. The course was from the Y along Murray street to Water street, along Water to Smith, to George street and return along that thoroughfare to the starting point. The distance is well over a mile and both seniors and juniors covered the course in excellent time

Eleven youngsters faced the starter in the race for boys under 14 years of age, and they had a lively race all the way, the leaders cutting out a fast pace that caused a number of the youngsters to drop rapidly behind. Nagle Phelan was the first to cross the line after an interesting race in which the four leaders had a merry battle all the way. Harold Hill was second, Ross Laing third, and Harold Morrow, fourth, the four being pretty well bunched.

The time for the juniors was 6.20, which is pretty rapid travelling for boys of that age. Three started in the race for boys over 14 years. Ray Scott, W. Eastwood and Bruce Lees. They started at a rapid clip, but Eastwood soon established a big lead and won handily by fifty yards. Scott was second about the same distance in front of Lees. The latter was far the smallest of the trio, but finished strong and fresh.

The time was 6:20:1-5, a fifth of a second slower than that made by the juniors.

WANT 55 HELPERS

Farmers to That Number Need Help—Will be in the City To-morrow and are Anxious to Get Help—Is a Chance for Unemployed.

GOOD WAGES OFFERED.

Fifty-five farmers' names are on the immigration agent's books awaiting help in their spring work. Those men in the city who need work will if, they have any industry and ability about them, easily find employment by calling on Mr. Howson to-morrow between the hous of ten and three o'clock. The demand is growing, the wages are good and yet many men persist in walking the streets instead of taking up this work until increased business affords something better. The farmers themselves will be in the city to-morrow, anxious to get help, and little or no trouble will be experienced by those really looking for it.

ONLY REGULARS GET CHARITY

Owing to the scarcity of funds the Charity Board is now giving only to its regulars. They are those who receive aid the whole year round. The others have had to be refused and are compelled to get along as well as they can under the circumstances. The Charity Department helped the needy cases as much as was deemed advisable during the winter but the demand was at all times inclined to be heavy and as a result the treasury was depleted before the fine weather had duly arrived.

"It Would Be In The Interest Of The C.P.R. To Have New Grain Route Join At Havelock Instead Of Peterborough"

A deputation from the Board of Trade consisting of President Thos. Bennett, Secretary P. J. Wright and Mr. S. S. Joyce, accompanied by Reeve Jos. Knox and Councillors Geo. Phillips and Thos. Wood, met General Superintendent Jas. Oborne and Superintendent J. R. Nelson of the C. P. R. Company, at Peterborough on Good Friday in Mr. Oborne's private car, and interviewed those officials regarding certain matters of importance to Havelock and its interests.

The members of the deputation, were received with great cordiality by Mr. Oborne and Mr. Nelson and were informed that the Company's operations in Havelock this year would be quite extensive. It was their intention to expend twenty or twenty-five thousand dollars in improving their yard facilities. The new track to the West End semaphore, for which the Town Council granted permission to cross Concession street last week, is intended to serve as a lead for all the sidings at the west end of the yard. This work will also necessitate the abolition of the old cattle sheds at that point to make room for moving the sidings further south, and when completed, the Havelock yard will be one of the most up-to-date terminals on the line.

Speaking of the Company's water supply here, Mr. Oborne stated that he thought the present supply controlled by a new dam erected last fall, would be sufficient for some years yet, but that should it at any time prove insufficient, it would be an easy matter to secure an unlimited supply by laying a pipe line to Trent River.

In discussing the Victoria Harbour grain route he said the Directors had informed him that the line could be constructed far cheaper by building it direct to Havelock and that it would be in the interests of the Company to adopt that course instead of joining the present road at Peterborough. He would not commit himself to any definite statement as to which survey would finally be adopted, but told them to go home contented; that Havelock would always remain a terminal point on the Company's system, and that he was much pleased to see that the Board of Trade and the Council had taken such action as would lead to better relations and understanding with the Company, the officials of which by the way, recognized that they had created Havelock, that it was one of their children and that its interests were their interests.

The deputation are greatly delighted with the assurances given by Mr. Oborne and with the courtesy with which they were received.—Standard.

Norwood Constable Complains That Citizens Will Not Divulge The Name Of Parties Connected With Escapade

The village constable has just grounds for complaint with regard to the action of certain citizens in refusing to give him information which they were said to be in possession of with respect to the parties concerned in the acts of vandalism committed on the morning of the 4th inst. We are told that the constable hearing that certain persons had knowledge of the persons implicated went to them and asked that they give him whatever information or clue they might have but they flatly refused to tell him anything. This is not right. The village officer should at all times have the assistance and support of the citizens. What is the use of making laws and appointing an officer to support them if we as citizens withhold from him information that will assist him in the performance of his duties? True citizenship demands that we should give the officers of the law every assistance in our power. A constable may be ever so willing to do his duty, but he cannot be on duty always, he must have rest and sleep like any other person. We do not say that any citizen should act as a spy or an informant, but no citizen should when called upon refuse to assist an officer of the law in the proper performance of his duty. We are speaking now without prejudice. We have no axe to grind. We do not know who the persons are, but we are told that the village constable was refused information by several in regard to this case.

MAN CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

A man over 60 years of age, faced a serious charge, laid by a mother and daughter, in the police court this morning

In court to-day he elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty. After hearing the story of the little girl and her mother. His Worship said that he had no doubt as of the truth of evidence adduced, and found the prisoner guilty. He remanded him one week for sentence.

Lenoir was arrested yesterday afternoon by P. C. Newhall. He visited the complainant's home on Wednesday afternoon. The little girl was alone in the house, her mother being over in the city, and, according to the child's story, Lenoir's actions were most improper. He again called on the following day when insulting language was used towards the mother.

ALEXANDER MARSHALL AT THE GOSPEL HALL

Mr. Alexander Marshall held his first meeting last night in Gospel Hall, corner of George and Brock streets.

He is a clear old time preacher of the orthodox style and leaves no room for doubt as to his faith in the plenary inspiration of the books of Genesis, Daniel and Jonah and all other books of the Bible.

The Scripture forming the subject of last night's address was Jude, 1st Chap. This Scripture he said revealed the state of the last days of the dispensation and the great apostacy apparent on all sides and the necessity for contending earnestly for the faith that was once delivered to the saints.

Mr. Marshall will speak again to-night. Everyone should make an effort to hear him.

Twenty-five years ago Mr. Marshall first preached in Peterborough. His old friends are glad to see him again.

PORT HOPE MAN CARRIED ACROSS LAKE ONTARIO IN A FISHING PUNT

Port Hope, April 15.—Tossed about in the open lake in a small punt for two nights and two days in the middle of April and given up for lost by the life-saving crew of Charlotte, N. Y., Edgar Brown, a former Port Hope man who has been working on a farm on the Manitou line, near Charlotte, was deposited by a merciful Providence on the Canadian shore near Grafton and lives to tell of a most miraculous escape from a watery grave. Late Sunday afternoon last Brown and a companion started out in a small, flat-bottomed punt from Round Pond, near Charlotte, to fish. The two men fell asleep at the shore.

When Brown woke up he was alone in the boat and was being carried helplessly out to sea. During the apparently endless night which followed Brown in his frail craft battled with the angry waves, and when daylight dawned he found himself far from shore. Meanwhile his employer, McGregor, had notified Captain Wm. Forbes of the life-saving department at Charlotte, but the search for the derelict by the crew was vain, and the Ontario car ferry steamer inward bound to Charlotte took the life-boat to port in tow.

All day Monday and Monday night Brown was tossed about on the lake in a heavy rain and wind, and on Tuesday at noon he was deposited in an emaciated condition on the Canadian shore near Grafton, where a farmer named Thomas Morgan, took the half-dead man in charge, and attended to his sufferings. Brown is now at his mother's home on Ellen street, in Port Hope, and has nearly recovered from his terrible experience. Rochester papers gave prominence to the supposed drowning, and his relatives in Port Hope had also been notified of his alleged death.

Will Likely Prosecute Young Man Said To Have Sent In False Alarm

The fire brigade was given another false alarm call last evening about ten minutes to nine. The alarm was sent in from box forty-two, at the corner of George and Dublin streets.

The number of false alarms that are sent in are far too many and the "smart Alecs" who are guilty of sending them are bound to be found out. Rewards have been offered for the conviction of persons guilty of such an offence and it is understod that Chief Howard has given the city solicitor the name of one young man who is suspected of tampering with the fire alarm boxes and of calling out the brigade unnecessarily. A police court case is likely to follow.

Local Trappers Return To The City With Over 200 Muskrats

Messrs. Lou. Brooks, Thos. Parker and Ab. Mitchell returned last evening from a muskrat trapping expedition in the north country. They had been away a couple of weeks and returned with over two hundred skins. They trapped principally between Lakefield and Young's Point and they are greatly pleased with their success, the number of muskrats which they caught being larger than that of most parties of the same size. The skins are splendid ones and will demand the highest prices from the furriers. They were on exhibition at the Queen's hotel this morning.

Muskrats Were Killed During The Winter And Are Scarce

The muskrats are very scarce this year. Messrs. Dan and Albert Whetung, of Chemong village, returned last week from Emily Creek, where they had been in search of the muskrat, but they came home without any. Mr. Whetung stated that the muskrats were all dead, having died last winter for want of water. The marshes where the muskrats built their houses last fall have all dried up. The dead muskrats can be seen floating in the creek. There will not be more than one quarter of the number of rats caught this year. All the trappers report a great scarcity and their harvest will not at all be a large one.

Work Has Been Begun on The Lawn Tennis Green of Bowling Club

The executive of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Association held a meeting on Wednesday night in the office of Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, when the estimates of the cost of preparing a tennis lawn adjoining the bowling green were considered. The report was presented by M. T. E. B. Yeats, chairman of the committee which was appointed for this purpose. The executive unanimously decided to go on with the work and to put the tennis lawn into shape. This work is now being done, the courts being prepared on the lot west of the bowling green. It is nearly as large as the latter and is admirably situated for tennis courts. Many players and young men interested in the game have signified their intention of playing on the new courts. The central location and the two games for the one membership fee add greatly to the attraction. The following members of the association have charge of the new tennis annex: Messrs. D. H. Moore, T. Brightman, D. Belleghem, and Dr. Marshall. The following were added to the membership committee: Messrs. S. T. Medd, T. E. B. Yeats, Dr. Wightman, and R. M. Waddell.

It was also decided to complete the games for the set of bowls presented by Mr. R. Neill, the schedule being completed before June 15. The players competing for this trophy are asked to take notice. The tennis courts will add greatly to the appearance of the lawn bowlers' premises and the two games should make the Brookside Lawn a very active localtity this summer.

Barbers Have Filed Petition For Early Closing Saturday

The barbers of the city have filed their petition with the City Clerk, petitioning for an early closing on Saturday nights. The present hour of closing is midnight, but the barbers do not turn away those who have not been shaved before that hour. The result is that the journeymen often work overtime. They are asking for the closing hour to be changed to 11 o'clock. The petition will be presented at the next regular meeting, asking for the necessary by-law.

Mass Meeting Will Be Held This Evening In Collegiate Institute

Mr. C. R. Drum, Secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. will commence his meetings in Peterborough to-night when a union mass meeting will be held in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute. Mr. Drum will speak on the subject "That Boy," and his remarks will be interesting and profitable.

To-morrow night, at 7 o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. there will be a mass meeting for boys, to be addressed by Mr. Drum. At this meeting the prizes for the wrestling matches and races that have been held by the boys department of the Y.M.C.A. will be presented.

TAX RATE AND ASSESSMENT

The tax rate of Stratford for the year 1909 will be 24½ mills on the dollar of assessment. This seems high in comparison with Peterborough's 19½ mills, but a great deal depends upon taking conditions into account. Stratford, it is pointed out, is paying for a modern city hall, paved streets, and other modern improvements and reducing its debenture debt rapidly. If Stratford's tax rate is high the city council and the ratepayers have something to show for the money raised and expended. The amount of a tax rate is to be considered either high or low, only when considered in relation to conditions. Within reasonable limits a tax rate cannot be considered high when the ratepayers receive good honest value and permanent results for the expenditure of the money raised under it. The tax rate too, has an intimate relation to the rate of assessment. An extremely high standard of assessment values may result in a low tax rate which may practically be much more excessive than a high rate imposed on the basis of a reasonably moderate assessment.

MILITARY DRILL IN SCHOOLS

At the Easter meeting of the Ontario Education Association, Toronto, strong ground was taken in a paper read by a Kirkfield trustee, against military drill in the schools. This is a question to which there are certainly two sides and it is worth considering whether or not the advantages do not counterbalance the disadvantages. Prominent among the former are the benefits derived in the development of a robust physique, and the current benefit of drill forming a distraction calculated to counteract the mental lassitude resulting from close application. But, if from no other ground than its disciplinary advantages school drill can be commended. One great lack of young life in these days is disciplined character, that can be depended upon to yield obedience to authority and deference to, and respect and veneration for, superiors in age, position or character. Irreverence and lack of respect for parental or other authority is the crying sin of the age. This lack military drill in schools—the nearer the martinet line the better—will tend to supply. Physical ease of bearing and ease of manner and absence of awkwardness will also come from continued drill. As the world goes, we cannot expect to be relieved of the duty of providing in some way for national defence. Drill in the schools would constitute a capital preparatory training for our volunteer militia. With military drill continuous in our schools our volunteer militia would have in the way of recruits no awkward squads, but would be supplied with recruits under better drill and military preparedness than nine-tenths of the existing volunteer corps. This is said without any reflection upon the latter but in commendation of what may be done in the way of making citizen soldiers by school drill. Our cadet corps in connection with the Collegiate Institute is a living proof of the claim made. By school drill we should have in time a better drilled volunteer militia than we have now, because on theory, our volunteer corps recruited from the schools would in the matter of military efficiency and knowledge of drill begin where the greater part of the average volunteer regiment ends in this respect. There does not seem to be much danger that school drill will develop a nation of truculent jingoists; the volunteer system has not done this and there is little danger in this respect from school drill. With, in the course of time, every citizen a potential soldier there would be a national feeling of reserve strength and national confidence which would prevent a general offensive demonstration of military spirit. Possession of strength of body and skill in one's calling, in solidity of mental and moral equipment, renders superfluous the necessity of offensive self assertion which lack of such quality suggests.

God grants liberty only to those who love it and are always ready to guard and defend it.

CASEIN IN CANADA

(Pulp and Paper Magazine.)

Some interesting particulars of the chemistry of casein will be found on another page in this issue. Casein,, as is genrally known, is the chief constituent of the solid portion of milk, after the butter has been made. In view of the high position of Canada as a dairying country, it is somewhat surprising that arrangements have not been made long ago for the manufacture of this substance, so important for the sizing of paper, in large quantities. We understand that a gentleman, probably representing American interests, has recently been making close inquiries as to the possibilities of establishing such an industry in the chief dairy districts of Ontario; and the much talked of change (or rather possibilities of change) on the part of the factories from cheese to butter-making would conduce to this end. One obstacle to any considerable manufacture of casein as a by-product in Canadian creameries is the growing use by farmers of individual separators, instead of having their cream separated in large quantities at the factory as in former years. This renders them less than ever disposed to allow the skim milk, which contains the casein material, from leaving the farm, as, of course, it forms a valuable material for the feeding of pigs, calves and other young stock. It also militates against uniformity of manufacture in comparison with the conditions which would exist if the separation of cream were carried on entirely by the factory, each farmer having a more or less different method of carrying out this process. In the United States, where one company practically controls the manufacture of casein, there is a duty of 10 per cent. against importations, but there is not nearly enough produced for home consumption and large quantities come in from the Argentine Republic. We believe Professor Harcourt, of the Ontario Agricultural College, is looking into the casein question with a view to looking into its possibilities as a Canadian industry and it is to be hoped that the farmers will be able to make use of this valuable by-product as a noteworthy adjunct to other profits.

MUNICIPAL SUCCESS

(Canadian Courier.)

Municipalities are not uniformly successful. Much depends upon local conditions and the local spirit. Those who say municipal undertakings and municipal management are usually successful are just as wrong as those who say these are usually unsuccessful. Toronto started out to build a city hall which was to cost about a million and it cost several millions. There were charges of "graft" and bad management, and the architect's bill for about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars is still unsettled. The city of Winnipeg built a high pressure plant and a commission is now trying to find out why it cost twice as much as was expected. Yet both of these cities are counted as well governed cities, and as municipalities which show considerable civic spirit and enterprise.

Montreal is billed to be in the limelight soon with an investigation into the "maladministration" of its civic affairs. In private business, the citizens of Montreal are quite as successful as any other body of citizens in North America, but in governing and managing their city they have been much less successful. It has been charged that the city is run more or less on "graft" principles and that an investigation will show that its affairs have been grossly mismanaged. Perhaps the results of the proposed investigation will prove that there is less graft and less mismanagement than is generally supposed; and it would be a pleasant outcome if such were the case. But even mismanagement, proven and authenticated by a special commission, would not prove that municipal good government is impossible in Montreal.

There is much talk in various Canadian cities concerning the advisability of doing away with elected councils and boards of control and substituting paid permanent commissions. Even in Port Arthur and Fort William, where all public utilities are owned and operated by the municipalities, there is grave dissatisfaction with the present methods and results. The people are talking seriously of government by commission and of leasing the joint street railway to a private company. All this simply proves that municipal success is as difficult of attainment as private and personal success. Every form of human enterprise seems to have its difficulties

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Newspapers often have trouble owing to accident or otherwise in issuing in the normal form; but it remains for Montreal newspaers to fail to come up to the mark from lack of gas. Yesterday the Montreal newspapers had trouble because a breakage resulting in the failure of a supply of gas interfered with the operation of their linotype machines. Parliament is much superior to the press in the matter of immunity from interruption by such accidents. All the gas mains in Canada might collapse without interferring with the supply of gas at Ottawa.

Experts tell us that Muskoka should never have been opened for settlement. But this chunk of wisdom and philosophy, this shaft of satire from the Burk's Falls Arrow, shows that it was worth while:

> When we gaze upon the ten-cent plug of "brier" smoking tobacco remember its comparatively colossal proportions fifteen or twenty years ago, we can understand why it is that Sir William McDonald is a multi-millionaire and is laying up treasre in heaven by his philanthropy on earth. If that ten-cent plug continues to diminish in size Sir William wil have almost as great a monopoly in the other world as he has in this providing his benefactions on earth are accepted at par in heaven.

CASSELS' GOOD PUBLICATIONS.

Wilfrid Campbell's caustic criticism and desparaging characterization of magazine literature generally, does not include the magazine publications of Cassells & Company. These are invariably of high character, in typography, contents, and tone. The May numbers of the "Technical World Magazine" and "The Girls' Realm" are to hand. The former is crowded with articles bearing practical relation to a subject which is engaging considerable current attention, Technical Education. In some respects the Technical Magazine is a factor in this matter. Its contents are both practical and educative in their nature and treatment, dealing with a wide range of subjects of live interest. A title or two, selected at random form the table of contents for May, illustrates this: "The new Link Between Industry and Education"; "Setting a Pace for the Farmers"; "Finding and Cutting the Cullinan Diamond"; Typhoid Fever Conquered"; etc., etc. The matter is beautifully and graphically illustrated and hard, prosaic facts are aluringly sugar coated in text and picture, without destroying their essentially instructive value. The Technical World Magazine is verily which it claims to be: "a popular, illustrated record of progress in science, invention and industry"—$1.50 a year; 15 cents singe copy.

"The Girls' Realm" is a handsome and wholesome magazine, dealing in an attractive and instructive way with topics, with subjects and matters, that interest and should interest young girls. Its contents are not mere brain wash and mental cosmetics, but clean, practical, appealing reading. The illustrations are beautiful and plentiful. It can be safely and profitably placed in the hands of every girl.

MR. EARLE'S ARTICLES.

In to-morrow's issue of the Examiner Mr. Barton Earle will continue his series of articles on "Our Schools and Teachers," discussing to-morrow certain characteristics of the teaching body.

Canada's Fish Wealth.

According to this official record the commercial fisheries of Canada last year yielded fish and fish products to the value of $25,000,000; that is, the value of the fish taken from our coast and inland waters was practically one-third as great as the value of the wheat crop gathered from the farms of our three prairie provinces. All of which reminds one that our country possesses great resources besides those of the soil. The gold mines of the entire Dominion did not produce this amount of wealth last year.

As a producer of fish wealth Nova Scotia bears the palm, closely followed by British Columbia. The fisheries of Nova Scotia last year yielded $7,632,000; those of British Columbia $6,122,000; those of New Brunswick $5,300,000. The fisheries of Quebec yielded a little more than two million dollars, those of Ontario a little less than two millions, and those of Prince Edward Island a million and a half. Not quite a million dollars worth of fish were taken from the waters of the three prairie provinces.

As a wealth producer, salmon heads with a record of over five million dollars, the lobster is second, but one million behind salmon; while cod comes third, but almost a million behind the lobster. The eel foots the long list with only $116,478 to its credit.

Bishop's New Cross.

The pectoral cross presented at his installation to Bishop Sweeny of Toronto by members of the cathedral congregation and a few others is of gold, set with five exceptionally fine aqua-marines, the gift of Mrs. S. G. Wood, taken from a set which has been in the possession of her family for several generations.

In the bishop's chair, or "throne," as it is usually termed, there has lately been inserted a Roman tile or brick, about 16 inches in length and 10 in breadth, and two inches thick, which was sent out some years ago as a gift to St. Alban's Cathedral by the mayor of St. Alban's in England, and the rector of the parish in which were found the remains of a Roman building in England from which it was taken. This building was certainly in existence in the earlier part of the fifth century and probably much earlier, and therefore brings the cathedral closely into touch, as it were, with the martyr whose name it bears, and who was put to death at St. Alban's, then called by its Roman name of Verulamium, in the fourth century. It is interesting to notice that Canon MacNab was some thirty years ago the first Canadian clergyman to preach in this ancient Cathedral of St. Alban's in Hertfordshire, England.

Vancouver vs. Victoria.

One of the best storytellers in the House is Hon. George P. Graham. When he was first made Minister of Railways he took a trip to the coast. Someone the other day was asking him as to his impressions of Vancouver and Victoria.

"When I landed in Vancouver," said Mr. Graham, "I was met at the train by forty real estate men who wanted to sell me something. I went across to Victoria. There was not a soul in sight. I went into a store to buy something. There was no one to wait on me. Finally I leaned over the counter, spied a clerk, hauled him out by the collar, and forced him to make me a sale."

Twelve Famous Canadians.

"I have been asked by a Canadian friend to attempt a list of the twelve ablest living Canadians," says "E. B. O." in The National Review. "It is a difficult and dangerous task. Here is my list, however, in defiance of all that makes for journalistic caution: Politicians, Laurier, Sifton, Mackenzie King; financiers, Byron Walker, Clouston; railway, Hays, Mackenzie; publicists, Sandford Evans, Mabee, Doughty; editors, Dansereau, Dafoe; humorist, George Ham.

THE CONSERVATIVE CARPET.

The Fine Red Floor Covering Proved to Belong to Someone Else.

One of the features of the new Parliament is a new party room for the Opposition, which, while not nearly as large as the sanctum sanctorum of the Ministerialists, is still a great improvement upon the old Number Eight. When the House met, the new wing had only just been finished and there had not been time to complete the painting and other adornments of a big sitting room. Among the articles missing was a carpet.

Whip Taylor made enquiries as to what were the intentions of the Government in that regard, and was told that a carpet would be forthcoming in a few days. Consequently when late one night some of the younger Conservatives saw two rolls of carpet laying outside their room in the corridor, they thought they would see how it looked in their room and forthwith proceed to lay it down. It was a bright crimson carpet and was a great improvement upon the bare floor. But unfortunately it was not intended for the Tory headquarters at all. It was designed to be laid down in the rooms of the Secretary of State and the chief Liberal whip, almost opposite Number Eight, and consequently it was not allowed to remain where the youngsters had put it. The joke, however, was that some zealous employe of the House of Commons, coming along the morning after the carpet had been put in Number Eight, took the trouble not only to nail it down with great precision, but also to fill the space which had been cut out to provide for the carpet fitting the fireplace in one of the rooms for which it was bought.

The Tory headquarters were again with bare floors and so continued for a week or so, but the defect has been supplied and the floor of Number Eight is now covered with a delightful green carpet which serves the purpose and is not quite in such glaring contrast to the party's principles as the red carpet was.

A Slow Horse.

One time when he was quite a young man Lincoln hired a livery stable horse to attend a convention where he expected to be nominated for some office. The horse went so slow that when he reached there the convention was over and the other fellow nominated. On his return he irately asked the stable keeper if the horse was good for anything at all. "Yes, for drawing the hearse to funerals," was the reply. Lincoln advised him earnestly never to send that horse to a funeral, for if he did judgment day would arrive before the corpse reached the grave.

Geese.

A Georgia editor wants to know in what part of the country the most geese are to be found. That is hard to say. Some would suggest California, some Georgia, some Tennessee, some Massachusetts, some New York, and, maybe, some especially mean ones the District of Columbia.

HOME hunters are active these days.

Some are running from street to street looking for the house they like.

Others are letting the Want Ads. in the Examiner search for them—either by simply reading them or by inserting Want Ads. themselves.

Want Ads. are effective, they are usually quick and always cheap.

Phone them to No. 57L, and they will be read by hosts of exclusive Examiner readers.

PUGSLEY MAKES A GRAND RALLY

Minister of Public Works Disarms Attack of Dr. Daniels.

AFFIDAVIT IS PRODUCED

In Powerful Speech Dr. Pugsley Vanquishes His Traducers and Shows That Date Was Changed In Document With Wilful Intent to Mislead the Electors—Stormy Debate In House Yesterday.

Ottawa, April 16.—Hon. William Pugsley turned upon his detractors in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, and in a speech which for telling force has seldom been equalled, tore to tatters the notorious Mayes affidavit, exposed the motives which inspired it and the falsity of its charges, and completely vindicated his conduct in connection with the transaction upon which it was based. It was the first round of a battle that promises to be waged at some length and with considerable bitterness, and even the Conservatives were constrained to admit that so far honors lie with the Minister of Public Works. The motion for an inquiry was defeated by 100 to 60.

After a brush between Mr. Conmee and Mr. Foster, Dr. Daniel took the floor to move his resolution for an inquiry into the McAvity affair.

Mr. Speaker said there was a point of order to decide first.

Dr. Pugsley said he had a statement to make before the point was decided. He had stated on Wednesday that if Dr. Daniel read the original affidavit he would have no objection. During the morning he had had a conference with Dr. Daniel, who had undertaken to file with the clerk the original affidavit. Upon that understanding Mr. Pugsley had no objection to the other affidavit being read.

Dr. Daniel then read the affidavit without further interruption.

Having concluded the reading of the affidavit, assigned by Mayes, before Commissioner Harrison on Oct. 12 1908, and on March 24, 1909, showing payments to McAvity totalling $35,933. Dr. Daniel proceeded to summarize the case thus: In June, 1905, Mayes put in a tender for certain dredging in St. John harbor for 49c. per cubic yard.

"But he says 50 cents," interposed Mr. Pugsley.

"I know it is so spoken of," replied Dr. Daniel. "Even the Minister himself spoke of it as 50 cents, but the tender was really for 49 cents." That tender, he continued, was not accepted. Then Mayes appealed to Dr. Pugsley, at that time Attorney-General of New Brunswick, who had advised him to apply to George McAvity.

Then Mayes and McAvity came to Ottawa, saw the then Minister of Public Works, Mr. Hyman, talked over prices, etc., with him, and on the strength of those interviews Mayes signed a contract with the Department of Public Works at 55c. per cubic yard, and also signed an agreement to pay McAvity the extra five cents per yard as already stated.

Mayes thought that agreement altogether one-sided, as he was to do the work, while McAvity got all the profit. McAvity's own affidavit showed he had no financial interest in the dredge.

"All his interest seems to have been that, for the consideration of five cents a yard, he gave his influence with the Department of Public Works to get the contract for Mayes," said Dr. Daniel.

After quoting the clause in the code against the taking of a fee to obtain any sort of grant from the Government, Dr. Daniel added: "Therefore, the $35,933 paid to McAvity was nothing but plain plunder of the public purse and undisguised robbery of the public treasury."

Dealing with the payment of $2,000 to Mr. Pugsley Dr. Daniel said the answer to that would be that it was for professional services. That would be perfectly legitimate and it would be an easy matter for Mr. Pugsley to bring those accounts before the committee.

Dr. Daniel referred to the Emmerson resignation and read Sir Wilfrid Laurier's letter to that gentleman, in which he said his action was in the public interest. Parliament must take some notice of Mayes, and he therefore submitted a resolution asking for an inquiry.

The Minister of Public Words replied. Dr. Pugsley asked for the original Mayes' affidavit. Dr. Daniel sent it to him. Dr. Pugsley complained that this was not the original affidavit sworn to on Oct. 12, 1908.

Proceeding, the Minister of Public Works said that the purpose of the first affidavit was to make the people wrongfully believe.

Dr. Daniel attempted to be heard in protest against this implication, but Dr. Pugsley kept the floor and for some minutes there was disorder, in which several [illegible] were taken and charges and questions flew thick and fast. Then Mr. Speaker said:

"I earnestly appeal to both sides of the House to assist me in maintaining the rules which make for the honor and credit of the House and in discharging the duties which pertain to my office. I hope I shall have the support of both sides in maintaining the dignity and decorum of debate."

Mr. Pugsley then went on to point out that the original affidavit of Mayes being dated 1907, implied that the Department had paid money to him when he was Minister of Public Works. The document showed now that the date had been changed to "1905," so that the first affidavit was false.

If there was any evidence to support a charge, Mr. Pugsley invited Dr. Daniel to make it. That was the proper and manly course, but it was neither manly nor honorable to seek to destroy the character of a public man when he was not prepared to submit to a direct charge. Dr. Daniel insisted that the words "neither honorable nor manly," be withdrawn, but Mr. Pugsley denied having made use of them. Mr. Speaker ruled the expression unparliamentary.

Then the Minister said Dr. Daniel had made insinuations against his character. Dr. Daniel said he made no insinuations. He had simply read the affidavit. "I think the Minister should accept this statement," said Mr. Speaker.

"That's it, coax him to take it back, coax him, coax him," yelled Sam Hughes above the din.

Mr. Speaker rebuked the colonel for this, observing that he wasn't taking orders from the member for Victoria. There were numerous interruptions here, but Mr. Pugsley finally got well going again. He declared that, contrary to the Mayes' affidavit, there were two tenders for the dredging each time and that Mayes was lower than the other, Haney & Miller.

There would be no action for the recovery of the rake-off unless it could be shown that there had been collusion between Mayes and McAvity and the then Minister, and such was not charged.

Dr. Pugsley then told how Mayes wanted to make a new contract but the Minister had kept him at the work.

Finally Mayes had wanted to get out of the dredging business, and offered to sell his dredge to the Government for $150,000, intimating that if he got the price he would contribute $20,000 to the Liberal campaign fund and if he didn't he would publish documents most damaging to the Liberal party.

It was with sorrow the Minister of Public Works was obliged to say that there were people in this country who sought to advance their interests not by building themselves up, but by attempting to destroy their opponents by false statements and slanderous attacks. Of such were the bogus Gouin telegram, the forged Borden telegram in Victoria, and the false Mayes affidavit, but the people had spoken and the Government's vindication was complete.

Dr. Pugsley admitted he had made mistakes in his time, but they were mistakes of head rather than of heart. He had always striven to do his duty, especially since he had come into the Federal arena.

Mr. Crockett replied to the Minister asking him why he objected to the manner of bringing the charges if he was innocent.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier rose at 11.15 to state the position of the Government. He relied on the precedent established by Mr. Tarte in the McGreevy affair. Did Dr. Daniel dare to say that he believed the affidavit of Mayes is true. The affidavit bore upon its face the evidence of falsehood. This was the evidence of a man who, if his own evidence is to be believed, was a self-confessed boodler and who could place any credence in a man who thus displayed his own turpitude? The charge was not new. It was that Mayes paid $2,000 to Mr. Pugsley, but this was for legal services. If the money was paid for political services, what were the services rendered. The tenders were openly called for, and the contract awarded to the lowest tenderer. Sir Wilfrid repeated that there was the statement of a self-confessed boodler, and on the other hand the statement of an honest man.

Advice to Teachers.

Toronto, April 16.—Tuberculosis could be swept from this continent in a few years, being only a question of dollars versus the value of human lives, was a declaration in the inspectors' section of the Ontario Educational Association yesterday afternoon. Inspector Chapman presided.

Dr. Elliott quoted statistics to demonstrate that tuberculosis had attacked many constitutionally strong who withstood the disease though it had left traces in their lungs.

Dr Hastings declared that tuberculosis was much more prevalent among children than generally supposed. Its most potent cause was infected milk. He was positive that every infected cow in Canada could be weeded out in one year and in the United States in two years. Pending that the next best remedy was the boiling of milk. Impurity in cream was much greater than in skimmed milk.

Minister's Fatal Fall.

New York, April 16.—Rev. Samuel William Nesbitt, 56, a Methodist minister from Tipperary, Ireland, lost his balance and fell to the track in the downtown subway station at 157th street and Broadway and died at Washington Heights Hospital a few hours later. He and his 18-year-old daughter Rosela, whom he came to this country to visit last week, were on their way to see friends.

Export ewes sold at $4.50 to $5 per cwt.; rams, $3.50 to $4.25; yearling lambs, of choice quality, $7 to $7.50; common rough lambs, $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, many of which were too young and small, and should have been left with their mothers for another month, sold at $3 to $6 each, with a very few of the largest and best of them at a little more money.

AMERICAN CHILDREN.

What Lady Constance Richardson Has to Say About Them.

Lady Constance Stewart Richardson, the beautiful Englishwoman who is in this country creating no little stir and comment by giving Grecian dances to New York's socially elect for her favorite charities, holds decided views about the way American children are treated.

In the first place, she thinks there is no possible excuse for people who have money bringing up children in cities. She maintains that the country is the place for children, not the city, where they are continually under the strain of being told not to do things.

It is bad for them mentally as well as physically, she thinks, and results in a generation of nervous, high strung children, who will never do anything that they are told to and who scream and shriek when they are a little hurt.

It is a little comforting to find some one who sets down at least a part of the inexplicable vagaries of the American child to nervousness caused by the complexities of city life and not, as is usually the case, to bad bringing up or downright viciousness. There can be little doubt that there is some truth in the theory. The modern apartment or crowded city lot, with its close proximity to automobiles and street cars and other dangers for children, results in a constant stream on prohibitions for the child. The atmosphere is by far too tense.

Another wrong that, in the opinion of Lady Constance, is meted out to the city child is the way in which he is dragged around by the arm by a nurse. This, too, is bad for a child mentally as well as physically, as you can readily see if you stop to imagine the impression it would make on your own nervous system should some giant get you by one hand and drag you along faster than you could go, sometimes almost lifting you from the ground so that much of your weight came on that one arm.

Fortunately there are no giants in the shape of nurses who tag us around everlastingly and tell us a half a dozen times that we can't do something and then finally let us do it. If there were we would all be looking up the price of rooms at a sanitarium.

THEY WRITE POETRY.

Chicago Suffragists Have Burst Into Song.

Poetic fervor still has a firm hold on the Chicago suffragists. A couple of weeks ago they burst into rhyming song on 5,000 billboards throughout the city, and now they offer a prize of $100 for the best poetic composition showing their determination to take an active part in municipal affairs. It is on a fight for the privilege of voting on all municipal problems that the Chicago suffragettes are concentrating at present. Two days after the announcement of the prize contest several hundred contributions were received by the committee in charge. All of these exhibits manifest a belligerent spirit, and man invariably gets the worst of it. One stanza out of twenty, to go with the tune of "John Brown's Body," runs as follows:

All the women of the century are coming up to town.
They have taken up the mitten that the men have thrown down.
We must show them that the stronger mind will finally prevail.
We are marching on to victory; our feet are on the trail.

Another woman begins with the fervid declaration, "Our prayers are just as righteous as the call of '61." Another confidently asserts, "The noble power of womanhood cannot be long restrained." Still another proclaims, "We are all free and equal in God's most holy sight; we are asking for the ballot because it is our right." Metrical gymnastics such as these are beginning to pour in from distant parts of the country and Canada. Several of the most aggressive specimens have come from New York women.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

The hair should be treated to a shower bath, the same as a flower. Nothing is so good for milady's tresses as a walk during a light rainfall or a hair spray with pure rainwater, followed by a visit to the sunlight.

No application is better for lusterless hair than salt. Rub well into the roots of the hair at night, then tie up in a large handkerchief or wear a nightcap. Brush out the salt in the morning. Several applications will show a marked improvement in the appearance of the hair.

The bridge wrinkle, it is said, is the latest facial acquirement, and it is not at all liked by those upon whom it has been thrust. The "frowner" is in great demand in consequence, and some women are giving up bridge just because it makes any woman who plays constantly look old and wrinkled before her time.

Diphtheria before antitoxin days was a more dread enemy of child life than it is now. But even in these days there may be emergencies when doctors are far away and the mother longs to do something to stop the progress of the disease. One mother caught in such a strait made her little girl drink limewater freely. The child got well, and the doctor, called in later, laid it to the mother's ingenuity.

"Because," answered the wise official, "there is no use of making a whole lot of people jealous and antagonistic over a little thing like golf."—Exchange.

OBJECTIONS TO THE BREAD WE EAT

Why do people generally insist on wheat bread being dead white instead of the rich, slightly golden colour, which is the natural tint of pure wheat flour? Why they ought not to do so is set forth in a recent issue of the London Lancet.

There is reason for believing that the practice of bleaching flour to suit the eye of the uninstructed public is largely on the increase. It may be at once stated that the whiteness of bread is not symbolical of its purity and that when this whiteness is almost spotless a suspicion that bleaching chemicals have been used with the flour may fairly be entertained.

It would be well if this false criterion of whiteness were disestablished and a return made to the old and sensible preference for a bread retaining the natural slightly brown colour of the ground wheat berry, a colour which is probably significant of a palatable, nutritious and digestible loaf. It cannot surely be advanced that the treatment of flour with chemicals improves its qualities as regards its suitability for human needs.

The chemical itself may be innocuous, but that it has a powerful action upon certain constituents of the bread is evident from the fact that the colouring matters of the flour are bleached. Bleaching, in fact, commonly implies a strong chemical action.

It is important therefore to determine whether the action of a chemical which bleaches the colour of a flour does not also unfavourably affect the nutritive constituents of that flour. At all events, it is well known that chlorine renders protein stuffs insoluble, and that being the case their digestibility is not likely to be improved by chlorine treatment.

The favourite bleaching agent, however, appears to be nitrous acid fumes. Medical men need not be reminded of the powerful physiological effect of the nitrates, and indeed, it is doubtful whether any group of agents in the materia medica show such an intense action on the circulation as does this class of drugs.

It may be urged, however, that although nitrous acid is used for bleaching the flour, yet all traces of it would be removed when the flour was cooked, and that not a particle could persist in the finished loaf.

If we accept this the question remains as to how far the food value of the loaf is depreciated. Judging from the powerful oxidising action of nitrous acid as shown in a series of reactions well known to chemists, the extreme probability is that nitric acid would affect the most important dietetic constituent of the flour—viz: the gluten—in such a way as to make it less digestible, and we can say the same of chlorine and of ozone.

The remedy is in the hands of the public who, for the sake of their health and bodily well being, would be well advised to abandon the fallacious notion that the whiteness of the bread is a mark of its quality. On the contrary, it nearly always means an insipid, unpalatable bread, and an attractive flavour is a factor of considerable importance in connection with the digestibility of food. The destruction of the natural colour of flour by bleaching agents synchronises with the destruction of its attractive flavour. Such tampering with "the staff of life" should be made illegal.

The Short Or Long Engagement—A Few Points On Which Is Better

Engagements — should they be long or short — is a much mooted question, whose answer depends upon many conditions.

What constitutes the wisdom of waiting in the case of a pair of lovers who have formed a boy and girl attachment and become engaged before their united ages reach forty, would be sheer folly and waste of precious time in the case of a man and woman who have reached two score years or more, and who have fully considered the question and made up their minds that they will be happy as man and wife.

Such a couple are far more likely to be certain concerning their choice than a couple of younger lovers who, with the impetuosity of youth, have rushed headlong into an engagement and are anxious to let nothing interfere with marrying in hot haste.

Such a couple too often live to find, to their everlasting regret, that there is more than a grain of truth in the old saying about repenting at leisure.

In a case like this an engagement of a couple of years, or even more, will be a most valuable safeguard. In the first place the pair are young enough to afford to wait; in the second, a long engagement may prove a most valuable preparation for marriage, inasmuch as the test of time may only help to show them that they are really suited to one another. A long engagement may also help to enable young people to cultivate tastes in common, which in their turn promote that companionship of pursuits that is such an essential factor in establishing happiness after marriage.

On the other hand, many an engagement of long standing has practically demonstrated that two natures attracted to one another at first sight are in no way suited to one another.

Unable to bear the fret and worry of a long engagement, it is hardly likely that they will get on any better in double harness. Unfortunate and uncomfortable as a broken engagement undoubtedly is—nobody will deny that it is better to have an opportunity to discover the disagreeable truth that the couples are unsuited to each other before marriage rather than afterward.

Although there are always exceptions to every case, it will be generally admitted that, as a rule, long engagements are a mistake, not only so far as the young couple themselves are concerned, but as regards the families of both parties, they are at the best of times nerve wearing, tedious affairs.

Love's young dream that drags itself on year after year, with no prospect of marriage for a long time to come, is apt to sink to prosaic levels and lose much of the charm and romance that should surround the days of courtship; while marriage itself, when it does come, under such circumstances loses a great deal of its ideal bliss by reason of a too familiar and prolonged intercourse resulting from a lengthy engagement.

Far, far better marry in the ardour of first love than let your romance grow stale and spoiled in the early days of matrimony by reason of a dragged-out engagement, for prosaic romance is a bad thing to start wedded life on.

Some one once said that "To be ideal an engagement should be just long enough to enable the couple to study and understand each other's characters, but not so long that they grow away from each other in taste and feelings."

This is all very well in cases where prospects are good and where the couple know something about one another beforehand. In many cases when a couple of comparative strangers meet and become engaged, the test of a long engagement is not only wise, but almost imperative, as the risks of matrimony are increased fourfold, for not only temperament, but environment, plays no small part in contributing to matrimonial bliss.

Also, trying and nerve wearing as it may be for Edwin and Angelina not to be allowed to start housekeeping on nothing more substantial than bread and cheese and kisses, but to be kept waiting by the mundane considerations of providing themselves with enough to live upon, a long engagement is infinitely better than a too hard strugggle for existence in the early days of matrimony.

For, whatever the novelists and sentimentalists may say to the contrary in this every-day world of ours, which is ruled by money, it is very hard work for love not to yield to the temptation of slipping out of the window when poverty comes in at the door.

Writer States That Indecent Cards Are Being Largely Sold

Protests Against a Practice Which He Says is Being Carried on in an Increasing Degree—A Bane on Public Morals

HOW HE SAYS IT IS DONE.

Halifax, N. S., April 12th, '09.

To the Editor

Sir, Some time ago I called attention to the way in which the immoral and obscene post cards and other publications are being circulated in English and the Continental cities, and up to a few months ago there had been scarcely any protest brought to bear against them. The circulation of the numerous varieties of these indecent cards has become one of the greatest demoralizing features of the present day. So one could scarcely believe that such an amount of [illegible] could be reached through such a medium. The reason which can be given for this is on account of the liberty which has been allowed in their circulation. Since the post card craze the publishers have veered to vulgar things, and there is a class of people who have been seeking cards on these lines. The encouragement given the publishers in this way has been the incentive to their drifting so far into vulgarity. There is nothing that is doing so much harm in the way of depraving the minds of the people than the circulation of this kind of immoral literature. Besides the other bad influences they have a great tendency to inspire immorality. The suggestive and milder form of these cards can even be found displayed in windows of small shops in all cities, and, in fact, even in some of the best ones. It is a well-known fact, that in many of these shops cards can be purchased privately on the more spicy and vulgar lines. It has become a custom for men to carry their pockets full of these cards, which they display as being something amusing, showing only too plainly that the age we live in is becoming one of depraved ideas. It might be a surprise to some people to know to what an extent this card business is carried on in Canada. There are not many who would believe that there is a trust formed for the purpose of keeping the price up. Cards that are only worth a few cents bring prices from 25 cents to 75 cents.

We note of late that there have been many arrests made in the United States and Canada of people who have been engaged in the manufacture of these cards, but still the quantity that is being made on this side of the water is but small in comparison with what is being imported from Paris by people who are regularly engaged in the business, and it is a question as to how they are got through the customs. I was surprised when in Montreal to see how easily these cards could be obtained in the small shops in almost any part of the city. You will see cards of a spicy and suggestive nature displayed in windows, which come in packages with the least vulgar one to the front, with a sign stating that the balance of this package can be purchased inside, and where you can not only purchase the remainder of the package, but by gaining the confidence of the shopkeeper you can secure almost any class of disgusting cards. It is well known that there are laws existing in Canada to prohibit people from displaying or selling such cards or immoral literature of any sort. It is very apparent, by so much of this literature being in circulation, that the law is not enforced. It is not only the people who are engaged in selling the very obscene class of cards that should be dealt with, but also those selling these suggestive cards that can be found displayed openly in shop windows which should be confiscated. These are doing more harm than the others, owing to their being at the disposal of young girls and boys.

Humor of The Police Court.

Arthur Webb, clerk of the Toronto Police Court, has had in his several years' experience in court, an excellent opportunity to study human nature. Also he has picked up considerable skill in handling defendants, plaintiffs and witnesses. It is he who gets the names of the witnesses and jots down the testimony when necessary.

Persons attending the court regularly notice that Mr. Webb has adopted the habit of getting at first names of witnesses by asking, "What's is your front name?" The use of front sounds a little odd, but Arthur holds that for his purpose it is the best obtainable term. He formerly used a different adjective, and thereby hangs this tale.

One day in court he asked a witness the usual question, "What's your Christian name?"

The witness was a young woman and she looked squarely at the genial court clerk as she answered quite gravely:

"I'm a Jew. I haven't any 'Christian' name."

Of course, it would be proper to ask for the Christian name of most witnesses, but Arthur hasn't opportunity always to stop to discover people's nationalities before questioning them, and so he puts a question which covers all cases and gives offence to none.

THE ONLY VICTIMS.

An Adventure In the Surf on the West Coast of Africa.

West Africa is known to all navigators for its few harbors and its heavy surf, which at certain seasons rages like a battle, defying the white man who would approach its shores. The author of "The Jungle Folk of Africa," Mr. R. H. Milligan, tells of a successful, and to the observers an amusing, effort to reach shore at a point where the surf did not seem to be impossible.

One day when the beach seemed much better than usual the captain and the ship's surgeon ventured ashore. The captain afterward narrated the adventure of their landing to a small but enthusiastic audience. He said that after waiting outside the surf half an hour the headman suddenly gave the order, and in a moment they were in the breakers, riding on the top of one of them and speeding toward the shore at the rate of "seventy miles an hour."

The captain was in the bow of the boat, well braced and cushioned. But when the boat struck the beach with the force of a railway collision the doctor was thrown violently over two thwarts into the captain's bosom, whom he clasped about the neck with a steel-like grip.

The next moment another breaker picked the boat up and buried it upon the beach, throwing both captain and doctor to a perfectly safe distance, where they sprawled upon the sand. The doctor, still hugging the captain's neck and very much frightened, exclaimed:

"Oh, captain, dear captain, is there anybody killed but you and me?"

BRAVE SOLDIERS.

Sacrificed Their Lives In an Attempt to Save the Colors.

In days gone by the Zulus were the boldest fighters among all the natives of South Africa, and it was not until they had been defeated in several battles that they would live in peace with white people.

In 1878 15,000 of the Zulus attacked and killed a regiment of British soldiers, and a most heroic deed was the attempt made by three British soldiers to save the two flags, or colors, belonging to the regiment.

When it was seen that the Zulus were so many that there was no hope of keeping them at bay the colonel of the British regiment called to a young officer whose name was Lieutenant Melvill and said, "You will take charge of the colors, Melvill, and try to get away from here."

The lieutenant saluted and took into his hands the two colors of his regiment. Then, with another officer and a soldier, all mounted on horses, he suddenly dashed away with his precious burden.

They were at once seen by the keen sighted Zulus, however, and after a long chase the three gallant Englishmen, fighting to the last, were killed by the enemy.

Some time afterward one of the flags was found near a rocky stream, where the heroes had fought and died, and it was taken to England and presented to Queen Victoria.

And in memory of the three brave soldiers who had died while defending it the queeen placed a wreath of immortelles on the staff which held the flag.—London Mail.

A Parisian Tragedy.

"I am here to kill you for denouncing Colney!" The speaker was a man named Koenit and the scene a small, fifth rate cafe in a mean street in Paris.

Koenit was a member of a gang of Apaches, the murderous Parisian hooligans. Another member of the gang, Colney, had been denounced to the police by a woman named Sarah Baronmaer. A court of Colney's associates had tried the woman in her absence, condemned her and by lot had chosen Camille Koenit to carry out their sentence.

"Make up your mind you have to die," continued the man callously. "I give you a quarter of an hour to settle your affairs." With these words he left the cafe.

Some twenty minutes later the wretched woman summoned up courage to leave the place. She was hardly in the street before Koenit sprang upon her with an open knife and struck her to the heart.

Koenit was arrested, but owing to the foolish leniency of French criminal law escaped with penal servitude for life.

This story reads like cheap fiction. It is, however, an absolute fact, and any one acquainted with criminal life in Paris and other great cities knows well that organized crime never fails to take terrible vengeance on those who betray their fellow criminals.—Paris Letter.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.—

New York, April 16.—Under cover of selling in Union Pac., Steel and Coppers, there was some good buying today, especially in the Eries, Southern Ry., Rock Island and B. R. T. The general trend was downward until noon but the above mentioned stocks resisted this and Erie actually went up. At the lower levels it was seen that the selling was dislodging no long stock, support being met on a scale down, and the sellers turned buyers. The market then rallied easily. At no time was there much activity, and the dullness on the decline was regarded as favourable to the market. Some recovery should be in order soon.

Grain News.

Chicago, April 16.—Patten came into the market at the opening to-day and gave wheat support, which checked the declining tendency of the late session yesterday and drove the price up again. He was helped by the Liverpool cables which failed to reflect the decline here. A great deal of wheat was offered at the higher level, however, and the price again started to sag off. May being the principal offender. Excitement in the pit was at a fever heat, many traders expecting to see a disastrous slump in prices. It may come any time and then it may not come at all. MISS McCAW'S RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Last night there was a good attendance at the Conservatory of Music Hall, of musical people, who were delighted with a charming programme of pianoforte music, very capably and creditably presented by Miss Mabel McCaw of the Conservatory staff. As will be seen by the appended list of numbers, Miss McCaw essayed an ambitious programme, and the authoritative and artistic manner in which she dealt with it is a matter of congratulation to herself, the staff, and the pupils of the Conservatory, to whom her talents as a teacher are available:

Programme.

Beethoven — Sonata Pathetique; (a) Grave; (b) Allegro; (c) Adagio Cantabile; (d) Rondo.
Chopin. (a) Nocturne—op. 37, No. 1; (b) Valse—op. 34. No. 1; (c) Polonaise—op. 40. No. 1.
Wieniawski—Capriccio Valse, Miss Choate, violin.
(a) MacDowell—To a Wild Rose; (b) Sinding —Fruhlingsrauschen; (c) Moszkowski—Valse Brillante in A flat.

Miss McCaw was assisted by Miss Julia Choate, violiniste, who performed with a brilliancy and artistic fluency and finish a cappricio valse by Wieniawski, and also a second number, a violin setting of the beautiful intermezzo from Mascagni's Cavaleria Rusticana, taking the place of Miss Manning, who was listed for a soprano solo, but was unable on account of indisposition to be present. The entire recital was a musical and artistic success, creditable to both the Conservatory and the participating artists.

Miss Sisson of the Conservatory accompaniment.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE CONCLUDES ITS FIRST SEASON WITH SUCCESSFUL BANQUET TENDERED TO WINNERS

Enjoyable Evening at Jacobi's Restaurant When Burnham Cup Was Presented to St. Andrew's Team—Mr. E. N. McWilliams Chairman.

PRESENTED BY MR. D. B. McRAE

The close of a successful season in the Church Hockey League was signalized last evening by a complimentary banquet to the St. Andrew's Seniors and All Saints' Juniors, champions for 1908-9. The members of both teams, several of the clergy, and representatives of the other clubs in the league were present, and the battles of the past season were fought over again, and new plans for the future brought forward. Mine hosts, Jacobi Bros., excelled themselves in providing a tempting spread of the good things which gladden the epicure's heart, and throughout the courses the guests were entertained by Miss Heard, with numerous selections on the piano, which added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

THE MENU.

Roasts.

Vegetables.
Potatoes; peas.
Relishes.
Spanish Queen olives; small pickles;

A lengthy toast list was honoured Mr. E. N. McWilliams, fulfilling creditably the duties of toast master. The toast of the King was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem. "The Church" was proposed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, who in a few words showed the attitude of the church now was to encourage true sport among the young men, believing that by so doing a manly, Christian spirit was developed and strengthened, which redounded to the benefit of church life. In reply Mr. Riddiford confirmed the former speaker's views and congratulated the churches represented in the league on their enterprise, and hoped the young men would continue along this line and branch out into other fields of sport. He complimented the champions on their efforts to land the premier honours and also the President, for the way in which the affairs of the league had been handled.

The presentation of the Burnham trophy, emblematic of the Senior championship, was then made, and owing to the regrettable absence of the donor the presentation was made by Mr. McRae, who, in a few choice words, congratulated St. Andrew's on their success in winning the senior championship and also All Saints, in capturing the honours in their series. Mr. M. Johnston, on behalf of St. Andrews', in accepting the cup, expressed the sincere thanks of the players for such a beautiful emblem and hoped to retain possession next season. Mr. D. Layfield, in his reply, thanked the officers and other players for the interest they took in the juniors, and hoped to see the youngsters make good soon in senior company.

The toast to "The League" was proposed by Rev. Mr. Potter, who handed the president some bouquets, and considered him in a great way commendable for the success of the league this season. Mr. Burnham was congratulated on his interest in good sport, as shown by his donation of such a beautiful trophy for annual competition. The referees also deserved great credit for their interest in the game and their work in carrying out their arduous duties. Rev. Mr. Trumpour, in his speech, declaimed against the deifying of successful athletes and against the man who made athletes everything to the neglect of his mental and spiritual side. Clean sport, with these other two qualities, made ideal men.

"Sister Clubs" was responded to by Rev. Mr. Riddiford, and the toast to "The Ladies" was taken care of by Messrs. S. A. Oke, Jas. Squire, and J. F. Reed, who, in a few shy remarks, told of their appreciation in general of the fair sex and congratulated the league and St. Andrews team in particular for the great interest displayed in the game by the fair supporters, who always kept up the excitement and did nearly as much as the players in putting the cup where it now rests. The toast to "The Press" was honoured by Rev. Mr. Keith, who thanked the local papers for their valuable assistance in the reorganization of the church hockey league, and keeping its interests to the fore this season. The great influence of the press, in moulding popular opinions on great public issues was mentioned, and he considered Canada fortunate in having in charge of its best papers men who had broad views in public matters and whose influence was always for good. The toast was replied to in short speeches by Messrs. McRae and J. F. Reed.

During the evening the toasts were interspersed with several musical numbers; Mr. F. Clark rendering a number of banjo solos and Mr. M. Johnston several vocal solos.

The time pased quickly and the event was brought to a close at a late hour by the singing of the National Anthem.

THE JUNIOR WRESTLING BOUTS AT Y. M. C. A. PROVED INTERESTING CONSIDERABLE SKILL SHOWN

The Y. M. C. A. wrestling bouts held yesterday afternoon developed the fact that there are some pretty classy mat artists among the junior members of the department. The bouts were warmly contested and the youngsters showed endurance as well as skill. The strangle hold, full Nelson, toe hold and hammerlock were all barred, so that with the most painful holds made impossible by the rule, the youngsters were able to go at it hard and fast with no fear of injuring themselves or their opponents. Great interest was taken in the results, and the bouts were well worth seeing. The public will get a chance at the closing exercises of the gymnasium class, as some exhibition matches will be put on that night.

The greatest field of entrants was in the class for boys of 85 lbs. and under, six "kids" battling it out for the honours in this class and making pretty lively going of it too. Bruce Lees captured the championship of this class winning all his matches in decisive fashion, although some of his opponents gave him a hard tussle for the honours.

In the first round A. Austin won from H. Knapman, B. Lees downed, W. Howland twice, and O. Cavanagh won from W. Stratton after losing the first fall in thirteen seconds. In the semi finals Lees beat Austin handily and then went right on and beat Cavanagh in the final after a hard fight. In the 100 lbs. and under class, Ross Laing won out after a series of bouts that came close to being about the best of the afternoon. He was hooked up with E. Brown in the first bout, and disposed of him after a hard battle. They went ten minutes without a fall in the first bout, but Laing won the next two. Harold Lees and Harold Morrow were the other pair in this class and may be they didn't have a lively go. Lees won the first bout and Morrow the second, and then captured the concluding bout, giving him the right to meet Laing in the finals. It was a lively battle, but Laing proved too much for his opponent and forced his shoulders to the mat.

In the 125 lbs. and under the only contestants were Lorne Fitzgerald and W. Stevenson, and the boys gave a very clever exhibition. Fitzgerald was very aggressive, but his opponent did some clever defence work, and both boys showed considerable knowledge of the fine points of the game. Fitzgerald won the match in straight falls.

Douglas Layfield won the heavyweight class by default, there being no other entries.

Mr. George Evans was a satisfactory referee.

Following is the summary:—

85 Lbs. and Under.
A. Austin won from H. Knapman.
B. Lees won from W. Howland.
O. Cavanagh won from W. Stratton.
100 Lbs. and Under.

SUNDAY'S RACE WITH SIMPSON MEANS MUCH TO SVANBERG

New York, April 15.—When John Svanberg, the champion of Sweden, toes the mark for his race against Tom Eck's Indian, Fred Simpson, at Celtic Park next Sunday afternoon, his thoughts will be in far-off Sweden. Svanberg has a wife and little child in the northland, and with an ordinary run of luck he hopes to be able to bring them to this country ere long and start up a cosy little American home.

It is easy to reason out, then, just how much Sunday's run means to the sturdy little Swede. If he beats Simpson and St. Yves's record of two hours forty minutes, as Hjertberg says he can, Svanberg's prospects for the next few months will look very rosy. There will be fifteen and twenty mile races with Shrubb, Appleby, Pat White, and others, and a sure Marathon match with St. Yves, the world's champion.

On the other hand, if Svanberg loses Sunday's race he will find himself in much the same position as does Matt Maloney. Matt was a fine amateur, but has not been much of a success as a pro.

Svanberg is a decorative painter by trade, and has been a married man for five years. Seldom has a man had so many important events crowded into one day of his life as befel Svanberg on May 1, 1906. To begin with, it was his own birthday. Secondly, it was the day in which he sprang into worldwide fame by running second in the Athens Marathon. Lastly, when he had finished the race Svanberg was handed a cablegram telling him that his wife had presented him with a fine baby girl—the one that he will run for next Sunday.

GENE HURTUBISE WRESTLES TO-NIGHT

Meets Chris. Miller the German Wrestler at the Star Theatre, Toronto.

At 11 o'clock to-night at the Star Theatre, Toronto, there will be seen an interesting wrestling bout. Gene Hurtubise, who was the amateur champion of all Canada, and who now bids for favour in the professional ranks, is due to clash with Chris Miller, the big German who claims five medals in the amateur class in Germany. This is to be the first appearance of Miller in a finish bout, and it will be the means of bringing out a lot of his friends to see how he will fare. Miller made a better showing with Frank Gotch than did Hurtubise, and he claims he will not disappoint his many admirers. The purse is $150 and the bout must be to a finish. Popular prices will rule, which means the best seat downstairs at 50c.

FRED SIMPSON HAS CHALLENGED ST. YVES

New York, April 15.—All the crack distance runners are out after a race with St. Yves, the Frenchman, and present world's Marathon champion. Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, is the latest to issue a challenge to the Polo grounds victor. Simpson beat Fred Appleby, the great English ex-amateur, at Toronto, Saturday, and his manager, Tom Eck, believes he can take the Frenchman's measure.

With Dorando resting and Longboat in temporary retirement, Simpson appears the logical candidate for St. Yves after the latter's race with Alfred Shrubb, which will take place April 24.

RUNNING.

Instead of running over the scales in the choir at Hiawatha on Sunday, Fred Simpson will be busy running Svanberg the Swede at Celtic Park, New York.

Hans Homer, of Halifax, wants a guarantee to start in the big Canadian Marathon Derby in Toronto on May 1.

VICTORIA HARRIERS TO HAVE A RUN

Will Leave Headquarters at 3 o'clock To-morrow Afternoon.

The Victoria Harriers' Club will take a cross-country run to-morrow afternoon, leaving the Old Park St. Baptist school house at 3 o'clock. That building will be the headquarters of the Club until further notice. The club invite any one who would like to run with them to become members of the club, and promise that they will do their best to make them feel at home. All members of the club are requested to be on hand at headquarters at 2.45 o'clock, sharp, to-morrow afternoon, so as to be ready to start promptly at 3 o'clock.

DOINGS OF BIG LEAGUES

The feature of the National League games yesterday was the Brooklyn-New York contest at New York, which Brooklyn annexed by 3 runs to 0 after a thirteen innings pitchers' battle between Irving Wilhelm and Leon Ames. Wilhelm allowed only three hits in the thirteen innings, while Ames was unhittable for the first nine, retiring 27 batsmen on order. He weakened on end, however, and Brooklyn got to him for seven hits in the last four innings, bunching them in the thirteenth and sending three runners across the pan. Manager Lumley starting his team right with a timely triple. Thirty thousand people saw the game.

Chicago won again yesterday from St. Louis, beating Bresnahan's team by 10-4 in hollow fashion. Pfeister started to pitch for the Cubs, but retired in favour of Mordecai Brown, while Moore was substituted for Beebe by St. Louis.

Cincinnati and Pittsburg reversed things at Cincinnati, and the Reds won by seven to two despite the fact that they piled in five errors, and only had two hits more than Pittsburg. Ewing was on the slab for Cincinnati, while Pittsburg sent Willis to the firing line.

The Boston-Philadelphia game at Boston was called off on account of rain.

In the American League, Cy Young pitched his first game for Cleveland against St. Louis and won by steady pitching. He was hit pretty hard at times, the Browns getting ten safe ones off him, but he was always there in a pinch. Pelty worked for St. Louis and held Cleveland to six hits.

Summers pitched steady ball for Detroit, and the champions won the second game of the series from Chicago by 3-1; Summers only allowed three hits while the Tigers got to Doc. White of the White Socks for nine. It was a snappy game all the way.

Washington again lost to New York in a game featured by errorless fielding on both sides, coupled with weak hitting. The Highlanders bunched their hits in the first innings and collected four runs, which was enough margin to carry them through with lots to spare. The Senators used three pitchers and two catchers, while the Highlanders exhibited two box artists.

BASEBALL

There will be a meeting of the C. G. E. employees to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of organizing a C. G. E. team for the City Baseball League. There is keen enthusiasm among the employees of the big works and a strong team will be placed in the field.

Bill Hinchman is an humourist. Recently Lajoie was at bat, and Bill's back was turned to the plate. The manager swatted one of those old time things into left field. Bill heard the crack of the bat. He didn't turn around but, addressing 'Deacon' Wright, asked: "Tell me, who's killed?"

• • •

Manger Chance read with apparent unconcern the Johnny Evers statement that he would pastime not at all this season. "Let them all quit," said the P. L. "If we have nine men left by Wednesday afternoon we will be out on the west side to play Bresnahan's club. I guess we can scrape together enough to make it a legal game."

• • •

Cleveland Plain Dealer: How about the integrity of the game? Is it right that in order to help Washington win the U. S. Government physician should dig a few holes in the arms of the New York players?

• • •

Chicago Tribune: Cravath will be given the outfield vacancy left by Fielder Jones, Frank Owens will be Sullivan's alternate in catching, Atz will play second base, and Scott, Sutor and Fiene have been added to the regular pitching staff.

• • •

Cleveland Plain Dealer: From a mere standpoint of hitting the Naps look much better fortified than in 1908.

• • •

New York Tribune: New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and Philadelphia are generally picked by the critics to divide the first four positions in the National League race, but I am rather looking for Brooklyn to displace one of them. There are few, if any teams better off in the way of pitchers, and much depends on the boxmen.

• • •

"Mike" Powers, catcher on the Athletics, was taken suddenly ill after the game with Boston Monday, and had to be removed to the hospital, where his sickness was diagnosed as gastritis. He will be out of the game for several days.

In order to make baseball a game for women as well as men Mrs. Frank L. Chance, wife of the manager of the world's champions, has come out with a plea to her sisters for baseball suffrage. "If more women would forsake bridge whist and ping teas, sofa cushions and kimonos, and turn out to watch the cleanest sport in the world there would be more robustness and fair-mindedness among our sex," said Mrs. Chance. "If women would only come out and expand their lungs to the fresh air by 'rooting' for the 'home team' there would be less work for the doctors."

• • •

The new acquisitions to the Cleveland pitching staff—Wright and Sitton—are reported to be two as likely-looking young ball players as ever came into the league. Both have had a lot of experience.

• • •

Newark News: Newark has a very nitty ball team. It unquestionably has the best third baseman in the league. Manager Harry Wolverton is a big leaguer, and he is sure to prove the king of the minors. In every game he shows his worth. He stings the ball with great effect, and plays his position with a master hand.

• • •

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Naps may not win the pennant—competition is strong in the American League—but they will be in the race, and every player will give the club and patrons his best services, and that is half the battle. With the old men in form and the new ones away beyond expectations everything looks pretty rosy.

• • •

Only a spectacular catch by Engle in left field in the third inning kept Washington from scoring several more runs in the opening game with New York. Delehanty and Conroy started with singles. Freeman fanned. McBride was hit by a pitched ball. Street smashed a long fly near the left field foul line. Engle tore after it with his left hand high over his head as he made a complete turn, and plunged into the crowd. A more sensational catch would hardly be possible, and it marked Engle as a most determined and aggressive player.

The Methods And Principles Of Landscape Gardening

Have Walks and Drives Planned for Convenience and Directness---The Use and Uselessness of Fences---The Preparation of the Soil for Lawns.

(Written for The Examiner by A. B. Cutting, editor of "The Canadian Horticulturist.")

NO. VII.

Walks and drives are not beautiful in themselves. They are necessary, but there should be as few of them as possible. They have an important effect on the appearance of the place. Unless laid out with the view of lessening their artificial aspect, they will detract from the natural effect that is so desirable in the home landscape. Walks and drives simply serve to link the more important features of the landscape together and to serve as entrances. The general idea of the arrangement should be simplicity and convenience. On large grounds, they should be laid out in moderate curves, not winding nor twisting, but gracefully curving from the point of entrance to the house. It is usually better to enter a place near one corner or the other.. Whether the road should come out again at the same point as it entered or whether it should leave the place at another point, are questions which the size of the grounds and other considerations will govern. The curves should not be so marked as to induce short-cuts across the turf. Have the curve appear necessary by planting trees or shrubs at the point where the curve is most marked. By planting trees and shrubs here and there along the side of the driveway, the house will be screened from view and therefore will present different views as it is approachd.

On small lots, economy of limited space restricts our walks to straight lines. In such circumstances, the best road or pathway is the one that takes the shortest line. The width of driveways depends upon their length and the amount of travel upon them. Short driveways may be only eight or ten feet wide, but long ones should be wide enough for two rigs to pass easily. Have the foot paths from three to five feet wide. Walks and driveways should be properly graded. Have them convex so as to have drainage. Keep the edges of the turf cut and remove all weeds, stones and rubbish as often as necessary.

Fences

The erection of fences sometimes is imperative, but, at best, they are necessary eye-sores. They are an advantage to a place only in so far as they afford protection from without and give seclusion. Where they are necessary and permanent the best thing to do is to have a solid barrier of close-growing vines, a hedge or a fence made of wire,, which, at a little distance, is almost invisible. The fence should be as inconspicuous as possible. If all the fences that are unnecessary were removed, a great harbour for weeds and insects would be done away with and a great saving of labour and expense would be effected.

The Soil for Lawns.

It is not always possible to choose the soil for a lawn as the site seldom is selected with this consideration in mind. The ideal type of soil for a lawn is a rich, retentive loam. A clay soil bakes quickly, which condition is enhanced by the excessive watering that the lawn requires. Sandy and gravelly soils are too open and also dry quickly; they do not retain soluble plant foods at the surface, where it would be most available for use by the roots of the grass.

Fertilizing the Lawn.

Soils that contain plenty of vegetable matter make the best lawns. The permanent beauty of the lawn depends largely on the preparation and the fertility of the soil. If the soil is not naturally rich it should be made so. A good dressing of stable manure should be worked in. Artificial or commercial fertilizers also may be used, with advantage. Among these are bone meal, muriate of potash and nitrate of soda. Instead of the muriate of potash, wood ashes may be used. Bone meal may be used at the rate of one ton to the acre, and ashes at the rate of about forty bushels. The amount required can easily be calculated by getting the area of the plot in square feet and dividing same into the number of square feet in an acre, which is 43,560. Divide the result into the quantity required for an acre and you have the amount necessary for the plot. Nitrate of soda had better not be applied until the turf is started; then, in the early part of the season, it may be applied as a top-dressing at the rate of about one-half a pound to the square rod.

Grading and Levelling.

If the lot is small, have the surface of the lawn level. Large areas with undulations are more difficult to model. The idea of the prevailing slope and the contour desired must be foremost in the mind. Maintain these curves and rolling surfaces exactly in the trend and direction of the surrounding land. Minor irregularities should be smoothed out and levelled. On city lots, soils from excavations and cellars should be removed from the surface and replaced with good soil. While this work of grading may be done in the Spring, it is best performed in Fall, so as to allow for settling.

Preparation of Soil.

The soil for a lawn is best prepared the year before, if possible, by growing upon it some crop that will loosen the soil and one that requires constant cultivation. If the work must be done in Spring, plow or dig deeply. On small lots dig the whole surface evenly. Do not dig to a depth of a foot in one place and only a few inches in another. Such a practice is noticeable later on in the character of the grass that grows. Some soils may require subsoiling and underdraining. Before sowing the seed remove all stones and lumps and have the surface as fine and smooth as possible. The creation of a good, permanent sod depends as much upon the preparation of the soil as upon anything else.

The next article of the series will deal with turf-making. Sodding and seeding will be discussed, including pointers on the kinds of grass seeds to use and when, where and how to use them.

OUR SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS.

Before completing these Articles, I shall, progably make some attempt to picture an ideal teacher, and it may save my critics some time and trouble to say that I am quite conscious of the fact that, as a teacher, I came very far short of my ideal. Just to what extent this was due to my own shortcomings, I cannot tell; but I am quite willing to assume my full share of responsibility for my actions. To make matters worse in the estimation of my pious readers, I cannot, truthfully, say that I regret my past conduct; and, further, I am bound to add that this feeling is not due wholly, or even principally, to my sense of the uselessness of regret. If any of my readers think they see, in what they may regard as my shamelessness, evidence of the grossness of my nature, I would not seek to deprive them of any gratification this view may afford him.

I cannot be certain that my past experience was not such as was most suitable for my development; and, besides, now that the struggle is nearly over so far as this life is concerned, I am so busy separating the genuine from the worthless, and taking stock of my equipment for the coming warfare, that I have neither time nor inclination to dwell on the past. Even if a little more than the usual time were allowed me, I think I would be likely to employ it in a little more fighting.

In writing these Articles, I have, no doubt, given offence to some very worthy people; but I can say truly that I would not willingly give pain to the humblest being; and that I have tried sincerely to express myself in as kindly and gentlemanly a manner as seemed to me consistent with a clear and somewhat forcible statement of what I believe to be truth. Though I may have too little extenuated, I can assure my readers that I have not "set down aught in malice."

In what follows, though, to me, as an old teacher, the subject is a very delicate one, especially when the treatment is specific, I shall not hesitate to state what I deem necessary to make an effective presentment of my case.

The term "learned" as applied to the professions of divinity, law, and medicine, is, in too many cases, almost as loosely used as the term "professor" among our neighbours. Though a "learned man" may not mean—

> "The bookful blockhead, ignorantly read,
> With loads of learned lumber in his head,"

It may mean very little that is useful to the man himself, or to others. A learned man is certainly not, in any high sense of the term, necessarily, an educated man, nor is an educated man, necessarily, learned. Very much of what constitutes learning possesses little, or no, actual value; while one who never saw a book might be well educated, and properly equipped for the battle of life. A large part of the learning of the student of divinity is made up of a knowledge of theology, which, thanks largely to the laity, he is beginning to find worse than a useless encumbrance. The practice of medicine is even yet largely, if not mainly, empirical; while the study of law has no high educational value. It is true that a medical man must have some knowledge of natural science, and the practice of surgery is certainly scientific.

The High School teachers of Ontario are, perhaps, as a body, better educated than the members of any one of the so-called learned professions. Why, then, are the teachers denied the same distinction as the clergy, the doctors, and the lawyers? One reason is to be found in the fact that, though the teachers in the High Schools, and a considerable number of those in the Public Schools, have as good a claim to be called learned as any of the bodies mentioned, there cannot as much be said for the teachers as a whole so long as a large proportion of them is made up of boys and girls in their teens. To apply the term "learned" to a body thus constituted would be little short of ludicrous. I hope my readers will not understand me as finding fault with the present educational status of the teachers of Ontario. I certainly do not think that a government system of education with its prescribed course of study, its uniform text-books, and its departmental examinations is an assured blessing, and am convinced that machine education will be largely destructive to the individuality of both teacher and pupil; yet, given a government system, and I am free to admit that, so far as mere intellectual culture is concerned, as much has been done as could reasonably be expected.

But to return to the claim of the teachers to professional standing. Though teachers, as a class, have quite enough individual pride, if "pride" is not too dignified a term to use, they are certainly without professional pride. This is shown by all their conduct. As a teacher for many years in both Public and High Schools, I have some claim to speak on this subject. But I do not solely rely on my individual judgment. It has been my ambition to keep step with our educational advancement, especially along certain paths. With this in view I have, to some extent, kept in touch with prominent members of the teaching body, and have frequently heard their opinions as to the general character of the teacher. Within the last few weeks, I have consulted some of the leading educationalists in the city, gentlemen who will read this article, and I have found them holding opinions similar to, if not identical with, my own.

I do not pretend that what I am about to say is true of all teachers, or that there are not many men and women among them who are an honour to the profession, and who, under favourable circumstances, would adorn any walk of life. Nor do I claim that the teachers of Peterborough are, in any respect, inferior to those in other cities and towns. On the contrary, I honestly believe that the Public School teachers of this city possess exceptional fitness for their work.

The characteristics I shall describe are, by no means, the exclusive possessions of teachers; but they are more common among them than among other classes of the community.

And first, then, I shall speak of the teacher's unlimited self-conceit, which, as might be expected, is in direct ratio to his ignorance.

I remember well when I, an awkward, ignorant, boy, started out to teach among a community of Quakers, on Yonge St., about thirty miles north of Toronto. As a matter of course, I knew, at that time, not only more than all the intelligent farmers and mechanics around me; but more than I have ever known since, and more than I ever expect to know. My feelings towards my supporters were not those of unmixed contempt. I believe I had the grace, or the impudence, to pity them. I have no doubt that they were glad to be relieved, at the end of the year, of my obnoxious presence among them. I hope now that they did not feel as I do when I meet certain Peterborough teachers, and would be almost willing to apologise for taking up any portion of the sidewalk.

That my first patrons, when I visited them in later life, treated me in the kindest possible manner, and my one time pupils had not only forgiven the brutalities of my government, but actually seemed grateful for the good I did not do them, says much for the excellence of Quaker character.

The next characteristic I shall mention is a disposition to injure in some way, and to supplant a fellow teacher. This is true to a greater or less extent among the members of all the professions. There is least of it among lawyers, and most of it among teachers.

Teachers, as a rule, are among the most mercenary. Even the advice they give the pupils as to the course of study they should pursue is governed, not so much by a desire for the pupil's good, as from the wish to enhance the importance of a particular department, and increase the chances of a higher salary. Instead of losing themselves in an interest in their work, they lose their interest in their work in looking forward to the next cheque, or in joining with their pupils in counting the days before the next vacation. I remember an occasion in Peterborough when the school flag was hoisted on the day before the holidays. I believe it was not halfmasted on the day before the resumption of work. If teachers were really interested in the welfare of their pupils beyond what may redound to their own glory, they would make some attempt to reach their higher natures. Any one visiting a school, or meeting the children on the streets or in their homes, knows how little attention is paid to this. Indeed, it is not necessary to meet the pupils. Meeting the teachers is sufficient. I have frequently watched teachers and pupils pass on the streets without any recognition of one another's existence. I see teachers pass their employers utterly oblivious of all but their own important selves, unless they happen to meet some one whose influence may be turned to account. One, rather conspicuous, strides along, talking boisterously with one of his fellows, while his combination of a patronising smile and a half sneer shows that he barely tolerates the insignificant creatures he looks down upon. Another, with head bowed, as if oppressed with his mighty brain, walks with mathematical exactness, turning neither to the right nor to the left. Still another, with lips compressed and magisterial dignity, walks erect and looks wise as—

> "Who should say 'I am Sir Oracle,
> And when I ope my lips let no dog bark?'"

But want of space prevents my mentioning all the types of pedagogic character.

Perhaps one of the most prominent features of the teacher's character, considering his great influence, is his deficiency in gentlemanly deportment. This defect cannot be altogether due to the walks of life from which most teachers are drawn; for we find farmers, mechanics, and even common labourers, not deficient in anything which constitutes the true gentleman. It is, no doubt, largely due to that overweening self-conceit which causes them to despise less favoured mortals.

The next and last characteristic of the teacher which I shall mention is his ignorance; and, in this matter, I, of course, refer, mainly, to teachers in the Public Schools. I have met many farmers, and, especially, many mechanics, who, besides a thorough knowledge of their respective occupations, were well acquainted with the facts of the leading questions of the day, and were able to discuss those questions intelligently. In addition to this they were in possession of no inconsiderable knowledge of natural and mathematical science, and had an appreciative acquaintance with some of our great poets. How do the Public School teachers, with notable exceptions, stand in this respect? I have met large numbers of them and know that I am qualified to speak. Many of them, even in cities and towns, do not read the daily papers. They have not only not increased their knowledge of their school work; but have, perhaps fortunately, forgotten much of what they learned at school. They have not, in many cases, even moderately good dictionaries, and would not know how to use them if they had. They complain of want of time to pursue any systematic course of reading. They have no use for books beyond the trashy novel, and many of them not even for that. Almost the only useful knowledge they have is what learned in the home, on the farm, or in the workshop, and, of this knowledge they are ashamed. To converse with one of them is simply a waste of time.

My next Article, of which notice will be given, will continue this subject.

Every "Caloric" lower burner-cup, besides being deep, is made with an air-mixer, which latter section has nickel-plated cover for air adjustment. Upper face of burner being corrugated causes a current of air to pass between the corrugations and intermix with the gas. The air and gas are thus thoroughly blended before ignition takes place, which prevents the escape of gas.

Every burner automatically drilled, hence the uniform flame. The "Caloric" system stands for rigid gas economy, great velocity of flame, and safety of operation.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

THE FIGHT BECOMING INTERESTING.

The publication this week, at the instigation of the representatives of the liquor interests, of the names of the 1,500 or more people who signed the petition to the City Council asking that a vote be taken next January on the question of Local Option, has injected fresh interest in the local fight.

The temperance people were surprised to see this list published. They had given some of those who had signed the petition to understand that their names would not be printed in the city papers. They did not expect that the liquor interests would want to pay to advertise the fact that over 1,500 of the best citizens of Peterborough had signed the petition. And yet they did. And as the petition, when once it had been presented to the City Council, became public property they could not be prevented from publishing it.

A number of the ratepayers, when they signed the petition, did so with the distinct understanding that they were not pledging themselves to vote for Local Option. They were willing that the matter should be submitted to the people for a vote. They were not willing to pledge themselves to vote for Local Option when the vote is taken. While the great majority of those who signed the petition will vote for Local Option there is no means of telling who they are. What the representatives of the liquor interests hoped to gain by publishing the list is, therefore, hard to fathom. Perhaps they will tell us?

The Stand of the Local Papers.

The local papers have been criticised on the ground that they have not been fair to the temperance side. Early this year the representatives of the City Temperance League entered into an arrangement with both the city evening papers that is working out in a satisfactory and harmonious manner. While some slight misunderstandings occurred last week that is all they were. The papers have proposed, and their offer has been accepted by the Temperance League, that when articles bearing on the present campaign, that are not of immediate news value, are furnished by the League for publication it shall be stated in connection with these articles that they are furnished by the League. When the representatives of the liquor interests furnish articles for publication the same rule should hold good.

Come Out in the Open

The leaders of those who are opposed to Local Option are hereby invited to come forward and discuss this question in the public press so that the ratepayers of Peterborough may have ample opportunity to weigh the arguments of both sides. It will not be fair for either side to refrain from advancing their arguments until the last couple of weeks of the campaign when it will be too late to gather the information that may be required in order that they may be answered effectively.

Some of the opponents of Local Option are going around claiming, wherever they think that it will do any good that Local Option is proving a failure in other places, that it will increase the taxes in Peterborough, that it cannot be enforced, that it will create dives and so on. These are the old, old arguments that have done duty for years. The experiences of other cities that have carried Local Option have proved them to be fallacious.

If, therefore, those who still use these arguments will only come out in the open and state frankly what their objections to Local Option are and if they will make a few clear cut, definite statements in support of their claims, it will facilitate a thorough discussion of the matter. Let us hear from you. The year is young but that is all the better.

The Saloons Are Going

The temperance workers in Peterborough have been encouraged lately to put forth fresh efforts, by the splendid victories the temperance forces have been gaining recently both in other parts of Canada and in the States. After a hot fight, that has ben waged in the State of Michigan for weeks and in which the liquor and temperance forces spent many thousands of dollars in the holding of meetings and the distribution of literature, twenty out of twenty-seven counties have recently voted in favour of prohibition thus closing 600 saloons and seven breweries.

During the past year the victories that have been gained by the temperance forces in the United States have meant the closing of almost 11,000 saloons, approximately 325,000 square miles have been added to the no license area and the population now living in dry territory has been increased by over 4,300,000 people. In spite of this, some people try to tell us that we are not ripe for Local Option in Peterborough. If so, it must be that we are content to lag behind other communities in the movement to shake off the shackles of the liquor traffic that is now sweeping over the continent.

During the past few months Illinois has closed 1,500 saloons. Fifty-seven out of 66 counties in Ohio that have voted on the question have voted dry. Indiana has voted 720 saloons out of existence, Iowa 461, Wisconsin over 400; Connecticut 300, Massachusetts 215, and many others about the same. The City of Baltimore alone has closed 393 saloons. In the State of California there are 180 cities and towns and six counties that have driven out the liquor traffic.

Will Benefit Local Men

A local saloon keeper asked a Peterborough merchant recently, if he was going to vote to take the bread and butter out of the mouths of the hotelkeepers. The merchant told him, that while the adoption of local option might take some of the ice cream and cake out of their mouths, he did not believe that it would take away their bread and butter as they would be pretty sure to get their bread and butter in some other line of work. It is altogether likely that after Local Option carries the Peterborough saloon men then will be glad that they are out of the business. This is indicated by the fact that in several places where Local Option has carried the saloon keepers have expressed their satisfaction at being out of the business.

The saloon keepers of Chattanooga, Tennessee, have been forced out of the business as a result of recent legislation in that state. Mike O'Grady, who used to be in the liquor business, has since made the following statement: "It is my belief that after the whisky men become settled in some other field of endeavour they will bless the people who liberated them from the official tax gatherer, the extortionate landlord and the voracious political grafter. Ours is anything but a pleasant life. We are vilified by the preachers, scorned by the church people, damned by the toper, bled by the politician and drawn and quartered by the landlord." And all for the sake of a few tainted dollars! Surely the saloon men of Peterborough, ought to rejoice when they are out of the miserable business.

Over 50 Who Need Local Option

In the City of Peterborough there are some 50 men to whom the saloon keepers have been forbidden by the law to sell liquor. These men have been placed on the "Indian list" by their relatives by their employers or at their own request on account of their inability to resist the temptation to drink liquor to excess. Many of them have been confirmed drunkards. A large proportion of them are the product of Peterborough saloons. They have squandered their money, their time, their health, their self-respect, and much of their future in Peterborough bar-rooms. To save them from possible utter ruin the law has now stepped in and forbidden the hotel keepers to sell them any more liquor.

What have we, the ratepayers of Peterborough, got to say for ourselves? We give the saloons of Peterborough the right, by licensing them, to practically ruin men and then we try to step in at the last moment to save the drunkards manufactured by these saloons, from complete ruin. By carrying Local Option next January we will not only put temptation further away from these 50 men but we will prevent there being any saloons in Peterborough to turn out any more such products. What better proof is required of the need that exists here in Peterborough for the adoption of Local Option?

Campaign Notes

When a man tells you that we could not enforce Local Option in Peterborough, he tells you that we are not fit to govern ourselves and that saloon interests are stronger than law and order.

When a man tells you that Local Option is not a success where it has been tried ask him how it is that over 100 municipalities in Ontario, including Owen Sound, that have Local Option for several years have not repealed it. Although they might have had they so desired. Challenge him to name three places in Ontario that have had Local Option that have repealed it. He will have troubles of his own if you do.

When a man tells you that it will increase our taxes if we carry Local Option ask him how much extra taxes we now have to pay for extra police protection, to maintain prisoners in our gaols and to support poor people all because of the drink traffic.

There are certain hotelkeepers in Peterborough who are not helping themselves or their cause by endeavouring to browbeat and scare certain of Peterborough's business men and ratepayers into voting against Local Option. Free men will not allow themselves to be scared or forced into doing what is not right and they will recent such attempts.

Are you doing what you can to help the Local Option campaign? Do not be afraid to show your colours. You should be proud to do so. Talk Local Option wherever you go. It is a great privilege.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

Everyone Needs a Tonic in the Spring to Build Up the Blood.

If you want new health and strength in the spring you must build up your blood with a tonic medicine. After the long indoor winter months are past most people feel depressed and easily tired. This means that the blood is impure and watery. That is what causes pimples and unsightly eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism, the sharp stabbing pains of neuralgia, poor appetite, frequent headaches and a desire to avoid exertion. These troubles can all be banished by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ, strengthens every nerve and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired out, ailing men and women. Mrs. Frank Murphy, Clark's Harbour, N. S., says —"A year ago I was completely run down and my work became a burden to me. I felt tired all the time, and could drag myself about. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking three or four boxes was again in the best of health. I think Dr Williams' Pink Pills will prove a friend in need to all who are weak and ailing."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A WARNING DREAM.

The Vision Lincoln Saw Several Times in His Sleep.

Napoleon believed devoutly in dreams as warnings or even as forecasts of what was to come, and even he who most prides himself upon his freedom from superstition knows of or has experienced at least one dream that cannot be explained as a mere result of overfeeding.

When we contemplate dreams and their ramifications science can help us but little in their explanation. Wilkie Collins showed this to be so in one of his most ingenious novels, "Armadale." Warning dreams or premonitions may be the result of natural laws which we do not understand.

Lincoln was not counted superstitious because he had some confidence in the prophetic character of one dream, at least, for it visited his sleep on several occasions, and he spoke of it seriously to members of his family and to his closest friends. In telling of this vision he said he seemed to be in "a singular, indescribable vessel, but always the same, moving with great rapidity toward a dark and indefinite shore."

The dream preceded several marked incidents during his occupancy of the presidential chair, notably before the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg.

On the morning of the memorable 14th of April he informed members of his cabinet that he had dreamed this same thing the night before and believed that they were on the threshold of some momentous issue. So impressive were his remarks that his auditors were profoundly moved, but no seer among them could read the warning aright and foresee the awful news of his assassination which should be flashed that night to a stunned and horrified people!

BAIT FOR ALLIGATORS.

The Way a Mexican Indian Gathers In the Ugly Beasts.

A Pinto Indian of eastern Tabasco adopted a novel method of catching alligators. The Indian's weapons were a harpoon, a stout club and a coil of tarred lariats. For bait he used a sucking pig, a box of something which smelled offensively and several chunks of half roasted meat.

Selecting an overhanging bough about six yards from the water's edge, the Indian stripped off its leaves and suspended from the fork the squealing pig. That was the bait for the eyes and ears of the alligator.

Opening the box, he used its offensive contents to grease a string, one end of which he tied to a bush, and, weighting the other with a piece of wood, threw it into the river. That was the nose bait.

Between the thicket and the water's edge was a long sand dam, capped with a row of gnarled logs. Taking the chunks of meat, he placed them at equal intervals between the beach and the ridge of the dam. "This is my grub bait," said the Indian. "It will make him mount the barreea" (barricade).

Stimulating the pig with a kick that caused it to squeal for the next ten minutes, the Indian waited in ambush, harpoon in hand. One end of a long lariat was fastened to it and the other to a tough elastic sapling. The sun had set and it was growing dark when a dark object was seen to rise slowly from the water and sprawl up the dam. The first chunk of roast bait was gobbled.

"He's smacking his chops!" chuckled the Indian. "It's the same one eyed old sinner that owes me two pigs, but he's going to pay his debts."

Gobbling the second chunk, the alligator crawled on, swallowing the third, and at the sight of the hanging pig stopped and glared. Suddenly he pushed forward and fell into a sandy hollow behind the dam.

Instantly he turned and headed for the dam. Up sprang the Pinto and hurled the harpoon through his scaly hide. "I got you this time!" he shouted.

Jerked back by the tension of the lariat, the alligator made the leaves fly with his switching tail and would have snapped the rope if the elasticity of the sapling had not broken the force of his spring as he plunged forward again and again.

Seizing the club and jumping around the floundering prisoner, the Indian dealt him a whack across the head that laid him sprawling on his back. Three more blows, and the alligator had paid his debt.

TRIFLES THAT COUNT.

To skim grease from soup in a hurry use square sheets of clean tissue paper on the surface of the soup. Lay them on one at a time, lift off lightly, and every bit of fat comes off.

Icing that has not boiled long enough can be put back on the fire after it has been mixed in the white of egg provided an asbestus mat is used beneath.

Do not wear a winter suit that must do duty another season too late in the spring. It is more economical to buy a cheap lightweight suit rather than risk the dust and general shabbiness of wearing a good cloth one on hot days.

A box of clean sand kept in the kitchen will be found excellent for nasty cleaning of blackened pots, pans and rusty knives.

When the handles have pulled off the lids of pots or pans cut a spool in half and fasten it to the lid with a screw and nut.

Glass shelves and towel rods in a bathroom save the time and temper of the cleaner. The chief objection to these fixings is the cost. If one watches marked down sales they can often be picked up at half price.

A delightful fragrance that is not oppressive can be given a sickroom by putting a little cologne in a saucer and setting fire to it.

An Odd Old Custom.

When a new associate of the Royal academy is elected some of the academy models dash off with the news, and the first to arrive with the glad tidings at the house of the fortunate artist is by custom rewarded with a guinea. It says much for the honesty of artists' models as a class that no case is known of one of them having obtained this guinea by false pretenses from some obscure and wealthy amateur.—London Punch.

Not Her Fault.

"It is the duty of every man and woman to be married at the age of twenty-two," said the lecturer.

"Well," said a woman of thirty, with some asperity, "you needn't tell me that. Talk to the men."

New Reporter's Experience.

The reporter was not only young and green at the business, but he was unmarried. He had covered a district for the first time with a man who knew the ropes so well that he could have gone over the ground and scented news with his eyes shut.

Not wishing to appear new at the game, when the young man started out on the second day, on coming out from the magistrate's hearings at one of the police courts he clambered into the patrol wagon as he had seen his guide do on the day before and seated himself beside half a dozen prisoners who were being taken to city hall for further examination. Suddenly remembering that he had a story to look up a few squares away, he jumped out of the patrol wagon to the ground. Before he could take a step the policeman standing guard, who had never laid eyes on him before, seized him and pushed him roughly into his seat again. The frightened boy started to explain, but the patrolman, bent on the stern exercise of duty, only added to his terror by saying: "Up to the hall for yours. This is the second time your wife's sworn out that warrant for desertion, and she's got a good cause, I guess."

The police card, which the would be reporter had not thought of before, relieved a somewhat tense situation, and in another minute he was on his way to the scene of a robbery in the street above.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Heart of the Hailstone.

If it were not for the countless trillions of dust particles that float separately invisible in the atmosphere there could be no raindrops, snow crystals or hailstones. From a perfectly dustless atmosphere the moisture would descend in ceaseless rain without drops. The dust particles serve as nuclei about which the vapor gathers. The snow crystal is the most beautiful creation of the aerial moisture, and the hailstone is the most extraordinary. The heart of every hailstone is a tiny atom of dust. Such an atom, with a little moisture condensed about it, is the germ from which may grow a hailstone capable of felling a man or smashing a window. But first it must be caught up by a current of air and carried to the level of the lofty cirrus clouds, five or six or even ten miles high. Then, continually growing by fresh accessions of moisture, it begins its plunge to the earth, spinning through the clouds and flashing in the sun like a diamond bolt shot from a rainbow.

THE GREAT WHITE CHIEF.

Hon. David Laird Has Been Chief Advisers of the Indians.

Hon. David Laird, who has recently arrived in Ottawa to fill a position in the Indian Department of an advisory character, was until recently Indian Commissioner in Winnipeg. The office there has been abolished. Mr. Laird is a man with a history. He was Premier of Prince Edward Island before entering the Cabinet as the first Minister of the Interior in the Mackenzie Government in 1874. In 1876 he resigned to become Indian Commissioner, with headquarters at Battleford, at that time the capital of the Northwest. When the Macdonald Government took office, his position was given to Mr. Dewdney, and Mr. Laird returned to Prince Edward Island. After the Laurier Government was returned Mr. Laird was appointed to his old position as Indian Commissioner, with headquarters in Winnipeg. Mr. Laird had met all the great Indian chiefs while engaged in treaty-making. Big Bear was always a sulky customer to deal with, but had it not been for Riel there would have been no Indian rising. Although many of the more famous chiefs had passed away before the offices were moved to Winnipeg, most of the chiefs of Manitoba, and some from the farther west, had been visitors in the Winnipeg offices during the past ten years, when they came with due ceremony and dignity to pow-pow with the Great White Chief concerning the affairs of their people.

The removal of the offices will take away something that is dear to the Indian's heart—the privilege of access to the White Chief who is set over them, and to whom they may come with their troubles knowing that justice will be done them. Mr. Laird does not believe that the Indian tribes of Canada are being decimated. The old plains tribes, the buffalo hunters of a by-gone day, may be exceptions, he thinks, but the tribes who have lived in the wooded lake country are holding their own or increasing, and contact with the whites is not producing ill effects, as is oftentimes contended.

The plains Indians were used to open-air life and to rigors of the chase. Civilization has made them lazy and shiftless, and without their plains to roam at will and lacking the stern necessity of hunger to drive them to the chase, they have suffered from want of exercise. Improper clothing and ignorant application of some of the softening influences of the white man have caused them to fall victims to disease and tuberculosis and other ailments are taking them off. Among the Western hands there is some mortality, perhaps due to confinement, but on the whole they are doing well.

Fabulously Rich Country.

Inspector Peletier, of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, is now preparing a report, for the authorities at Ottawa, on his recent ten months' patrol through the unknown districts around the west coast of Hudson Bay. Although he is very reticent on the subject he has admitted enough to let it be known that the country through which he traveled is fabulously rich in many kinds of minerals. If the country is half as rich as the inspector states, northern Canada will see a rush of prospectors during the present year which has never before been equalled on the American continent. At present the great drawback to these mineral deposits is total lack of railroad transportation, but within a few days, the Grand Trunk Pacific will start work on its branch line, northwards from Melville, Sask., which will run through the heart of this rich mineral country.

Melville will be the starting point for the rush of prospectors into the Hudson Bay country. At that town they will assemble and outfit for their trips into the northland, coming from all corners of the continent to be taken north by the Grand Trunk Pacific line to Hudson Bay.

However, the rush will begin as soon as the details of Inspector Peletier's report are made public, so those who wish to get in first will have to endure many hardships over unbroken trails, but returning they will be able to travel in style in a Pullman car if they so desire.

Western Canada has seen many mineral rushes in the past but the rush to the Hudson Bay country will be the greatest of them all. That the country to the north of civilization is rich in minerals geologists have admitted for years past, but the report now being prepared by Inspector Peletier will give information sufficiently definite to make a prospecting trip into the country a profitable venture.

APPRECIATION.

I heard a piker grouchin' yesterday
'Cause they was shy on beauty in this town.
I guess he's never watched the sun go down
Strikin' some high white buildin' on its way
Just like a reg'lar spotlight in a play,
An' leavin' all the rest a deep, dark brown
With big black shadows hangin' all aroun',
Just servin' notice Night had come to stay.
That rummy owns a bang-up auto car,
His house is like a mansion in the skies,
An' he was puffin' at a big cigar;
You'd think a guy like him could use his eyes
An' kind of frame things up the way they are;
He shouldn't need a kid to put him wise.

—From Sour Sonnets of a Sorehead by James P. Haverson.

HIS HEART IS YOUNG.

I. B. Lucas, M.P.P., Never Seems to Grow Up, Say His Friends.

For a decade now, Mr. I. B. Lucas, member for North Grey, has been the Peter Pan of the Ontario Legislature. He has persistently refused to grow up. He has not aged a minute since he was introduced to the House as a new member of the Opposition, and his friends say that he actually looks younger and less burdened by care now as he guides the devious processes of the private bills committee than he did when he was first called to the Bar.

Between sessions Mr. Lucas spends most of his time in the town of Markdale cultivating the sciences of law and citizenship. But when these begin to irk, as they frequently do, he finds his relief in a game that lasts as long as the summer time does. Mounted on a fiery steed, he issues forth in the direction of Flesherton. This is no longer I. B. Lucas, M.P.P. for North Grey, and chairman of the Private Bills Committee, but One-eyed Mike, the terror of Demon Gulch. At his side ride such members of his family and close friends as have stout hearts enough to ride with him when there is desperate work afoot.

There are names in that band which carry terror over the whole countryside where they are known, but they do not often leak out, for the chief reason that their wearers rarely remember them at the close of the day.

Alkali Bill and Red Pete and Sonora Slim and Cattle Kate and Five Ace Joe put in an appearance from time to time, but the leadership always is tacitly awarded to One-eyed Mike. He is the hero of many such frolics.

After a hard ride, these desperadoes of an afternoon swoop down on the unsuspecting village of Flesherton. "Red licker" is what they want, and they will have it if they have to shoot up the whole dinged town. But they do not have to. Tying their mounts to the post before the Bob-Tail Flush Saloon, otherwise the local drug store, they march in with a muttered imprecation and call for ice-cream soda. Then they ride home, and Flesherton never knows that she has sheltered within her boundaries the worst gang of "bad men" in all the north country.

His Chances to Get Even.

A lawyer came into court drunk, when the judge said to him, "Sir, I am sorry to see you in a situation which is a disgrace to yourself and family and the profession to which you belong."

This reproof elicited the following colloquy:

"Did your honor speak to me?"

"I did, sir. I said, sir, that in my opinion you disgraced yourself and family, the court and the profession by your course of conduct."

"May i-i-it please your honor, I have been an attorney in-in-in this c-c-court for fifteen years, and permit me to say, your honor, that this is the first correct opinion I ever knew you to give."

COMELY MATRONS PRAISE PERUNA

KENTUCKY
OREGON
OHIO.

MRS. ANNA C. HYDE.
MRS. HATTIE HAMILTON.
MRS. ANTHONY RAUCH.

The only valuable testimony which any household remedy can have is the testimony of those who have used it. It is worse than useless to discuss Peruna from a theoretical standpoint. It is what Peruna will do, not what people say about it, that constitutes evidence. The housewives of the United States know what Peruna will do. They have tried it. They have realized its benefit in the family. They are the ones that are competent to speak of it. Self-appointed critics know nothing of it whatever.

The Testimony of These Three Housewives Demonstrates Beyond All Cavil That Peruna is a Safe and Useful Remedy.

Gained Flesh on Peruna.

Mrs. Hattie Hamilton, R. F. D. No. 2, Sparta, Ky., writes:

"I have taken two bottles of Peruna and commenced on the third one. I did not really need the third one, but thought it best to take another bottle.

"I have always weighed 102 pounds, but since I began taking Peruna I weigh 120, for the first time in all my life, and I am now thirty-three years old. Your medicine has surely done me a great deal of good, and I have recommended it to several others who have begun taking it.

"My mother, who is seventy-six years old, had grown so weak she could scarcely walk. She took two bottles of Peruna and is fleshier and looking well."

Internal Catarrh.

Mrs. M. F. Jones, of Burning Springs, Ky., writes:

"No family should ever be without Peruna, for it is an unfailing cure for colds, and it is an excellent remedy to prevent and relieve croup.

"And to speak from a standpoint of experience, I can candidly say that it is the remedy for internal catarrh. I shall not hesitate to recommend it, especially to all suffering women.

"Peruna has gained full confidence and a permanent stay in our home."

Constipation, Torpid Liver.

Mrs. Anthony Rauch, 306 N. Walnut street, Bucyrus, O., writes:

"I was suffering from obstinate constipation and torpid liver, when I took your advice and purchased six bottles of Peruna and Manalin. When I had taken only one bottle I felt much better, and since I have taken two more bottles I feel entirely well, but I will continue taking the medicine for a short time to make sure of my cure.

"I think Manalin is one of the finest remedies for constipation that I ever tried. I will never be without it. It has made me so strong. I can do a day's work and never tire. I am so glad I do not get those dizzy spells any more. I haven't had one since I took your medicine.

"I cannot thank you enough for what your medicine has done for me. All sick people should give it a fair trial."

Kidneys and Bladder.

Mrs. Gus. H. Carlson, Box 201, Ortonville, Minn., writes:

"I had catarrh of the kidneys and bladder. I have taken Peruna until now, and I do not think I need to take it any longer.

"I feel well, and my tongue is clear, and I have no bitter taste in my mouth. I am very thankful for Peruna."

Peruna Their Family Medicine.

Mrs. Anna C. Hyde, 713 E. Yamhill street, Portland, Oregon, Vice President Literary and Educational Organization of New Hampshire, writes:

"I am pleased to endorse Peruna as an all-round good family medicine, and one that is safe to give children. I give it to mine at the least suggestion of a cold, and take it myself to build up my strength and nerves.

"My sister, who is living with me, uses Peruna, too, and she is loud in its praises.

"Your medicine is certainly worthy of praise."

Backache, Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 609 N. Fifth Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"As Peruna has done me a world of good, I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I did.

"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

Catarrh of Bowels.

Mrs. Maggie Durbin, 1822 North street, Little Rock, Ark., writes:

"I was troubled for five years with a chronic disease. I tried everything I heard of, but nothing did me any good. Some doctors said my trouble was catarrh of the bowels, and some said consumption of the bowels. One doctor said he could cure me. I took his medicine two months, but it did me no good.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Peruna and I did so. After I had taken two bottles I found it was helping me, so I continued its use, and it has cured me sound and well.

"I can recommend Peruna to anyone, and if anyone wants to know what Peruna did for me if they will write to me I will answer promptly."

Story of a Baby Contest.

Everybody knows John Farrell in the district west of London. He is popular in all quarters and in great demand as an efficient chairman at picnics, tea meetings, concerts, etc. The joke is on John once in a long while only.

On one occasion at a rural picnic in West Lambton he gave an address and took occasion to offer a prize of $2 to the mother of the best looking baby on the grounds and selected as the judges his friends, Messrs. F. F. Pardee and R. E. LeSueur, the Liberal and Conservative candidates respectively, for West Lambton. These two astute politicians brought in the report that the eight babies in the competition were all so beautiful that they could only decide that each should receive a prize, and they elected the donor to pay $2 to each of the eight mothers.

John promptly met the situation by informing the judges that they could not evade their clear duty in that way, and appealed to the audience to decide the matter. He won out, with the result that the two politicians were out eight dollars each.

Deported as a Drunkard.

That Canada does not want drunkards, and will not have them, was emphasized at the North London Police Court recently, when Jane Cousins, forty-eight, widow, who said she had no home, was charged with being drunk and incapable at Mare street, Hackney. Constable Pitcher proved the offence. A daughter of the prisoner then came forward and said her mother came back from Canada three weeks ago, having been deported by the Canadian Government because she was a drunkard.

Mr. d'Eyncourt said it was news to him that the Canadian Government sent people back to England because they were drunkards, and remanded the prisoner for the court missionary to make some inquiry.—Lloyd's Weekly News.

Many Nationalities.

The various peoples in the Canadian west was well illustrated by the story told by Rev. D. B. Harkness of Winnipeg at the Laymen's Missionary Conference a short time ago. It was the case of a Galician who quarrelled with a Chinaman over work done by a Hungarian carpenter when a Russian tailor tried to make peace. A Syrian waiter took the Chinaman's side, a Bohemian cook took the side of the Galician, a Swedish doctor dressed the Chinaman's wounds, an Irish policeman arrested the Galician, who was tried by a Scotch magistrate, convicted by the evidence of an Italian organ grinder, locked up by a German turnkey and attended in jail by a Polish priest.

History From Cornerstone.

The historic old cathedral of St. Boniface is being torn down, and in the cornerstone, laid away back in 1862, documents of great historical value to the present day have been discovered in a perfect state of preservation. One of these is a closely-written history of Catholic missions, signed and sealed by His Grace Archbishop Tache.

LOVE'S FAITHFUL HAVEN.

By MARIA CLIFFWORTH.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Mrs. Ferry sat upright in her favorite rockerless chair sewing a strand of braided rags into a rug. Braided rugs were Mrs. Ferry's hobby.

To be sure, she and Anna Jane were the only people in the house, and visitors came very seldom, but to Mrs. Ferry that was no reason why she should not keep her carpets covered.

The room was growing dim, for night fell early. This having to light up at half past 4 was a great drain on the oil can, but there are times when one cannot see even with two pairs of spectacles astride one's nose. She leaned forward and called:

"Anna Jane!"

Anna Jane came scurrying downstairs, stumbling over the braided rug at the top of the flight and almost losing her balance and tumbling over the braided rug at the foot.

"What have you been doing upstairs all this time?" Mrs. Ferry demanded, looking at her sharply. She had a notion that Anna Jane had been crying. "You better go to the postoffice right away if you're going."

Anna Jane took down her faded old jacket and limp hat. "Shall I light the lamp before I go?" she asked timidly.

"I guess not. I ain't in such a terrible hurry as you be to burn up the last bit of oil there is in the house. That's because I have to buy it, maybe."

She set her old mouth grimly. Anna Jane hurried into her things without another word.

There was really nothing to go to the postoffice for. She had gone four days now in succession without receiving anything from the hands of the impatient clerk. Yet, rain or shine, Anna Jane must make her daily pilgrimage to the postoffice.

It never occurred to her to rebel against this or any other task Aunt Hulda set her. Aunt Hulda had been very good, she thought, to take her in when she was left a little helpless girl without parents or friends.

She had a childish memory of the time Aunt Hulda came to get her. She believed Aunt Hulda had favored her sister Tilly more, for Tilly was older and far prettier.

Tilly married early and well. When she had been married five years she suddenly remembered Anna Jane and sent for her to visit her. Anna Jane went and had the time of her life. Tilly was very good to her, but inclined to make fun of her old fashioned ways of dress and manner.

"Anna Jane," she said, "you've got to do your hair different and wear something besides that made over black dress of Aunt Hulda's. I'm going to get you a pink lawn, and when it's made I'll give you a party."

Anna Jane gasped with delight. The evening of that party and the first wearing of the pink lawn was the most memorable of her life, for that evening she met him. No man had ever before paid her any attention, and her little head was quite turned. He came to call the next evening, and the next, and the next. Of a sudden he had grown wonderfully friendly with the Martins, and Tilly understood. She worked with might and main to make the match, and when Anna Jane went home she was engaged.

Anna Jane was to be married from Aunt Hulda's house, and she set to work upon her simple trousseau. Aunt Hulda, grown suddenly generous, helped her, and Tilly sent $10 to buy the wedding dress. Anna Jane lived in a heavenly dream. He wrote every week, and she wrote back every week.

Then his letters began to lag, and at last came silence. Anna Jane wept and wondered. She could do nothing. Even Tilly could not for a long time find out what was the trouble. But when she did she wrote her sister.

"He's married!" she raged. "He married that Convers girl that was here at your party. She always wanted him, and now she's got him. They went to the justice a month ago and were married on the sly. I wouldn't believe it till I had it right from her own mouth, the impudent thing!"

Poor Anna Jane! She packed away her wedding things with a dazed look in her eyes that never after left them. Aunt Hulda sighed and sighed.

She seemed to feel that Anna Jane was all to blame and treated her accordingly.

But there were times when the burden pressed more heavily upon her than at others, and tonight was one of them. Her voice trembled as she stood at the general delivery window and put the worn question:

"Any mail for Mrs. Hulda Ferry, please?"

The clerk snatched a package of letters from a pigeonhole and thumbed them hurriedly. Then he shook his head, and Anna Jane, with fresh humiliation upon her, turned away.

The storm had increased, and in the faint light the sidewalk was slippery. A big man with an umbrella, whose hat brim was turned down and whose coat collar was turned up, saw her.

"Look out!" he cried gruffly. He caught her by the arm and helped her. Anna Jane dropped her head, with a gasp of thanks. He held the umbrella over her and walked silently at her side, shielding her generously from the flaying storm.

When she turned the corner he turned it with her. It was a most unusual proceeding. Anna Jane was not used to receiving such courtesies. She wondered who he was, but she did not dare look into his face to see. Presently he spoke again gruffly:

"I'm looking for Mrs. Hulda Ferry. Can you tell me where she lives?"

Anna Jane jumped. "Why, yes, I can," she said. "I'm going right to her house now. I live with her."

"Oh, do you?" said the man. "Then I'll accompany you home."

He did not speak again, nor did Anna Jane. When they reached Mrs. Ferry's little low house Anna Jane went up the steps, and he followed. She opened the door and went in, and he went in too.

He tore open his long ulster and threw off his hat.

"Anna Jane," he said, "don't you know me?"

Anna Jane tipped uncertainly, and he caught her and put her in a chair.

"I've scared you most to death, and I didn't mean to," he said regretfully. "Anna Jane," he went on earnestly, "my wife's dead. I did a foolish thing by myself and a wicked one by you when I married her, but that's bygones and can't be helped now. I'm ten years older and a good deal wiser. And I've come to see if—if you won't forgive me and let me have another chance. It's the only thing that's of any account to me now on earth, for, Anna Jane, I love you."

He knelt down before her and put his head in her lap. Anna Jane sat like a stiff little statue. She looked down at the big head in her lap and the big man kneeling before her who asked her forgiveness and said he loved her.

She lifted her hand and let it fall upon his hair. He felt the touch and looked up.

"Anna Jane," he said, "if you don't believe me, if you can't trust me, I'm willing to pass the rest of my life trying to make you—if you'll only give me a chance."

A wan little smile went over Anna Jane's face, but it was like the first spring sunshine, and life and joy followed it.

"Anna Jane"— he began again.

Slow footsteps creaked over the floor of the next room. The door opened, and Aunt Hulda, standing there, saw the strange spectacle of her niece in the arms of a stranger who seemed to have just been kissing her. Anna Jane's face was alight. She was no longer afraid of Aunt Hulda or of anything in the world. Her voice rang out with a glad little cry:

"Oh, Aunt Hulda, Joe's come! Joe's come!"

But it was left for Joe to make the necessary explanations.

Swearing at Large.

Dean Ramsay could not countenance profanity, but he managed to tell in his "Reminiscences" some good stories of a weakness which afflicted many in his time:

"A late Duke of Athol had invited a well known character, a writer of Perth, to come up and meet him at Dunkeld for the transaction of some business. The duke mentioned the day and hour when he should receive the man of law, who accordingly came punctually at the appointed time and place. But the duke had forgotten the appointment and had gone to the hill, from which he could not return for some hours. A highlander present described the Perth writer's indignation and his mode of showing it by a most elaborate course of swearing. 'But whom did he swear at?' was the inquiry made of the narrator, who replied, 'Oh, he didna sweer at onything particular, but juist stude in ta middle of ta road and swoor at lairge.' I have from a friend also an anecdote which shows how entirely at one period the practice of swearing had become familiar even to female ears when mixed up with the intercourse of social life. A sister had been speaking of her brother as much addicted to this habit. 'Oor John sweers awfu', and we try to correct him, but,' she added in a candid and apologetic tone, 'na doubt it is a great set aff to conversation.'"

The Exporter.

"Who is your Chicago friend?"

"He is a prominent ex-porter."

"What does he export?"

"I didn't say he exported anything. He used to be a porter at the hotel where I stopped."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Grand People In London In 1806.

"I came to town on Wednesday and intended to go to the Ancient Music; made a Bungle about my Ticket; it was too late to get it. The Drawing Room was the object yesterday. They made a mistake in my Dress. It was not deep enough for my Mourning, and the glass of my Sedan Chair was not mended. Looked at my Lodgings; found them Abominable. I walked all over the Town till I was, Lord, how tired! Looked in upon the Duchess of Gordon while she took off her Hoop to Dine with the Bedfords."

This was Jane, duchess of Gordon, who rode down the High street of Edinburgh on a pig's back in the days of her wild girlhood and raised recruits for the new highland regiment when other means had failed by allowing each man to take the shilling from between her lips. Hoops were de rigueur for court dress until the days of George IV., although in private life the ladies' skirts had been growing more and more scanty since the days of the French revolution.—From "John Hookham Frere and His Friends," by Gabrielle Festing.

Winning a Violin.

The way M. Ysaye, the great violinist, became the owner of a Guarnerius violin dated 1742 was thus quaintly told by himself:

"The Guarnerius was bought in Paris by a pupil of mine, a charming young woman. I envied her the violin, and fate gave it to me. I teach this pupil, and by and by I meet her sister, a most lovely young woman, with whom I fall in love straightway and marry. Soon I go to my sister-in-law, who was my pupil, and say to her:

"'It is time you stop fooling with violin. You will never learn how to play it.' I take the liberty of a big brother, but she do not like it for long time. At last she succumb to my experience and wisdom, and she stops playing. Then I say grandiloquently:

"'I will take the Guarnerius, 1742.' I take it, and that is how the violin came into the possession of Ysaye."

They Meant Business.

A Chicago stage manager was telling of amusing incidents of blunders and errors caused by stage fright. In a romantic play recently revived one of the minor characters, a dairymaid, comes forward at the end of the recital of a love romance and comments as follows:

"Hope filled their youth and whetted their love; they plighted their troth!"

But at one of the performances the girl who played the dairymaid was absent without notice. At the last moment the manager gave the lines to a shepherdess, who had never had lines to speak before and who was excessively nervous when her cue came. This is what the astonished audience heard:

"Hope filled their trough and blighted their love; they whetted their tooth!"

Field of Honor Commission.

Perhaps wit is stimulated by a slight derangement of the nerves, and good things said on the field of battle are sometimes recorded. When "Bully" Egan fought Curran with pistols the bulky Egan complained that his opponent was as thin as a blade of grass. "Let my size be chalked out upon your body," said Curran, "and any hits outside of the line shall not count."

It was not good form, however, to make a parade of magnanimity, and the coxcombical practice of firing in the air or "dumb shooting" or "children's play" was strictly prohibited by the rules, of which thirty-six were drawn up by representatives of the five most eminent counties—Galway, Tipperary, Mayo, Sligo and Roscommon—in 1777. They met at the summer assizes at Clonmel and seem to have done their work very gravely and honestly, including a special rule for "simple, unpremeditated encounters with the small sword." There is a large element of absurdity about it all no doubt, but even dueling has had its place as a rough, inefficient test of manhood.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Very Little Change.

"It's three years since I was in this city," said a stranger in a restaurant as he was walking out after finishing his dinner; "city looks the same."

"I don't find much change!" responded the waiter as he took up the nickel that was left on the table.

Quite Handy.

"The automobile is a great institution."

"For instance?"

"You can sit up in it as you pass a friend and crawl under it when a creditor heaves into sight."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"SPRING FEVER"

The need of a spring medicine seems to be universal. This is due to the fact that during the winter the blood becomes impure on account of the hearty food eaten. This causes that tired, weary, all-gone, don't-care-to-work feeling which is so prevalent at this time of year.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

That Tired Feeling
Mr. F. H. Leard, Saskatoon, Sask., writes:—"I have used Burdock Blood Bitters as a blood builder and think it an excellent remedy. Everyone should take it in the spring to cure that tired feeling that comes to so many at this time of year."

Uses It Every Spring
Mr. H. Lagley, Hamilton Ont., writes:—"I have used Burdock Blood Bitters as a spring tonic, and I find it the best thing I can take. It builds me right up and I use it every spring. It is excellent for the blood."

TO KEEP YOUNG.

Learn Self Control—Anger a Rapid Wrinkle Bringer.

It is every woman's duty to keep young looking as long as possible, but unfortunately she does not always know the best way to live up to that duty.

Avoid worry, hurry and getting flustered.

Learn self control. Anger is a rapid wrinkle bringer.

Be temperate. Moderation does not only refer to the stomach. Overdoing in any way makes for premature age.

Love the open air. Fresh air is not a fad; it is a necessity if one would keep young.

Get plenty of sleep. Nothing lines the face like nights of wakefulness.

Keep mentally alert. An intellectual back number adds years to her seeming age. Nothing makes for youth like a young mind save perhaps a young heart.

Don't let yourself get sluggish and indifferent. Here is where the benefit of massage, physical culture and a vital interest in life comes in.

Don't let your face reflect every perplexity. The woman who keeps young need not wear a mask, but she should guard against the so called "speaking countenance" if she does not want a fine crop of wrinkles.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES.

A great many blemishes on wall paper may be removed with a rubber on a lead pencil.

Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor about the house.

Combs soon warp and break if washed with water. A good stiff nailbrush cleans them well.

Potato water is excellent for cleaning mud stains from nearly any kind of cloth or garment.

The oven door should be shut as gently as possible. Much of the heavy cake and bread is the result of its being banged in closing.

An india rubber hot water bottle is easily cleaned. Wash it well with lukewarm water and soap, rubbing on the soap with a piece of flannel.

When ironing a starched garment and a part of it becomes dry do not dampen with water, but with a cloth wet with a little cold starch. This will keep all parts of the garment of equal stiffness.

The best way to freshen homemade bread so that it is as good as new is to dip the loaf in cold water, put it in a pan and bake it until it is heated through. Then wrap it in a damp cloth, and when cold it is as good as when first baked.

The New Gesture.

Those who are interested in characteristics are quite gleeful over the funny gestures that women make in motor cars. One of the experts on grace suggests that there should be a school to teach them how to thrust out their hands from motor cars to hold up traffic.

This fashion of stopping vehicles behind one has been adopted by women in general. When a motor car suddenly stops the occupant holds up her hand like a policeman to give warning to the vehicles at the back. This is an excellent precaution in crowded thoroughfares.

The trouble of it is that a woman has not yet learned to do it as one having authority. There is nothing of the careless power as shown by a policeman's hand when it goes up to stop traffic. The women who try it flop the hands, saw the air, separate the fingers and make five signposts to one hand.

The graceful woman who can hold her hand up and out of the motor with unconscious ease and power has gone far.

Ivory Toned Celluloid Sets.

Ivory and its imitations are the modes of the moment for toilet articles. Silver has taken second place. If one must buy a new set this is comforting news, for the ivory surfaces clean so well they save days of labor in one year.

Few people, however, can afford real ivory. So the factories have brought out a new celluloid in the exact creamy ivory tone. Eleven pieces for the toilet sell at a little more than a dollar apiece in this ware.

Many of the shops that deal in it will put a monogram on each piece free of cost. This is engraved and not of silver. The latter is exceedingly pretty, but rather costly.

Nervous, Tired, Anxious, Thin
What causes nervous collapse? Most people say worry, anxiety, brooding, but these are simply the outcomes of a lowered physical condition. When strong we throw them off, but when run down they hold as if by chains.
The true cause of nervous collapse is in the blood. When thin and watery it contains no nourishment for the nerves, no support for the muscles—result is collapse.
The truest food for the nerves is the nourishing blood that Ferrozone forms. Ferrozone builds up the nervous and depressed, not by stimulation, but by the natural way of adding [illegible] blood and [illegible]. The whole system is vitalized, the nerves are fortified [illegible] work hard, and [illegible] free from [illegible] anxiety.
FERROZONE Makes Health
No health restorer so certain as Ferrozone, no nerve strengthener more potent, no system tonic so well adapted to the wants of the rundown, nervous, or sleepless. Ferrozone is certain to cure if you give it a chance. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers,

WHERE WOMEN PROPOSE.

And the Man's Mother Says Yes or No Without Consulting Him.

Shall women propose is a question which does not bother the Hopi Indian maiden, who not only invites her chosen one to matrimony, but if necessary drags him to the altar, or its Hopi substitute, by main force.

When a girl has selected her victim —this ungallant way of putting it is that of a writer in the Travel Magazine—she simply calls upon his mother and talks business. If the old lady lends a willing ear the matter is settled forthwith, and the young man has no course left open excepting to bow to the inevitable. At times, it is said, violence has been resorted to to drag an unwilling youth to the altar.

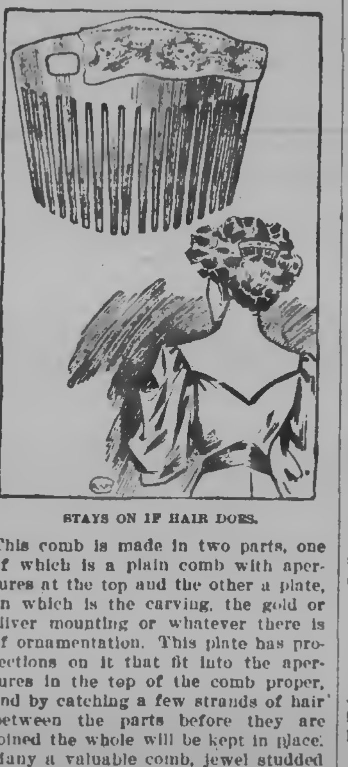
Once the matter has been settled to the satisfaction of the women concerned the girl goes to work to grind meal for her prospective mother-in-law for a period of thirty days, while the man in the case is set to work to weave his future bride's wedding garments. At the expiration of the thirty day period the ceremony takes place.

Whenever a Hopi maiden feels that the time has arrived when she should begin to think seriously of choosing a husband she does up her hair in two gigantic whorls, one over each ear. These are danger signals, warning the young men of the community that she is gunning for a husband. Sometimes it happens that half a dozen or more young men will take to the tall timber on learning that the whorls have appeared upon the head of a young woman. Flight is their only hope, as the mothers are so jealous of the prerogative of their sex that they rarely interpose on behalf of an unwilling son, and the fathers are not consulted.

A SAFETY BACK COMB.

Removable Plate When Fastened Holds It In the Hair.

There is no longer any reason for women losing their back combs. A comb has been devised that "stays put" and will not come out unless the hair comes off, so women with detachable puffs must anchor it securely.



STAYS ON IF HAIR DOES.

This comb is made in two parts, one of which is a plain comb with apertures at the top and the other a plate, on which is the carving, the gold or silver mounting or whatever there is of ornamentation. This plate has projections on it that fit into the apertures in the top of the comb proper, and by catching a few strands of hair between the parts before they are joined the whole will be kept in place. Many a valuable comb, jewel studded or otherwise costly, has been lost through working its way out of the hair and falling to the ground or floor unnoticed. With this new device in use there will be no danger of such misfortune, and my lady may wear the most costly hair ornament without fear.

The Hourglass.

Instead of being obsolete and simply an interesting relic, the hourglass in various forms is a twentieth century necessity. A machinist authority points out that for such purposes as timing hardening and tempering heats in twist drill manufacture, where seconds or minutes must be gauged accurately, nothing serves like the hourglass with the right amount of sand. Accuracy to fractions of a second can be had much more easily than by watching the hands of a watch.

He Walked.

"Good afternoon, Miss Brown! Going for a walk? May I go with you?" asked an elderly but ardent admirer of the lady.

"Yes; my doctor says that we must always walk with an object, and I suppose you'll answer the purpose."

Talent knows what to do; tact knows what not to do.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

A Steward at $1,800 a Year Will Do Mrs. Taft's Marketing.

Mrs. Taft has the reputation of being an excellent housekeeper. But little of this kind of work will fall to her lot as mistress of the White House. A steward is provided at $1,800 a year to look after such matters.

It is his duty to hire all the servants, to give orders to the housekeeper and to do all the marketing. He is provided with a government Dayton wagon in which to do his shopping.

He is a sworn government official, who under the terms of a bond of $20,000 given before he enters upon his duties is personally responsible for all government property used in the White House. This includes table linen, plate, glass, furniture, carpets and ornaments.

Whenever the first lady of the land wishes any repairs or changes made she has simply to call upon the engineer officer of the army who is detailed in the dual capacity of superintendent of public buildings and grounds and master of ceremonies at the White House. He is allowed $35,000 a year for the care and refurnishing of the mansion and an equal amount for repairs, $6,000 for fuel, $9,000 for greenhouses and $4,000 for care of the White House grounds.

All food bills, including those for the four state dinners given each year or for the entertainment of distinguished foreigners in Washington, must be paid out of the president's own private funds. The four state banquets usually cost about $1,000 each. The floral decorations for the White House, however, come from the government greenhouses. The music, too, is free, being furnished by the famous Marine band at Washington.

In the basement of the White House the new mistress will find two modern kitchens, a large laundry room and a wonderful pantry, containing an electric dish heater, with a capacity of 3,000 dishes and plates. At the state dinners, over which she presides, the viands, prepared in her two kitchens by one of the best caterers in the country, will be served on a $30,000 service of Wedgwood china, besides the new glassware bought under the Roosevelt regime and the historic silver plate collected by White House matrons since Adams' time.

Drugless Cure.

"William, dear," feebly called the invalid wife, who was supposed to be nearing the end of her earthly career.

"Yes, darling," answered the sorrowing husband. "What is it?"

"When I am gone," said she, "I feel that for the sake of the motherless little ones you should marry again."

"Do you really think it would be best, darling?" asked the faithful William.

"Yes, William, I really do," replied the invalid. "After a reasonable length of time you should seek the companionship of some good woman."

"Do you know, my dear," said the husband, "that you have lifted a great burden from my mind? Now, there is that charming widow Jones across the way. She has acted rather friendly toward me ever since you were taken ill. Of course, dear, she could never fill your place, but she is young, plump and pretty, and I'm sure she would do her best to lessen my grief."

"William Henry Brown!" exclaimed the female whose days were supposed to be numbered, as she partly raised herself upon the pillow, "if you ever dare install that redheaded, freckle faced, squint eyed hussy in my shoes I'll—I'll"— And then she fainted.

But the next day Mrs. Brown was able to sit up, and two days later she was downstairs.—New York Times.

Sad Enough.

"No, boys; I must go home tonight."

"Why?"

"It is my wedding night."

"Poor fellow! Naturally you do not feel like celebrating."

Something Wrong.

"There goes Zenkins."

"Isn't bright, is he?"

"Why not?"

"I hear he is an honest alderman."

They Might Have Done Worse.

"The Gilder girls didn't do so badly, after all."

"How was that?"

"Why, Jane's duke turned out to be a cook, and Ann's count was a waiter. But they both wanted work, and Mrs. Gilder told me only the other day that she couldn't ask for better help."—Cleveland Plain Dealer

HER LENTEN SACRIFICES.

His Daughter Was Certainly a Remarkably Earnest Girl.

"My wife is having a hard time of it during Lent," says the man with the rambling whiskers. "She is trying to go without candy, and it is really a great trial to her."

"Well," says the man with the wilted eyebrows, "my daughter is certainly making a record. She isn't eating a bit of meat—not even fish and eggs."

"You don't say!"

"Fact. And she doesn't eat any candy, nor does she go to the theater."

"Well, well!"

"And, more than that, she hasn't played a single hand of bridge."

"You don't tell me! How about dancing?"

"She hasn't danced a step during Lent."

"She certainly is a remarkably earnest girl. You seldom see one who is so firm in her resolutions. How old is she?"

"Three months and ten days old."—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Chicago Post.

Lucky Atlas!

Teacher—Now, Johnnie, can you tell me who Atlas was?

Johnnie (aged nine)—Yes, teacher. He was the man believed to support the earth on his shoulders.

Teacher—He supported the earth, did he?

Johnnie—Yes, sir.

Teacher—Well, then, who supported him?

Johnnie (after thinking a little while) —I suppose he married a rich woman. —New York Times.

In the Heavyweight Class.

Tenderfoot (watching a funeral procession)—Do you always have four horses to the hearse?

Alkali Ike—Not always. The passenger in there came out to this country bragging that he was the champion lightweight of the world, and one night when he got too pert One Eyed Bill pumped him so full of lead that it took the extra team of horses to pull the hearse.—Harper's Weekly.

Not Overanxious.

An old Kansas citizen who had been henpecked all his life was about to die. His wife felt it her duty to offer him such consolation as she might and said, "John, you are about to go, but I will follow you."

"I suppose so, Manda," said the old man weakly; "but, so far as I am concerned, you don't need to be in any blamed hurry about it."

Little In Comparison.

"It's a fact," said Towne, "that my wife is able to dress on comparatively little money."

"What!" exclaimed Marryat. "Oh, come now! What do you mean by 'comparatively little?'"

"I mean on little compared with what she thinks she ought to have."—Catholic Standard and Times.

His Occupation.

"Yes, he was once a professional baseball player."

"What's he doing now?"

"He puts in most of his time hunting for people who are willing to listen while he tells them what a great man he used to be."—Chicago Record Herald.

Hopeless Case.

"Why, Lushley, I am astonished to see you out! The last thing I heard about you was that the doctor had given you up."

"Well, he has. He—er—told me the other day he had charged up my account to profit and loss."

His Role.

The actor of the stranded troupe protested at the prospect of footing the ties.

"Quit your kicking," said the manager impatiently. "You signed as walking gentleman, didn't you?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

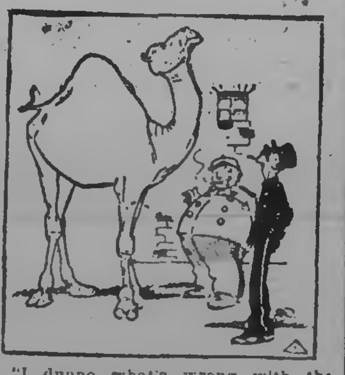
The Prime Necessity.

"No matter whether inventors use sails or motors on their airships, there is one thing all will have to do."

"What is that?"

"Raise the wind."—Baltimore American.

At the Circus.



"I dunno what's wrong with the camel."

"He's certainly got his back up at something, me boy."

The Chain of Habit.

"Habit is mighty strong in its grip on a man," says the magazine editor. "Now, there's Jimmy Brace, the reformed second story worker, who has been doing some short stories for us."

"What about him?" asks the subscriber.

"The second story habit is so much alive in his breast that he wants to write a sequel to every story he does."

Say 15 hours per day—long hours, aren't they? No wonder some eyes tire even when vision is clear, and then call for help. 60% of headaches are relieved by suitable glasses.
For over twenty years we have been examining eyes and having lenses made to prescription for each eye, and by coming to us our patrons have just the same examination and quality of work as they would have in New York, Philadelphia or Chicago where we trained in Optical work.

Otonabee River Dredging At Or Near Hunter Street Bridge

The following is taken from Hansard of April 14th:

Mr. Bradbury—By Mr. Blain—asked:

1. When was the work at or near Hunter Street Bridge, in Otonabee River, Peterborough, commenced, what is the total amount paid up to date on this work, and what amount is still unpaid for which estimates have been sent in?

EDGAR BROWN'S THRILLING STORY OF HIS ESCAPE

Tossed About on Lake Ontario for Nearly Two Days, Former Port Hope Man Prayed That He Might Be Saved From Drowning.

WAVES MOUNTAINS HIGH

Grafton, April 16.—To drift seventy miles across Lake Ontario in a twelve-foot flat bottomed punt, in a windstorm that raised the waves to such a height that the ferry could not go out, was the thrilling experience of Edgar Brown, formerly of Port Hope. He drifted out early Monday morning from near Charlotte, N.Y., and arrived three miles and a half east of here on Tuesday at noon, near Mr. Morgan's place. From Sunday night to Tuesday morning he was without food.

Brown walked from Morgan's up to Cobourg, ten miles, but could not go any further. There he took the train and arrived at Port Hope at ten o'clock. His friends at Charlotte got word last night that he was drowned. Brown is 37 years of age, five feet six in height, and has worked at farm work most of his life. He has been away from Port Hope nineteen years, and has been working in the vicinity of Charlotte, in the employ of T. J. Wrigley.

Drifted Out While Asleep

Early Monday morning, he and a friend named McGregor went out to Round Pond to fish, and towards morning they pulled the boat up on the shore, and lay down and went to sleep. McGregor, Brown thinks, must have got out while he was asleep, and the release of his weight caused the boat to drift out, as he was in the far end. He has received word that McGregor is safe. All he knows about drifting out, however, is that when he woke up he could just see a point of land.

"The first thing I said when I woke up," he relates, "was 'Where am I?' I remember that well. Then I looked around for my partner, but he was nowhere to be seen. The two oars were hanging in the car-locks. I must have

WOKK ON TOWER OF CHURCH IS RESUMED

The stone work on the tower of the Church of the Sacred Heart has been resumed, and will be pushed on to completion. This is the new Catholic church in the south end, which is being constructed by Messrs. Langford and Sheehy.. The stone being used in the tower will make it one of the grandest in the city. The work is beginning to show a dignity and solidity that is greatly enhanced by the beauty of the stone. The quarry that was opened up by Mr. Sheehy a year or more ago is providing a supply of stone, which is considered of the best.

TO COMMENCE SPECIAL SERIES OF SERMONS

Commencing to-morrow evening, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt will preach a course of five sermons on the suject of "the old faith and the new theology." These sermons ought to prove very interesting and instructive, especially at the present time, when so much controversy exists regarding the harmony between the old and the new.

WORK ON SEWERS TO BE COMMENCED IN NEAR FUTURE

The work of constructing sewers will be begun next week according to the statement of the chairman of the Board of Works last night. This will give work to quite a number of men and will be continued throughout the summer, as there are many sections of sewer to be laid. Mr. Martyn Neary has been again appointed foreman of the construction work.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS RE-OPEN ON MONDAY

The schools reopen on Monday morning at nine o'clock. The Easter holidays slipped by all too quickly to suit the school boy, who, in most cases, quite naturally likes the holidays for the fun and play that he enjoys. Now he returns to school, beginning the last lap that leads to the mid-summer examinations. It is his duty to study from now on, otherwise the first honours will not likely be his. The public schools have all been renovated and as there has been no scarlet fever this month there should be a large attendance on the opening day.

This is asked to apply also to those little children who are starting to school for the first time. Mr. Mowat, Inspector of the public schools, states that they are all in good condition and a large attendance of the children is expected.

ENTERTAINED AT TEA SIXTY BOYS

About sixty boys were entertained to tea last evening by Rev. J. G. Potter, in the Sunday School room, on the occasion of his birthday. An excellent spread was provided, and the affair was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. They afterwards attended the lecture in the Collegiate by Mr. C. R. Drum on "That Boy."

Be sure and hear the lecture by Rev. A. L. Geggie of Toronto on "The Rose, Shamrock and Thistle," on Tuesday evening April 20th., in St. Paul's S. S. Hall, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Mr. Hazeldeen, tenor soloist, will sing illustrated songs. Tickets 25c. 6d-84

CITY ASKED THE GOVERNMENT TO LIGHT THE LIFT LOCK AND TO BUILD A MARINE SLIP HERE

Deputation Was in Ottawa This Week for That Purpose and Was Favourably Received---Improvements Are Needed.

THE MARINE SLIP WOULD BE A GREAT CONVENIENCE.

The chairman of the Board of Works, along with Aldermen Bradburn and McIntyre was in Ottawa this week for a few days on business. They waited upon the Minister of Railways and Canals and after they got through with their business the chairman of the Board of Works proposed that the Department of Railways and Canals light the Peterborough lift lock with eletricity, and also that they build a marine slip in the city.

Alderman Phelan pointed out the great advantages to be derived by the marine men if the lift lock was lighted. It will require eight or ten arc lights to do the job and as the cost will not be a very heavy one the minister assured Alderman Phelan that the proposition would be looked into at once and the possibility is that it will be granted.

The marine slip is a great necessity here, as there is a large number of boats here now and the fleet is being constantly added to. The slip would serve the same purpose as a dry dock and would be a great convenience to local boatmen. The department may build this in the need future on the government property at Lock No. 6.

The New Public School Reader Will Be Issued Shortly

Toronto, April 16.—Although no figures have as yet been made public, it is understood that the tenders for the new Public School Readers have been opened at the Education Department. The whole question of school readers will very shortly be laid before a Cabinet Council of the Government, and until then the Department is very conservative in information.

The new books will, it is understood, be of somewhat different shape from the present ones; the pages will be wider, giving room for a larger margin. Hitherto the two parts of the first reader have been bound with limp covers; the new books will all be bound with stiff ones.

The quality of paper to be used will be of the best, some of it of supercalendar quality.

Among the contributors will be Agnes Laut, Marjory Pickthall, G. D. Roberts, Froude and Kipling. The raising of the copyright will give the department much freer access to Tennyson's work, which will be more fully drawn on.

Pending the Cabinet Council, no estimate can be made as to the cost ofthe books to the public.

IS WANTED IN BARRIE

A Young Man Was Arrested in South End of the City Yesterday on Information Received From Chief King of Barrie.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

Upon information received from Chief King of Barrie, a young man was arrested here yesterday evening about five o'clock by P. C. Newhall, in the south end of the city. He appeared before the Magistrate in the police court this morning. He was first remanded until after dinner, awaiting the arrival of an officer, but a later telegram from Chief King announced that a constable would not be able to come up today, and the prisoner was brought again into court and remanded to the gaol until Monday.

He is wanted in Barrie for the theft of a sum of money, said to have been committed about the ninth of April. At any rate that was the day on which he absconded. Chief Roszel received a description of him. He is a young fellow, about twenty years of age, fair complexioned and five feet, eight inches in height. He was stopping with friends here. The police have been on the look-out for him and yesterday P. C. Newhall arrested him.

SAWMILL OPENED UP FOR THE SEASON'S CUT

Examiner Special.

Bridgenorth, April 17.—Kelly brothers have opened their saw-mill for the season, and have commenced work.

The danger of the action of the wind ice, and water on the bridge is not yet past. As the direction of the wind varies the bridge is relieved or strained in succession. A few days ago it was blowing from the west and the bridge bowed out by the wind and a section had to be let go. Yesterday it was driving in the opposite direction and at times the wind dies down only to gather new force. The danger is not yet past and will not be for several weeks yet, until the ice has all disappeared, and the water has gone down to its ordinary level.

118 ENTRIES FROM TORONTO HAVE BEEN RECEIVED FOR THE CAMERA CLUB'S EXHIBITION OF PHOTOS

Judging by the manner in which the entries are coming in, the first exhibition of the Peterborough Camera Cub which will be held from April 26th to April 30, promises to be a most gratifying success. The officers of the club are wearing a smile of large proportions, and why shouldn't they? for yesterday's mail brought them no less than 118 entries from Toronto, some remarkable specimens of photographic art being included in the number.

Word has been received also that a collection w[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]om Toledo valued from [illegible] [illegible] comprising some of the finest specimens of photography ever seen in Peterborough. The Eastman Kodak Company, the Ward & Wellington Company, the Plate and Film Co., of England, and the Ansco Company of Binghampton, N.Y., will also send pictures.

The exhibition will be held in the old All Saints' Rectory, at the corner of King and Reid, and will be decidedly well worth seeing.

Magistrate Gives Warning To Parties Tampering With Fire Boxes

Whillie Moher was charged with unnecessarily sending in a fire alarm on Thursday last. Mr. E. H. B. Hall, City Solicitor conducted the prosecution and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused. After hearing the evidence, His Worship remarked that the defendant believed that he was doing the right thing in sending in the alarm, having been told to do so by a young lady who was afraid that her house might be destroyed. "However," the magistrate said, "the first one to come before me, guilty of such an offence will be punished severely. These false alarms occasion unnecessary expense and inconvenience I certainly will make an example of the first one convicted."

Chief Howard said that at 1 20 p m on the 15th inst., he received a fire alarm from box 31, at the corner of Sherbrooke and Park streets He was in his own house at the time which is only about 200 feet from the box. He ran over to it and found the accused coming away. He questioned the boy about the fire. The reply was that there was none, that it was all out. He asked who pulled the box. After a few minutes' hesitation he said that he had done it. Chief Howard insisted on being taken to where the fire was but before coming to it they came to a small grass fire which did not necessitate the assistance of the brigade. The one the boy referred to, was in a locality where no damage could be done. It was out when they arrived. A woman in a residence nearby said that she didn't want the brigade. Chief Howard did not believe that it was at all necessary to call the fire department. He had also admitted having started the grass burning.

Christopher McGrath said that he didn't know who set fire to the grass. He did not know who sent in the alarm. He was in his yard when he saw the brigade coming down the street.

A young lady residing at 505 Patterson street said that there was a grass fire about 25 feet from her house. She saw the accused and a number of other boys trying to put it out. The fire was working toward the fence. Witness was alone in the house and she told the defendant that he had better ring in an alarm.

Lever Brothers, Toronto, will send you free a cake of their famous Plantol toilet soap, if you mention this paper.

ICE AGAIN ON RAMPAGE

Conditions at Niagara-on-the-Lake Are Very Alarming—Piled as High as the Lighthouse Now—Houses are Being Swept Away.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE.

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Niagara-on-the-lake, April 17.—Swollen by last night's rain, the river rose again and the ice smashed the wharf and buildings at Queenston and turned the Turbina wharf here into match wood. The residence of J. J. Wright, of Toronto Electric Light Co., was swept off the pilings. The ice here is as high as the lighthouse on the wharf. Damage has been done around the river also, but communication is cut off.

CITIZENS TO BE ASKED TO VOTE ON ANOTHER BY-LAW TO PROVIDE FOR A NEW BRIDGE AT SMITH ST.

The citizens are to be asked to vote on another by-law to provide for the construction of a bridge at Smith street. The defeat of the other is attributed to several causes but the aldermen really believe that the people want a bridge at this point but they do not want one that is going to cost $50,000 With this understanding the Board of Works asked the City Engineer to prepare plans for a bridge that was "just as good but did not cost as much." This has been done and the cost has been estimated.

The bridge will be plainer than that which was first planned. It will be 18 feet wide with a footwalk on both the sides of the roadway. There are two choices. It may be a steel or concrete structure. The former is estimated to cost $30,000 and the latter $37,200. The general opinion is that the concrete bridge is much preferable. Alderman Phelan stated that he had been speaking with engineers in Toronto and had been told that the city should not think of building it of steel. It is also pointed out that the concrete can be purchased in the city while the steel would be prepared in some outside city and set up there and would be put together in Peterborough by a few skilled mechanics. In the other case the money would be left with the labourers who would do the work and considerable employment would be afforded. An effort will be made to have the bridge built this summer as it is stated that it is greatly needed and the cost of material is reported somewhat lower than it has been.

On motion of Aldermen Turner and Buller this committee recommend the council to accept the engineer's plans for a concrete bridge and also to submit a by-law to the people at an early date.

It is necessary to submit the by-law soon so that the work may be gone on with this summer. Something has to be done before the year is out as the present bridge is practically out of commission.

Presentation Made To Popular Young Man Who Is Leaving City

A party of young people visited the home of Mr. Warden Brown, Park street, last evening, to say good-bye to him before he leaves for the West in the near future. The visit was a total surprise to Mr. Brown, but a most enjoyable evening was whiled away in games, music, etc. After the guests had partaken of a dainty supper. Mr. Brown was made the recipient of a handsomely-finished gold fountain pen, as a token of his friends' regard and esteem for him. The address was as follows:

Peterborough, April 16th, '09.

Dear Friend,—We sometimes think it hard, that we are compelled to part from those with whom we have been in constant and friendly association from day to day, and from one, on whose counsel, and comradeship we have learned to place our confidence. Yet the inevitable is sure to happen, and we cannot help but congratulate you, on your enterprise, in seeking out such a grand field for success, as the West, for which place, you are soon to take your departure.

Whilst we, as a body of your best friends, find it impossible to exclude completely, the regret we all feel, engendered by your leaving us, you may heartily assure yourself of our good wishes and hopes for your success, which you will carry with you to your new field of employment. We sincerely hope, that amid new surroundings and strange people, that you will not forget the many enjoyable occasions we have spent together during the time we have known you. We feel that as a body, we cannot express in words, the sentiments we entertain for you, and, therefore, we would ask you to accept this little memento of our friendship, as embodying in a very small degree, our attitude towards you; and we hope that through its medium, you may keep in touch with old friends and that you will always cherish the kindest recollections of its donors. Signed on behalf of the "bunch"—Norman Allison, Harry Rae, Earnest Warne, Clarence Henry, Chester Frowde, Holly McIllmoyle, Arthur Elliott, Norman Rae, Harry Myles.

Mr. Brown, to whom the gift came as a total surprise, thanked the party for so remembering him. Before the affair came to an end a flash-light photo of the group was taken by Mr. Ernie Warne. Mr Brown will carry with him to the West the best wishes of all who were concerned, together with a host of other friends.

WHY?

Dr. Grenfell, carried away from Brockville, $1,080 as that town's immediate contribution to the promotion of his great work. By way of contrast he took from Peterborough one-tenth of that amount. Certainly Peterborough cannot be accused of reckless and extravagant expenditure of money in a good cause. Why is it so?

If our hearts are right, our heads and hands are apt to practically sympathise.

LOCAL OPTION PUBLICATION

In view of some little misunderstanding in one quarter in regard to the relations of the Examiner to the journalistic feature of the controversy between the interests favouring and opposing local option, its attitude may be explicitly defined. The Examiner undertakes to observe the arrangement with either of the organizations representing, respectively, the friends or opponents of local option, to the effect that all matter printed in the Examiner in the interest of either or both, will be distinctively indicated in print so as to make plain the source from which it emanates, and the interest it is intended to promote. In this way responsibility will be definitely fixed for the opinions advanced or the facts asserted, without any possibility of misunderstanding.

At the same time the Examiner reserves to itself the liberty of dealing in its editorial or news columns with any phase or feature of local option or any other subject of public interest according to its conception of its duty towards the community, independently of any arrangement so long as its spirit and understanding in the manner mentioned, is not violated or evaded.

Truth is truth, no matter by whom or in what way uttered or expressed.

HIGH-CLASS IMMIGRANTS.

We welcome immigrants as a necessary element in national development and progress. We welcome some more than others. We have a welcome for the man of brawn and the courage necessary to give it effect, the man who is willing to work. But we have no welcome for the idle, thriftless weakling, whose only industry is shown in shunning work and seeking charity. We welcome United States farmers, because they are trained farmers, and familiar with the social and political conditions obtining on this continent. They leave conditions of comparative prosperity to seek superior conditions and larger opportunities in the boundless Canadian West. They come to us ready-made farmers and ready-made good citizens. Moreover, from a material point of view they bring a substantial title to a welcome. They bring cash capital and settlers' effects, which at once constitute actual additions to the national wealth, in addition to their political wealth as personal and civic assets. The other day a United States farmer left $25,000 on deposit with Government officials at Winnipeg, while he inspected Canadian western lands with a view of settlement. The importance of this characteristic of United States immigration is its good business feature. It is estimated that in the last ten years American farmers entering the Northwest brought in cash and settlers's effects amounting to 135 millions of dollars. In spite of some claim to the contrary the general character of the immigrants entering the West is of good quality. During the ten years ending March 31, 1908, of the 1,166,126 immigrants who entered Canada, 819,123 were from the British Isles and the United States, that is two-thirds of the immigrants were English-speaking and necessarily endowed with the desirable qualities of the peoples who use the English language. Another evidence, besides such figures, of the desire of the Government to make careful selection of future Canadian subjects and citizens, is the fact that during the year which closed on March 31st, more than 1,700 undesirables were deported, many of whom failed to "make good," after a considerable length of residence.

There are accumulating evidences that good times and general prosperity are coming back, surely, if, in some respects, more slowly than we could desire.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY

The seventh of Mr. A. B. Cutting's clever articles on "The Methods and Principles of Landscape Gardening" appears in this issue. It is the duty of the people of Peterborough to read and apply the important lessons these articles teach; especially those who need the information. And unfortunately too many who do not need information, sadly need to be stirred up, to have aroused in them practical interest if not enthusiasm. This is the season of house cleaning, when every good domestic dame is tidying her house from cellar to garret. But not in all cases is as much attention given to the outside of the premises, and on the adjacent streets. These are too often left to form eyesores and perpetual untidiness. He can't be called a good citizen, not to speak of his being a good Christian, who will throw the rakings of his lawn in the street in front of his premises and leave them there. In doing this he has no more right to rank as a good citizen than he would have to rank as a good neighbour if he threw his lawn litter over the fence upon the premises of his neighbour. Our streets are not tidy because citizens neglect to make things neat in front of their premises and because the city authorities set no example of neatness but rather of slovenliness by making and leaving the streets untidy in the course of their street work. It is only by general co-operation that we can have continuously and uniformly beautiful private premises. The same applies to general tidiness of our streets. Mr. Cutting's article in to-day's issue treats of the practical subject of the preparation of soil for lawns, of walks and drives and the use and uselessness of fences.

A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, is one of the secrets of success where co-operation is a necessary element.

BELOW THE BELT POLITICS

The Conservative policy of scandal and slander so severely overworked during the session of 1908, received a severe blow at the autumn elections at the hands of the people; it did not, however, die altogether and is now struggling back to vicious life. The Mayes affidavit, false on the face of it, as to date, derived its venom from the fact of the year 1907 being basely substituted for 1905 to attempt to place a charge of malfeasance in office against Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works. Mayes took advantage of some business dealings with Mr. Pugsley in 1905, when he was not a minister, by mendacious substitution of dates to make certain false charges to fall on a date when Mr. Pugsley was a minister. This lying affidavit was exploited throughout the country in the Conservative press as a proof of the minister's wrong-doing and his resignation was demanded—upon the strength of a self evidently false affidavit—which has since been "corrected" and all the sting that might have been in it removed by substituting for "1907" the time Mr. Pugsley was a minister, "1905," a period when Mr. Pugsley and Mr. Mayes had business relations as counsel and client. This "correction" of the false affidavit was only made on March 24th of this year, and in the meantime Hon. Mr. Hazen, the Conservative Premier of New Brunswick, who made party use of the affidavit of the false date, in last October, has kept silent and permitted the attested lie to work its slander upon an innocent man. The Mayes affidavit is so despised by the Conservatives, who have made yeoman's use of it for the past six months, they have so little faith in it, that not a single member of the Opposition has had the courage though challenged to do so, to make it the basis of a formal charge against the slandered minister and thus make investigation and proof or disproof possible. If any Conservatice member believed for a moment that the statement of the Mayes affidavit were true, if he thought for a moment that the charges insinuated could be only half proved he would not lose a minute in assuming the responsibility of making straight charges and demanding investigation. But to ask Parliament to take action on the strength of a self evidently discredited extra-parliamentary scandal monger is the acme of brazen assurance. Mr. Mayes had a dredging contract with the Government before Mr. Pugsley became minister and the latter says that he is acting from revenge. The Government refused to buy his dredge at an exorbitant figure, even with the make-weight of a contribution of $20,000 to the Liberal campaign fund. The Government refused to modify the price of a dredging contract in Mayes' favour. Hence the forged affidavit which a Conservative Minister of the Crown did not think it below his dignity to become the instrument of publishing with a guilty knowledge of its falsity concealed for six months. If any Conservative member of Parliament is prepared to go beyond making the Mayes affidavit a basis for insinuations and will found a charge upon it, an investigation will be promptly granted. There is only one other way in which the Opposition insinuations of malfeasance against Mr. Pugsley can be tested, the Public Accounts Committee. In regard to this the Globe says:

> But there is a simpler way of getting at the facts of this case, a way in which it is not necessary for any member to affirm his belief in the truth of the Mayes insinuations—for they are not charges. The Public Accounts Committee has full power to call for every document relating to the contract for dredging the harbour of St. John, N.B. It has power to examine Mayes, McAvity, Dr. Pugsley, or anyone else that it chooses, under oath. Why has the Opposition failed to avail itself of this power? Is it afraid that under examination this precious "scandal" would vanish like the dews of morning? It must be said that the extreme reluctance to abandon the realms of rumour and insinuation for the region of sworn fact justifies such questions. The Ottawa Opposition should cease playing at peek-a-boo politics and begin paying some attention to the needs of the country.

Thrice is he armed whose cause is just.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD

Mi-o-na Has Reached a Gold Standard, Says Harry Ellis of Fergus, For Stomach Trouble.

Harry Ellis, of Fergus, Ont., says: "I believe that Mi-o-na for the cure of stomach trouble is worth its weight in gold. It cured me from a stomach difficulty that seemed to puzzle all other prescriptions and remedies. I was unable to eat, the food would ferment and form gas and make a serious pressure on my heart. There were terrible pains in the pit of my stomach, I became weak, drowsy, discouraged and later I got nervous and could not sleep or rest. This disease makes one feel like not wanting to see any human being and produces melancoly and forebodings. I was told to try Mi-o-na, and when I commenced on the first box I had hardly any faith in it, but the first two days' treatment made the pain in my stomach cease, and to make a long story short, the upshot of my using Mi-o-na was that it cured me wholly, and I now can eat what I like and when I am hungry. I am an ardent advocate of the use of Mi-o-na."

Wm. Madill sells Mi-o-na Tablets, the dyspepsia remedy that is making such surprising cures throughout Canada, for 50 cents a box, guarantees them to cure, or money back.

TRIBUTE TO M. J. BUTLER, C.E.

The Canadian Courier, on its front page, prints a portrait and the following reference to Mr. M. J. Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, who, by the way, is a good friend to the Trent canal:

MEN ON THE LEVEL.—Deputy Minister of Railways Mr. M. J. Butler has been appointed one of the Royal Commission instituted for the purpose of putting the Intercolonial on a common-sense basis of profit and loss. Mr. Butler is a good man for the post. He is one of the most alert and active deputies in Canada. His whole life has been spent on practical out-door problems—since ever he got his first degree of P. L. S. in 1878, afterwards C.E. from the University of Toronto. He is of Irish parentage; born in Deseronto, Ontario; educated at the La Salle Institute at Quebec, and in Toronto. He is a member of three societies of civil engineers and has been for nearly a quarter of a century. Twenty-seven years ago he was assistant engineer on the Kingston and Pembroke Railway; a year later chief engineer on the Thousand Islands road; chief also of the Napanee, Tamworth and Quebec; all these minor Canadian positions but a prelude to some important work down in the States, where in 1889 he was assistant engineer in charge of the building and water service of the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe. In 1891 he was made chief engineer of the Bay of Quinte Railway and Navigation Co.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley Confounds The Slanderous Insinuations Of His Political Enemies

Minister of Public Works Deals in Convincing Speech With Mayes Affidavit Matter—The Forged Date Emphasized.

AFRAID TO MAKE CHARGES

The House of Commons was on Thursday night the scene of another attempt to exploit the expedient of forgery to promote party interests and injure a political opponent. Dr. Daniel, M. P. for St. John's, New Brunswick, on motion to go into supply, resumed the discussion of the Mayes affidavit, which has a very sinister history, having been read by Premier Hazen, the Conservative Premier of New Brunswick at a meeting held in the Dominion elections last October, with apparently full knowledge that it was essentially false. The affidavit made charges as against Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, of abuse of his office. The forgery consisting in making certain charges to date from 1907, when Mr. Pugsley was a Minister, instead of 1905, before he became a member of the Liberal Government. The motion of Dr. Daniel gave rise to a heated discussion and permitted Mr. Pugsley to make a lucid explanation of the matter, showing the dastardly nature of the attack upon him by insinuations which his opponents in the House dared not reduce to specific charges, capable of proof or disproof. In this connection a more extended report of Mr. Pugsley's speech and the discussion generally will be read with interest and information:

The Mayes Affidavit.

On motion to go into supply Dr. Daniel rose to continue the discussion of the Mayes-McAvity affidavit.

The Speaker suggested that the point of order raised yesterday might first be disposed of.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley—May I be allowed to make a statement? I stated yesterday that if my hon. friend (Dr. Daniel) would produce to the House the original affidavit, which was sworn to or declared on October 12, I would offer no objection to the reading of the whole of it. I had a conference with the member for St. John, and he has undertaken to produce and file with the Clerk of the House the original declaration, sworn to on October 12, and upon that undertaking I withdraw all objections to it being read.

Dr. Daniel said he was very glad to hear the statement of the Minister, and was prepared to take the course requested. After reading the affidavit he would place it in the hands of the Clerk of the House. He thought the stand taken by the Minister of Public Works was not only in his own interest, but in the interest of the public life of Canada.

The Wrong Date.

Dr. Daniel then proceeded to read the original affidavit. When he reached the point the date was mentioned on which Mayes said he had the conversation with Dr. Pugsley, and which was read out at the St. John meeting and published as 1907, he was very indistinct, and the Minister of Public Works had to ask him to repeat the date, "1905," replied Dr. Daniel, who went on to comment upon the contents of the affidavit. The only gain Mr. Mayes could hope for from Mr. McAvity's connection with the contract, said Dr. Daniel, was the wielding of the latter's political influence. There was no other financial consideration suggested, and the corrupt and immoral agreement entered into between Mayes and McAvity on this basis was under the criminal code an indictable offence. The $35,933 paid over to McAvity in fulfilment of the agreement was, the speaker maintained, nothing more nor less than a sum looted from the public treasury. With respect to Dr. Pugsley's connection with the case, Dr. Daniel said the only issue was as to the justice of the bill tendered Mr. Mayes for legal services. That point could easily be cleared up by the production of the itemized bill. Another matter which would stand a little more clearing up, he added, was the delay in making the final settlement with Mayes for the work done on contract until he had settled up with McAvity for the amount owed him under the agreement.

Other Cases Cited.

In the case of Hon. Mr. Emmerson, when serious charges had been publicly made against him, Sir Wilfrid Laurier had said the Minister's resignation was in the public interest, pending the clearing up of the charges by an adequate investigation. In the case of the Hodgins charges also the Premier had at once granted an investigation. In the present instance serious charges reflecting on the administration of the Public Works Department had been made and published all over the country. A thorough investigation of all the facts of the present case was likewise necessary, and he concluded by moving a resolution reciting the allegations made by Mayes in the affidavit, and providing for a reference of all the matters pertaining to the contract in question to a special committee of the House, which committee should a lsoconsider if in any way the money improperly paid out might be restored to the public treasury.

Dr. Pugsley's Reply.

Before beginning his reply Dr. Pugsley paused for a few moments to glance over the original Mayes affidavit, as read by Dr. Daniel, and laid on the table of the House at the conclusion of his speech. "This affidavit," said Dr. Pugsley, "gives the date of the alleged transaction between myself and Mr. Mayes as 1905. Is that the original affidavit which Mr. Hazen read at St. John? Surely not."

Mr. Daniel—That is the original affidavit, sworn to by Mr. Mayes and read by Mr. Hazen.

Dr. Pugsley—My hon. friend must see that this cannot be the original affidavit. He said in his speech that the original affidavit read 1907, but was subsequently corrected—corrected, to 1905 in a second affidavit.

Dr. Daniel—The Minister holds in his hands both affidavits, one sworn to on October 12, 1908, and a second affidavit with the correction made as to the date.

Intention to Deceive.

Dr. Pugsley—What I have long sought through letters from my solicitors to Premier Hazen and others was the original affidavit. Mr. Hazen read a false affidavit, and read it with the intention of misleading and deceiving the people.

Loud cries of "Order" greeted this statement, and several Opposition members were on their feet at the same time to raise points of order.

Mr. Speaker Marcil declared, amid considerable uproar, that no specific point of order had been raised, and that in any case he would not allow two or three members to speak at the same time.

Mr. Lennox who persisted in claiming the right to address the chair, although Dr. Pugsley had the floor, made the plea that Dr. Daniel had stated that Mr. Hazen had at the St. John meeting corrected the date to 1905, after first reading it 1907.

Speaker Marcil—That is no point of order under the rules of this House. Dr. Daniel having given his version of what occurred at the meeting in question, the Minister of Public Works had now a perfect right to give his version.

Confusion and Uproar.

Mr. Crocket jumped to his feet to say something, but Dr. Pugsley, who was also on his feet, waiting to resume his speech, would not give way, and the Speaker also rose. For a few minutes all these remained standing, while the House was in a hubbub. Dr. Pugsley, in deference to the Speaker, sat down, but Mr. Crocket still remained standing, and then Mr. Conmee, also, rising, added to the confusion and uproar.

Finally the Speaker induced both members to take their seats. "I have not," he said, "had a long experience in this chair, and I appeal to the members of both sides of the House to assist me in maintaining the decorum and dignity worthy of Parliament. If the member for York. (Mr. Crocket) has a question to ask the chair he has a right to be heard.

Mr. Crocket then asked if the Speaker's ruling on the point of order raised by Mr. Lennox did not mean that the statement made by one member of the House need not necessarily be accepted as true by another member.

Mr. Speaker Marcil—That is not the point. In this case it is simply a question of two different versions as to what took place at the St. John meeting It does not refer to the proceedings in this House.

Corrected Only Last Month.

Dr. Pugsley, resuming, noted amid loud Liberal applause that the original affidavit, which it was now alleged had been corrected at the St. John meeting on October 12 last, had evidently not been really corrected until March 24 last, for the corrected affidavit, as laid on the table of the House, was only sworn to on the later date.

"This admittedly false affidavit," he said, "which I asked for over and over again, has been kept concealed until now and no attempt has been made to correct it until last month."

What Dr. Daniel Thought

Proceeding, Dr. Pugsley asked Dr. Daniel what he thought, next day, when he read in the St. John papers the statement that he (Dr. Pugsley) had received money in 1907 when he was Minister of Public Works. What did he think of the editorials which charged that as a Minister of the Crown he had prostituted his office and received that money? What efforts did he take to correct the wrong impression conveyed to the public?

Dr. Daniel—When I saw it in the press I just thought the reporters at the meeting had failed lamentably in their duty (Oh, oh, and laughter.)

Dr. Pugsley—What does the hon. gentleman think of his own failure of duty to let the public know that the affidavit was wrong? What does he think of the failure of duty on the part of Mr. Hazen, who has not expressed the slightest regret for the wrong done to me? Was it not strange that through a typewriter's error the reporters had fallen into the same error, and that all the Conservative papers from the Atlantic to the Pacific should have been guilty of the same error? There was evidence in the affidavit outside of the date that those who had to do with the affidavit deliberately got to work with the intention of inducing the people to believe he had received the money in 1907.

Again he asked was it not strange that the date should have been put forward from the time when he was acting as solicitor for Mayes to the time when he was Minister of Public Works?

Many False Statements

In the affidavit Mayes stated that he (Dr. Pugsley) had said to him that it would be nice to have some one at Ottawa to do something for him. "I want," declared Dr. Pugsley, "to denounce that statement as absolutely false." Mayes was indebted to him for a considerable amount of money for services which he had performed as solicitor. It was true that he asked Mayes for money on account for professional services, and Mayes gave him his note for $2,000. Was there anything in that which would render him unworthy of a position in the House or in the Government? There was another statement in the affidavit which was equally false. That statement was that he had declined to pay Mayes any money unless he settled with McAvity. That statement was absolutely false. Further Mayes stated that he (Dr. Pugsley) held up money to which he was entitled. There was no shadow of foundation for that statement.

Mayes and McAvity Relations

What the relations were between Mayes and McAvity he did not know, bue he supposed they were partners in the dredging transaction.

In the summer of 1908 he received a communication from Mr. McAvity, stated that he was interested in the contract. On August 22, 1908, he wrote to Mayes, informing him that he did not intend to intervene in the matter. Mayes was constantly seeking favours from the Department of Public Works. When he became Minister Mayes was seeking to have the contract which he had agreed to carry out for 55 cents per cubic yard, increased to 90 cents, but if the correspondence of the department was examined it would be found that he never treated either Mayes or McAvity as if they had the slightest claim upon his friendship or consideration. In every case he had acted in the discharge of his public duty and had held Mayes strictly to his contract.

Challenge to Opposition

"If," Dr. Pugsley said, "any hon. member can find in the correspondence anything upon which he might feel that a charge can be made against me as Minister of Public Works I invite him to make the charge. That is the proper and manly course to take. My hon. friend is neither manly, nor is it the honorable conduct to be expected from public men that they should seek upon mere insinuations to destroy the character of their opponents, when they are not prepared to take the responsibility of submitting definite charges."

Dr. Daniel objected to being described as unmanly or dishonourable, and asked the Minister to take back the words.

Cries of "Take your medicine."

Dr. Pugsley said he was endeavouring to point out what the duty of a member of the House was. "I cannot," he added, "by any possibility withdraw that statement." (Loud Liberal cheers.)

Amid considerable uproar, Dr. Daniel repeated his demand that the words unmanly and dishonourable be withdrawn, stating that if not he would follow suit.

The Speaker—The words, if used, are not Parliamentary.

Dr. Pugsley—I said the honorable and manly course for a member of this House, instead of making insinuations, was to have the courage to make a charge.

Never Made Insinuations

Dr. Daniel—I never made any insinuations against the Minister.

Dr Pugsley—If he says he did not insinuate against me I accept his statement. He has certainly made no charges. Bue he has intimated that the Prime Minister ought to accept my resignation. If Dr. Daniel had made no insinuations, what was the meaning of the suggestion that the Prime Minister should ask him to resign? Turning again to the affidavit, he described as false the statement made by Mayes that he was the only tenderer upon both occasions. In fathering the affidavit Dr. Daniel should have satisfied himself as to the truth of its statements. He knew, or ought to have known, from the papers brought down, that Mayes was not the only tenderer, but on both occasions Haney & Miller, Toronto, also tendered, Mayes' tender was the lowest on both occasions, ther being a difference of 45 cents between his and that of Haney & Miller, and the former Minister of Public Works had acted properly in accepting the lowest tender.

Transaction Was perfectly Square

From the beginning to the end of the transaction there was nothing reflecting upon either Mr. Hyman or himself, and yet what the motion called for was an investigation into the conduct of the previous Minister of Public Works. Dr. Daniel had admitted that there was no collusion between Mr. McAvity, Mr. Mayes and the Minister. If the Crown could proceed to recover the money which the Opposition said had been wrongfully paid it would be against Mayes, because it was to him that it had been paid. The Crown had no contract with McAvity, and would have no ground of action and no claim against him. But if there was no collusion the Crown could not proceed at all. As a matter of fact, he understood Mayes had sued McAvity because he had not received any favours from the Department of Public Works. (Liberal cheers.) However, the people of St. John and of New Brunswick had accepted the affidavit at its true value.

Only Two Left

Probably to some extent the success achieved by the Liberty party in New Brunswick at the last election was due to the conduct of the Conservatives. "There," he said, pointing to Dr. Daniel and Mr. Crocket, "is all that is left of the once great Conservative party of New Brunswick." Continuing, he said: "I have always been ready and willing to meet any attacks made upon myself, and it gives me great pleasure to-day to have the oportunity of meeting the insinuations contained in the statement presented to the House. What I always desired was that I should meet my opponents in the open. I never shall be afraid to meet my enemies in the open. I desire to say in the most emphatic manner possible that I had no interest at any time, either in 1905 or since, directly or indirectly, in that contract. I was not benefitted in any way direct or indirectly by that contract or in whatever was derived by Mr. McAvity. In 1905 I acted simply as solicitor of Mr. Mayes. I was discharging towards him a duty which I thought as counsel and solicitor I might fairly discharge."

Mayes' Probable Motives

Dr. Pugsley then turned to the question of the motive impelling Mr. Mayes to make the affidavit. First, there was the refusal to buy Mayes' dredge for the department, although Mayes had gone to Mr. C. J. Osman and other Liberals in St. John and threatened to make damaging disclosures unless the dredge was purchased at the price he named. Moreover, as a further inducement he had offered to contribute $20,000 of the purchase price to the Liberal campaign fund. But the reply made to the threats and bribe alike was that the price asked for the dredge was too high and the department could not consider it. After having tried first to secure favours from the Department of Public Works by suggesting a contribution to the party campaign funds, after having failed, through attempted blackmail, to get his claims against the department settled other than in the regular and proper way, after failing to get the terms of his contract with the department altered so as to raise the price for the work done, Mr. Mayes went in a vengeful spirit to the Conservative leader in New Brunswick and had him read a false affidavit. But that affidavit instead of proving a bombshell turned out to be a boomerang. The people of New Brunswick resented unfair fighting, and it was, said Dr. Pugsley, a common statement in St. John that Dr. Daniel himself only saved his seat by repudiating the affidavit.

Tactics Were Disgraceful

"I say, with sorrow," said Dr. Pugsley, "that the tactics used by our oponents in St. John during the election campaign, culminating with this affidavit were calculated to bring disgrace on the political life of this country. Nothing could be worse than for any party to adopt the policy of building themselves up in the public estimation by seking to destroy the reputation and character of their opponents through falsehoods and slander, instead of by appealing to the public in the higher ground of their own constructive policy and record." But the tactics in St. John, he added, were not different from those adopted in other sections of the country. In Quebec the name of Sir Lomer Gouin had been forged to a telegram designed to help a Conservative candidate. In British Columbia there was another case of a forged telegram. Fortunately the people of New Brunswick were not deceived by the falsehoods, and the best answer to the charges made was to be seen in the contingent of eleven Liberals sent to represent the Province in the Commons.

"If I have ever varied a hair's breadth from the line of my duty as a Minister of the Crown I call upon the hon. gentlemen opposite to prove it from anything in the record of every telegram or letter sent or act done by me. While, like every man of long experience in public life, I have made mistakes, those mistakes were of the head, not of the heart. I have always endeavoured to discharge faithfully my duty to the public, and if there is any ground for the attack against me in connection with this or any other transaction I challenge my opponents to do the fair and manly thing and lay a definite charge, so that I may meet it squarely and have all the facts brought out." (Loud Liberal cheers.)

Mr. Crocket's Reply

Mr. Crocket, who followed, argued that the real gravamen of the charge had not been touched by Dr. Pugsley, namely, the bargain made between Messrs. Mayes and McAvity to hold up the department for $35,900 extra on the dredging contract.

Mr. Carvell

Mr. Carvell declared that a more dastardly attempt had never been made in Canada to drive a Minister of the Crown from public life. But desperate conditions seemed to demand desperate measures. When the Conservatives in New Brunswick found the campaign going against them they got the Premier of New Brunswick to make public a false affidavit of Mayes. Though bound according to the rules of Parliament to accept the statement of Dr. Daniel that Premier Hazen had in reading the affidavit corrected the mistake in the date, and made it 1905 instead of 1907, Mr. Carvell said that Mr. Hazen must have made the correction in a whisper, for no reporter and no one in the audience heard it. He believed the real reason for the present vicious attacks on Dr. Pugsley was because the Conservatives knew the Hazen Government was likely to be soon driven from office. That Government had broken every one of its pledges to the electorate, and had already lost two bye-elections.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it was with a clear conscience and without any doubt that he believed the motion should not be sustained. That was not the first time that a member had thought it his duty to bring charges against a fellow-member or a Minister of the Crown, but when that had been done the member making the charge had stated that he had reason to believe or had been credibly informed that the charges could be substantiated by evidence. Did Dr. Daniel dare say that he was credibly informed that the accusations in the affidavit could be substantiated? No he did not take that responsibility. The affidavit bore on its face the evidence of falsehood. They had the statements of a man who, if they were to take his word, was a self-confessed boodler. What faith were they to have in testimony of that character? In any case, the member for St. John had made it impossible for the Government to accept the motion, because, having been made on motion to go into supply, it could not be amended if it was considered necessary. But the last and supreme consideration was that the motion was one of no confidence. "We are not disposed to vote no confidence in the Minister of Public Works," declared Sir Wilfrid. "We have been proud of the Minister of Public Works, and this evening we are prouder of him than ever." (Liberal cheers.)

Mr. Foster wanted the substance of the affidavit investigated, and dwelt on Dr. Pugsley's neglect to sue Mayes or Premier Hazen.

Hon. W. S. Fielding

Hon. Mr. Fielding wound up the debate in a vigorous speech, in which he charged the Opposition with bringing forward the motion, not for the purpose of investigation, but to make political capital. It was not consistent with the dignity and honour of Parliament that such motions should be made on frivolous statements. The date was the whole essence of the affidavit, because if it had been stated as 1905 the whole document would have been worthless and would never have been read at an election meeting. The sole object of it was to damage the Minister of Public Works.

The division was taken at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, the motion being defeated by 109 to 60. Hon. Dr. Pugsley did not vote.

HEARTY APPETITE BUT AFRAID TO EAT

Why Not Put an End to YourStomach Trouble Forever?

Some people think they have indigestion, others Catarrh of the Stomach, others Nervousness, Cancer or Dyspepsia, etc. Call it this if you will, but the real name for your trouble is Food Fermentation, with only partial digestion. Everything you eat turns to either Acid, Stomach gas or Stomach poison, which weaken the digestive organs, causing a lack of gastric juice. Your food sours, is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, burning sensation, a feeling of vomiting, heartburn, water brash and tenderness in the pit of the stomach, slimy tongue, bad taste in the mouth, constipation, nausea, belching of gas, dizziness, sick headaches, mental depression and many other common symptoms.

You can cure all this by not eating, by not putting any food in your stomach to ferment; but how about the nourishment needed to sustain your bodily strength? If you are a stomach sufferer, either man or woman, young or old, whether you call it indigestion or any other name, go now to your druggist and give 50 cents for a case of Pape's Diapepsin.

Every possible kind of Stomach trouble is readily cured by Diapepsin, which takes right hold of the food in your stomach and digests it alone, without the help of the stomach, just as it your stomach wasn't there.

After a few day's use of Diapepsin your Stomach will again be in good working order, your meals will thoroughly digest and your intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will have no use for laxatives or liver regulators.

The Conversion of Saul.—Acts ix: 1-30.

Golden Text — He fell to the earth and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me? Acts ix: 4.

Verses 1-2 — From experience, philosophically, theologically, psychologically, or any other way, how do you account for the bitter hatred of Saul for Christians?

After his conversion, did he show the same hatred toward those who opposed Christianity?

Does history justify the statement that zealous religionists, who have not known, nor experienced, the love of God, have been exceedingly cruel and bitter men?

Verses 3-4 — What was the nature of the light that shined around Saul? (See Acts xxii: 6; xxvi: 13; 1. Cor. xv: 8).

Whose voice was it that Saul heard?

What reason is there to believe that this was a real voice with outward sound?

Is there any sinner so bad that Jesus does not call him to repent?

Had Saul actually been persecuting Jesus? (See Matt. xxv: 40.)

If we hurt or help a Christian, is that actually done to Jesus?

Is there a sense in which a Christian is the actual Christ?

Verse 5 — Did Saul know from the first who it was that spoke to him?

Does it always consciously hurt to fight against God?

Does wrong doing always hurt, whether done in ignorance or not?

Verse 6 — What makes sinners always tremble when God reproves them for their sins?

At what stage does God forgive a convicted sinner?

When was Saul actually converted?

Why did not Jesus tell Saul there and then what he wanted him to do?

Verse 7 — Why does the supernatural always frighten people?

Verses 8-9 — What had blinded Saul?

How did Saul spend the days that he was without sight?

Did he fast because he had no desire for food, or was it a religious fast?

Is fasting of any use in these days as a help to spiritual life?

Verses 10-12 — May the ability to hear God speak be acquired by all true Christians?

Have you any experience of God telling more than one person the same thing, so that when they came to compare experiences, God's message was confirmed?

Will God always prepare us for our work, and prepare the work for us?

Verses 13-16—Is God pleased or displeased if we do not accept what he says, when it is not clear to us?

Verses 17-18 — Did Saul at this time receive the Holy Ghost, or at the time of his conversion, and when do Christians generally receive him? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the Club).

Verses 19-22 — Do all genuine converts like Saul commence immediately to get others converted?

What was the power in Saul which gave him his great zeal, and is the same power available for every Christian?

Verses 23-25—If a person feels, or acts, in a bitter spirit toward one of a different faith, is that proof that he is not in touch with the true God?

Verses 26-30 — Are Christians justified in being cautious in receiving strangers?

What is the best way for a young convert to show he really is a Christian?

Is a true, earnest, aggressive Christian as liable to give offense in these days as was Saul?

Outlined Three Stages In The Development Of A Boy

Instructive Address by Mr. C. R. Drum in the Collegiate Last Evening on "That Boy"—Parents Responsible for the Conduct of Their Boys.

THE PROPER TRAINING.

"That boy" was the subject of a most interesting and instructive address, delivered before a large number of the parents of this city in the Assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute last evening by Mr. C. R. Drum, Secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Drum is a man who has given the question of the best way to train a boy much study, and his remarks last night cannot but prove beneficial to the fathers and mothers who were fortunate enough to be present.

The chair was taken by Mr. J. C. Shook, president of the Y. M. C. A., who, in introducing the speaker, said that everyone realized that while the boy's body and mind needed development the spiritual side must not be neglected. Preceding the address, Mr. W. McIlroy rendered a vocal solo in an excellent manner, Miss M. McCaw playing the accompaniment most effectively.

The Address.

Mr. Drum began by referring to recent statistics, which showed that juvenile crimes were on the increase. The number of suicides among boys between the ages of eleven and nineteen had increased ten per cent. The speaker believed that much crime was committed at this stage. Frequently one saw young girls on the street late at night and parents were appalled at the crimes among youths under the age of twenty.

"Why does this state of affairs exist?" Mr. Drum asked. The churches were doing their work and all the restrictive forces such as reformatories and industrial schools were doing much to save young boys. "Was the fault in the home? Was it that the mother and father did all the work and left nothing for the boy to do? Was it that the father was too engrossed in business, or were there too many clubs to draw his attention away from his boy?" The speaker said that parents were responsible for the conduct of their children.

Three Stages.

Mr. Drum pointed out three stages in the development of the boy. The first one he classed as that of infancy from birth until he was six years of age. He called it the vegetable stage. The second one was from six to thirteen, which he classified as the animal stage. The last one, he named the savage stage. It was the period in a boy's life from thirteen to eighteen years. Boys had many instincts, two of which, Mr. Drum, especially mentioned, namely fighting and imitating. Boys liked to fight, and fighting, he said, if well directed would stand for something worth while, in after life. Children imitated their parents and fathers and mothers ought to be careful of what they said and did in the presence of the little ones.

A boy should not be counted a criminal because in his boyishness he committed pranks, aggravating and displeasing. Patience was required in his training.

In the second stage, a boys' memory was active. Parents should be pure and moral in their lives, examples to their children. There should never occur in the home any disagreement between husband and wife in the presence of their family.

Boys and girls looked up to their father and mother, and any differences that arose were best settled out of their hearing. Punishment should be administered by the parent in a judicial frame of mind, and not in a passion. A boy needed his father's society.

In the last stage great changes were taking place in the boy's body. It was the time, too, when a boy became unselfish, when he began to associate with the boys of his own mind. It was the time when young fellows formed themselves into gangs, and, the speaker remarked, their meeting places were probably in the Y. M. C. A., but more likely on the street corners, or in shacks. The Y. M. C. A. held the key to the dissolution of these "gangs," and if the boy is properly treated in this stage he will develop into a noble and true man.

In closing, Mr. Drum said that many prominent educationalists had argued that it was useless to give young children religious instruction, owing to the fact that they had a wrong conception of things. The speaker applied the same argument to secular training. A clear conception of anything, he concluded was only gained in time. By all means the spiritual teaching was most important.

Board Of Works Considers Many Proposed Civic Works

Four Delegations of Citizens Ask the Board to Give Attention to Their Demands—Appoint Foreman of the Sewer Construction—The Board's Annual Tour Is Drawing Near, WATER ST. AT GOOSE POND.

The Board of Works held a meeting last night during which they let the street watering contracts for the year and then the aldermen commenced calling attention to one thing or another in the shape of civic improvements until they had practically covered all that is necessary for the present summer. Sidewalks, sewers, gradings and other work were suggested in rapid succession, most of which was deferred until the Board takes its annual spring jaunt around the city to investigate in a body the validity of the claims on file. Judging from the manner in which their card is filling up with engagements they will require several nights to duly deliberate on each and every number on their list.

Mr. B. Paquette, Patterson street, was heard regarding a manhole in front of a new house of his on that street. He says it is three feet above the level of the street. A cement walk is to be laid soon and it will have to be raised accordingly. The result he anticipates is that although he built his verandah high the effect will be spoiled when the street is graded properly. He is also anxious that this grading be done at once as the road is in a condition which does not enhance the appearance of the house and the street generally. Engineer Hay explained that the manhole was built high because of the fact that the road is to be graded. Alderman Phelan stated that the Board was to visit the location in question when the members go on tour.

Ask for Sidewalk

Mr. Chas. Huffman and Mr. W. H. G. Armstrong would have had a larger delegation to present their case but for the fact that they had not learned of the meeting until after six o'clock and it was then too late to muster the citizens of King street, East. However, these gentlemen presented their case strongly asking that the cement walk on the north side of King street, between Pearl and Margaret avenues, be built as soon as possible. This, they remarked, had been promised several years ago but the sidewalk was still to be constructed. The new houses which have been built and those which will be built will benefit greatly thereby. This part of the city is growing rapidly and the houses are an ornament to the city and only require the walk when the lawns will be laid out and graded. The itinerary of the Board of Works will include this particular section of King street.

Work Shared Up

Quotations were received from the G. Walter Green Co. and the Peter Hamilton Co. on catch basin traps, manhole tops and iron grates for crossings which the city will require this year. The prices were identical. On motion of Aldermen Bradburn and Turner the orders will be divided equally.

Septic Tank Patent

The letters from Cox, Kimball and Stowe, of Buffalo, solicitors for the Cameron Septic Tank Co., were read. As Mr. Chipman was the engineer who installed this sewage system in the east ward it was considered that he should be communicated with. It was decided to have the City Solicitor write Mr. Chipman regarding the matter.

Appointed Foreman

On motion of Aldermen McIntyre and Turner, Mr. Martyn Neary was appointed foreman of sewer construction work. It was stated that he had given good satisfaction last year. His wages will be the same as last year, three dollars a day.

The Goose Pond

Alderman Turner considered that something should be done for that part of Water street which overlooks the unlovely Goose Pond. This is on the east side of the street where refuse is dumped, making an unsightly effect which is an eye sore and a nuisance to the residents in that quarter, besides deteriorating the value of the property. Alderman Turner suggests a new cribbing about twenty feet out, to be filled in. A cement wall could be built and the street beautified. It is not expected that the work will be done this year owing to lack of finances. However, on the annual inspection trip the Board of Works will call at this point.

Mr. T. J. Moore was present in reference to grading Bethune street. He stated that the city engineer had been there and he stated that very little could be done until the street was graded. There are five new houses there now and they have no sidewalk. They want a grade struck so that they can build their private walks.

The city engineer was instructed to take up the matter of grading Bethune street north of Smith at once, and prepare a plan for the sewers, etc., and report to the council at once.

Sewer pipes for 1909 will be purchased from the Ontario Sewer Pipe Co., at a couple of cents per foot less than was paid last year. The tender was 6c per foot f.o.b., Mimico. The Hamilton Sewer Pipe Co. tendered 6 9-10c per foot f.o.b. Hamilton.

On the suggestion of Ald. Turner the chairman will get prices from local hardware men and if they can give the same prices the order will be given to them.

THE TOWN BAND AS SEEN THROUGH EYES OF THE KHAN

The Khan in the Hamilton Herald has the following very readable article:

From the open windows in the top storey of a big building somewhere in your town you can hear, as evening falls, a badly assorted bunch of unmusical musical sounds. The town band is practising. This is the first real practice they have had since last fall. No wonder, for on Monday night the town council voted the vast sum of eighty-seven dollars to be expended on band concerts during the summer. These concerts are to be held alternately in the little park in front of the town hall, which looks like a lap with a few faded vegetables scattered around in it, and in the greater park where the games are held.

To hear these strange, uncouth sounds tumbling out of the windows of that high flat gives a greater promise of spring than the hurdy-gurdy or the street piano. The bandmaster is trying out a new recruit, a recent arrival—a machinist 'fra Glesca,' the finest trombone artist on earth, if he does say it himsel'. That's him now—

"Poom, poom, poom-pah, poom-pah, poom, poom, poom."

That "Brr—ump, br-r-ump, ump, ump," is being made by Judy (John Wesley) Toople. Judy's highest ambition has been to beat a drum. Besides these noises there is a conglomeration of tootling and tootling and raspings and graspings that fill the April evening air with a large and assorted discord. Now who would believe that these young fellows some pleasant summer evening will gather in a ring round the bandmaster and discourse a schottische that will make all the girls and boys long for a dance. Or may hap they will render Reminiscences of Scotland, and as you stand in the crowd you can hear voices picking out the tunes.

"D'ye ken that ain, Jock?"

"Aye, richtly—that's 'Bonnie Dundee.'"

"An' ye know what-for tune that yin is, Andy?"

"I ken it better nor the Hundredth Psaulm. It's Wha'll be King but Chairlie."

But there are more than us listening to the band practice. The half-awakened horse chestnut in front of the [illegible] machine shop hears it, and the unsillable maple that guards the [illegible] hears it, and the mountain ash—according to By-law No. 6059 you must not hitch your horse to it—hears it. They all hear it. The tough slangy [illegible] in the town hall [illegible] always asking for [illegible] and look forward [illegible] the day is near [illegible] the town paper will announce [illegible] band will play on [illegible]

[illegible] the horse chestnut [illegible]

[illegible] and [illegible] else. [illegible] hall hear what they [illegible] Chestnut [illegible] and [illegible]

Six o'clock! She is up in her little box [illegible] She is sitting in her underskirt and her immaculate chemise, thoughtfully drawing on her openwork stockings and trying to decide: Will it be her jaunty toque, or her Merry Widow, or her inverted salad bowl of a hat? To be or not to be is nothing to that question.

"Clang!" The cornetist in the machine shop slips through the side door of the works before the great bell in the town hall tower hath ceased clanging six o'clock. In a jiffy he is in his little room in his boarding house—the little room with the sloping ceiling and the big trunk and the wash-stand, the chromo of Bobs and Kitchener on the mottled wall, and, and—that's all, except the bed, of course. He is scrubbing himself, bare as a baby to the waist, and with his gallusses dangling to his heels. He shaves with both his hands and he is through in no time. He dresses as if by magic and dives downstairs into the dining room with its long table protected from flies by its awning of pink cheese cloth, and gulps down his supper. Then one more hasty look at himself in the hall mirror, and with his cornet under his arm, he springs into the street, and foregathers with his band in front of the Farmers' Hotel. Gee! It's like old times. A few of the boys come out of the bar wiping their mouths, and the band is soon ready. "Fall in!"

The girls and boys are streaming towards the park in every direction. A soft wind is stirring in the streets. The whole is expectant, anticipative.

All at once the air is full of harmonized sounds. The band is marching to the rendezvous. Br-r-ump, br-r-ump, ump, ump! Poom-pah, poom-pah, poom, poom, poom!

This beats the skating rink all hollow, and the dance in the stuffy Foresters' Hall. There would be more marrying and giving in marriage if our summer were a little bit longer. And the town council would help. Instead of voting a measly eighty-seven dollars for six or seven concerts during the season, why not have them twice a week anyway? Before the frost was on the pumpkin all the girls in town would be engaged, and Christmas at the furthest would see them all married off.

I know that what they are pleased to call "cultivated" musicians and folks who have walked through a conservatory of music—went in at the front door and out at the back—affect to sneer at the town band. They say their music is crude, barbaric, etc. Very well, then, they don't have to listen to it. They don't have to come down to the park of a summer evening. Let them stay up on their own lawns and play tennis or grass ball, don't you know, and listen to some trained singer warble "Hawk, hawk, the lawk."

The town band is for us — and we are the people!

Large Numbers Of Armenians Reported Massacred In The East

Moslems Slaughter Armenians in Asia Minor.

TOWN IS HALF DESTROYED

Adana Is Scene of Turkish Outbreak Against Adherents of Greek Church —British Vice-Consul Reported Wounded and Two Missionaries Are Said to Have Been Killed — Troops Sent Out.

Constantinople, April 17.—At midnight neither the United States ambassador nor the British embassy had received any further news concerning the massacre, or confirmation of the reported murder of two American missionaries at Adana.

Consular telegrams received here report that half of the town of Adana has been burned and that the attacks upon the Armenians are extending into the vilayet.

They say that the British vice-consul at Meorzina, Major Daughty-Wylie, who was ordered to Adana when the first advices of the massacre were received, has been wounded.

Communication with the disturbed district is interrupted, however, and all reports received from there must be taken with caution.

The Porte declares the disturbances are subsiding. Two additional battalions have been despatched to Adana.

Despatches make it appear that the Moslem fanaticism against the Christians of Adana has broken out afresh. The Moslem attacks recommenced on Thursday afternoon and continued throughout the night. Large numbers of Christians are said to have been killed. One report says that 60 Armenians have lost their lives and that many houses have been looted and burned.

The first news of this anti-Christian outbreak said the scene was Nersina, but this was erroneous. The trouble occurred in Adana, which is about 38 miles inland from the Mediterranean. Messages received Thursday evening said that only ten Armenians had been killed, that martial law had been proclaimed in Adana and that reinforcements of troops were being sent from Beirut.

This latest intelligence refers to disorders that occurred after the situation was supposed to have quieted down.

Adana is a station of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, with a working force of five missionaries and 32 native workers; an out-station of the synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America and a Bible depot and sub-agency of the American Bible Society.

It is a city of 45,000 people and is the seat of government of the province of the same name. The people are mostly Mohammedans, but there are a considerable number of Armenians and a small Greek community there.

Anti-Christian rioting in Adana is in no way connected with the political uprising in Constantinople of the past four days. It involves a recrudescence of the Armenian question, which is religious and racial and has nothing to do with the internal politics of Turkey. The Armenians are Christians and still have an independent church in Constantinople.

Majority Greatly Reduced.

London, April 17.—East Edinburgh bye-election has resulted in the return of James Gibson, the present Lord Provost of the city, who stood in the Liberal interest, by a majority of 458, over Patrick J. Ford, the Unionist candidate. The poll showed the Liberal vote to be 4,527 against 4,069 for the Unionist.

Although the Government has been supported the result reveals a surprising change in popular sentiment. At the general election Sir George McCrae, the late Liberal member, was returned by a majority of 4,174, the figures standing 6,606 to 2,432. The Liberal vote has thus fallen off by 2,079, while the Unionist has increased by 1,637. The bye-election was caused by the appointment of Sir George McCrae to be vice-president of the Scottish Local Government Board.

Death Ends Lark.

New York, April 17.—An automobile ride of four young men ended in death for one of their number and fatal injury to another, when a touring car in which they were driving at a terrific speed crashed into a tree in Central Park at dawn yesterday. Matthew Camp, an employe of the Moon Automobile Co., who was acting as chauffeur, was crushed to death, the front seat on which he was sitting being driven backward by the impact until it took the place of the rear seat of the tonneau.

Cupid Laughs at Justice.

Providence, April 17.—Miss Christina Palmieri, an Italian girl of 20 years, was married yesterday to Camillo Desisto, who on March 8 last shot and wounded her during a fit of jealousy. In order to marry the young man, who was in jail awaiting trial, the girl had his bail bond reduced and then furnished the securities herself. As she was the only witness to the shooting and cannot now be compelled to testify, the charge against Desisto cannot be prosecuted.

Dozen Perish In Flames.

San Francisco, April 17.—Six bodies recovered and probably eight or ten others buried in the ruins, six injured, one fatally, property loss $125,000—these are results of a fire yesterday that destroyed the St. George Hotel, a lodging-house for laborers at Howard and Eighth streets. Eight other small buildings burned.

The hotel was a three-storey frame building. It burned so rapidly that none of the 200 guests had time to dress.

Cigarette Bargains.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 17.—With the signing of the anti-cigarette bill by Governor Johnson, the cigarette slaughter sale is on in Minneapolis, and from this time until the finish, August 1, every dealer of the "independent" variety will aim to get rid of his stock. There will be no standard price. Every dealer will sell at any figure he sees fit.

SUBSIDY PASSES.

Two Hundred Thousand Voted to the French Line.

Ottawa, April 17.—The House settled down yesterday afternoon to the sessional program. Only a handful of members bothered their heads about what was going on.

R. Smyth, A. C. Boyce, Haughton Lennox, Dr. Sproule and Major Currie argued it was a dangerous thing to give up possession of harbor facilities.

Mr. Brodeur's resolution to subsidize a French steamship line to the amount of not more than $200,000 a year, based on a minimum service of 15 round voyages a year, was passed.

Sensation In Japan.

Tokio, April 17.—A tremendous sensation developed here yesterday with the arrest of nine members of the lower House of the Diet, the nature of the charges being withheld. It is believed that bribery in connection with the recent difficulties of the Japan Sugar Co. is alleged, and there is great unrest in the capital, as it is stated that some members of the Upper House are liable to arrest also.

A few weeks ago charges of fraud were brought against certain of the directors of the sugar company, which is a big concern, capitalized at $12,000,000.

Japs to Tour States.

Washington, April 17.—James J. Hill, chairman of the board of the Great Northern Railroad, called on President Taft, at the White House yesterday. Mr. Hill is aiding with several other western railroad men in arranging for a tour of forty Japanese business men who are to visit this country in September as the guests of the cities of Seattle, Tacoma and Portland.

AUSTRALIA OUTLINES PLAN

Correspondent of American Paper Declares That Meetings of Protest Are Being Held Throughout New Zealand as Result of Defence Offers —Speakers Are Howled Down —Several Free Fights Occur.

Sydney, N.S.W., April 17.—Public meetings of protest are being held throughout New Zealand condemning the Government's offer to build two new Dreadnoughts for Great Britain as unconstitutional.

Extraordinary scenes took place at Christchurch, where a meeting of the Navy League in support of the Government's action degenerated into pandemonium.

The speakers, including both Roman Catholic and Anglican bishops, were howled down, the rioters rushed the police and seized the Union Jack, which they tore into shreds and trod under foot.

Many free fights that ensued were terminated only when the lights were all extinguished.

At the proposed conference in London between representatives of Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand regarding the establishment of an "All-Red" mail route, Australia will advocate that the steamships engaged in the service, both in the Pacific and the Atlantic, be owned by the Governments interested.

Australia's Proposals.

London, April 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Commonwealth Government have made the following proposals on naval defence to the Imperial Government: To continue the present arrangement until 1913, and employ destroyers for Australian defence, borrow officers from England, send Australians here for training outside Australian waters, to put the force in charge of a British officer of the station visited, in war-time to hand over the fleet unreservedly to the Admiralty, to maintain a naval base for British ships, not to maintain submarines.

Hon. Mr. Watt, the Victorian treasurer, suggests inviting Admiral Beresford to Australia to give advice before any definite scheme is undertaken.

Masked Men Tar Pair.

Ottawa, April 17.—A sensational story was told to the police yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Killingbeck of Hintonburg, a local suburb.

They allege that they were seized on the street about 9 o'clock Thursday night by four masked men, bound, gagged and driven out into the country, where Mrs. Killingbeck was outraged and otherwise abused, while the husband was assaulted and severely hurt. Both were then covered with liquid tar and driven into the city, where they were released.

The action is supposed to be the outcome of recent action wherein Mrs. Killingbeck accused a respectable young man of criminal assault, but lost the case in court. It came out in the evidence that the Killingbecks had secured money from several Hintonburg residents on like claims.

R. L. Borden Resting.

Ottawa, April 17.—R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, is having a few days' rest at Caledonia Springs. He went to New York before Easter, but not getting any benefit there, returned to the Springs on Monday to recuperate. He and Mrs. Borden have been living the "simple life," playing golf daily.

"My health? Why, it's very good, I think, but after five years' hard work a man sometimes feels like taking a short rest. It sometimes saves a longer rest later," he said yesterday.

While declining to discuss public affairs, he has kept in close touch with Ottawa, 19 miles away, by telephone.

Ask Right to Strike.

Paris, April 17.—The French telegraphers held a formal meeting here yesterday and joined the postal employes and the teachers in demanding the privilege of forming unions under the law of 1884, which includes the right to strike.

Trunk Lines Cut Grain Rates.

New York, April 17.—To compete with the Canadian route, the trunk lines will reduce grain rates to the metropolis on April 16, and will ship from Buffalo at 4 cents a bushel.

Strongly Condemns Unions Having Headquarters In U. S.

Conciliation Board Condemns United Mine Workers.

TOO MUCH FOREIGN POWER

Commissioners Appointed to Inquire Into Trouble Between Dominion Coal Co. and Its Employes Issues Majority Report Objecting to United States Control of the Nova Scotian Union Miners.

Ottawa, April 17.—Strongly condemnatory of the influence of American labor unionism in Canada is the report of the board of conciliation appointed under the Lemieux Act to enquire into a dispute between the Dominion Coal Co. of Nova Scotia and the miners. There are two unions to which coal miners in Nova Scotia belong, the Provincial Workmen's Association, a local organization, and the United Mine Workers of America, with headquarters in the States.

The complaints of the employes were: That men were discharged, or threatened with dismissal, because they were members of the U.M.W. of America; that the Dominion Coal Co.'s police intimidated members of the union and that the company refused to receive a committee of the U.M.W. or in any other way to recognize the association.

The representative of the employes, Daniel McDougall, declined to concur in the recommendations of the majority of the board, who, however, admit that preference was given to the members of P.W.A. in the matter of employment by the Dominion Coal Co., but declare that under the circumstances this preference was both natural and reasonable.

The report of the board states that the most important question for consideration was that of recognition of the U.M.W. of America by the Dominion Coal Co., a question purely a matter of policy. The U.M.W. claimed the right to approach the management by committee, as is done by the P.W.A., but the company thus found itself face to face with two rival organizations and found it impracticable to deal with separate committees whose contentions might be at variance. The report continues.

"The principal reason, however, why the company refused to recognize the U. M. W. is that they are practically a foreign organization, having dangerous and menacing powers under the constitution.

A rule of the U.M.W. makes it quite possible, says the report, for the executive of the United Mine Workers, whose head office is in Indianapolis, Indiana, to proclaim a strike in Nova Scotia if they considered it to be in the interests of the U.M.W. as a whole. * * * * The board considers that the coal company is amply justified in refusing to recognize an organization that could exercise such a dangerous and continually menacing power.

In conclusion the board desires to report that so far as it has been able to ascertain the conditions obtaining at the collieries in Cape Breton are in many respects superior to those in most of the mines in the U. S. While differences of opinion have arisen between operators and the men, they have hitherto been arranged in a mutually friendly and satisfactory manner. Existing unsettled labor conditions have the effect of interfering with business, creating apprehension as to the situation, and thereby reacting to a large extent on the welfare of the miners themselves.

Daniel McDougall finds the Dominion Coal Co. guilty of discrimination against members of the United Mine Workers, and condemns the company therefor. Mr. McDougall insists that the United Mine Workers of America are not a foreign but an international organization.

JAM IS NO BETTER.

Falls Still In Grip of Ice — Power Situation Improves.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 17.—Conditions are practically the same last night. The ice jam is reported to be two feet higher all the way up the river to Queenston. The upper river is lower.

Things have resumed practically a normal condition at the power-house of the Ontario Power Co. The officers of that company yesterday made the formal statement that the damage to machinery would not exceed, but the cost of preparing the generators, which is still in progress for the resumption of the load, will be heavy. It was necessary to bring expert workmen from Hamilton, Pittsburg and other places. The Westinghouse Co. loaned the services of their chief expert on insulation, Mr. Reynders, who will remain until the work is finished.

Word last night from Niagara-on-the-Lake is to the effect that conditions have not changed since Wednesday, and that there is no ground for the alarmist reports circulated yesterday, of the town being in danger of flood.

At an early hour this morning the mass of ice in the Niagara river reached a height of 40 feet above the water level, and it is still rising.

At 10.30 p. m. last night the immense ice floe which fills the river from bank to bank was given a shunt by the pressure from up stream and moved suddenly forward for about 200 yards, carrying with it the riverside depot. The Wright private dock by the waterworks, and the McIntyre wharf, where the Turbinia used to dock, were wrenched away.

The rush was sudden and the noise tremendous for a few minutes; but in less than half an hour, aside from a slight churning and crunching far out amid stream, the glacier settled into sullen inactivity.

It stopped at the head of the Niagara Navigation Co. wharf.

Van Horne Has Big Scheme.

Montreal, April 17.—Sir William Van Horne, who has just returned from a visit to Fredericton, N.B., will leave next week for England, to interest English capitalists in a scheme for establishing in New Brunswick, in connection with the Grand Falls water power, the largest pulp, paper and saw mills in Canada. It is planned to spend seven million dollars.

This project was put forward some years ago by the Grand Falls Power Co., the other interests being held by the estate of the late United States Senator Proctor; Mr. Underwood, vice-president of the International Paper Co., William Mackenzie and R. B. Angus.

Assaulted by Robbers.

Paris, April 17.—Mrs. Bartells of New York was robbed and nearly murdered in her apartments yesterday by burglars who secured a number of jewels and a quantity of money. Mrs. Bartells occupies an apartment in the Avenue Eylau. Yesterday afternoon three well-dressed men gained entrance to the house on the pretext of desiring to inspect articles offered for sale. They fell upon the maid servant and Mrs. Bartells, who is 60 years of age, and paralyzed and brutally beat them into a state of unconsciousness, gagged them and secured jewels and money to the value of $2,000.

What Difference Will It Make?

London, April 17.—The Westminster Gazette says if Canadians cannot get the benefit of their own wheat at a price less than the world price, how is it to be supposed a shilling preference will bring them to our rescue?

Patten Has Bodyguard.

Chicago, April 17.—It was stated last night that Patten, since the agitation over the advances in the price of bread consequent upon the wheat manipulations, has been accompanied by a bodyguard in the person of a large muscular colored man. Also that he is accompanied in his auto car in going to and from his offices by a guard of two men.

Patten declines to state whether he has been the recipient of any threatening letters.

Scotchman Lost In Bush.

Port Arthur, April 17.—Basil Day was brought on the train from White River with his hands and feet badly frozen. Day is a Scotchman going through to Montreal with cattle to the old country. At White River he had a difference with the man in charge of the stock, left the train and lost his way, trying to take a short cut through the bush. To Regulate Railways.

Washington, April 17.—The feasibility of establishing some form of quasi-official organisation which shall act as a medium between the railroads of the country and the Federal Government is being seriously considered by the Attorney-General, the Secretaries o fthe Interior and Commerce and Labor and the Solicitor-General, to whom the President has confided the responsibility of working out his plans with regard to Federal control of the railroads.

To Incorporate Extension.

Ottawa, April 17.—Notice is given in The Canada Gazette that a bill to incorporate the "Catholic Church Extension Society of Canada," will be introduced this session, giving the society power to establish territorial branches together with all other rights and powers incidental to a business of a religious and charitable nature. The society's headquarters are to be in Toronto.

Crockett, M.P., on the street, and sentenced him to one month's imprisonment without the option of a fine. Defendant was ordered to pay costs amounting to $55. His worship explained that he had imposed a severe penalty because he thought it was the duty of the courts to protect public men from being subjected to personal violence for statements made in Parliament. Defendant's counsel applied for a stay of proceedings and will appeal the case.

Ridgeway, Ill., April 17.—Fearing a sentence of death was about to be imposed on him Arch. Smith, on trial on a charge of slaying his brother-in-law, George Robinson, slashed his throat in the crowded courtroom here while the judge was instructing the jury. A deputy sheriff summoned a doctor and almost before he had staunched the flow of blood and finished dressing the wound, the jury agreed on a verdict of guilty and fixed Smith's punishment at 14 years.

DOINGS IN BOYS' DEPARTMENT AT THE Y. M. C. A. THIS WEEK

BOYS HAVE BEEN KEPT BUSY

There are big doings around the Boys' Department at the Y. M. C. A. these days.

Mr. J .T. Evans, the Boys' Secretary, has kept the boys on the jump during the school holidays. They have been around the building in large numbers and their holidays are slipping away all too soon.

On Monday and Tuesday the boys enjoyed themselves in the gymnasium, playing basketball, baseball and many other "gym" games.

On Wednesday morning about a dozen boys turned out for a paper chase across country. The boys enjoyed the run very much and went home for dinner tired and hungry.

On Thursday afternoon fifteen boys were entered in a wrestling tournament and a number of interesting bouts were pulled off.

On Friday the fun was finished up with two one-mile races for boys, 14 years and under, and boys over 14. The course was from the Y. M. C. A. along Murray street to Water street, to Smith, to George, and finished at the Y. M. C. A. The course is a little over one mile.

There were fifteen boys entered and two good races resulted. In the junior race the entries were N. Phelan, H. Hill, R. Laing, H. Morrow, R. Donoghue, H. Smith, L. Soden, W. Howland, A. Austin and O. Cavanah, and the boys finished in the order named.

Phelan, the winner, ran a fine race. He took the lead at Smith street and finished strong in 6.20.

H. Hill, who finished second, ran a well-judged race and R. Laing finished third with a strong sprint.

In the senior race W. Eastwood finished first; R. Scott, second; and B. Lees, third. Time 6.20 1-5.

Eastwood took the lead at the start and was never headed. He increased his lead at Smith street on the return journey and finished an easy winner just 1-5 second behind the Junior time.

R. Scott finished second after a hard run and little Bruce Lees finished third with a strong sprint.

On Tuesday, the 27th inst., the "Business Boys" will hold a one-mile race, and on Thursday, the 29th, will hold a wrestling tournament.

Things are booming in the Boys' Department, and boys who are not members are missing a lot of fun. A membership campaign is now on and a number of new members are coming in. Now is the best time for a boy to join. The fee is $3.00 a year and boys 12 years or over are eligible for membership.

The Boys' Department annual banquet will be held on Friday, the 23rd inst., and it promises to be one of the biggest affairs ever held in the Boys' Department.

GENE HURTUBISE WON BOUT IN STRAIGHT FALLS FROM CHRIS. MILLER

Gene Hurtubise had not much difficulty in winning his bout in Toronto last night. Miller was big, but lacked science and aggressiveness, and it was all through in 13 minutes.

A despatch [illegible]

Eugene Hurtubise, the big Peterboro grappler, had easy time beating Chris. Miller in their match at the Star last night. Hurtubise was on the aggressive throughout and won in straight falls. The first fall took eleven minutes, and the second two minutes. Both falls were secured with the crotch hold. "Kid" Batten refereed.

EDGAR BROWN'S THRILLING STORY OF HIS ESCAPE

been asleep for a long time. I think I was eight or ten miles from shore. I could just see land, and then only occasionally when I was on top of a wave.

His First Thought

"My first thought was to try and go back, but to go against the wind was impossible. I thought it better to pull for the Canadian shore, for to try to pull for the American side meant to use up all my strength, and then not get there. I didn't know how far it was across exactly, but I had heard that it was 62 miles.

The waves were mountains high, but I didn't seem to feel afraid. I decided I would do my best. That was all I could do, but I felt I would get through some way.

"There were no provisions in the boat at all. I had nothing for a guide but the wind, and I pulled with it all the remainder of the day. I did not stop to rest, but pulled steadily. I had to in order to keep head on to the waves.

Had to Bail Constantly

"I had to bail continually, because the breakers would leap over the side of the boat. Then, too, the water was leaking in through a crack in the side. My only chance to bail was when the breakers separated and left the surface of the lake comparatively smooth. Never in my life did I have to work harder. All through that dreary time I kept praying, for I felt I needed it.

"Night came on. The dark never seemed so dense. It made me almost hopeless of ever getting back to safety. My boat was drifting, drifting over the waste of waters with nothing in sight but the everlasting water and waves. I lay down on the oars to make sure they would not drift away if a breaker came in, but my sleep was fitful. Constantly I had to get up and start bailing again, for the waves were coming in on me. When the dawn broke the wind went down slightly, and as I felt somewhat rested, I went to the oars again. But it was an aimless route I followed, and soon I was called to the bailing again.

Sun Came Out

The sun came out gradually, and as I stood up and looked toward the horizon there was nothing but the same old stretch of greyish water. Two hours later my eyes caught a slight blue haze up in the north. I thought it was smoke. Getting weaker and weaker from hunger and cold every minute, there seemed no promise of rescue. But I looked again toward the haze. It was land.

"With a cry of joy I went again to the oars. The sight of land gave me new strength. But the wind was coming higher and higher, and the waves mounted up.

A Weary Wait

"Talk about shooting the shoots! I have had enough shooting the shoot for this season. The waves were like mountains. So big that there was nothing to compare them to. When I would start to go down them, it would seem as though I were going to strike bottom. It looked like half a mile. Then it would all close in and lift me up again.

"The blue haze in the north did not seem to get any closer until about twelve o'clock, when suddenly the land seemed to jump up right in front of me. I was only about a mile and a half away from shore, but I thought I would never have strength to pull in. A few rods from shore the breakers caught me, and the boat was sunk to the bottom, but the waves shooed it in. When I got out I could not stand but fell to the ground just like a wet rag. I lay there for fifteen minutes, hanging on to the string of the boat so that it would not get away."

Brown, although very weak, managed to pull the boat up clear of the water. Then he started for Mr. Morgan's house, which is only a few rods away, to find out where he was. He thought it was west of Toronto. It was a great surprise to him to hear he was so near home.

MEN ARE POWERLESS.

To Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause.

The great Dandruff, and Falling Hair, with irritants or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff germ.

Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

"Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.—

New York, April 17.—Stocks opened from ⅛ to ⅜ lower this morning on heavy transactions. The weakness did not last long, however, and after the first ten minutes the market improved steadily and closed strong at the best of the day. Reading was again in the limelight with over a three points advance, in which the other coalers shared. Lead was heavily bought by the pool working in it and pools in the other active issues were not slow in bidding their favourites up once that the market started to rally. It looked as though the shorts had overplayed themselves on the break yesterday, making a badly oversold market, and not dislodging enough long stock to enable them to cover. Anyway they were driven in in fine shape in the late trading, when all the losses of the last two days were regained. B. R. T. has been the steadiest issue of the past few days, and we are looking for an upward movement in this issue to start at any time. The market should do better all round next week.

57th Regt. Band Has Learned Many New Musical Selections

Extensive Repertoire Will be Presented This Summer, Varying in Standard From Grand Overture to "It Looks Like a Big Night, Etc."—Many New Marches.

CITIZENS WILL BE PLEASED.

With band concert season not many weeks ahead the citizens are eagerly awaiting the advent of fine weather, which will coax June along and bring the 57th Regimental band out again for their weekly concert. Mr. Gliddon's "Red Coats" have been practising faithfully during the past winter, and have prepared a large number of new selections, ranging in standard from a Rossini overture to Harry Von Tilzer's collection of latest hits. Looking over the music last night an Examiner reporter came across the following in the music room:

The overture from "The Barber of Seville" is splendid music and should be a favourite number with all classes of music lovers. Another overture is "Stradella, by Flotow by many considered his best work; "Reminiscences of the Plantation," by Chambers, was played by Sousa's band at Sandringham, by the special request of King Edward. When this famous band was touring Europe this number was one of its most popular. It is a pretty medley of southern melodies with a finale of variations for different instruments, making a beautiful selection throughout.

A Pastoral.

When Rev. Canon Davidson Chaplain of the 57th, was in England on his last visit, he heard La Fremsburg," a pastoral and hunting phantasy, which pleased him so much that he spoke to Mr. Gliddon about it, and in this manner the 57th secured it from England. It is something like "The Forge in the Forest," but is considered superior to it, and should also be sought by those who hear the 57th. "The Death of Custer" or "The Battle of Little Big Horn" is an American descriptive band number that has won favour in the United States. It is replete with action and is well played by the band.

Popular Music.

Mr. Gliddon has also secured "Old Settlers' Parade," a humorous patrol by Dalbey, the author of "My Old Kentuck Home," which was played last summer. A fine concert number is "La Goulognaise." It will be heard for the first time this summer.

Mr. Walter Hughes has two new cornet solos, which will undoubtedly be favourites. One is "Sing Me to Sleep," the bands' accompaniment lending to the effect; the other is "Culver Polka," by Steinbaum. Mr. Hughes' solos are always played sympathetically and musicianly, and any new numbers will be gratefully received. Among the new popular music are Harry Von Tilzer's hits. This is a medley of his latest waltz and March songs, among them being "The Schooners That Pass in the Night," "Don't Take Me Home," and about ten others. Remick's hits, No. 5, are also going to be whistled by those who hear them. There are also forty new marches and many other selections. Bandsman Cronk has a new Euphonium solo, entitled "The Serenade."

This is some of the music that may be expected this summer at the band concerts which will undoubtedly be more popular than ever. The band is prepared for concert work of all kinds, and has a splendid repertoire to draw upon.

Many young ladies who were supposed to be going into decline have been restored to helth and vigour by the use of Miller's Compound Iron Pills.—Wm. Madill, Druggist.

Celebration Of Anniversary Of Court Bridgenorth C.O.F.

A Grand Time Last Night in the Village to the North—Organizer Was Present—Speeches, Songs, and Music Enlivened Enjoyable Evening—A Number From Peterborough.

EVERYONE WAS DELIGHTED.

Bridgenorth, April 17. — Last night was one long to be remembered by the inhabitants of this hamlet, for in the twilight hour the population increased mightily. From far and near they came, and as many were laden with baskets it reminded one of a bright pleasant morn in the good old summer time when a popular excursion is leaving this port. However, the cause of this stir was not a trip on the lake but the mecca of this eager throng was the Foresters' Hall, which was then opened to the public for the first time.

A word or two concerning this building may not be out of place here. It was formerly the town hall and was later made into a dwelling, but the ever-progressive Foresters had outgr n their quarters and must have accommodation. An opportunity to purchase the former town hall presented itself and they availed themselves of it quite readily. This happened about a month ago and they set to work with willing hands to set their house in order. The result of the transformation is one which reflects great credit on the local Court, and its members have no hesitation in inviting High Court company at any time. The exterior of the present C. O. F. hall has a modest yet tidy appearance, while the interior is "a thing of beauty and a joy forever," with its exquisite mural decorations, its hardwood floor, its roomy platform and handy kitchen.

Court Bridgenorth, No. 315, C. O. F., is now a strong healthy boy of 18 summers and winters, who is in the full vigor of youth and just bubbling over with enthusiasm and confidence in the work upon which he has entered. The purchase of a home for himself is his first venture in real estate, and it is local public opinion that he has acted wisely.

It was quite fitting that the opening of the new hall should take the form of a public function and consequently a grand concert was the event billed for last night. A fine array of outside talent made its first bow to a Bridgenorth audience and their services were greatly appreciated indeed.

The entertainment was a success, for everybody said so, and its success was due in large measure to the untiring efforts of Bro. Jobe, the present Chief Ranger, and the strong committee which supported him.

Now for the show. At eight o'clock the chair was taken by Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., who is himself a Forester, and brought with him a goodly delegation of stalwarts from Peterborough city.

The "leading man" on the programme was Bro. Strong, Supt. of Organization. His pleasant face is a factor in getting the sympathy of his hearers, and he sprinkles his discourse with enough wit to keep good attention, and does not weary the audience with statistics. He is a firm believer in the power of proper organization, and that the C. O. F. conducts its affairs in a business-like way and accepts risks. A unique example of this last feature of the order is the local court with its membership of 100 and its existence of eighteen year, in which there have been only two death claims — one of them due to an accident.

Of the purely local talent Mr. Clayton Telfore, from the township across the pond, sang the praises of "Tipperary" and "The O'Rielleys"; while Mr. Alex. Campbell of Central Smith, was right there when the call came for more.

Concerning the "imported" artists no special mention is made because all the members were of a high-class and these same entertainers may expect to be be called on in the future on similar occasions.

THE PROGRAM.

The programme as read by the chairman is as follows: Selection—Halpany Orchestra. Chairman's address. Selection—Halpany Orchestra. Tenor Solo—Mr. Geo. E. Chandler. Recitation—Mr. Oscar Warring. Song—Mr. Clayton Telford. Address — Bro. Strong, Supt, of Organization. Quartette—Telford Bros. Address — Rev. Mr. Crookshanks. Song—Mr. A. Campbell. Tenor Solo — Mr. Chandler. Piano Selection—Miss Ida Sanderson. Recitation—Mr. Warring. Violin Selection—Master Halpany. A sketch, "Forget-me-nots" — Messrs. Warring and Gardiner. Song—Mr. Halpany. An abundant supply of refreshments. God save the king.

At the conclusion of the program there was—hush!—a very pleasant danced enjoyed alike by the dancers and those who remained to watch them.

In conclusion it may be justly said that the concert was the "best ever" in this burg, as the attendance was beyond the capacity of the hall, the programme was of the highest quality yet presented and the financial side was most satisfactory—the sum of $42.50 jingling down in the Court's coffers as the net proceeds of the evening.

"An Honest Man" Will Be Subject Of Address At Sunday Mass Meeting

Mr. C. R. Drum, Secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., who is conducting a campaign here will oddress a mass meeting for men in the Grand Opera House to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. His subject will be "An Honest Man." Mr. Drum is a man with a message and every man in this city ought to avail himself of the opportunity. He is extremely interesting, his remarks being graphically told and they never fail to make an impression. It is to be hoped that the Opera House will be filled to the doors to-morrow. Special music will be rendered, and the meeting will be made as bright and as attractive as possible.

"COME BACK TO ERIN" CO. CASE AT OSGOODE HALL

The Globe's law report says:

On motion of defendant for an order changing the case of J. J. Turner & Sons against Charles Mack, known as the "Come Back to Erin" Company, from the First Division Court of Peterborough into High Court, Mr. Justice Riddell decided that the action in the Division Court is to proceed to judgment, and to stand until the disposition of the High Court action to be brought within a week on counter-claim, which is to be withdrawn in Division Court action; $40 may be paid into court to stand in place of plaintiff's claim. Costs to be disposed of by the Judge who tries the High Court action. The action arose over a performance of the company in the Grand Theatre, Peterborough, and over the division of the proceeds, the company having refused after the first act to go on with the performance unless paid their share of the receipts. The theatre people seized their clothes and paraphernalia, but these are now to be released on their paying the $40 into court.

EAST CITY LAUNDRY

Mark Sing, naturalized Christian citizen, will open a hand laundry at No. 52 Hunter street, Peterborough, East, on Saturday, 17th April. All work done by hand. Parcels called for and delivered. Prices as low as any in the city. Fifteen years in Peterborough. Open evenings. 6d-87.

'ROUND THE STORES.

To-night most of the principal stores will close at 9:30. This fact should be borne in mind by shoppers, who ought to make a special effort to assist in establishing early Saturday closing. The dry goods men who have been instrumental in helping on this movement deserve credit for the relief it will afford to the clerks, as well as to all others concerned.

Splendid opportunities are available to housekeepers who desire to refurnish or redecorate their homes. The Robert Fair Co. have lowered their Carpet prices as well as their Linoleums and Rugs. The designs and colourings of all these goods are of a superior, up-to-date order. For instance, the best 5-frame Brussels Carpet is offered at a dollar a yard, and Scotch Linoleum usually sold for $1.50 may also be bought for a dollar the square yard.

Quite an attractive spring novelty is on display in Schneider's jewelry store, in the shape of a rose bud hat pin. They are shown in varied effects, and are produced from the natural flowers and then metallised; afterwards beautifully coloured true to life, to represent the varied blossoms and shades in all their delicate tints. They make a beautiful hat pin and harmonize nicely with the new styles of flower-and-foliage trimmings of the hats.

The dressy Canadian-made lady's shoe, known as the "Empire" shoe, is coming to the front. Mr. McWhinnie, who seems to have the sole agency in the city, reports increased demand for this prettily shaped shoe.

Spring gardening needs are strongly in evidence now. The Peterborough Hardware Co. make a fine showing of wire netting and fencing, galvanized wire, flower bed and lawn fencing, rakes, shovels, spades, garden trowels, wheelbarrows, etc. Those in want of any of these will find it well worth the trouble to take a look through this big store and see how many useful and handy things there are that perhaps they never knew of before.

The "Bee Hive" deserves credit for the convenient and well arranged character of its interior store fittings and furnishings. Since combining its two stores, shoppers find everything very attractively displayed and easy of inspection. The showing of this season's new Coats, Suits, Skirts and Blouses is pronounced especially inviting to female eyes, and the wide range of prices in the different departments is noticeably moderate.

Millard, the bicycle man, is having a good run on the "Ivanhoe" Mounts this season. Sales are running along fairly well and his repair work and re-enamelling keeps the shop up to high speed.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

It was intended, this week, to devote some space to a discussion of the diary of Samuel Pepys, the prince of diarists, but as we have already, during the past two weeks, been dipping into the pages of John Evelyn, it may be as well to leave Pepys for a short time, and turn our attention to the conditions which, at that time, governed literature in England.

It was a time of social ferment almost unexampled in history.

During the interregnum Puritanism had reigned supreme. The Presbyterians of that time, no matter how much may be said against them, on the score of arrogancy and sternness, and possibly in some quarters, hypocrisy and cant, were always on the side of purity of life and thought. That their regime was destroyed was due, not to a departure from the principles which they professed, but rather to the too stern rigidity with which they adhered to them. Their condemnation of all forms of innocent enjoyment; their keeping of Christmas as a fast day; their dislike of Maypoles, theatres, and country sports; their abjuring of such harmless luxuries as plum puddings and pies; their detestation of episcopacy, of church music, in fact, of everything that a vast mass of the people held dear, rendered them at last such objects of aversion that when the tide of popular feeling turned it swept them and their principles almost out of existence.

The Restoration Era.

As was to be expected, instead of a change marked by moderation and common sense, men flew to the other extreme. Whitehall, with all its new fashions and amusements imported direct from France set the tune to all England, and an utter absence of shame marked the beau monde of the period. There was no attempt to throw even a veil over the evil that was rampant everywhere. Men and women were alike immoral and depraved. Evelyn has given us a graphic picture of a scene at Whitehall the night before Charles was seized with his mortal illness; how the King sat talking with three of his favourites, a French page singing love songs to the group, whilst at a large table close by, twenty courtiers were gambling at basset. It was little wonder that the life of the Court should be reflected in all the comedies and much of the prose and poetry of the time. Female characters were for the first time personated by women on the stage, and coincident with their advent, almost all duties to God and man were held up to public m[illegible] tic productions. T[illegible] ty were jeered at, and the strongest sympathies of the audience were always on the side of the profligate characters in the plays.

Hudibras.

Amid this vortex of human passions floated Samuel Butler. He was a man well on in middle life when he wrote his poem Hudibras, a poem which was destined to bring more ridicule on the Puritans than all the jeers of an united Royalist party could accomplish. The sensation its appearance created was unprecedented. We are told that Charles II. was never tired of quoting from it, and that he always carried a copy of the work in his pocket, and laughed consumedly at its witticisms. Pepys tells us that it was the talk of the country. Here is what he says about it:

Dec. 26, 1662.

To the Wardrobe. Hither come Mr. Battersby and we, falling into discourse of a new book of drollery in use, called Hudebras, I would needs go find it out, and met with it at the Temple: cost me 2s. 6d. But when I come to read it, it is so silly an abuse of the Presbyter Knight going to the wars, that I am ashamed of it; and by and by meeting at Mr. Townsend's at dinner, I sold it to him for 18d. . . . . . .

February 6th, 1663. And so to a bookseller's in the Strand and there bought Hudibras again, it being certainly some ill-humour to be so against that which all the world cries up to be the example of wit; for which I am resolved once more to read him, and see whether I can find it or no." Notwithstanding Pepys' adverse opinion, the wit and wisdom contained in the pages of Hudibras are undeniable. That it is a burlesque of Don Quixote, itself a burlesque, does not affect its literary value. Outside of the vast amount of learning embodied in its pages, we get a most interesting insight into the manners and customs of the day. The versification is in the tetrameter style ,and the rhyming is curiously bold and unorthodox. That Butler was not trammelled with scruples in this respect is evident throughout the pages of his work.

Here are a few specimens:

"There was an ancient sage philosopher
That had read Alexander Ross over."

"I'll force you by right ratiocination
To leave your vitilitigation."

Not by your individual whiskers,
But by dialect and discourse.

Without knowing it the world at large perpetuates many a phrase which first found circulation through the pages of Hudibras. These there is not space to enumerate: "True blue" and "cock-a-hoop" are two of them. Everyone, however, knows those lines in which he rancorously assails the Puritans.

A sect whose chief devotion lies
In odd perverse antipathies.
In falling out with that or this
And finding somewhat still amiss;
More peevish, cross and splenetic
Than dog distract or monkey sick.
That with more care keep holy-day.
The wrong than others the right way,
Compound for sins they are inclined to.
By damning those they have no mind to."

The plot is of the flimsiest description, being a burlesque account of a Puritan Knight, who, accompanied by his Independent squire, sallies forth in seach of deeds of derring-do.

The encounters with Talgol, the butcher, and the other antagonists, his overthrow by Trulla, and the final exhibition of the pair in the stocks, are given in a vein of broad humour, but the chief interest centres in the religious disputations between the Knight and his follower, in which Ralpho shows considerable subtlety of reasoning.

It has been contended that Butler had for his sole object the holding up to ridicule of Sir Samuel Luke, by whom he had at one time been employed. It is more likely, however, that he intended to satirize the whole Puritan party, rather than to make an onslaught on a single individual.

Samuel Butler.

Very little is known concerning the author of Hudibras, save that his father was a farmer in humble circumstances, living at Strensham, in Worcestershire, and that at that place the poet was born in 1612. He was educated at the College of Worcester, where he became "an excellent school scholar." The statement that he finished his education at one of the universities is not thought to be correct. On entering life his first service was as clerk to Thomas Jefferies, a Justice of the Peace, and it was whilst acting in this capacity that he probably gained the large knowledge of the law, which is so noticeable in his poem. His next employment was with the Countess of Kent ,and afterwards with Sir Samuel Luke, who was a colonel in the parliamentary army and a J. P. for Bedford and Surrey.

At the Restoration, Butler was appointed secretary to Lord Carbery, Lord President of Wales. He was also appointed Steward of Ludlow Castle, and would seem to have been in fairly prosperous circumstances. About this time he married a wealthy widow, a Mrs. Herbert, and it is to be presumed resigned his appointments. But the widow's fortune, owing to bad investments soon vanished, and from that time till his death in 1680 Butler seems always to have been more or less in need.

King Charles, who was so pleased with his poem that he desired that the author should be introduced to him, is stated, on doubtful authority, to have presented him with £300.

The few personal traits recorded of Butler represent him as of retired habits and singular modesty; silent in general company, but free with his friends, amongst whom he numbered Hobbes and Davenant. Of his personal appearance, we learn that he was "of middle stature, strong sett, high coloured, a head of sorrel hair, a severe and sound judgment," and again that "he was of a leonine-coloured hair, sanguine, choleric, middle-sized, strong. We are told that he was stupid in conversation, and there is an anecdote in the General Historical Dictionary, (1734-41) bearing out this statement. "Lord Dorset having a great desire to spend an evening as a private gentleman with the author of Hudibras, prevailed with Mr. Fleetwood Shepherd to introduce him into his company at a tavern, which they used, in the character only of a common friend; this being done, Mr. Butler, while the first bottle was drinking, appeared very flat and heavy, at the second bottle brisk and lively, full of wit and learning, and a most agreeable companion; but before the third bottle was finished he ,sunk again into such deep stupidity and dullness, that hardly anybody would have believed him to be the author of a book which abounded with so much wit, learning and pleasantry. Next morning Mr. Shepherd asked his lordship's opinion of Butler, who answered: "He is like a nine-pin, little at both ends, but great in the middle."

Wycherley, the dramatist, in hope of getting Butler employment, tried to interest the Duke of Buckingham in his favour, but by mischance, that noble peer, observing two ladies passing by, just as he was to be introduced to the poet, left him abruptly, in order to chase after the fair ones. That was the last that Butler saw of him.

On September 25, 1680, Butler died either of consumption or of fever in London. The expenses of his funeral were defrayed by his friend, Mr. Longueville. He was buried in the church yard of St. Paul's Covent Garden, and forty years afterwards a memorial of him appeared in Westminster Abbey, placed there at the expense of Mr. Barber, Lord Mayor of London.

FOSTER'S WEATHER BULLETIN

Washington, D. C., April 17.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent 16 to 20, warm wave 15 to 19, cool wave 18 to 22. This was expected to be a cold period with frosts further south than usual and severe storms on many parts of the continent. The heaviest rains of the month were expected with this storm wave.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 20, cross Pacific slope by close of 21, great central valleys 22 to 24, tastern states 25. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 20, great central valleys 22, eastern states 24. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about 23, great central valleys 25, eastern states 27.

This disturbance will bring a recovery from the unusually cool period but temperatures will continue too low for good crop weather. The storms will continue to be severe but rainfall will decrease.

Last disturbance of April will reach Pacific coast about 25, cross Pacific slope by close of 26, great central valleys 27 to 29, eastern states 30. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about 25, great central valleys 27, eastern states 29 .Cold wave will cross Pacific slope about 28, great central valleys 30, eastern states May 2.

This disturbance will bring temperatures up to normal, good crop weather will be restored, rains will not be excessive and the storms will become less severe. At the close of April the crops will be generally a little late but not in first class condition, but the normal weather of last part of April and first part of May will soon put crops in fair condition.

I am expecting drouth in some sections to be detrimental to all crops particularly oats and corn and a little too dry for winter wheat. This would have a tendency to advance prices but grain is already too high. The great speculators are manipulating the markets and therefore crop weather effects do not show up in the markets.

Next bulletin will give general forecasts of May crop weather. My April forecasts proved good for first part of April except in vicinity of Washington, D. C.

Many newspapers not heretofore publishing my work are now on my mailing list as regular subscribers and the increase in popularity of my forecasts is constant and substantial.

ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Copyright, 1906, Anthony Hope Hawkins

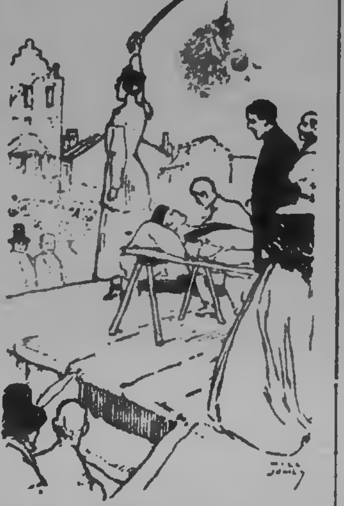
"How has it gone?" asked Dunstanbury, sitting up.

"It's been a terrible night. I'm glad you've had some sleep. He awoke after an hour. The hemorrhage had set in again. I had to tell him it was a thousand to one against him. He sent for her and made me leave them alone together. There was only one other room, and I waited there with a little woman—a Mme. Zerkovitch—who cried terribly. Then he sent for Lukovitch, who seems to be the chief man in the place. Presently Lukovitch went away, and I went back to the king. I found him terribly exhausted. She was there, sitting by him and whispering to him now and then. She seemed calm. Presently Lukovitch came back. The Zerkovitches and the German man came too. They all came in—the king would not hear my objections—and with them came a priest. And then and there the king married her! She spoke to nobody except to me before the service began, and then she only said, 'Monseigneur wishes it.' I waited till the service was done, but I could hear no more. I went outside while they shrived him, but I was called back hurriedly. Then the end came very soon—in less than half an hour. He sent everybody away except her and me, and when I had done all that was possible I went as far off as I could into the corner of the room. I came back at a call from her just before he died. The man was looking extraordinarily happy, Dunstanbury."



"It was monseigneur's wish. Let us avenge him! God hears me!"

"They were married?"

"Oh, yes. It's all right, I suppose—not that it seems to matter much now, does it? Put on your coat and come to the window. You'll see a sight you'll remember, I think."

Together they went to the window. The sun had risen from behind the mountains and flooded the city with light. The morning air was crisp and fragrant. The market place was thronged with people—men in line in front, women, girls and boys in a mass behind. They were all absolutely quiet and silent. Opposite where they were was a raised platform of wood, reached by steps from the ground. It was a rostrum for the use of those who sold goods by auction in the market. A board on trestles had been laid on this, and on the board was stretched the body of the king. At his feet stood Lukovitch. Behind were Max von Hollbrandt, Zerkovitch and Marie. At the king's head stood Sophy, and Peter Vassip knelt on the ground beside her. She stood like a statue, white and still, but Dunstanbury could see the red star glowing.

Lukovitch seemed to have been speaking, although the sound of his voice had not reached them through the closed window of the topmost room in the inn. He spoke again now—not loudly, but in a very clear voice.

"The king lies dead through treachery," he said. "In Slavna the German woman rules and her son and the men who killed the king. Will you have them to rule over you, men of Volseni?"

A shout of "No!" rang out, followed again by absolute silence. Lukovitch drew the curved sword that he wore and raised it in the air. All the armed men followed his example. The rest, with the women and young people, raised their right hands. It was their custom in calling Heaven to witness.

"God hears us!" said Lukovitch, and all the people repeated the words after him.

Dunstanbury whispered to Basil, "Do they mean to fight?" An eagerness stirred in his voice.

"Listen! He's speaking again."

"Whom, then, will you have for your king, men of Volseni?" asked Lukovitch. "There is one on whose finger the king has put the silver ring of the bailiffs of Volseni. With his own hand he set it there before he died—he set it there when he made her his queen, as you have heard. Will you have the bailiff of Volseni for your king?"

A great shout of "Yes!" answered him.

"Will you have Sophia for your king?"

"Sophia for our king!" they cried.

Lukovitch raised his sword again. All raised swords or hands. The solemn words "God hears us!" were spoken from every mouth. Lukovitch turned to Sophy and handed his drawn sword to her. She took it. Then she knelt down and kissed the king's lips. Rising to her feet again, she stood for a moment silent, looking over the thronged market square. Yet she seemed hardly to see. Her eyes were vacant. At last she raised the sword to her lips, kissed it, and then held it high in the air.

"It was monseigneur's wish. Let us avenge him! God hears me!"

"God hears you!" came all the voices.

The ceremony was finished. Six men took up the board on which the king lay, carried it down from the rostrum and along the street to the guardhouse. Sophy followed, and her friends walked after her. Still she seemed as though in a dream. Her voice had sounded absent, almost unconscious. She was pale as death save for the red star.

Following her dead, she passed out of sight. Immediately the crowd began to disperse, though most of the men with arms gathered around Lukovitch and seemed to await his orders.

Basil Williamson moved away from the window, with a heavy sigh and a gesture of dejection.

"I wish we could get her safe out of it," he said. "Isn't it wonderful, her being here?"

"Yes, but I'd forgotten that." Dunstanbury was still by the window. He had been thinking that his service now would not be to monseigneur. Yet no doubt Basil had mentioned the wisest form of service. Sophy's own few words—the words for which she cited Heaven's witness—hinted at another.

But Basil had recalled his mind to the marvel. Moved as he had been by his talk with Sophy and even more by the scene which had just been enacted before his eyes, his face lit up with a smile as he looked across to Basil.

"Yes, old fellow—wonderful! Sophy Grouch! Queen of Kravonia! It beats Macbeth hollow!"

"It's pretty nearly as dreary," said Basil, with a discontented grunt.

"I find it pretty nearly as exciting," Dunstanbury said, "and I hope for a happier ending. Meanwhile"—he buckled the leather belt which held his revolver around his waist—"I'm for some breakfast, and then I shall go and ask that tall fellow who did all the talking if there's anything I can do for King Sophia. By Jove, wouldn't Cousin Meg open her eyes?"

"You'll end by getting yourself stuck up against the wall and shot," Basil grumbled.

"If I do I'm quite sure of one thing, old fellow—and that is that your wooden old mug will be next in the line or thereabouts."

"I say, Dunstanbury, I wish I could have saved him!"

"So do I. Did you notice her face?"

Williamson gave a scornful toss of his head.

"Well, yes, I was an ass to ask that!" Dunstanbury admitted candidly. It would certainly not have been easy to avoid noticing Sophy's face.

At 6 o'clock that morning Max von Hollbrandt took horse for Slavna. His diplomatic character at once made it proper for him to rejoin his legation and enabled him to act as a messenger with safety to himself. He carried the tidings of the death of the king and of the proclamation of Sophy. There was no concealment. Volseni's defiance to Slavna was open and avowed. Volseni held that there was no true Stefanovitch left and cited the will of the last of the royal house as warrant for its choice. The gauntlet was thrown down with a royal air.

It was well for Max to get back to his post. The diplomatists in Slavna and their chiefs at home were soon to be busy with the affairs of Kravonia. Mistitch had struck at the life of even more than his king—that was to become evident before many days had passed.

Chapter Twenty-nine

It is permissible to turn with some relief, although of a kind more congenial to the cynic than the admirer of humanity, from the tragedy of love in Volseni to the comedy of politics which began to develop itself in Slavna from the hour of the proclamation of young Alexis.

The first result of this auspicious event, following so closely on the issue of Captain Mistitch's expedition, was to give all the diplomatists bad colds. Some took to their beds, others went for a change of air, but one and all had such colds as would certainly prevent them from accepting royal invitations or being present at state functions. Young Alexis had a cold, too, and was consequently unable to issue royal invitations or take his part in state functions. Countess Ellenburg was even more affected—she had lumbago—and even General Stenovics was advised to keep quite quiet for a few days.

Only Colonel Stafnitz's health seemed proof against the prevailing epidemic. He was constantly to be seen about, very busy at the barracks, very busy at Suleiman's tower, very gay and cheerful on the terrace of the Hotel de Paris, but then he, of course, had been in no way responsible for recent events. He was a soldier and had only obeyed orders. Naturally his health was less affected. He was, in fact, in very good temper except when he touched on poor Captain Hercules' blundering, violent ways. "Not the man for a delicate mission," he said decisively to Captain Markart. The captain forbore to remind him how it was that Mistitch had been sent on one. The way in which the colonel expressed his opinion made it clear that such a reminder would not be welcome.

The coterie which had engineered the revolution was set at sixes and sevens by its success. The destruction of their common enemy was also the removal of their common interest. Sophy at Volseni did not seem a peril real enough or near enough to bind them together. Countess Ellenburg wanted to be regent. Stenovics was for a council, with himself in the chair. Stafnitz thought himself the obvious man to be commandant of Slavna. Stenovics would have agreed—only it was necessary to keep an eye on Volseni! Now, if he were to be commandant, while the colonel took the field with a small, but picked, force! The colonel screwed up his mouth at that. "Make Praslok your headquarters and you'll soon bring the sheepskins to their senses," Stenovics advised insidiously. Stafnitz preferred headquarters at Suleiman's tower! He was not sure that coming back from Praslok with a small force, however picked, would be quite as easy as going there.

In the back of both men's minds there was a bit of news which had just come to hand. The big guns had been delivered and were on their way to Slavna, coming down the Krath in barges. They were consigned to the commandant. Who was that important officer now to be?

When thieves fall out honest men come by their own. The venerable saying involves one postulate—that there shall be honest men to do it. In high places in Slavna this seemed to be a difficulty, and it is not so certain that Kravonia's two great neighbors to east and west quite filled the gap. These powers were exchanging views now. They were mightily shocked at the way Kravonia had been going on. Their ministers had worse colds than any of the other ministers, and their press had a great deal to say about civilization and such like topics. Kravonia was a rich country, and its geographical position was important. The history of the world seems to show that the standard of civilization and morality demanded of a country depends largely on its richness and the importance of its geographical position.

The neighbor on the west had plenty of mountains, but wanted some fertile plains. The neighbor on the east had fertile plains adjacent to the Kravonian frontier and would like to hold the mountain line as a protection to them. A farseeing statesman would have discerned how important correct behavior was to the interests of Kravonia! The great neighbors began to move in the matter, but they moved slowly. They had to see that their own keen sense of morality was not opposed to the keen sense of morality of other great nations. The right to feel specially outraged is a matter for diplomatic negotiations, often, no doubt, of great delicacy.

So in the meantime Slavna was left to its own devices for a little longer—to amuse itself in its light hearted, unremorseful, extremely unconscientious way, and to frown and shake a distant fist at grim, gray, sad little Volseni in the hills. With the stern and faithful band who mourned the dead prince neither Stenovics nor Stafnits seemed for the moment inclined to try conclusions, though each would have been glad to see the other undertake the enterprise. In a military regard, moreover, they were right. The obvious thing, if Sophy still held out, was to wait for the big guns. When once these were in position the old battlements of Volseni could stand scarcely longer than the walls of Jericho. And the guns were at the head of navigation on the Krath now, waiting for an escort to convoy them to Slavna. Max von Hollbrandt—too insignificant a person to feel called upon to have a cold—moved about Slavna much amused with the situation and highly gratified that the fruit which the coterie had plucked looked like turning bitter in their mouths.

Within the palace on the river bank young Alexis was strutting his brief hour vastly pleased, but Countess Ellenburg was at her prayers again, praying rather indiscriminately against everybody who might be dangerous—against Sophy at Volseni, against the big neighbors, whose designs began to be whispered; against Stenovics, who was fighting so hard for himself that he gave little heed to her or to her dignity; against Stafnits, who might leave her the dignity, such as it was, but certainly, if he established his own supremacy, would not leave her a shred of power. Perhaps there were specters also against whose accusing shades she raised her petition—the man she had deluded, the man she had helped to kill—but that theme seems too dark for the comedy of Slavna in these days. The most practical step she took, so far as this world goes, was to send a very solid sum of money to a bank in Dresden. It was not the first remittance she had made from Slavna.

Matters stood thus—young Alexis having been on the throne in Slavna and Sophy in Volseni for one week—when Lepage ventured out from Zerkovitch's sheltering roof. He had suffered from a chill by no means purely diplomatic; but, apart from that, he had been in no hurry to show himself. He feared to see Rastatz's rat face peering for him. But all was quiet. Sterkoff and Rastatz were busy with their colonel in Suleiman's tower. In fact, nobody took any notice of Lepage. His secret, once so vital, was now gossip of the market place. He was secure, but he was also out of a situation.

He walked somewhat forlornly into St. Michael's square, and, as luck would have it—Lepage thought it very bad luck—the first man he ran against was Captain Markart. Uneasy in his conscience, Lepage tried to evade the encounter, but the captain was of another mind. His head was sound again, and on cool reflection, he was glad to have slept through the events of what Stenovics' proclamation had styled "the auspicious day." He seized little Lepage by the arm, greeted him with cordiality and carried him off to drink at the Golden Lion. Without imputing any serious lack of sobriety to his companion, Lepage thought that this refreshment was not the first of which the good humored captain had partaken that afternoon, his manner was so very cordial, his talk so very free.

"Well, here we are," he said. "We did our best, you and I, Lepage. Our consciences are clear. As loyal subjects we have now to accept the existing regime."

"What is it?" asked Lepage. "I've been indoors a week."

"It's Alexis—still Alexis! Long live Alexis!" said Markart, with a laugh. "You surely don't take Baroness Dobrava into account?"

"Long live Alexis!" said Markart.

"I just wanted to know," said Lepage, drinking thoughtfully. "And—er—captain—behind Alexis? Guiding the youthful king? Countess Ellenburg?"

"No doubt, no doubt. Behind him his very pious mother, Lepage."

"And behind her?" persisted Lepage.

Markart laughed, but cast a glance round and shook his head.

"Come, come, captain, don't leave an old friend in the dark, just where information would be useful."

"An old friend! Oh, when I remember my aching head! You think me very forgiving, M. Lepage."

"If you knew the night I spent, you'd forgive me anything," said Lepage, with a shudder of reminiscence.

"Ah, well," said Markart after another draft. "I'm a soldier. I shall obey my orders."

"Perfect, captain! And who will give them to you, do you think?"

"That's exactly what I'm waiting to see. Oh, I've turned prudent! No more adventures for me!"

"I'm quite of your mind, but it's so difficult to be prudent when one doesn't know which is the strongest side."

"You wouldn't go to Volseni?" laughed Markart.

"Perhaps not, but there are difficulties nearer home. If you went out of this door and turned to the left, you would come to the offices of the council of ministers. If you turned to the right and thence to the right again and on to the north wall, you would come, captain, to Suleiman's tower. Now, as I understand, Colonel Stafnitz"—

"Is at the tower and the general at the offices, eh?"

"Precisely. Which turn do you mean to take?"

Markart looked round again. "I shall sit here for a bit longer," he said. He finished his liquor thereby perhaps, adding just the touch of openness lacking to his advice and, leaning forward, touched Lepage on the arm.

"Do you remember the prince's guns, the guns for which he bartered Captain Hercules?"

"Aye, well!" said Lepage.

"They're on the river, up at Kolskoi now. I should keep my eye on them. They're to be brought to Slavna. Who do you think'll bring them? Keep your eye on that."

Better, Healthier Women
are known to exist in this country by thousands because freed from pain and suffering by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Could such a record be made without actual and superior merit? Read what this woman says, and realize that the results secured in her case could not have been made except by a very good medicine.
Winnipeg, Man.—"Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth in the uterus. The doctors said it was a tumor, and could not be removed, as it would cause instant death. They found that other organs were affected and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in. After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. Orilla Bradley, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Science in surgery and electricity has advanced much in the past 30 years, but the treatment of disease by the old fashioned roots and herbs method has never been improved upon. The fact that this leader of them all—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—is to-day the largest seller of any similar medicine in the world, is proof positive of its value and superiority, for with all our enterprise and advertising we could not keep fooling the people for 30 years. Merit and merit alone is what has made Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the standard medicine for treating diseases peculiar to women.
For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.
Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

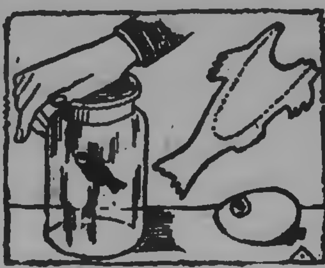
THE EDUCATED FISH.

An Interesting Toy That Any Clever Boy Can Make at Home.

Are you fond of making your own toys? If so, here is an interesting one for you to work on.

First empty a raw egg by means of two pin holes, one at each end, and then blow through one end. Seal the hole at the point end of the egg and draw two large round eyes at that end of the eggshell. Prepare a little bag with two red flannel flaps in the shape of the body and tail of a fish. Weight this with shot and place one-half of the egg in the opening, the small hole in front of the egg being hidden in the bag. Fasten the edges of the sack to the egg by means of red sealing wax, and, lo, a fish is formed—a fish that can swim and dive in a jar of water!



DETAILS OF FISH TOY.

The jar must be closed by a thin rubber cap, and if you press this cap with your hand the water (the jar must be full) will force its way up the empty shell, and by increasing or decreasing the pressure with your hand you can make it appear as though the fish were obeying your command to swim up or down or to lie quiet.—Magical Experiments.

OLD TIME GAMES.

Children of Today Enjoy Same Sports as Youth of Long Ago.

The boys and girls of the present day who become enthusiastic over the newest games would be surprised if they could discover how closely many of the old time pastimes resemble our own, says the Chicago News.

The Eskimos of the frozen north, the Tupinambras of the Brazilian pampas, the gamins of the Paris streets, the boys and girls of London, of Boston and of Philadelphia, have one kindred tie—the love of sport. There is nothing new under the sun, said the wise man, and especially is there nothing new in youthful games.

Archaeologists have found dolls in Egyptian pyramids and on prehistoric tombs, the name of a popular ball club was found scrawled upon the outer walls of Pompeiian houses, and one of the most exciting matches on record was the one stubbornly fought between the rival nines of Montezuma, king of Mexico, and Nezahualpilli, 'tzin of Tezcuco.

The boys of ancient Greece and Rome played at whip top, and quoits, and baseball, and pitch penny, and blind man's buff, and hide and seek, and jackstones, and follow my leader, just as do the boys of today. The girls were experts at seesaw, and swinging, and dancing, and grace hoops, and dice throwing, and ball play, and in Sparta even at running, wrestling and leaping. Tobogganing is as old as ice and snow, and when you play at cherry pits you are only doing what Nero and Commodus and young Themistocles did ages ago in Rome and in Athens.

COATED TONGUE HEADACHE DIZZY SPELLS

Your overworked stomach is on strike. It refuses to secrete pepsin enough to act upon the food. Refuses also to secrete acid enough to enable the peptic secretion to do its work.

What's the result?—dyspepsia, headache, sick all over.

Give to the stomach the assistance it requires—or in other words try Dr. Hamilton's Pills which cure more weak stomachs than any other medicine you know of.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills put the kind of life into a weak stomach that enables it to digest and assimilate all kinds of food.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills

Cured Mr. William Martin, a Well-Known Lumberman in Parry Sound.

"I consider that Dr. Hamilton's [illegible] the best all round medicine. My stomach got disordered and all [illegible] set in. My [illegible] I grew thin, my color got pale, and I had the worst kind of headaches. The food I ate all disagreed with me and I was constantly bilious and suffering from acute dyspepsia. A wonderful change took place when I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they gave me appetite and strong digestion. I had no more bad [illegible], no sick stomach or headache. I was in fact like a new man, and will always recommend and use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Wonder-Heart.

"I wish I knew," said Wonder-Heart,
  "If leaves begin to whisper
From tree to tree when suddenly
  The summer winds blow crisper.
If these sigh low, 'We're growing old!'
If those say soft: 'We're gathering gold.
Our laps are full as they will hold,'
  And now and then a lisper
Calls gleefully from overhead,
'Our petticoats are turning red!'"

"I want to know," said Wonder-Heart,
  "If the first snowflakes shiver
A little bit before they flit
  Out of their sky forever.
If some look down and sob, 'Too deep!'
While others laugh and take the leap,
Till all come flocking, white as sheep,

How do they feel when first they start?
I wish I knew," said Wonder-Heart.

WHEN THE CAT GOT MAD.

Her Digestion Wouldn't Work—Same Thing Happens to Humans.

Horace Fletcher of mastication fame talked recently to the New York League For Political Education about the influence of mental states upon digestion and left some people in greater despair than ever about the attainment of dietetic righteousness. For it is not enough to chew, it seems. One must also cultivate faith, hope and charity and cease to worry about one's rent. All this has been conclusively proved by the use of the X ray on cats. Pussy is allowed to get "good and hungry," Mr. Fletcher stated, and then she is permitted to eat as much as she wants of some food that she likes, the food being stained with a substance which doesn't detract from its flavor, but which renders it opaque to the X rays. She is now placed beneath the X rays, and, taking it for a fire, she stretches herself out in great content to digest her dinner, the course of which can be traced through the digestive apparatus by its opaqueness. Everything goes along smoothly until the attention of the cat is distracted. Then the process is delayed, but if the cat is annoyed and gets angry enough to spit it stops altogether and does not start again until a considerable time after the cat has regained its composure.

The moral is obvious. Avoid all perturbations of the spirit if you want your food to digest, even after you have chewed it. Mr. Fletcher seems to think that this is quite simple.

Hatred, Mr. Fletcher stated, is the most fatal of all the passions, hurting the hater infinitely more than the object against which it is directed, and millions of children, he is convinced, may have been killed by a sharp word spoken to the mother at breakfast, the mental disturbance curdling her milk and rendering it poisonous. But fortunately he does not consider it necessary to give oneself up to the business of digestion, as the cat does under the X rays.

"If you fletcherize," he said, "you can do the most strenuous physical and mental work immediately after eating."

Origin of Mothers' Day.

"Mothers' day," originated by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, will be observed this year, as it was last. On the second Sunday in May every one is asked to wear a white carnation in honor of his or her mother or her memory. It is suggested, too, that all who can should do some kindly act upon that day.

Boston has already celebrated one mothers' day in a special service on Thursday, Feb. 18, at Tremont temple. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman presided.

A PRETTY EASTER GAME.

It Is Played With Colored Eggs and Is Called "Touch."

A pretty Easter game is called "touch." Six eggs of different colors are placed in a row of sand. One player is blindfolded and given a light wand, with which he must touch an egg, reciting:

Peggy, Patrick, Mike and Meg,
See me touch my Easter egg.
Green and red and black and blue
Count for six, five, four and two.
If I touch an egg of white,
A forfeit then will be your right.
If I touch an egg of gold,
It is mine to have and hold.

The eggs are of different value. Green counts six, red five, black four, blue two and the gold egg more than all together. The player who touches the gold egg wins the game and a forfeit from each player. The white egg is worth less than nothing, for whoever touches it must pay a forfeit. Each player in turn is blindfolded, and some one outside the game keeps account of the eggs touched. When a score of twenty is reached the game ends without the aid of the gold egg. The position of the eggs is changed after each trial, so that those who are trying to touch them may not know where to place the wand.

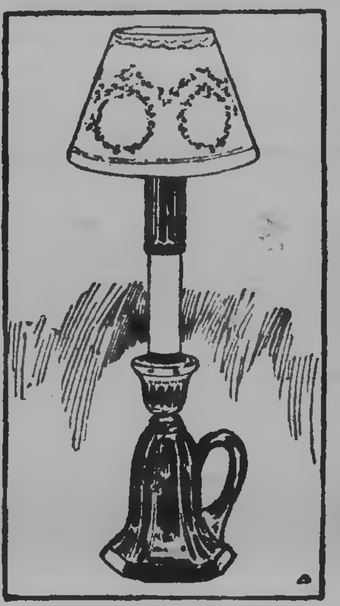
SOME CANDLE SHADES.

French Fluted Model That Is Easy to Make.

The day of the glaring droplight over the dining table is done; the hanging lamp is happily tabooed; the chandelier holds its old, exalted position perforce, but its overhead and spreading light is quite discouraged by every hostess who has become a convert to softened colors and candle shades.

Who among us is not won over to the little fairy lights dotted around the festive board? When we happen to be in a particularly responsive mood their little, sparkling jets of light seem almost to transport us to some other land.



A FRENCH FLUTED AFFAIR.

One particularly happy feature in the candle shade of home manufacture is the ease with which the original may be reproduced. This makes it entirely possible to keep a supply of "repeats" in reserve for renewing scorched ones and keeping up the required number.

If one is in the least handy with the water color box any of the bristleboard shades may be readily copied. When originality of design is out of the question, tracing may be resorted to and perhaps an even more appropriate color substituted.

A plaited shade resembling the French fluted ones may be accomplished by those fairly expert. The knife plaited material covers a cardboard shield and is fastened at top and bottom with narrow galloon. They are very fetching—indeed, quite delicious in their suggestion of the little fluted covers with something to eat inside—and eminently suitable to deck the mahogany when used with the short glass candlestick reproducing the antique.

The Legend of the Haddock.

The haddock has a superstition attached to it. On each side on the shoulders, near the gills, it has a dark spot, fabled to be the impression made by the finger and thumb of St. Peter when he took up and found the penny in its mouth to pay tribute to Caesar with.

Bobby's Idea of Neatness.

Miss Bumblebee was heard to say,
  "I want a doll, I do."
And Mrs. Bumblebee replied,
  "It's time you had one too."

So Mrs. Bumblebee prepared,
  Without the least delay,
To make a doll with which a child
  Of hers might fitly play.

  Quoth she, "and on the crown,

  She looks extremely nice."

GAME OF PRESIDENT.

Interesting Pastime to Play Indoors or on the Lawn.

Mark off on the playground a diagram like the illustration shown herewith, making it of any size to suit the desire of the players. The center square, surrounded by the spaces 1, 2, 3, 4, is the White House. The spaces marked off at the corners of the outer square are the points where the players stand.

The game is played by any number of persons, each having flat blocks of wood or stones, on which are written, one on each, the names of all the presidents of the United States and with each name the number of years he served. The blocks should be apportioned as evenly as possible among the players.

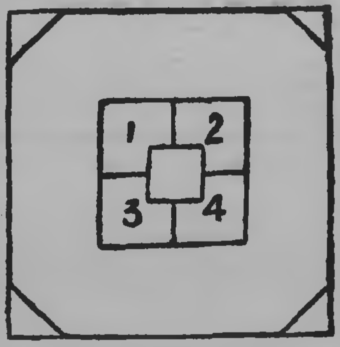

DIAGRAM FOR PRESIDENT GAME.

At the beginning of the game the blocks are all placed face downward, and the players select them at random in turn. The player having George Washington block plays first, and the object is to throw the block into the White House in the center.

If a block lands in the White House it scores as many points for the player as there are years marked on the block, but if it lands in one of the four spaces around the White House it takes off from the player's score as many points as the number on the place it lands in. A block that does not reach the White House or any of the four spaces around it does not count anything.

Any number of points may be agreed upon for the game, and the blocks may be redistributed if desired.

Claim Part of Montreal.

Some interesting financial possibilities have lately developed in the affairs of John MacDonald, a prosperous plumber, who recently removed from Saranac Lake, N.Y., to Plattsburg. The MacDonalds are claimants of a very substantial portion of the City of Montreal. This land, now valued at $8,000,000, was a war time grant from the British Crown to the great-great-grandfather of John MacDonald, according to the latter's story. The MacDonalds have engaged counsel in Canada to prosecute their claim, and are assured by these attorneys, they state, that the case is a strong one. Should the MacDonalds win, the former Saranac Lake man figures he will receive $250,000 as his share.

Lacrossists at Oxford.

In spite of the fact that they had four Canadians on their team, Oxford lost to Cambridge in the seventh annual inter-'Varsity lacrosse match by a score of 8 to 6. Three of the Canadians were from Queen's and one from McGill. They were: A. G. Cameron (Queen's), point; A. M. Rothwell (Queen's), cover; A. R. McLeod (McGill), and N. S. Macdonnel (Queen's), defence field. This game again calls attention to the fact that lacrosse has become a recognized sport in England and awakens considerable public interest there. At the universities they play the game with enthusiasm, and rivalry runs high. Some of the players developed, too, are of more than ordinary ability.

TAMING A SHREW

By Martha McCulloch-Williams.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Pretty Kitty Clyde was not really a shrew. She had merely been born imperious and had grown up absolute monarch of an adoring family.

Until she was rising eleven Douglas Norton had been also of her subjects. Fate whisked him away then to inherit an uncle's fortune and go racing about the world, thereby giving Kitty her first realizing sense that things could happen otherwise than according to her will.

The process was unpleasant. By a curious mental alchemy Kitty unconsciously stored the unpleasantness as a grudge against the absent Douglas.

So when he came home ten years later and fell openly and instantly a victim to her charms she was in two minds as to what to do with him, and she yielded in favor of the mind that advised her to do something unpleasant.

He was a dear fellow, suiting her exactly in some of her moods. In others—but in those others nobody suited her, least of all herself. Those other moods would probably have made her send Douglas about his business if he had not had the lucky misfortune to have the Ackroyds for friends.

The Ackroyds, whom Kitty loathed, gave up days and nights to warning Douglas against her. The warnings were not wholly disinterested. Though the two Miss Ackroyds were quite old enough to be his mother, there was Lena Shotwell, their niece, over in Kittredge town, for whose establishment they were most anxious.

Given the facts, the temperaments and the situation, the resulting engagement follows logically. Kitty excused herself to her conscience for it with the special pleading that it would chagrin the Ackroyds and that if she finally broke it the making it would have saved Douglas from worse.

Of course she would not think of marrying him for years. Meantime she would revel in the Ackroyd discomfiture. Then her people were so happy over the prospect. That really meant a lot to her.

Dimly at the bottom of a very warm heart she felt that, on the whole, she had not made them as happy as she might have done.

So altogether she was not ill content with the estate in life wherein she now found herself until Douglas obstinately insisted upon her naming the day.

"Go away! The role of impatient lover does not fit you in the least," she said to him, with the most fetching pout. "You know you'd be dreadfully upset if I agreed to anything so insane. We can be married when we are too old to care for tearing about. When you are thirty-five I shall be thirty-two. That will be quite time enough to do the Darby and Joan act. Until then—well, we will stay as we are."

"We will not!" Douglas asserted, seizing both her hands. "Understand, I'm going to be a married man before the year is out"—

"I dare say you can get Lena Shotwell—or somebody like her—all on a sudden this way," Kitty interrupted, trying to pull away her hands.

Douglas held them tight. "I'm going to marry you—nobody else," he said. "Make up your mind to the fact, ladykin, and give up gracefully while there is time."

"Of all impertinence!" Kitty flashed out at him. "Let go my hands so I can take off your rubbishy ring! I won't marry you—now, never nor next day. I won't even speak to you ever again if you hold me a second longer."

"What a peaceful home we shall have!" Douglas murmured, letting go her hands, but catching her in his arms. He pressed her close and went on, with his lips against her pink ear: "Little darling, I ought to want you to be sensible, but the fact is—I don't. It is ever so much more thrilling to take you thus in spite of yourself. You have never even let me kiss your hand. No matter when we married, this would have to come some time. You know you need mastering, but I'm too generous to ask you to admit it. Come along. I want you to hear me tell daddy all about it. Mother Clyde has already agreed with me that the wedding had better be on your birthday."

Then Kitty forgot herself, her years, her grownup estate. She screamed. He did not pay any attention. She became so angry that she tried to claw his cheek, but none of her efforts or shrieks availed.

He lifted her as if she were only five years old and carried her into the sitting room, where her father rose in affright. Mrs. Clyde, pallid, but more composed, stood beside him, her hand laid detainingly upon his shoulder.

"It's a hard to bear, mighty hard," she whispered. "We—we ought to bear it for the child. Spoiling her so is our work. But for heaven's sake keep still! Her whole future depends on it. Douglas is the man of men for her, and she will throw him over if she has the least chance."

"Daddy! Oh, dear daddy!" Kitty panted, trying to reach out appealing arms. Douglas pinioned them fast and went close to Major Clyde, saying, with a laugh that was not quite easy: "Major, this girl you gave me is behaving so badly. I think you might throw in one of old Flossy's pups to even up the trade."

At that Kitty screamed afresh. The major's breath came hard, his face grew apoplectic, but his wife's hand, closing and unclosing convulsively, warned him not to interfere.

He tried to assume a judicial air and say, "The case admits of argument," but at the second word the door opened to admit Miss Alicia Ackroyd, who usurped and abused privileges of intimate neighborliness.

The Ackroyd house stood just across the road. The two sisters had been on watch in the front windows ever since they saw Douglas ride through the Clyde gate.

They had heard the screams and had made their incursion. "Somebody must be killing somebody over there. I'm going to find out who," Miss Alicia said to Miss Patricia, not even stopping to snatch at a bonnet as she sped through the front door and down the walk.

After one startled "Oh!" she stood still, staring at Douglas, who had loosed his hold of Kitty, but kept her hand. Kitty had been in a white rage.

Now she flushed brilliantly and looked at the intruder with her most infantile smile. "Dear Miss Alicia, did I really frighten the neighbors?" she asked. "I'm so glad. Do say I did. We have just had an impromptu rehearsal. Douglas, wretch that he is, insists that I can't act, that he is not depriving the stage of a great ornament in marrying me, and I was bound to prove him in the wrong."

"Oh!" Miss Alicia said again, this time with a mighty different inflection, yet one that still lacked something of conviction. Miss Patricia, fully bonneted, here panted in.

When the stir of settling her ended Miss Alicia returned to the charge. "You ought to have called in a bigger audience, dear Kitty," she said in the suave voice that always meant mischief. "But do tell me what the play was. I don't seem to recall"—

"Of course you don't. I belong to the new school," Kitty said brightly. "The new school exists, you know, to prove that until it came nobody ever played Shakespeare quite right. Maybe it's because of my name, but I've always felt that I could give a new rendering of Katharine, you know, in 'The Taming of the Shrew'"—

"She did do it and was most convincing," Douglas interrupted gratefully. He had been going hot and cold, wondering if there were any escape from the valley of humiliation open before them. He knew that only by a miracle could the Ackroy tongues be stopped.

"So convincing!" he went on. "I see I must marry her right away. Miss Alicia, Miss Patricia, will you come to the wedding? It's to be just three weeks from now."

"You are a wretch, an ingrate!" Kitty said to him half an hour later when the Ackroyds had reluctantly taken themselves away. "I saved you and in doing it trapped myself beyond escape. What punishment do you not deserve, sir?"

"Nothing short of imprisonment for life," Douglas said. "Kitty, darling, you showed yourself a genius and a heroine. In reward you shall go on having your own way."

"I don't want it—except sometimes," Kitty answered, racing away to kiss the major and Mrs. Major and at last to pet old Flossy's precious puppies.

An Exceptional Case.

"And of course," said the spinster in a tone redolent with sarcasm, "there isn't another baby like that in the world."

"Oh, yes, there is," replied the happy young mother. "I left the other one of the twins at home with mamma."—St. Louis Republic.

NOT A PLUMBER BORN.

The Beginner Who Was Sent to Find a Leak and Failed.

Pipes & Fassitt ran a busy shop. They had men out working the eight hour day in the Washington heights district. They had helpers out, too, at the regular rates.

Monday morning had opened up with a rush. Joints were bursting, and bathtubs were flowing over.

Fassitt generally followed up the jobs, seeing that they were covered. Pipes held the desk down and made out the bills.

Presently the door pushed open, and a hardy looking young fellow came in. He handed a note to Mr. Pipes. Pipes read it.

"Please, sir," said the young fellow.

"Don't 'please' anybody here," said Pipes. "Riley says you're a good man and willing to work. Siddown!"

The hardy looking young fellow sat for five minutes; then the telephone rang.

"Get that off the wire," said Pipes. The young man got it.

"It's Mr. Silverberg that owns the big apartment house on St. Nicholas avenue. His star tenant complains of a leak in the ceiling from the floor overhead."

"You take that wrench and go over," said Pipes. "Locate the floor. Get around to Congdon's, where we've got a contract, and lift a helper. Go back and find the leak. Then report to me. Don't hurry too much."

The young man departed, returning in a couple of hours.

"Nothing doing, Mr. Pipes," he said. "The tenant overhead spilled some water in a corner of the kitchen. It ran under the sink and followed the pipe line to the floor below. That was all."

Pipes kept on making out bills. A ninety cent clock got along to 12 just as the noon whistle blew outside.

Then Pipes rose up sadly.

"Here's sitting time," he said. "Take the money. You'll need it. A tenant imagines a leak. The owner wants to pay for repairing the leak. You were sent to find it. You failed. Some day you may be an angel, but you will never be a plumber. Goodby!"

MIXED METAPHOR.

The Wonderful Feat That Was Performed by a Bottle.

An amateur historian is responsible for this: "All along the ever flowing stream of history you can discern the silent footprints of the crowned heads of Europe."

The village reporter on the death of the village poet: "That dauntless pen shall write no more, for its eyes are closed forever."

From the speech of a rising young politician: "The fierce light of public opinion shall dog their footsteps until it strangles them. Then shall they swallow the bitter pill and drink its very dregs."

Advice and warning from a successful man of business to a gathering of young people: "Every rung in the ladder of success is paved with slippery stones, on which only the clear head and the steady hand can retain their footing."

The fearless suffragette was addressing a meeting of mere men. She had graphically related to them the fascinating story of the strenuous struggle the ladies had made for that most priceless of possessions, a vote; how every obstacle had been conquered and victory was at last in sight. "We have now," she shrieked, "almost crossed the trackless desert, and the harbor lights are stretching out their arms to greet us!"

The temperance advocate was giving a striking but a true picture of the vast amount of evil wrought by the demon of drink, and the fact that he occasionally got somewhat mixed in his metaphors did not derogate from the truth that underlay his remarks. "What is the greatest devastating agent of our time?" he asked. "It is the bottle, which smiles genially before your face while at the same time it is stabbing you in the back."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Was Dr. Johnson Bashful?

On the eve of leaving London for Canada Mrs. Brooke, who wrote "The History of Emily Montague," the first novel written in Canada, gave a farewell party, Hannah More, Johnson and Boswell being of the company. Dr Johnson was obliged to leave early and apparently departed after wishing his hostess health and happiness. Shortly after a servant whispered to Mrs Brooke that a gentleman was waiting below to speak to her. Running downstairs, the fair novelist found the venerable lexicographer. "Madam," said he ponderously, "I sent for you downstairs that I might kiss you, which I did not choose to do before so much company."

Birds In Winter.

Though birds have a much higher temperature than a man's—man's is 98, while theirs is 107—they suffer cruelly from the winter cold. In a mutton country it is not uncommon to find sheep with dead birds fastened on their backs. The little, cold creatures snuggle in the sheep's wool to get warm, their feet become entangled in the fleece, and they starve to death.

Overlooked.

Visitor—And so you're leaving Paris. Of course you've been to the Louvre? Fair American—Yes: I bought this collaret there. Visitor—Ah, no! I mean the pictures, y' know. Fair American—There, mommer! I said there was a gallery by that name!

We have committed the Golden Rule to memory. Now let us commit it to life.—Markham.

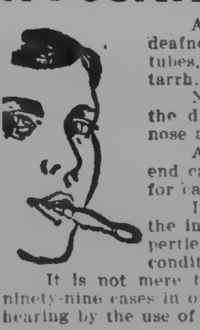
"Convicted?" exclaimed the prisoner in disgust. "Well, I'm not surprised. My lawyer made a fool of himself."

"I tried to represent you faithfully," remarked the lawyer mildly. [illegible]



A Positive Cure for Deafness

A large proportion of all cases of impaired hearing and deafness is due to disease of the middle ear and Eustachian tubes, caused either by acute inflammation or chronic catarrh.

Nearly all these cases can be cured, or the progress of the disease arrested, by inflation of the ears through the nose and Eustachian tubes with medicated air.

A very safe and efficient means of accomplishing this end can be had by the use of Catarrhozone, a positive cure for catarrh in the most chronic form.

It is sure death to the microbic life which maintains the inflamed condition, and also through its healing properties restores the diseased organs to a healthy, normal condition.

It is not mere theory. The result of actual experience proves that ninety-nine cases in one hundred can be cured, and stay cured, of impaired hearing by the use of Catarrhozone.

Catarrhozone Cures

Catarrhozone is a new scientific remedy for all diseases of the nasal and respiratory passages caused by microbic life, and if you are affected with catarrh, asthma, or bronchitis, it is well deserving of your attention.

It never fails to cure any of these affections, because it is sure to reach the seat of the disease. That is why Catarrhozone is so far in advance of treatment by snuffs, washes, douches, etc., which are absolutely useless, because they cannot reach the root of the trouble.

You simply breathe the medicated air, it does the rest—nothing could be simpler. Complete outfit, sufficient for two months' treatment, price $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Torturing, Blinding Headaches Cured

—absolutely cured—by GIN PILLS.

Ninety per cent of the Headaches—that drive women almost mad—are caused by Kidney Trouble. Heavy housework, washing, sweeping,—strain the back and weaken the kidneys.

It is the duty of the kidneys to take uric acid out of the blood. When these organs are inflammed, weakened, uric acid stays in the blood and is carried all over the body. It inflammes the delicate tissues of the brain and spinal cord at the back of the neck, causing excruciating Headaches.

Gin Pills cure these Headaches because they cure the kidneys.

FRIEND OF THE LEPERS

HERO PASSED AWAY WHEN DR. A. C. SMITH DIED.

Man Who Devoted His Life to the Unfortunates on Tracadie Island Discovered a Specific for Disease In Its Earlier Stages — Had to Live Away From His Family for Years —Plague Was Brought by Sailors.

There is reported from Tracadie, New Brunswick, the saddest spot in all Canada, be it bright or be it dull, be there sunshine or be there rain, the death of Dr. A. C. Smith, Government superintendent of leprosy.

There, where the mighty waves of the Atlantic, driven by the winds into the Gulf of St. Lawrence rumble and roar on the beach, and where are confined the outcasts of Canada, Dr. Smith gave up his life to his fellowmen.

There I met him just ten years ago, living apart from his family for fear of contagion, and thinking of nothing but to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunates under his care, and to find, if possible, a specific that would cure those stricken down by the terrible disease.

Modest and unassuming, he was little heard of in the outside world, but the work he did was as difficult, as soul-trying, and as great as that of the celebrated and sainted Father Damien, if not greater, for when he died he had discovered a specific and a method which would cure the terrible disease in the first stages, and that he had cured at least one woman who shortly will be allowed to leave that tomb of the living, the Government lazaretto.

Of rough professional exterior, but of great heart and the kindest of natures, his unfortunate charges worshipped him. Yet even at that time, ten years ago, he never thought that he, apparently rugged and strong as the proverbial bull, would escape entirely unscathed. Not that he really thought he would ever exhibit the disgusting symptoms so common in the lazaretto, but he imagined he would die some time like so many of the devoted nuns who nurse the inmates day after day, wasting away slowly from that intangible disease which has never been properly diagnosed.

And yet he sometimes thought of the horrible alternative, for he told me before parting: "Perhaps some day I may feel it my duty to confine myself within those walls," pointing to the gray stone building, "as a living danger to the community. If I do, you will write me occasionally, won't you?"

I promised, but the dread word never came, and now he is gone, full of years, but little known for the magnificent work he did. He leaves behind him a wife and two children, and, what is more, a complete record of every family in which leprosy ever existed and may occur again, and a system which, aided by the remedies he has so successfully tried, should result in stamping out the dread source forever.

This woman he cured had not inherited the disease, but had caught it from a leprous relative, whose ailment she had hidden. She was in the lazaretto for some six years, and although the doctor was convinced that she was cured last year he decided to keep her under close surveillance another twelve months, to make sure the dreaded symptoms did not return.

The doctor's predecessor died from a wound inflicted by his own scalpel after performing an autopsy on the body of an inmate, in the hope that he also might discover something that would lead to a remedy, and Dr. Smith's successor will indeed have to be a courageous man.

The Province of New Brunswick, a province which a kind Providence has provided with all possible blessings, a province which is a veritable sportsman's paradise, has for years been cursed with the curse of leprosy.

How it came, where it came from, is merely a matter of tradition, and tradition tells, how, some ninety years ago, two unclean sailors from the Levant were cast upon the Gulf shore at Caraquet. The kind-hearted Acadians, not knowing what a terrible thing they took among them, clothed and fed them, but when, during the next summer the sailors went to parts unknown, they left the seeds of the terrible disease behind them. Two young women who washed their clothes, first absorbed the dread germs. They married, and had children, and their children married and multiplied, and then, all of a sudden, the evil, which had lain dormant for years, made itself known with a vengeance, and thrived and scarred and tortured, and will go on thriving and killing till the [illegible]ndants of these unfortunate girls hav[illegible] [illegible]ied out.

Some fifty years ago the Canadian Government began to take steps to crush out the disease, and prevent its spread. At first these efforts, like the medical science of that time, in the matter of strange diseases, were crude, and more or less inhuman, but gradually improvements were made, and at present not only do the unfortunate unclean receive the best of treatment, but the disease is being gradually stamped out. Strange to say, the people of this village of Tracadie, where the leper lazaretto is situated, and the people of the surrounding country, do not seem to mind the disease in the least. Familiarity in this case has bred contempt with a vengeance. It is true they do not go near the lazaretto, or inside of its grounds, unless it is absolutely necessary, but the idea of possible contagion or infection does not seem to enter their mind, and at the same time they are fully aware that through that part of the province there are scores of families which are subject to the evil, yet men and women will marry members of these families, and take their chances. Another thing, which never seems to trouble them, is the possibility of contagion by means of bites from insects. This is one of the greatest difficulties with which physicians interested in the disease have had to contend.

Canadians In Vaudeville In London.

Mr. C. W. McPherson, of Dawson City, Director of Surveys for the Government, passed through Toronto the other day on his way home from Edinburgh, where he filled a noteworthy engagement at one of the vaudeville theatres—for one night only. Mr. McPherson is an old Varsity Glee Club man, and among the Canadian curlers who have been creating such a furore in the Old Country this winter, he was one of the reliable dispensers of song and story and general good fellowship. One of the forms of entertainment offered the curlers in the Scottish capital was a trip en masse to the theatre aforementioned. About half way through the proceedings reference was made to the presence of the Canadians, and the announcement sprung that one of the party would sing "The Maple Leaf." Up went Mr. McPherson, his overcoat thrown over his arm, out to the centre of the stage, and he sang the song through. At the chorus up rose the husky curlers, two front rows of them, and their rendering of the Canadian song was followed by one of the wildest demonstrations of applause the house had ever seen.

MUST HAVE A TROUSSEAU.

An English Maiden Who Lost Her Betrothed by Waiting.

A few years ago in England I had a little maid, aged twenty-nine years, who had been engaged to be married many years. "Are you engaged?" I asked her when she came to seek the situation I had advertised, for if she was shortly to leave me to be married I decided that I would prefer an unengaged maid.

"Yes, madam," she answered respectfully. "I have been engaged eight years." Somehow I never feel afraid of any outcome but a weariness to both parties when I hear of an eight-year engagment, so I took the little maid on. One day I found her crying over the blacking of my walking boots. Inquiring the cause of her distress, she sobbed:

"Oh, madam, I never can save the $350, no matter 'ow 'ard I try!"

"What $350?" I asked.

"The $350 to get married with! I've tried eight years to be economical. I 'ave to 'elp my mother, and I've only $95 in the postoffice savings bank!"

"And why must you have $350?" I asked kindly.

"For clothes and linen, madam," she said.

"It is not necessary," I said. "I can tell you how to buy all you need for $50, and that will leave you $45 to lay aside for use after marriage or on a rainy day."

"No, madam, I 'ope I know what is proper and becoming in a bride!" she said, almost freezingly.

A few months later I found her weeping again. "'E's broke it hoff!" she said. "'E wouldn't wait. 'E's going to marry another girl, and I 'ad five tablecloths ready 'emmed and six pillowcases, all 'emstitched."

It was pathetic, but who could blame the man, now thirty-five years old, who had by that time waited nearly ten years for her to save enough money for her trousseau? He could well have provided all that was needed for their station in life, and he wanted a home—and, besides, the little maid at thirty was looking old and worn with much self-denial and trouble over the saving of the coveted $350.

Musical Accent.

"Now, sir," said the barrister to the musical expert witness, "you say the two melodies are the same, but different. What do you mean by that, sir?"

"I meant the notes were the same, but the accent different."

"Accent! What is musical accent? Can you see it?"

"No."

"Can you feel it?"

"Yes."

"Come, sir! None of this beating about the bush. Tell the court and jury the meaning of what you call accent."

"Accent in music is the same as emphasis in speech. If I were to say, 'You are an ass,' the accent rests on 'ass.' But if I were to say, 'You are an ass,' it rests on 'you.'"

This concluded the cross examination.

Origin of the Menu.

Of the origin of the menu this story is told: Duke Henry of Brunswick when sitting at a sumptuous feast was noticed to glance frequently at a long slip of paper. Questioned by his neighbor, the Count of Montfort, as to the reason of his table studies, he replied that the "master of the kitchen" had drawn up for his and his stomach's benefit a list of all the dishes, just to enable his master to reserve his appetite for the best things to come. The other guests were so well pleased with the intelligent cook's invention that the habit of writing out bills of fare instantly spread in Germany. The dinner whence the custom began is said to have taken place at Regensburg in 1541.

The Butterfly's Eye Spots.

What do the eye spots on butterflies' wings mean? The naturalist, says Mr. Percy Collins, must answer frankly, "I do not know." It is thought that they have some utilitarian application, and they form one of the most intricate of all natural designs. The fact that butterflies have been captured with their eye spots pierced, as if from attack of birds, has been used as an argument in favor of the view that they may be "protective markings," imitating eyes, because birds strike at the eyes of their victims. But this suggestion is hardly regarded as satisfactory. Among butterflies the most striking examples of eye spots are found on the under surface of the wings.

Trials of the Poet.

I'd sing you a song about childhood, life's joyous and garlanded time, but I'm weary of ringing in "wildwood," and there's no other word that will rhyme. I'd warble of bright, sunny fountains, where water and music are blent, but I'd have to lug in a few mountains or my lines wouldn't fit worth a cent. I'd sing of a life on the billows, where the dolphins and flying fish race, but I'd have to say something of willows, which would have nothing to do with the case. I'd sing of the moonbeams that quiver, like gems on the water at night, but I'd have to quote onions and liver to make the verse twitter all right.

MR. PUGSLEY'S DOUBLE.

Major Beattie's Appearance Once Secured Him a Good Night's Sleep.

Hon. William Pugsley has a double in the House of Commons. It is Major Beattie, the genial Conservative member for London. The Minister of Public Works and the major would scarcely pass for twins. About all they have in common is their height and general contour. Mr. Pugsley has a spreading square-built beard and the major has a neatly trimmed pointed goatee. Despite the apparent lack of resemblence, the major has been a number of times taken for Mr. Pugsley. After an experience the major had recently, however, he is not bemoaning his likeness to the New Brunswick Minister.

The major was going home on a Friday night and neglected to order early a berth. He went to the C.P.R. ticket office and inquired for a lower.

"All gone," was the reply.

Another official came running to the rescue.

"Can't you get a berth, Mr. Pugsley?" he inquired.

The major without turning a hair answered in the negative. After a wild five minutes' scurrying around, a lower was produced and, as Mr. Pugsley, the major carried off his sleeping car ticket.

Whenever he is in a group of newspapermen Major Beattie delights to tell a story on himself of the time he went to the front as an officer in the rebellion of 1885. He went, with a number of others by St. Paul, intending to join the troops in Winnipeg.

At St. Paul an enterprising reporter unearthed the major and unconsciously the latter gave an interview. When the evening papers came out the major was astonished to see a startling story on the front page of one of them, double leaded and in heavy type with the following head: "Going to War in a Pullman Car."

The MISSING HAND

A TRUE STORY

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

THROUGH the broken shadows on the verge of the meadow ran the white faced figure of a man, distinct one moment in the moonlight, obscured the next where black masses of foliage thrust athwart the rays. There was something subtly furtive in this headlong flight, alternately blotted and revealed. The man ran loose jointed, as if some strange fear, hanging close upon his heels, weakened him.

He was headed for a gate in the fence beyond which lay a winding path through the patch of woods. As he drew near to the spot his breath was drawn in painful gasps. To another man, who had been watching his approach, the agitation of the runner became apparent as he made the last few feet to the bars. This second man, who had stood unseen beneath the trees, stepped out and hailed the first.

"Ho, Mr. Manners, what's wrong w' ye, running as if the devil himself was behind?"

The person thus addressed staggered at the sudden encounter, leaned against the gate for support, breathing heavily, one hand pressed to his side. He answered brokenly.

"Is it you, Crosby? There's been evil work here. Mr. Lescelles has been murdered."

'Murdered! Where? Who by?'

"I found him in the ditch, half a mile back across the meadow. It's too horrible. I started to get help, but I fear there's little use."

Crosby had climbed the fence and now stood at the side of Manners.

"Did ye see what went with them as did it?" he asked.

"No, there was no one in sight when I came upon the body."

Crosby started at a run back over the course that had been followed by Manners, who also turned and retraced his steps more slowly. Crosby struck the ditch and made his way along its side. He was far ahead of the other, about the centre of the extensive field, when he stopped with a cry. Manners rejoined him presently.

The body of Edmund Lascelles, one of the most considerable landowners in that section, lay fully clothed and squarely in the tiny stream. His head had been cruelly beaten, apparently with a heavy hedge stake, bearing many stains, which had been thrown carelessly to one side. The clothing was somewhat disarranged, and the grass for a circle of ten feet about the right bank was trampled and twisted as by the feet of powerful antagonists in deadly combat. Crosby stooped and laid a hand over the heart, but felt no responsive beat. As he bent close he noticed something that caused him to shift his fingers from the breast to the sleeve of the coat. He lifted the arm and dropped it with an exclamation of horror, turning to his companion.

"His right hand has been cut off at the wrist!" he cried.

Manners was standing at some few paces distance, staring at the body. He nodded at these words, caught suddenly at his throat, swayed a moment and fell heavily in a dead faint.

The Scotland Yard Man.

On the day of the inquest there came from London a short, round faced, nondescript bundle of a man, with a pudgy person and guileless eyes of a small but fairly successful tradesman. He had an interview with the authorities at which he presented credentials establishing his identity with Inspector Blake, of Scotland Yard. He needed the credentials.

Inspector Blake was present at the inquest and heard the story told by Farmer Crosby and George Manners of the finding of the body of Lascelles. At its close he slipped away and took the road to the Lascelles mansion and estate.

Edmund Lascelles had been taken off in his thirty-third year. Member of an old county family, he had been educated at Oxford, and had since lived the life of the country gentleman, drawing a good income from his lands and content to occupy himself with the management of these and other financial interests, his books and his household. He had never married. His one relative was his sister, twelve years his junior, a young woman of high spirit and many attractions. This sister apparently was the only person for whom Lascelles cared to the extent of a civil word, for to her alone he was used to abate a severity of manner that grew from a quarrelsome and selfish nature.

This man had been the architect of his own unpopularity, of which he had erected an imposing structure. He was disliked by all who were forced to have dealings with him, and his position in the social life of the section was no more prominent than the importance of his name actually dictated. He had never courted attention, and when slighted for his sullen and backward behavior retired the more deeply into his own affairs.

These facts concerning the victim of the murder were easily collected by the round faced man who now began his examination into the circumstances surrounding the deed. His informants were chiefly the servants in neighboring houses, whom he quickly brought to the proper mood for his purpose. So pleasant was his conversation, so engaging and affable his manner of making acquaintance that there was none to resist his inquiries, and the first threads of the story were soon in his hands.

John Miles, the gardener of the Lascelles estate, met this extraordinary, ordinary man inspecting the hedge rows at the back of the house and fell an easy prey to a few well placed remarks concerning the horticultural aspects of the grounds that indicated a most discerning and appreciative eye and a kindred soul. Nor was John wholly proof against the suggestion of a mug of ale and a quiet hour in the road tavern with such a sensible and friendly stranger.

The gardener was not a constitutionally suspicious person, and found nothing strange in the gradual turn of the discussion from the aggravating ways of hollyhocks and the perversity of crocuses to the all engrossing topic of the day and neighborhood. In matters concerning the death of his master John took upon himself, however, a pardonable attitude of importance not unmingled with a tendency to dark mystery. The affable stranger was not alarmed by the appearance of these symptoms, but contented himself with ordering two more mugs of ale and the remark that the murder of Mr. Lascelles must have been a sad blow to his sister.

"Ay; that it has been," said John. "And the more so that when she saw him last alive she was feeling none too friendly with him. 'Tis that weighs most upon her, I'll venture."

"Ah," said the round faced man smoothly, "it has been said that they were tenderly devoted to each other."

"So they were, so they were. But it was a matter had come between them of late, and come sharp that same evening, as I have plenty good reason to know."

This was the proper moment, as the round faced man understood it, for the listener to assume an owlish look of amazement, tinged with distinct admiration for the superior wisdom and weighty information hidden under the thickly thatched head of John Miles. Nor was his judgment at fault, for presently the gardener came out with his tale, told in a whisper, with many looks to right and left and the manner of one who has large matters to impart. As indeed the stranger soon had reason to think he had.

Telling the Story.

"It was this way," began Miles. "The young mistress, than whom there is none kinder nor better in England, was promised to George Manners full a year ago. He is a fine, upstanding young man, her equal in things of life, with family, health and fortune, though born in another township, which is not his fault. Now, Squire Lascelles, while a well meaning man enough, had a hot head and a bitter tongue, and he did love Miss Margaret beyond all else. When they came to him with their match in their hands he turned upon them and ordered Mr. Manners from his door and told him he should never have the girl nor see her either. There was none of reason in it, and a hard heart it bespoke, though I say naught against the master.

"Miss Margaret was dull enough for many a day after that, but we down stairs saw her pluck up somewhat of heart as weeks went on, and Mary, the chambermaid, said it was because of the letters, which is like enough."

"I saw George Manners never again until three nights ago, and a black night it was and was to be for the house. He came up the path and Miss Margaret ran to meet him, and there they stood for a time in the garden, the master being away to the town. And then I, who was tending the gardenias or somewhat, heard him raise his voice and say that no man should stand between the parties to an honest love. Miss Margaret hung her head at this, but was not too backward, and finally spoke low to him a bit, and after a time he yielded her some promise, as I judged, and they went back to the house.

"Presently along come the master, and he was in one of his dark moods, as I could see by the light in the windows. He stamped up the steps, and there stood Mr. Manners, that he had ordered off, with Miss Margaret on his arm. And Mr. Manners spoke him fair. He said they were set upon wedding and were resolved that none should stop them and asked his friendship to the union. The master flew in a towering rage and raved against them both so foully that his sister ran within the house.

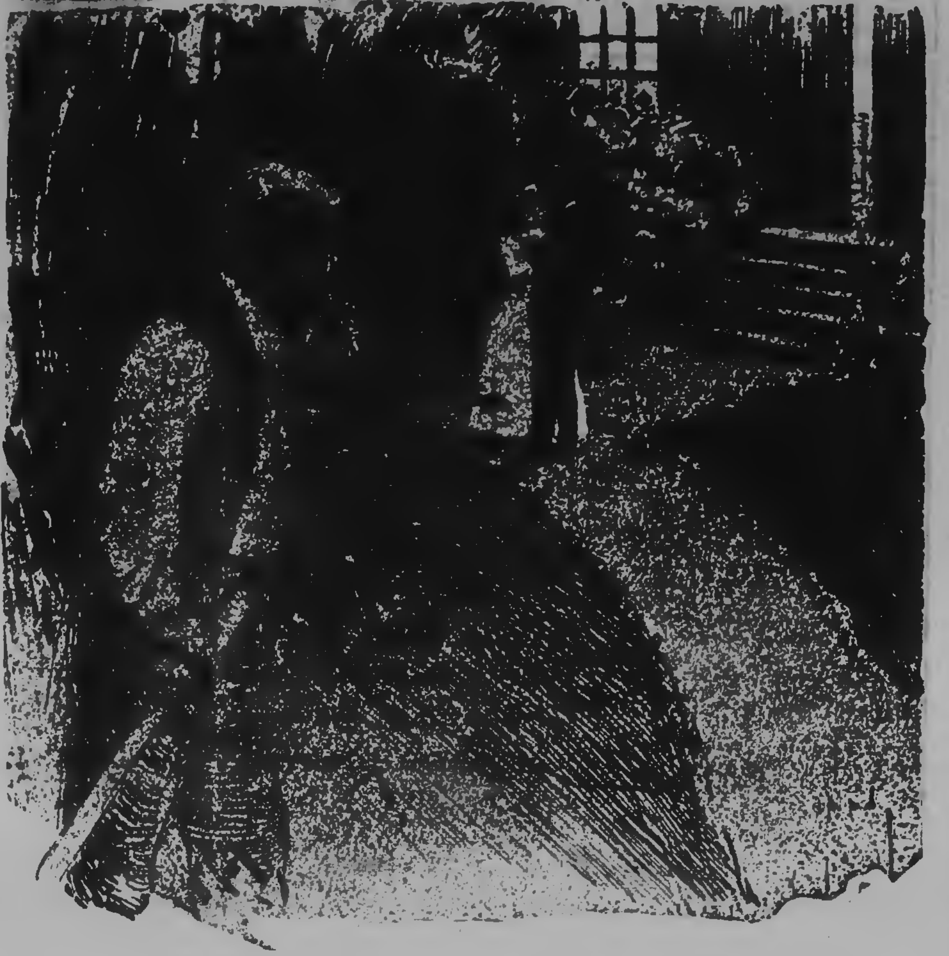
"Thinking she was gone, though indeed she stood inside the door and listened as I was listening from the bushes, young Manners turned boldly upon Mr. Lascelles and lashed him and his stubborn will. Nor he didn't stop at sharp words. Once he raised his fists, but dropped them of a sudden when I thought to see him fall on. He stood a minute saying nought, while Mr. Lascelles, his answer choking in his throat, I thought, only waved him off toward the gate. Then Mr. Manners brought his voice to a smooth edge and offered to shake hands with the master before he left. Mr. Lascelles spat at him.

"'I want none of you nor your handclasps.'

"Mr. Manners laughed, a queer laugh it was, and this is what he said as he went down the steps:—

"'Very well, then, Mr. Lascelles. When I see you again I will not ask for your hand. I will take it!'

"And when they found him dead an hour later his right hand was gone."



THERE THEY STOOD FOR A TIME IN THE GARDEN.

On Sure Ground.

Inspector Blake, with a decided conviction that he had not wasted his afternoon, made off over the fields that evening to visit Crosby the farmer, who was one of the many tenants of the Lascelles estate. He introduced himself and stated his errand bluntly, feeling himself on surer ground with a man who could conceal nothing of his connection with the case from the authorities without grave danger to himself. Crosby was willing enough and answered with great care each question put to him.

He told of having left a neighbor's house but a few minutes before; from the edge of the wood he had seen Manners running toward him. He described the agitation of the young man and his fainting when his attention was called to the fact that a hand had been severed from the body.

"Where do you suppose Mr. Manners was going for help?" asked Blake.

"That's what ha' troubled me," said Crosby. "It was no town way he was headed, that's sure."

He told of a search he had made for the missing hand immediately after finding that it was gone. He had seen no trace of it, and, as Blake knew, all subsequent efforts to discover it had failed.

"Mr. Manners is well built," suggested Blake.

"So I said when first we come to it—the body. 'Twould take a strong man to better Mr. Lascelles,' I says. 'Yes,' said he, 'Mr. Lascelles was a strong man himself.' 'Nearly as strong as you, Mr. Manners,' I says. 'Not quite,' he answers."

Blake was noted in his department for the suspicion with which he scrutinized every timber in the construction of his theories. His first step next day was to examine from every possible side the character and actions of Farmer Crosby, who took such a commanding position in the case. He found that the man was sober, steady and prosperous, regular with his rents, slow to wrath and bearing such a reputation for an even mind in all things that his neighbors were wont to bring their little differences to his arbitration, content to take his untutored justice as their law. He also satisfactorily accounted for every one of Crosby's movements on the night in question and established beyond all doubt that, as the farmer had said, he was at a neighbor's a quarter of a mile away at the moment of the murder.

Having put by these facts with methodical care Blake hastened to the scene of the attack, anxious to go over the ground before such evidence as might be found at the spot should have been removed or effaced. He found it under guard of a constable, who was meantime pursuing the search for the missing hand.

With eyes alert the inspector moved about the place, noting each indentation of the soil, each uprooted tuft of grass, gradually moving inward as he detached foot after foot of the circle from the purpose of his investigation. About two feet from the verge of the ditch, where the soil was damp, he found what he sought. It was the faint but imperfect imprint of a shoe, not, as he could easily determine, the mark of the low pumps or slippers that had been worn by Lascelles when he left the house, but that of a shoe of substantial lines. With a pocket rule he made careful measurements of the impression and set them down.

He whittled to the value of this discovery without loss of time. The mark had not been caused by Crosby, as he easily determined. The constable on guard had allowed no one to confuse the tracks by walking across the spot. And according to Crosby, Manners had not approached within ten feet of the ditch when they returned there together. Then whose shoe had made the imprint?

And herein lay the significance of the answer. A faint outline print of one of the slippers worn by Lascelles lay over the firmer mark made by the shoe. A careful examination of the soil made this point clear, for the ridge of soil raised at the edge of the sole had been pressed down by the slipper. Whoever had worn the shoe had stepped upon the place while Lascelles was still alive, presumably during the struggle.

Weaving His Net.

The inspector had a faculty of acquiring and retaining a vast number of seemingly trivial and irrelevant facts. This practice frequently did duty as some strange gift of divination in the minds of those who followed his work, but was nothing more wonderful than a mental filing system. The proper details now being brought from their pigeonholes informed him that George Manners, detained in the village as a witness at the inquest, had kept the same room in the inn that he had taken the evening of his recent visit to the Lascelles mansion, when the murder had been committed. He also knew that this room was next to his own, and he had a remembrance of a packed and strapped portmanteau, glimpsed through a partly open doorway, that sent him back toward the town in a hurry. In passing up the stairs of the inn he made sure that Manners was at luncheon.

Then this easy going, round faced, slow moving person became possessed suddenly of an agility that would have surprised any but one of his associates. He was up the stairs in a flash, whipping into his room and locking the door behind him. In another breath he had a leg over the window sill and was feeling for toe support below. It was a long reach, but he made it with sure grip, swung to the adjoining sill, pulled himself up and crawled into the room of Manners.

After a first keen survey of the apartment his interest centred upon the portmanteau near the door. He unstrapped and opened it, running through it in haste, but with due attention to the appearance of each garment. The result was unsatisfactory and he opened the closet door. A suit of clothes was hanging in a corner. He snatched this out to the light of the window. Here was accusatory circumstance to satisfy the trailing sense of any detective. Although a rough attempt evidently had been made to sponge out or wash away the stains, there were plentiful traces of blood on both trousers and coat.

Blake afterward took himself to task for failing to act immediately on having acquired this bit of evidence. The fact that he was making a mistake in delaying became plain about an hour later when he returned to the inn with a constable, expecting to place Manners under arrest. The suspect had gone. It was learned that he had left his meal soon after Blake went up stairs, from which the Inspector judged that he had suspected an investigation of his room, had followed, heard the sounds of the search within and had fled.

Blake's swift retrieval of his error proved the truth of this view. Manners had taken a train to a junction, where trace of him was lost. The Inspector put his nose to the trail and overtook the fugitive just as he was about to embark for the Continent. He was brought back and committed for trial.

Two more links in the chain of evidence remained to be fashioned and finished by the expert hand of the round faced man from Scotland Yard. Besides the hedge stake with which Lascelles had been killed the only object found near the body was a large pocket knife, with the blade open and stained. It was evidently with this implement that the murderer had severed the right hand. Blake carried this knife into the adjoining township and spent three days in the vicinity of Manners' home. He returned with a complete identification of the knife as the property of the prisoner, established by affidavits from the dealer who had sold it and two men who had seen it in the possession of the prisoner.

Measuring the Footprints.

Remarkable weight was laid upon the close similarity between the outline of the footprint found by Blake and drawn from his measurements and the form of the shoes worn by the prisoner. Owing to the fact that Blake had not taken a cast of the impression some discussion developed over this point, but the value of the evidence to the prosecution was very great and was not lessened by the attacks directed against it by the defence. Both Blake and the constable could swear that the imprint of the slipper of Mr. Lascelles had been made after the shoe had been pressed into the soil, thus preventing the assertion that Manners had left the mark when he first discovered the body, according to his story.

The case for the prosecution was complete, apparently without a chink that offered a weakness. All doubt of the guilt of the accused was removed from the public mind when the chain of evidence was presented. The parts fitted perfectly. The hypothesis was logical and convincing. The two men had parted in anger after a significant remark by Manners that "next time he would take the hand of Lascelles, not ask for it." Lascelles had gone out almost immediately for an evening walk, not even removing his house coat or slippers. An hour later Manners had been seen running from the body of Lascelles, which lacked a hand. The intermediate occurrences had been solidly built upon circumstances. It was regarded as a most satisfactory instance of the construction of a perfect case from wholly circumstantial evidence.

Miss Lascelles collapsed during the first day of the trial and did not reappear in court after testifying to the conversation between her brother and her lover, which she and the gardener had overheard. Her belief in Manners was dictated by faith, constant only because she was able to close her mind to the overwhelming accumulation of evidence. She remained true to her conception of him, blind to all else.

The jury was out scarcely five minutes, returning with a verdict of guilty. Manners was sentenced, his execution being set for a day about a month later. At the close of the trial Blake returned to London, accompanied by the compliments of the authorities and the consciousness of work well done.

* * * * * * * *

The epilogue has to do with Farmer Crosby.

Through his connection with the case as a witness, as well as by his avocation of rustic philosopher, the matter of the death of Edmund Lascelles reached him closely. It aroused in him the keenest interest and awoke all his really remarkable powers of concentration and analysis. He had followed the development of the convicting evidence with what the Judge himself might have envied, a mind quite free from bias, calm, accurate in deduction and lacking in animus toward any man. When the verdict was announced he heard no questioning voice within and was content that justice had been done. And the approbation of this even tempered, uneducated farmer was a higher compliment than any juror would have been willing to believe.

But there came a day when an uneasy doubt possessed him, sensitive as he was to the part he had played in bringing about the death sentence. He began to feel that something rang false, that something had been overlooked. And in searching for the source of this feeling he became more and more fearful that the blot of a cruel wrong hung above the whole matter, logical and convincing though he was forced to admit the case at each repeated scrutiny. And then, suddenly, he hit upon the trouble.

It was the hand.

Persistent and extraordinary efforts by the officers had failed to reveal the hiding place of the missing member. The ditch had been drained dry, every inch of the field had been raked and prodded to no purpose. Not even a trace or hint of its disposition had been found.

Now Crosby argued in this wise. If Manners were the guilty man he must have disposed of his dreadful trophy. Lascelles had left his house at half-past eight. The spot where he was found was about a quarter of a mile from the mansion. The point where Crosby had met Manners was half a mile beyond that and the meeting had taken place about half-past nine. Still supposing the guilt of Manners, he must have killed Lascelles, run to the woods or some other distant place to hide the hand and then turned off toward the gate. All this must have been within half, possibly three-quarters, of an hour. Such a supposition was not impossible, though it would have necessitated the utmost haste. And meanwhile why the anxiety to hide the hand? Why should he travel such a distance if he wished to bury it? Why bury it at all?

The Missing Hand.

Crosby had reached this point in the debate with himself when he began to see that he had failed to exhaust the possibilities suggested by the immediate facts of the murder. It was within the range of happenings that some one else had waylaid Lascelles before Manners had crossed the meadow, mutiple as were the incidents and bits of circumstance that hung unexplained about such a view. Having taken this positive step, that some one else might be guilty, beyond his former position, questioning whether Manners were rightly convicted, he found a new topic for thought.

Might not the loss of the hand mean robbery? It was known that the only articles of value on Lascelles' person the evening of his murder were a sapphire ring and a diamond ring, which he had worn on his right hand. From this entirely new attitude he began an inquiry of his own. Incidentally he was abroad much of the time, watching and listening for the shadow of a fresh clew.

He had occasion one day to visit the farm of John Powers, a small tenant farmer on the Lascelles estate, whose home was at the other side of the patch of woods. As Crosby talked with Powers upon a matter of produce he walked to the door of the barn and stood with a foot on the threshold, looking within. Casting a casual sidelong glance at the face of his companion in that instant, he caught the twitch of a hidden fear that came and vanished across that sullen countenance. He wondered. Then he took one step within the barn, eying Powers keenly. This time what he saw in the face led him to close the conversation without loss of time and take the path homeward. For in the flash he knew not only that Powers was a man with a secret, but that he was also a man who could bear another secret of the same kind without compunction.

Next day he returned with two constables. They searched the barn. Indications leading to a corner of the flooring, they took it up. Beneath lay the missing right hand of Lascelles.

Powers was subdued after a fight and made full confession. He had met his landlord by accident in the meadow. He was behind with his rent and there had been an argument, conducted on the side of Lascelles with his usual bitterness and intemperance of language. The farmer had snatched up a hedge stake and partly stunned Lascelles, finally conquering him after a struggle and completing his work with the stake.

His first thought had been to leave the country, and he had tried to remove the rings. Failing in this he had taken a knife from the pocket of the dead man and had used it to cut off the hand.

Manners had come upon the body a few minutes later, had tried to raise it, thus staining his clothes, and had noted the loss of the hand. Struck by the significance of this in the light of his remark to Lascelles, by which he had meant no more than that when they met again he hoped to be the other's brother-in-law, he had at first thought of instant flight. Recalling that life might still linger, he had then started for help, but in his excitement had started in a wrong direction, winding up at the gate where Crosby met him.

Too keenly conscious, as many intelligent men have been, of the strength of a possible case against him, he had fainted when Crosby announced the fact that a hand was gone. For the same reason he had made his greatest error, that of attempting to get away when he knew that a detective was in his room. This incident had aroused a certainty of his guilt which even the confession of Powers scarcely sufficed to remove from the public mind.

The pocket knife he had dropped during the discussion with Lascelles, the latter having found and appropriated it a few minutes later. The footprint was that of Powers, who wore a shoe of the same size and similar shape to Manners'. All the circumstances were the outcome either of coincidence or of his own lack of judgment in trying to conceal facts that he feared would incriminate him.

Powers was tried, convicted and executed for the crime. Manners, aware of his obligation to Crosby, was finally pardoned. A few months later he married Margaret Lascelles.

DEATH OF FORMER LOCAL YOUNG MAN

Mr. M. Deyell Passed Away in Winnipeg, Man., on Saturday Evening—Funeral Will be Held Here.

The news of the death of Mervyn Deyell, which occurred in Winnipeg on Saturday evening, came as a great shock to his many relatives and friends here. The deceased was the son of Mr. Robt. Deyell of Otonabee. The late Mr. Deyell left here about two years ago, going West and taking up farming near Frobisher. He spent the past winter with his parents in Otonabee, returning to the West about five weeks ago. He passed away in the Winnipeg Hospital, his death resulting from an attack of peritonitis.

He was a young man, highly esteemed by all who knew him, and his upright character and genial disposition won for him many friends. His parents, three brothers and five sisters, are left to mourn his loss. The brothers are Messrs. Rollie, at home, and Harry and Ward of Frobisher. The sisters are Misses Elsie, Ethel and Mildred, at home, and Mrs. Fred Deyell, of Frobisher, and Mrs. James Chambers of Peterborough.

The remains will be brought to Peterborough for interment. It is expected that the funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. James Chambers, 175 Aylmer street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

SEIZED A NET IN MEAD'S CREEK

Fishery Guardian Made First Capture of the Season Last Night.

One of the local fishery guardians secured the first net of the season last night while making a trip of inspection along the river. H decided to investigate Meads's creek, just below the Grand Trunk bridge, above the locks, and in doing so came across a net that had been placed there by some one anxious to bag a few muscalonge or bass. The inspector of course annexed the net.

Maple Syrup Was Sold On The Market On Saturday at $1 a Gallon

On Saturday maple syrup was purchased on the market at $1.00 a gallon. Its quality is reported by a connoisseur to be excellent and as good as was ever boiled down from maple sap. There was a drop of exactly 50 cents a gallon from a week ago. The general price on Saturday was about $1.15 or $1.20, although several farmers refused to come down lower than $1.40 and as a result did not attract the crowd while the other brands lasted. It was stated in the Examiner of last week that in London the price was averaged at $1.20, and this may have had the effect or have helped to bring about the decreasing of the price. At any rate Peterborough people secured their syrup at a lower price than has been experienced this week.

Disappeared In September And Has Not Been Heard From Since

Chief Roszel received a communication to-day from the Police Department of Philadelphia, asking the local force to be on the look-out for Bonsall Smith, who disappeared from that city on the 17th day of September last and since that date he has not been seen nor heard from. No reason can be given for his mysterious disappearance, and his friends are extremely anxious to learn something of his whereabouts.

He is described as being 43 years of age; 5 feet, 9 inches in height, build medium; weight, 145 to 150 lbs.; hair, black; wore eye-glasses; complexion dark; eyes, hazel or dark brown; black moustache or clean shaven. At the time he left he wore a dark grey or steel coloured summer suit of clothes and a black Derby hat. His jewellery consisted of a gold fob, set with one diamond, gold hunting case watch (initials on same), and a heavy gold double chain with a gold cigar cutter attached (with initials engraved), one solitaire diamond ring, a pair of diamond link cuff buttons, a diamond stud either worn in tie or shirt, and a diamond collar button for front of shirt. All shirt and collar buttons, solid gold.

CORNEY BURNS IS TO BOX TEN ROUNDS WITH UNKNOWN HERE

Peterborough fight fans will be interested in learning that there will be a ten-round bout pulled off here next Monday night in the Auditorium Roller rink that promises to be about the fastest go that has ever been seen here. Corney Burns will be one of the contestants and the other is an unknown man who is said to have a great reputation, but who, for different reasons, is intent on keeping his identity unknown. It is said, however that there will be a suprise in store for followers of the game when he is uncovered next Monday night. The local boy is in fine shape and although he is doing some guessing as to who the unknown is, is not worrying in the least about the outcome.

There will be a preliminary six-round bout between a Toronto and Peterborough boxer.

Lakes That Suppy The Otonabee Are Full Of Water In Conservation

A few months ago the water in Jack's Lake was scarcely six inches in depth, to-day a nine-foot measure would be required to touch bottom, where not very long ago it was not much more than ankle deep. In Stony Lake the water has risen five feet. Last fall and at the beginning of winter it gradually went down until the papers mentioned that its shallowness was a record. It will be remembered that one old resident stated that the water was the lowest he had seen in 34 years.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, in speaking of the present condition of the water system, over which he is superintendent, stated that all the lakes from which the Otonabee gathers its supply are full of water. The condition had never been better from the city's standpoint. It has been optimistically estimated that there has been sufficient water conserved to keep the Otonabee at its normal level or even its present level for one year without any further rain supply. The ice is pretty well out of the lakes and no danger is expected from its action.

All the stop logs north of Peterborough are in place but at the locks here the logs are out in order to maintain as low a level as possible in the Little Lake. It has been learned from the Government Meteorologist in this city that the rain fall during the night was 1½ in. and during the two days was exactly two inches. The gradual swelling of the river in its course through the city has been spoken of recently on the streets, it being the annual spring freshet. An immense volume of water has been poured into the Otonabee and its intermediate tributary sources, and the snow fall has been much heavier than was reported. The city is now well supplied with water for the summer, in fact it is stated to have been seldom better.

PRIZE PROVED TO BE A POLECAT

Two Well Known Local Gentlemen Showed That They Were Not Nature Fakirs.

A good story is being told at the expense of two well known local gentlemen and is worth while repeating here. It appears that the two were walking on the outskirts of the city a few days ago when they came upon the remains of that fragrant animal known in polite circles as a pole cat. Not being nature fakirs and Ernest Seton Thompson's works being as unknown to them as Sanscrit, they failed to recognize the animal, or rather they recognized it wrongly. "It's a squirrel," said one, and the other not anxious to be bluffed, hastened to agree with him. Whereupon the remains were tenderly picked up, and the pair started in search of the nearest taxidermist to have their capture stuffed. Much to their astonishment the taxidermist laughed immoderately at them and they had to wait five minutes before he recovered enough to let them into the secret of the identity of the animal they had so carefully carried

First of a Series of Interesting Discourses by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt Preached Last Evening.

Despite the unfavourable weather there was a fairly large congregation heard the first of a series of five special sermons by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt at St. Luke's church last evening on the subject of "the old faith and the new Philosophy." Last evening's sermon was merely an introduction to a subject which at the present time, has awakened widespread interest and is being much discussed. Dr Langfeldt in his succeeding discourses, will, no doubt, enlighten his hearers on matters about which they now have a vague and uncertain understanding.

WHEAT GROWING AND UNEMPLOYMENT.

The price of wheat is going up, and promises to reach and keep a still higher level. It looks as if the town and city dwellers will have to, in self defense, take to raising their own wheat. This is an indication of the necessity of spreading out population. There is too much of a tendency to congregate in cities and towns—to increase the number of non-producers, so far as food supplies are concerned. It is evident that the United States will soon be unable to more than feed itself. Its great increase of population, especially urban, and the restriction and exhaustion of its wheat growing areas will, before long, lead to importing Canadian wheat in much larger quantities than at present. The United States agriculturists are anxious to get Canadian farms, and the United States at large is anxious to get Canadian wheat. This country has large areas yet suitable for wheat growing. This gives us a position of great advantage. We can control the wheat production of this continent, and in the process build up the industrial and commercial interests of Canada. What we want, to realize upon our possibilities, is population of the right sort. We don't want big cities so much as thickly-settled farm districts. We might with advantage devise some means destroying the lure of the city, with its perpetually attendant congestion and unemployment. We should be able to infuse into the minds of the mass of the unemployed in urban centres, higher ideals than slumming their lives away in semi-starvation. There is a big field here for the social economist. We see the conditions in Peterborough. Farmers are desperately in need of farm help. At the local immigration office and at the Examiner free employment bureau there are scores of farmers leaving their names for farm hands, but there are practically no hands applying for employment. Yet one can, at certain hours of the day, see dozens of men on sunny street corners, idling the hours away, evidently without employment, and evidently preferring to muddle along, snatching at broken meats and eking out a hand-to-mouth half-existence, rather than take employment on the farm and good weges. Unless the general conditions of which the conditions mentioned are but a local manifestation, radical- the unemployed will become harder. ly change in character, times for As population in urban centres grows the relative supply of food stuffs will grow less and prices, according to the law of supply and demand, will advance.

Ten years ago Wm. Crookes, the great scientist, prophesied that in a few years there would not be enough wheat to go 'round. Speaking of his declaration to this effect the Montreal Herald says:

> He figured this fate to overtake us in 1621, and we are already nearly half there. Also,, the price of wheat is getting dangerously close a dollar and a half a bushel. In the interval, the Western Canadian wheat crop has grown to over a hundred million bushels, and our friends the Americans, are producing two hundred million bushels a year more than they did ten years ago. Also, Argentina and Siberia are vastly increasing their acreage.
>
> The idea of Sir William Crookes was that the population of wheat-eating people was increasing faster than the production of wheat, and that as time went on wheat would be lapped, in the race with increasing frequency. Few prophets in the big things of prophecy have seen their predictions so far on the way to being realized.
>
> With wheat at present prices, and staying there, or going higher, a lot of other things of much importance are going to happen. For us in Canada, the influence will be favourable, for we have a large share of what unused wheat land there is left, and putting it into use will mean the addition of millions to the population, tens of millions to the volume of commerce; it will mean the growth of cities, the increase of national responsibility. For those in Europe, whither the wheat goes, it will be different. There are ten or more millions in England alone for whom cheap wheat has meant the chance of subsistence in their present surroundings, and upon whom the higher price will impose the choice between moving and starving, the choice four out of eight millions in Ireland had in the middle of the century, when the potato failed, the choice the Scotch crofters had when abundance coming from the corners of the earth reduced the value of the things they grew. As in these cases, and especially in the first, some will go, to better their condition by sharing the good fortune of the wheat-growing countries, and some will stay and starve. Those who starve, whether actually or relatively, will set in motion, by their struggles of protest, forces which will greatly disturb political conditions. The same will be the experience in other European countries, where there are impoverished populations, and in Europe poverty is poverty, not mere privation as we know it in this country. It would be gratifying if we could believe that wisdom embodied in statesmanship will make the best of a new and disagreeable situation; but there is more likelihood of rash resort to desperate and unavailing measures.

Ontario has 175,000 farmers, yet out of the employed in a total population of 2,200,000 these comparatively few farmers cannot get enough help to run their farms.

THE NEW BRUNSWICK COMMISSION.

The Conservative Opposition in the Dominion Parliament declare their intention of bringing up the matter of the New Brunswick Central Railway with the endeavour to advance the dead-set they are making upon Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works. Mr. Foster has hinted that he will bring the matter up early this week. The London Advertiser gives the following succient explanation of this second extra-parliamentary slander:

> One of the first acts of the Hazen Government in New Brunswick was to appoint a commission to investigate affairs of the Central Railway, the object being to fish for evidence which might support certain accusations levelled during the provincial election campaign against two former Prime Ministers, Hon. Messrs Tweedle and Pugsley. Mr. Tweedle is now lieutenant-governor of the province. Mr. Pugsley is minister of public works in the Dominion Government.
>
> As the "investigation" proceeded, it was not difficult to see that Mr. H. A. Powell, whom Mr. Hazen had appointed counsel to the commission, knew what was required of him. Instead of acting as the legal adviser of an impartial tribunal he appears to have constituted himself chief witness and chief leader for the prosecution. His address before the commission were practically a repetition of campaign speeches, and in the report of the commission, which has been presented to the Legislature, his fine hand is plainly to be seen.
>
> When the late Liberal Government of New Brunswick proposed to lease the Central Railway on terms which would have given the province a reasonable interest return on all the money expended, the Opposition, led by Mr. Hazen, objected to the proposal and insisted that the Government must strengthen the road and continue it in operation at the public expense in order to protect the province's investment. The result was that the Legislature authorized the guaranteeing of the company's bonds by the province to the extent of a quarter of a million dollars for the extension of the railway, and it is out of subsequent transactions in connection with this guarantee that the accusations against Messrs. Tweedle and Hazen arose.
>
> Not one of the witnesses who testified before the commission in any way connected Mr. Pugsley with any improper act in connection with the railway or its affairs. It is true the report, in its conclusions, casts reflections upon the prominent men who were connected with the road, but no attempt is made to fortify the insinuations against any of them by reference to the evidence. As the St. John Telegraph says, the report is characterized by plenty of inference and strained interpretation and a lack of real evidence. It overshoots the mark and defeats the purpose aimed at by leaping from weak premises to unjusifiable conclusions. The worst that can truthfully be said is that there has been carelessness and lack of system in connection with the road, but nothing to warrant the commissioners' assumption of a carefully-formed plot to rob the country. The commissioners find fault with the arrangement which made two members of the former ministry ex-officio directors of the railway, but surely when a quarter of a million of public money was being spent on the road the Government was entitled to some representation on the directorate.
>
> The sum of $134,000, the report says, was misappropriated and diverted from its proper and legitimate channel, but the commissioners do not say who got it, nor does the evidence bear out the charge of misappropriation. Mr. Pugsley himself gives an unqualified denial to all charges, and says that the whole matter would have been cleared up if he had been allowed to complete his testimony.
>
> Mr. Pugsley has been most unfairly used by the Opposition press, which, without knowledge of the facts, has raised a scandal cry and tried to hound him out of the Government before he was given an opportunity to defend himself.

Mr. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, is taking a holiday. He is leaving Parliament in the stress of the fight put up by his party to "purify politics." If the campaign is a bona fide one he should be in his place leading the cohorts.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is something abnormal about Hon. Geo. E. Foster. He actually spoke at a Conservative ward meeting in Toronto without abusing the "Grits."

Andrew Carnegie says that "to die rich is to die disgraced." Is it not then, asks the cynic, a disgrace to become rich, as he became rich, at the expense of the toilers who really created the wealth he seized upon?

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MARLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering."—Mrs. GEORGE JORDY, Box 40, Marlton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

NAMES MEMBERS OF COMMISSION

New Managers of Road Are Named by Hon. G. P. Graham.

TO TEST THEM FOR A YEAR

Minister of Railways Says That Proposed Leasing of Line Will Not Be Discussed Until New Regime Has Proven a Failure—Mr. Brodeur Discusses Coming Trip to England Concerning the Navy.

Montreal, April 19.—At a banquet here by the Reform Club Saturday evening to Hon. George Graham, Minister of Railways, the announcement was made that David Pottinger and E. Tiffin of the Intercolonial Railway, Deputy Minister Butler of the Department of Railways, Frank P. Brady, divisional superintendent of the C.P.R., had been appointed a commission to run the Government railway system.

The Minister of Railways said he would not discuss the advisability of leasing the I.C.R. at the present juncture as he was determined to give the newly-appointed commission a fair trial for a year at least.

Regarding the Dreadnought question, Hon. L. R. Brodeur stated that he and Sir Fred Borden were going to England to interview the Imperial naval authorities as to the best means to adopt to bring about the protection of the Canadian coasts.

The Imperial authorities did not want the Canadian Ministry to build Dreadnoughts.

Matthew J. Butler, Deputy Minister and chief engineer of the Department of Railways, who is expected to be chairman of the commission, was born at Deseronto, Ont., and educated at Toronto University. He started his railway career in 1879 as transitman on the Pembroke extension of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway. Later he was chief engineer on the construction of the Thousand Islands Railway and the Napanee, Tamworth & Quebec Railway. In 1889 he was appointed assistant chief engineer of the Atchison, Topeka & Sante Fe. Returning to Canada in 1891 he became chief engineer of the Bay of Quinte Railway & Navigation Co., and in 1903 was appointed chief engineer of the Locomotive & Machine Co. of Montreal and designed and built their shops here. In 1904 he was appointed assistant chief engineer to the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, and a year later succeeded Collingwood Schreiber as Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals. Mr. Butler also studied law, and in 1897 was admitted to practice at the Illinois Bar.

David Pottinger is also a Canadian, born in 1843 at Pictou, N.S. He started railway work in 1863 as a clerk for the Nova Scotia Railway at Halifax, becoming cashier of the road. In 1872 he became station master of the Intercolonial at Halifax, two years later being promoted to general storekeeper, in 1879 he was chief superintendant and in 1892 was promoted to be general manager of Government railways.

E. Tiffin was born at Hamilton, Ont., 1849, and started railway work with the old Great Western in 1863. He worked his way up and in 1871-5 was made station master at Brantford. Later he joined the Credit Valley Railway as general freight agent. Later he went to the States as southwestern agent of the Commercial Express fast freight line at St. Louis, Mo. Returning to Canada in 1886, he joined the C.P.R. as general freight agent of the Atlantic division. In 1901 he was appointed traffic manager of the Intercolonial and in 1903 became general traffic manager of the Government railways.

E. P. Brady was born in 1852, and educated at Newbury, Vt., served some time with the Passumpsic and other American railways. In 1888 he entered the service of the Canadian Pacific as train master, being later promoted assistant superintendent of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, and in the following year was promoted as general superintendent of the Lake Superior division at North Bay. He resigned from the service last year, since which time he has not been connected with any railway.

Teamsters Strike In New York.

New York, April 19.—Disorder occurred here Saturday in connection with the strike which members of the International Association of Teamsters have instituted against certain trucking firms, the men demanding higher wages and recognition of their organizations. An attack was made on a wagon belonging to Jackson Bros., 220 of whose men have struck, but the attacking party was frightened off by two shots from a revolver fired in the air by a special policeman. Cornelius Shea, who looked after the interests of the striking teamsters in Chicago two years ago, has assumed charge of the teamsters affairs here.

Killed Man With Philtre.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 19.—After having surrendered to the local police authorities, Miss Emma Baker, aged 23 years, of North East, Pa., will be examined some time to-day for the purpose of determining her sanity. While it is believed the woman will be found to be mentally unbalanced, advices received yesterday from North East partially confirm her story.

Miss Baker, who is of refined appearance, is under the impression that she caused the death of William Anderson of North East, ten months ago, by administering a philtre to him in a cup of coffee.

BEAUHARNOIS TRAGEDY.

Clues Have Been Found In Murder of Domina Pelletier.

Beauharnois, Que., April 19.—The murder of Domina Pelletier, farmer, of St. Etienne de Beauharnois, on Tuesday is losing some of its mystery. The murderer is still at liberty, but there are indications that an important arrest will be made shortly.

The additional data of the tragedy is as follows:

Domina Pelletier was shot with a charge (possibly a couple of charges) from a No. 12 shotgun loaded with No. 2 shot.

His widow swore at the inquest that he was on bad terms with her people.

On the morning of the murder two men were seen with a shotgun in the neighborhood of the Pelletier farm.

Albini Hebert, a neighbor, declares that he distinctly heard two shots, fired in quick succession, and three wads were found.

About three weeks ago Aime Houle, brother of Mrs. Pelletier, visited Grumont's store in Beauharnois and bought twenty-five No. 12 cartridges. Of course this fact does not necessarily have to do with the murder.

On Wednesday morning Aime Houle took the 10.45 train from Beauharnois to Valleyfield en route for Ogdensburg to join the boat "Bennington." He was noticed at the station to be rather excited, although he is usually calm.

On Thursday morning Wm. Houle, another brother, also left Beauharnois with the avowed intention of going to the lumber camps.

A gun has been found in the Houle home.

FLIRTATION COSTS LIFE.

Ontario Man Is Killed by Lake Captain In Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., April 19.—Geo. Birrell McKinnon, aged 21 years, of Mooretown, Lambton County, Ont., was shot by Captain Ralph Pringle, aged 32, of St. Clair, in the latter city shortly after midnight yesterday morning. McKinnon died yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, after remaining in an unconscious condition almost until the last.

According to eye-witnesses, Captain Pringle entered the saloon known as the "Hole in the Wall," and seeing McKinnon for the first time in three years declared that the town was not big enough for both of them. The two men entered a side room and an instant later three shots were fired and McKinnon fell to the floor unconscious.

Captain Pringle told the officers when brought to the jail here that McKinnon had flirted with his wife three years ago and that he had vowed to get even. Neither of the men were intoxicated at the time.

Captain Pringle is a well-known lake captain. This year he expected to sail the steamer William A. Young.

McKinnon had sailed for two years as a first mate. Last season he was on the steamer Rosemount, of Montreal, and this year he had agreed to sail on the steamer Adriatic.

Before breathing his last at the hospital McKinnon said that Pringle had no reason for shooting him. He would have said more, but he was too weak. He died before he could be revived.

MAY BE A MURDER.

Hamilton Man Is Stabbed—Brother-In-Law Arrested.

Hamilton, April 19.—What may turn out to be murder occurred yesterday morning at 10 o'clock when Ross Wallace, 22 East Hunter street, was stabbed over the heart. The doctors at the city hospital said last night that his chances of recovery were doubtful. Thomas Simpson, 152 South John street, his brother-in-law, has been locked up on the charge of doing the stabbing. The affair took place at Wallace's home. There were no witnesses, but from what the police have been able to learn, Wallace's wife was absent in Toronto on Saturday night, and Simpson's wife remained out late, not coming home until midnight. She says she could not get in, and went to Wallace's house to spend the rest of the night. Simpson went to Wallace's twice early yesterday morning, but could not find his wife. About 10 o'clock, he located her at Wallace's and as he came in she ran out. A short time after the tenants who live under Wallace's room heard a noise, and went to his room to find that Wallace had been stabbed. Simpson was under the influence of drink when arrested and the police say that he told them that he was glad he put his brother-in-law out of the way.

Yesterday afternoon the magistrate, crown attorney and Inspector McMahon went to the hospital and took Wallace's ante-mortem statement, in which he accused Simpson of stabbing him. The statement was made in the presence of the prisoner, who vigorously denied his guilt.

Woman Drowns In Creek.

Elora, April 19.—During a temporary fit of insanity, Mrs. Geo. Edler of the Township of Pilkington, near Bethel, wandered from her home on Saturday. A futile search for her was made until yesterday, when it was found that she had been drowned in a creek which runs through the Edler farm. She leaves a husband and family of five, the youngest being about ten years of age.

Killed on a Freight Train.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., April 19.—The dead body of a man was taken off the top of a freight train on the New York Central Railroad at this city early yesterday morning, and from papers found on the man's clothing, he is believed to have been a brother of Harris Aber of Montreal. He is thought to have been stealing a ride and struck a bridge south of the city.

Joan of Arc Now a Saint.

Rome, April 19.—In the presence of 30,000 French pilgrims practically all the bishops of France, many cardinals and descendants of the new martyr, the solemn ceremonies of the beatification of Joan of Arc were carried out in St Peters yesterday.

According to the rule, the Pope does not attend beatifications in person, but as a mark of special devotion, he assisted yesterday afternoon at a solemn benediction, which replaced the ceremony of the veneration of relics, none existing in this case.

Wild Riot at Football Match.

Glasgow, April 19.—Sixty thousand spectators who attended a football match here Saturday joined in a wild riot because a second attempt to play off a championship tie resulted in a draw and the teams refused to continue.

The crowd rushed on to the field and tore up the goal posts. They also attacked the pavilion and set fire to the pay boxes and barricades.

A large force of mounted and foot police attempted to quell the disturbance and a savage fight resulted, in which all available missiles were used. Forty injured persons were taken to the hospital. When the firemen attempted to quell the flames the crowd cut their hose.

The football authorities intend to withhold the championship cup as a punishment for all concerned.

Liners May Drop Queenstown.

London, April 19.—There seems some likelihood of Queenstown being dropped as a port of call by the steamers Mauretania and Lusitania on their westward journeys. The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce has taken up with energy a proposal to deliver the New York mail on the fifth day from Liverpool, and Postmaster-General Buxton has promised to see what can be done. The Irish opposition to this proposal doubtless will be keen.

Exhume Body to Collect Expenses.

London, April 19.—A row has developed over the refusal of Mrs. Nuthins, wife of ex-Ald. Nuthins, to pay the funeral expenses of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Bayley, who died in the Aged People's Home on Sept. 27 of last year. John Ferguson, undertaker, stated at the meeting of the finance committee of the City Council that if the money is not paid at once, he will exhume the body and send it to a medical school.

To Electrify the G.T.P.

Fredericton, N.B., April 19.—The Legislature on Saturday discussed at great length the idea of taking steps to compel, if possible, the Grand Trunk Pacific to run all trains through New Brunswick by means of electricity, and thus prevent forest fires.

The G.T.P. passes through a densely wooded section of the province and timber there is very valuable.

Premier Hazen and several others spoke strongly on the matter and a resolution was adopted with that end in view.

Stevedore's Fall to Death.

Halifax, N.S., April 19.—Within view of hundreds of people, James Travers, a stevedore, fell to his death on board the Allan Liner Hesperian at Deepwater last night. He was engaged in moving a hatch in the rear of the steamer when he lost his balance and fell down the hold, 60 feet, alighting on his head.

Merge Lloyd and Hamburg Line.

New York, April 19.—A special Berlin cable to The Times says: Reports are current that proposals will be brought forward at the annual shareholders' meeting of the North German Lloyd at Bremen on April 24, with a view to effecting the amalgamation of that line with the Hamburg-American Line.

Gander Broke Girl's Neck.

Windsor, April 19.—Hearing his baby girl scream out in the yard while he was eating supper, William Winkelman of Monroe, Mich., rushed out and found the child lying motionless on the ground, with a large gander standing nearby. Investigation showed the child's neck was broken, and it is believed the gander had beaten the little one with its wings so severely as to cause the injury.

All Children Liars.

Amherst, Mass., April 19.—Prof. Earl Barnes of Philadelphia said on Saturday that children under the age of twelve years are liars and naturally vengeful as a class.

Prof. Barnes was speaking on "moral education in the public schools" before a high school teachers' institute and educational conference at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Fearing Failure, Ends Life.

New York, April 19.—Alex. N. Jacob, aged 48, said to be one of the best known and until recently most successful cigar salesman in the country, shot and killed himself in a room at the Park Avenue Hotel, because he feared he had "lost his grip" as a salesman.

Shoots Five, Two Fatally.

Geneva, N.Y., April 19—Ricco Mandazzi shot and killed his wife and her sister, Mrs. Serafina Defelica, at 8 o'clock Saturday night, and fired a bullet through the head of the latter's husband. He also shot and slightly wounded a man and woman whom he passed in leaving the premises. Jealousy is said to have been his motive.

London Artesian Wells.

London, Ont., April 19.—The tenth well of the artesian scheme was tested yesterday, and it showed a flow of between 215,000 and 230,000 gallons per day.

The success of this well is very significant, as it demonstrates that the supply of good spring water is practically inexhaustible.

Hon. Adam Beck spent Saturday morning at the wells, and made a test of five of them. Pumping along at an easy rate, they showed an actual flow of over 1,000,000 gallons per day.

Womanly Health

How to Preserve It

The good looks of every woman depend largely upon the proper working of her stomach and other internal organs.

If your stomach is strong and digestion is good, the cheeks flush with color, eyes dance and sparkle, breath will be pure, and your hair smooth and glossy.

Let indigestion creep in, and the skin becomes sallow and rough, pimples break out, eyes get dark circles, ill-breath is all too apparent.

Get the stomach toned up with Dr Hamilton's Pills—they increase the secretion of the gastric juices, promote vigorous digestion, increase the supply of blood, and thereby invigorate the entire system.

'ROUND THE STORES.

Flowers from the West-End Greenhouses are now on sale at Messrs. White and Gillespie's grocery store. A fresh display may be seen every day, and orders for any special flowers not in stock, can be procured when desired. The patrons of this store take delight in the new and attractive department, as flowers can be ordered and sent home along with their grocery orders.

"Richard Hall & Sons' Dress Goods," said a Peterborough dealer, "have one very good thing to recommend them. They have an unlimited choice." The lady might also have added—at moderate price, considering quality. If, too, a lady is to be distinctively dressed her costume must be made to order. That is another privilege in Hall's. Every detail can be carried out under the jurisdiction of personal taste. Of course, the most important detail is the material itself, for which Hall's are so well noted.

How easy it is to get up a petition of any kind—for any object. Some haven't any too much moral courage, and a lot of people haven't the nerve to say "No." A man hates to refuse to sign his name and down it goes. The petition, as we have come to know it, is a good deal of a fraud, and storekeepers especially, can never be sure when a trial of their moral courage will be asked. The women folks have really more of this courage than the men. A young lady scarcely out of short dresses will say "No" and never wink an eye.

The north-end is a great place for bakers, and good bakers, too. The newest aspirants for local patronage, are Messrs. Gilgore & MacKay, who have leased the old Mann bakery, corner of Edinburgh and George Sts. Both members of the firm are particular men and are likely to build up a good business.

Usually, the change of season, disturbs some people's eyes, and they begin to think something must be wrong with the sight. The Tate-Taylor Co., 412 George street, will soon tell you if you need glasses, either from strain or any other disturbance. Their equipment is among the best and the firm aim to bring their optical business to a high standard of efficiency.

If you are going to wall paper your house you'll get a royal welcome at C. B. Routley's. He is at your service early and late, and prides himself in showing the new "Gems" in wall and ceiling decorations. Visitors will find thousands of rolls of papers to select from and the patterns to suit all tastes.

Maple syrup is in good demand these days, and the grocery stores are selling a first-class quality at a moderate figure. E. F. Mason & Co., take especial pains to see that their syrup is pure and unadulterated within the meaning of the Government Adulteration Act. They are offering a pure sample which they sell at 30c a quart or $1.20 per gallon.

A "housecleaning sale" which promises unusual chances to save money is announced by The Turnbull Co. Limited. Judging from the full-page advertisement which has appeared this sale will bring together an almost unlimited collection of the most needed household necessities for the home. Turnbull's takes second place to no store for maintaining a reputation for worthy and desirable house furnishings. This sale begins Wednesday, when wide-awake buyers will be sure to find opportunities to sweep savings of dimes and dollars into their pockets.

"Kep the coat buttoned most of the time for the first week you wear it," was the practical hint handed out by a salesman in Lang & Maher's on Saturday afternoon. It certainly will surprise you fellows how much better your clothes will retain their fit and how much longer they will last if you are careful about such little details. All garments require a week to drape and adjust themselves to your figure. Another good hint is, to start buttoning your coat from the bottom and button upwards, not downwards, as most men do.

The "Daylight" clothiers have quite a business boom on just now. It looks like an unusual benefit to men and boys to be able to get such chances as are offered right at the beginning of the season.

Last Round-Up Of Buffalo Will Take Place In Montana

Dominion Government Purchases the Last Remaining Denizens of the Prairie, Some 300 in Number---Will be Transported to Wainwright.

Edmonton, Alta., April 19.—W. S. Elliott, of Butte, Mont., who is visiting here, has returned from an extensive trip through the northern part of Montana, where the remaining 300 head of the Buffalo purchased from E. Pablo by the Dominion Government are roaming the prairies. Mr. Elliott is not as optimistic regarding the capture of the monarch of the plains as is Mr. Pablo, the late owner of the herd, and Howard Douglas, superintendent of parks and forest reserves.

In the course of a few days an army of cowboys, under the personal supervision of Mr. Pablo will commence the last general round-up of the shaggy beasts. The country in which the animals are located is a series of mountains and foot-hills, dotted thickly with chapperal and sage brush. Once the buffalo are located, they will be driven into a large "V" shaped corral, and held there until all are within the enclosure. In the course of time it is hoped that they will be gotten into a small enclosure, and then singly they will be driven into a loading chute, at the bottom of which is the heavy cage in which they will be transported over the hills to the railway station, 35 miles distant. The ponderous waggons are constructed of heavy oak timber, resembling railway ties, and each without its load of freight weighs in the neighborhood of 2,500 pounds, and will need six horses to pull it between the corral and the railway station. At Ravalli the animals will be loaded into special cars on the Northern Pacific railroad, and will start on the long railway journey. The special train will be made up of at least 35 specially constructed cars, each divided into separate compartments, and strongly reinforced to prevent any possibility of escape."

From Ravalli the train will proceed to Lethbridge, where the train will be laid over for a couple of hours to allow of the feeding the animals, which will be removed from their cages. From Lethbridge the train will go over the C. P. R. to Regina, where it will be transferred to the Canadian Northern, thence to Saskatoon, where the last change is made to the G. T. P., on which the train will pass to Wainwright. At Wainwright the animals will be reloaded into a chute 100 feet wide and 28 feet high, and one and a half miles long, extending from the town to Battle River Park, which embraces some 110,000 acres. When this, the last shipment from the States, has been delivered, counting the calves, it is estimated that Canada will be possessor of at least 900 buffalo.

CHEESE FACTORIES ARE PREPARING

Looking Forward to a Good Summer and are Adding New Equipment.

The cheese factories are concluding their arrangements to begin operations for the summer. Ald. Gillespie, of White & Gillespie, who handle a particular line of dairy supplies, states that the factories, in practically every instance that has come to his attention, are being better equipped than ever. Many of the appliances are being replaced with new ones, while entirely new fixtures are being added in many cases. It will not be long now until the factories are opening, and the first meeting of the Cheese Board will be the third Wednesday in May. The farmers are looking forward to a good summer, although some say that owing to the fact that the cattle are not as numerous as last year, the milk supply will not be up to the usual flow. However, those who "know" are not expecting any decrease, and if the weather conditions are favourable, the season should be a good one.

IMMIGRANT TRAIN ARRIVED HERE

Passed Through Early This Morning on C. P. R.—Four Got Off at Peterborough.

An immigrants' train passed the city about two o'clock this morning, four of them, a man and a woman and two young fellows, getting off at Peterborough. They arrived at Montreal on Saturday on the "Empress of Britain." They were all fine healthy-looking English people, and no doubt will make fine Canadian citizens.

The meeting of the shareholders and associate members of The Peterborough Golf and Country Club has been postponed till the evening of Saturday, April 24th at 8 o'clock in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. 2d-91

FARM HELPERS WANT HIGH WAGES

Not Many of Them Were Engaged on Saturday.

The number of applicants for farm work was larger than usual on Saturday last at the immigration office. For some reason or other the farmers were not as largely represented as formerly. Those who were seeking work held out for wages averaging about $24 a month, and the farmers, considering it a sort of hold-up, refused many who were trying to secure that wage. Not a few of the men were inexperienced, yet they wanted "good money." The farm helpers are receiving from $15 to $25 a month, and good men are getting $30. As was remarked to-day, the man who can take his place on the farm can demand good wages, but the inexperienced are fortunate if they are taken on at $15.00.

Consult Us Now

READY? If you are liable to need Home Furnishings or Wall Paper this spring you will do well to consult us before you decide. Do not jump at conclusions haphazard and take for granted that because a wall paper has blue in it, or red, that it will go with a rug that you think has the same shades in the colour scheme. Buy your Paper and Home Furnishings where there is easy access to each and a thorough comparison is made possible. These two departments are on the same floor (third) and both stocks are the pride of the store. In buying Wall Paper we try to select stock that will blend both in colour and pattern scheme with our draperies and floor coverings. Isn't this a consideration? "An Honest Man" The Subject Of Inspiring Address By Mr. C. R. Drum In Opera House

Secretary of the Religious Department of the Y. M. C. A. Spoke to a Large and Representative Audience Yesterday.

A GRAND ADDRESS.

Mr. C. R. Drum, the international secretary of the Y. M. C. A., has a particularly vital and convincing way of delivering his messake when he speaks. What he says is clutching and tenacious. He impresses his audience as a man seriously stating his convictions and also conveys the all-important impression that those convictions have immovable foundations, or in other words, mean the truth.

Yesterday afternoon he spoke to a very large audience of men at the Grand Opera House and his address was an appealing and impressive one. His subject, "An Honest Man," offered a wider and more original scope than the title would suggest and the speaker, after discussing some of man's earthly obligations, showed that the largest debt owed was to the Heavenly Father and it was one that all mankind should strive the hardest to fulfil.

Mr. Drum used many interesting illustrations and anecdotes to prove the consistency of his arguments and is particularly happy and effective in this regard.

Most of the incidents he related had a touching human interest in them but some were of a pithy and amusing nature. All of them were particularly applicable and had a direct bearing on the different phases of the topic under discussion.

The seating capacity of the ground floor was taken up and quite a number assembled in the balcony. Mr. Drum was given an attentive hearing and the audience was greatly interested in the splendid way in which he dealt with his subject.

The meeting opened shortly after 4 o'clock by the singing of two hymns and these were followed by prayer offered by Mr. J. C. Shook.

The Orpheus Quartette, consisting of Messrs. Cole, Lillie, Miller, and Thornton then sang 'Sweet Peace' in a pleasing manner.

Mr. V. Eastwood, who occupied the chair, made a few preliminary remarks and also introduced the speaker.

An Honest Man.

Someone has said that an honest man is the noblest gift of God, said Mr. Drum, in beginning his address, "and I believe he is right."

What was an honest man He was one who would pay his obligations or being unable to meet them, would make an extreme effort to do so. No honest man would occupy a $5 seat at a theatre, while his grocer, to whom he owed a bill, occupied a thirty-five-cent seat in the gallery.

But there was sometimes more than that. Were we not too ready to condemn others without first investigating circumstances fully. We owed every man the benfit of the doubt. We owed every man a pull up and not a push down. The poisoned fangs of the adder, sunk deep into the flesh didnt' do as much harm as the slanderous tongue.

A Man's Duty to His Family.

Out of loving hearts we needed to reach down and help the other man who was in need. Were we doing this? The speaker admonished men to be kind, thoughtful and considerate to their families and wives. The wives had troubles and perplexities peculiar to their own sex, which the men knew little about. If they had boys in their homes and he congratulated those who had, the boys should be treated with kindness and given helpful suggestions by their fathers. And the man owed it to his family to live a clean, pure, helpful and noble life.

The speaker told of the great curse of strong drink and warned young men to keep away from it.

But the drink evil wasn't the worst evil that affected our families to-day. There was another evil which was eating at the very vitals of our national strength. Little will be said about it, altogether too much levity about the it was one of terrible significance.

"You owe your family the correct position on divine questions. There's altogether too much lecity about the church, about the minister, about God our Heavenly Father."

If your souls were immortal, these matters were too important to be trifled with. Because we don't know all about the Scriptures and some of the questions could nit be answered, it was an absurd attitude to take to say that we could disbelieve the Scriptures from beginning to end.

There were many mysteries about things material. The speaker called attention to the electric lights that illuminated the theatre. The lights were there, but who could define electricity.

The intellect was not the only method of arriving at proper conclusions in connection with divine truth. We should assume the same scientific attitude toward divine questions as we do toward the questions of the ordinary everyday life. The critics of the Bible, as a rule, know very little about it.

The Greatest Debt

"Men, you know I'm right, don't you? It's in your heart. Why do you try to crush it out?" persisted the speaker.

Did we not honestly owe God our Heavenly Father something, or should we pay all our other obligations and leave Him out. Did we call that honesty.

We owe Him our worship. St. Luke said unto those who gave precedence of their own works that they were those who justified themselves before men, but God knew their hearts.

The Christian was the man who had confessed himself a sinner and still believed that he was a sinner, God had instituted the wonderful plan of salvation and should unbelievers say to God they had a little plan of their own which they thought would work just as well as the plan which had cost the Heavenly Father so much. We owed God our love, but too often paid Him ingratitude. Some one had said that ingratitude was the basest of all crimes.

Jesus Christ went through the very fires of hell to save the souls of men and yet here were some who would be ashamed to call themselves Christians. The speaker wanted his listeners to repent of that black sin of ingratitude, which was charged up against them.

Christ went through the awful trial of the crucifixion for us.

"Had you thanked Him for it?" was asked. "If you have not thanked Him for it you have committed the greatest sin."

The speaker, in vivid terms, referred to the crucifixion of Christ. "He did it for you. Have you thanked Him for it?"

Christ stands at the right hand of God interceding for us, and is interested in everyone who gives his heart to Him.

Mr. Drum asked every church member and non-church member who wished to say he wanted to thank God for what He had done for him to stand up. Everybody in the house stood up at this request, and the speaker congratulated his hearers.

Special cards which were distributed were filled in in answer to certain questions on them by those who desired to answer them in profession of their faith or honest doubts. The cards were collected for future action. An offering was taken up, and the response was a generous one.

Several young men, in answer to Mr. Drum's solicitations, came up on the stage as an expression of their acceptance of the truth and their desire to work in its interests.

The meeting was closed by prayer.

Interesting Address Before The Ladies' Literary Society Miss Tangney The Speaker

Miss Eva Tangney was the essayist on Friday evening at the regular meeting of The Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S., and she chose as her subject "Opportunity." She defined it as a favourable time, or place, for learning, or saying, or doing a thing, and divided her subject into two parts: Opportunity in the moral, or higher sense of the word, and opportunity in its material sense.

Occasions of becoming and doing good are always with us, and wherever we be there is opportunity of turning to gold the dust of daily happenings. It is true that few can utter words of wisdom, but opportunity to speak kind words is offered, our city, our work, the people who love us, and those who hate us, what is all this but opportunity. Whatever can help us to think and love, whatever can give us strength and patience, whatever can make us humble and serviceable, though it be a trifle light as air is opportunity. Even the [illegible] are opportunities inviting us to look that we may see and know, to listen that we may hear and understand. As life is of inestimable value, no occasion by which it may be improved can be small. There is place and room for all, but we lack faith, hope, earnestness; we lack aim, and purpose. Let a person but have an aim and opportunities to attain that end shall start forth like buds at the kiss of Spring. The important thing is to pursue it with perseverance. Success is but a command to attempt still higher things, and failure but an exhortation to make [illegible] attempts.

"[illegible] is to be made of opportunity [illegible] on the person to whom [illegible]. They may adore, or they may [illegible], they may love or they may [illegible], they may get understanding [illegible] themselves in [illegible] [illegible] 'Nothing,' [illegible] St. Bernard, [illegible] me [illegible] but I sustain I [illegible] with me, and never am [illegible] but by my own fault."

How [illegible] our daily intercourse with humanity, do we allow [illegible] to slip by, unheeded, [illegible] in looking backward through years that have gone by, do not lost opportunities rise before us; but the past is irrecoverable, and therefore we must do what we can here and now. The wise heed no voice that bids them lose heart. This brings us to the material sense of opportunity.

We live in a golden age, where, as it were, opportunity knocks at our doors, looks in at our windows, shoulders us as we pass along the street, and suggests to us new chances for useful life. The fact of the matter is that opportunities are so near to us that we fail to appreciate them in the proper manner, and thus let slip by days that can never be recalled. "Man," says Matthews, "is to a great extent the child of opportunity." It was saying of Disraeli that the secret of success in life is for a person to be ready for the occasion when it comes.

The writer brightened her essay with numerous anecdotes of famous men, who owed their success in life to their appreciation of opportunity. She told the story of Ole Bull, the famous Norwegian violinist, Scullion boy, who is known to the sculptor world as Canova; of John Grant and Herbert Vreeland. We must often make our opportunity, as Lincoln made his in the log cabin in the wilderness, as the shepherd boy Ferguson, made his, when he calculated the distance of the stars with a handful of beads on a string, as George Stephensen made his, when he mastered the rules of mathematics with a bit of chalk on the sides of the coal waggons in the mines. We must make ours as the deaf and blind Helen Keller made hers, or as every one must, who would accomplish anything worth the effort.

During the evening Miss Nora Coughlin presided and presented a splendid musical programme. The next meeting will be held on April 30th, and will be the last meeting of the year.

WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY

Why Many People Never Need a Doctor.

You have a natural laxative in your body. Why, then, should you use a false purgative to move the bowels?

Bile is nature's laxative. It is bile—and bile alone—which moves the bowels as they should be moved. The liver is the store-house for the bile. The liver pours forth the bile into the bowels, which stimulates them to move, and thus causes the waste matter to pass from the body.

Constipation is a disease, OF the bowels, but CAUSED by the liver. When the bowels do not move regularly and naturally, it is because the liver is not giving up enough bile. And the only possible way to cure Constipation, is to cure the liver.

Calomel, cascara, salts, senna, common pills and sweet lozengers and all the other purgatives do not act on the liver at all. They merely irritate and inflame the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Constipation because they act on the liver. The fruit principles stimulate the liver to secrete and give up enough bile to move the bowels, while the tonics and antiseptics tone up and invigorate the muscles. "Fruit-a-tives" are the only medicine ever discovered that will cure Constipation, Billousness and all other troubles due to a Torpid or Disordered Liver. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

PATTEN DENIES CORNERING WHEAT

Patten Declares He Has Not Cornered the Product.

STRUGGLE WILL BE SEVERE

Contest Over Situation Is Between Adherents of Secretary Wilson's Crop Reports and Those of Bull Leaders—Removal of Duty on Wheat Is Contemplated But Patten Says He Welcomes It.

Chicago, April 19.—The wheat market is expected to furnish the feature news of the week, so far as America is concerned.

The non-speculative consumer is assured by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson that there is sufficient wheat in the country at normal prices to supply the demand until the new crop is marketed, and that present prices are artificial. On the other hand, Jas. A. Patten, head of the bull pool in Chicago, insists that the present prices are naturally fixed by the law of supply and demand.

Flour men and bakers are anxious, and if prices continue to soar this week a somewhat general increase in prices, through the States at any rate, or a cutting down of the size of the loaf of bread, is predicted.

Saturday, Mr. Patten personally left the market to its fate, which fate, from the view of the Patten crowd, improved considerably, as prices advanced over a cent in May and July options, Mr. Patten paid his respects to Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, declaring that the latter's estimate of available supplies is a joke, and lectured reporters who, he alleges, have been more entertaining than accurate in their stories.

As to talk of removing the tariff on wheat as a slap at manipulators, Mr. Patten was for it.

"I am in favor of removing it, right now, because we will have to do it inside of ten years at any rate. It would not affect the price of wheat a penny, for the markets of the world are on a parity right now. Take off the duty on corn, oats and live stock, too, for it will not be long before we have to import them. I have said this before and "Jim" Hill has been preaching it to the farmers along his railroads for the last three or four years.

"As to Mr. Wilson, he is absolutely incorrect. There was not 143,000,000 bushels on farms on March 1. It was nearer 100,000,000 bushels. My information is better than his. But don't take it from me; go to any big trader who pays his money for accurate information on which to risk his capital. They say I have a corner in wheat. I have not. The wheat I have would not feed the world for one day."

The we[illegible]ve history is due to the practical passing of the so-called "May deal" and the active engagement of bulls and bears all along the line concerning the proper price of July contracts for wheat.

From this time on the price of May may fluctuate erratically, but it is stated that there will be little trading in it. The bears admit that Patten won in that struggle and that he is arbiter of the price. However, few settlements of this delivery, it is said, remain to be made. The price during the week ranged between 125 3-8 and 128 7-8, and closed Saturday at 128 1-8. July wheat, which went to 114 3-8, under tremendous pressure on Thursday, closed Saturday within a shade of the best price of the week, at 118 3-8.

Whether this price is too high or too low cannot, of course, be known until the time for delivery on contracts. Both Secretary Wilson and Mr. Patten have remarked that "time will tell," and "time" in the present instance means two months and a half from the present. That the fight between opposing interests will be one of the most exciting in the history of the Board of Trade, no one doubts. In the aggregate, it will be waged between those who believe in the accuracy of the Government reports and those who pin their faith to the Patten view.

AWFUL CARNAGE IN THE ORIENT

Reports From Adana Tell of Barbarous Slaughter.

GOVERNMENT HARD AT WORK

Armenian Victims of Moslems Will Number a Thousand Including American Missionaries Maurer and Rogers—Thousands of Refugees Are In Need Now of Food and Shelter at the Missions.

Beirut, Syria, April 19.—A terrible uprising has occurred in Adana. Street fighting has been going on for three days and at least one thousand persons have been killed.

The city has been practically destroyed by fire.

American missionaries named Rogers and Maurer, the latter from Hadpi, are dead.

All the other Americans are safe.

The British vice-consul, Major Daughty-Wylie, was shot through the arm.

At Tarsus there was less loss of life. The Armenian quarter was destroyed. Four thousand refugees are housed in the American mission.

The need of relief is great, for shortly the fugitives will be on the verge of starvation.

Conditions in the Vilayet of Alexandretta are most serious.

Constantinople, April 19.—Turkey is aflame on both sides of the Bosphorous.

According to the latest reports, the anti-Christian feeling in Asia Minor is spreading to such widely-separated cities as Beirut and Erzerouin. The Musselman's are persecuting Christians without discrimination — but their hatred is directed principally against the Armenians looting and burning their homes and putting them to the sword. The Turkish Government has said it is taking every possible measure to maintain order, but still it is doubtful if this outburst of racial passion can be subdued at once.

THE SULTAN.

The situation in Asia Minor is quite distinct from the political turmoil that has invaded European Turkey. The former is racial and religious and bears a strong resemblance to the appalling Armenian massacres of ten years ago. The latt[illegible] outcome of Turkish efforts at popular constitutional government.

The Young Turkey party, controlled by the committee of union and progress, has been practically driven to cover by the strong movement against it, as first manifested among the troops at Constantinople. But the Young Turks claim to have the support of a large proportion of the army, particularly the Third Army Corps, and declare that during the coming week they will take steps to maintain Parliament and punish the rebels.

Significant developments for the next seven days may be expected to arise from the general concentration of troops on Constantinople. Without orders from the Ministry of War, indeed without orders from their superior officers, Turkish troops in large numbers are moving in the direction of the capital from Saloniki, Adrianople and other points in European Turkey. The various battalions and regiments fraternize as they meet, and the forthcoming week will disclose what is the read purpose of this remarkable advance.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Government will probably accept the waterways treaty with the United States Senate amendment.

Nearly two hundred cases of tinned meat from Chicago were seized and destroyed by the food inspector at Montreal.

A lot of damage was done at Niagara-on-the-Lake and the lower reaches of the Niagara river by ice and high water.

Mr. F. D. Monk, M.P., accepted the Conservative leadership for Quebec at a banquet given him by the Lafontaine Club of Montreal.

James A. Patten and his followers, of Chicago, have made a profit of nearly five million dollars as a result of the rise in the price of wheat.

THREE DROWN IN SKIFF.

First Boating Disaster of Season Occurs at Gananoque.

Gananoque, April 19.—As a result of the capsizing of a skiff Mr. and Mrs. R. Robbins and J. M. Taylor, popular young couple of this town, were drowned in the River St. Lawrence Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Robbins was 23 years of age, and his wife only 17 years, while Taylor was a youth of 18.

The bodies of Mrs. Robbins and Taylor were recovered about four o'clock yesterday afternoon in 20 feet of water, several miles from the shore of Clayton, N.Y., which is nine miles from here.

The coroner of Jefferson County, N.Y., viewed the bodies and granted permission for their removal to Gananoque. They arrived here in a launch about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and were taken to the morgue.

The first notification of a tragedy was received here late Saturday afternoon, when word came from Clayton, N.Y., that a skiff had been found opposite the summer home of May Irwin, three miles from Clayton. Description revealed that it was a skiff that had left Gananoque at 1.10 o'clock Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Robbins and Taylor.

A man named Pelow, working on Club Island, heard a call for help and saw an overturned skiff with two persons clinging to it. He started to the rescue in a skiff, and when he looked again only the youth, Taylor, was to be seen. When the rescuer was only a few feet away, Taylor released his hold and sank, not coming again to the surface. Pelow dropped an anchor to mark the spot and then returned to summon aid.

CITY FATHERS UNSEATED.

Montreal Aldermen Disqualified by Judgment of Court.

Montreal, April 19.—Seven leading members of the City Council disqualified and the finance committee wiped out of official existence, is the result of a judgment given Saturday in the Court of Review by Judges Martineau and Monette.

Some months ago Mayor Payette and the deputy clerk, R. Beausette, went on a journey to Paris. Miss Payette and Mrs. Beausette being of the party. Before they started the City Council voted $1,500 for the mayor's expenses, and when he and the deputy returned they presented a further account, amounting to $4,000, the finance committee authorizing the payment of the same.

A man named Laurin, who was, of course, a prete nom, took action against Ald. L. A. Lapointe, chairman, Lavallee, Sadler, Guay, Robinson, J. B. A. Martin and Alex. Fraser, asking that they be disqualified and that they be compelled to return the $4,000 to the city treasury, from which it had been unlawfully taken for the European jaunt.

The case was argued before Justice Charbonneau, who dismissed it, with costs, but the plaintiff went to the Court of Review with a greater amount of luck. Judgment was rendered disqualifying the aldermen mentioned above and condemning them at the same time to pay back the amount they had got from the civic treasury. Judge Bruneau dissented, but the finding of the court created a perfect whirlwind of excitement at the Court House and City Hall.

Canada to the Fore.

Paris, April 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The annual report of the British Chamber of Commerce calls attention to the extent whereto the trade of Canada has been hampered during the past year prior to the ratification of the Franco-Canadian treaty, to which great importance is attached, as showing that the Dominion is coming into the forefront of the battle for the world's trade.

U.S. Official Suicides.

Paris, April 19.—William E. Bainbridge, a special agent of the United States Treasury Department, who has been attached to the consulate here, committed suicide yesterday by shooting. It is believed he was temporarily insane. Bainbridge was second secretary of the Legation at Pekin eight years ago.

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS
Millions of leaflets are being circulated among the people of the Empire, informing the masses how to guard against Tuberculosis, of which 100,000 Germans die every year. The time is fast approaching when this disease will be treated like diphtheria and smallpox—the patient being isolated and removed from contact with others.
Meantime it is to be hoped the masses will learn the all-important lesson of guarding against coughs and chest colds, from which tuberculosis always springs. When your throat tickles, your chest feels tight and sore, when you sneeze and feel cold shivers up your back — that should be your warning.
Nerviline Will Assist
The following treatment is known to be very efficient: Give the chest and throat a vigorous hand-rubbing with Nerviline, and take twenty drops of Nerviline in hot, sweetened water. If there is any hoarseness or cough, gargle well with Nerviline and put a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the chest. By following this advice you can keep clear of colds, pneumonia, bronchitis, and preserve uniform good health. This is worth cutting out and preserving.

HOAGLAND SHOWS HIS OLD-TIME FORM IN HANDICAP WALKING MATCH IN OSWEGO LAST WEEK

The Oswego Palladium gives the following account of a race in which Peterborough people will be interested:—

The ten hour heel and toe contest — two and one half hours a night for four nights—started last night before a good sized crowd at the Armoury, indicating the general interest taken in the race. There were seven men to appear on the track when the gong sounded the start and until the close the race was exciting and spectacular enthusiasm entertained. The starters were Hoagland, Brown, West, Fenton, Blake, Howell, Adel. The latter caused a lot of merriment by his peculiar gait when walking. Hoagland thought at one time that he had nothing to do but to step lively and pass him at will. Adel has the reputation of being a plodder and last night he showed that he is there with the sprint. Twice Hoagland tackled him and each time Adel was able to hold his own. By to-night, his friends declare, he will have limbered up and will make some of the walkers hustle to keep their place in line.

Hoagland gave all men half a mile start when Starter and Referee William Shaufty, of New York, sent the field away. Hoagland was held back until the others had completed a half mile and then he was turned loose in the bunch. His old sprint and smoothness of action was there as pronounced as it was twenty-five years ago. His hair is a little thinner on top, but the old man looked like a youngster as he flew around the track, cutting down lap after lap on the leaders. West was the first to take the lead, and was followed by Blake, with Brown third. Both West and Brown are Auburn walkers and good ones.

During the sixth mile there was a pretty entertainment put up by Brown and West, who walked shoulder to shoulder for almost the entire mile. It was a great burst of speed and started the handclapping. In the seventh mile Fenton and Hoagland were the performers, the latter having to try hard several times to pass Fenton in his race to make up time. At the end of the ninth mile Hoagland had picked up his handicap on Blake, Howell and Adel, and secured the handicap on Fenton, the first lap in the tenth mile.

Brown finished the tenth mile in one hour and twenty-five minutes, an average of 8 1-2 minutes for each mile. West covered his first ten miles two minutes after Brown, and Hoagland third in 1.29.

RUNNING OUT OF DOORS.

For development of grace of figure and movement perhaps no exercise is better than running. The ancient Greeks ran; it was part of their system of physical training. Who were finer specimens of symmetry than they were? The active tribes of the American Indian, who have been runners for untold years, in comparison with the average white man are much superior in physical form. Running is a more violent form of exercise than walking, and should be taken with some degree of caution. It would be a serious mistake for a person without any training to try and run a fast mile. But with proper training it is wonderful how one can improve at this special line of outdoor exercise. I have known men over thirty years of age who took up running as an exercise, who could not run a quarter of a mile at first, who in a few weeks were able to go three and five miles at a good fast clip.

Running is usually divided into three classes—short, middle, and long distance events. To become a good sprinter there are three things that must be mastered—to start quickly, take a long stride, and to take them rapidly. A ready mind is a strong factor in making a man a successful starter. Many a "sprint" has been won by the ability of an athlete to concentrate his mind and at the crack of the pistol to bound away from the start. The crouch start is the best one to use, for an athlete is less likely to make a false start than where he uses the standing start. The thumbs and middle fingers are placed on the scratch, leaving the width of the shoulders between the hands. Holes are made for the feet as near to the scratch as the athlete finds practicable. This distance will vary for the first, a front foot, from six to eight inches, and for the rear foot from fifteen to twenty-five inches, according to the proportional length of legs and back. The idea is to have all fours on the ground and to be braced strongly for the spring; but the higher the body the better, for it will take strength, and what is more important perhaps, less time, to shoot it into the proper position for running. At the word "set" the athlete braces strongly on his spikes and swings slowly forward until he feels the centre of gravity nearly above the scratch. The first stride throws the body forward, and by the second or third stride the athlete is in the normal position for running. A series of short dashes, from ten to twenty yards, should be a part of evrey day's exercise. The ability to start quickly can only be acquired by constant practice.

For long distance running a man must have good lungs, strong legs, and a healthy stomach. The lungs should not be large, but must be sound. The intercostal muscles should be well developed to give that expansiveness and pliability of chest which furnish the runner air. Breathing exercise will develop these qualities. For the legs, the exercises rising on toes and heels, and squatting all the way down, develop the muscles rapidly. The stomach is often a weak spot, getting over heated when both wind and legs are in fine condition. Lying on the floor and raising feet, sitting up, rocking, twisting and bending exercise are the best to strengthen it muscularly.

A good plan to follow in training is to devote one day to fast quick work, short dashes with the object of developing speed, then on alternate days run a longer distance to develop endurance and a good stride.

Run with the head well up, chest thrown forward and nostrils open. Let the hands, clenched on corks, accompany slightly the movement of the legs, strike the legs well out in front, straightening as much as possible the joints, that the toe may strike the ground at the farthest possible point. Run on the toes or ball of foot; this gives more spring and elasticity to the muscles and minimizes the jar of the entire system. Do not wiggle the body. Let the legs do the work, save all the extra power to put into them.

An athlete should strengthen his weak parts, and this is best done by the free hand or light dumbbell exercises. A man should enter the contest feeling elastic, buoyant, strong, vigorous, clear headed and courageous. He is then in good condition. An athlete should feel like working. He should not work so hard that he loses his "snap." A moderate, a small amount of work every day will put a man in better shape than a great deal taken once or twice a week.

An athlete's diet should consist of plain, wholesome food, well cooked. Meat builds up the muscles but does not usually furnish energy. Sugar and fats furnish energy, but do not build up muscle; a mixed diet, avoiding tobacco and liquors, should be the rule. If a man is too fat, and exercises do not reduce his weight as they should, he can get down rapidly by decreasing his supply of liquids, at the same time doing regular work that will make him perspire.—D. M. Barton, in "Outdoor Canada."

SIMPSON FORCED TO QUIT WITH A BAD KNEE AND SWEDE WON RACE

Misfortune seems to have marked Fred Simpson as her own. A few weeks ago when he had to go up against Alf. Shrubb, the Indian was fit as could be when he signed for the race but the week before was seized with a cold that made it painful as well as nearly impossible to run, and the result was that he was badly beaten by the little Britisher. Now after beating Fred Appleby handily his knee went back on him as a result of running in the cold, and he had to quit at 16 miles in his race with Svanberg yesterday, the first time that the Indian has ever quit in a race. He hung on gamely as long as he could lift his feet, but the pain was too much for him and he was forced to leave the track. As in the case of the race with Shrubb, it was impossible to have the contest postponed and so, practically as a cripple as he was, he hobbled into the race and did the best he could under the circumstances.

A New York despatch says of the race:—

New York, April 18.—In a match race at the full Marathon distance, 26 miles 385 yards, which was run to-day at Celtic Park, Long Island city, Johnny Svanberg, of Sweden, scored a hollow victory, covering the course in 2 hours, 41 minutes, and 44 2-5 seconds. His opponent, Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, quit after running 16 miles. He was suffering from a stiff right knee as a result of a cold which he caught while racing against Fred Appleby in a twenty mile match some days ago. Svanberg's time is 53 4-5 seconds behind that made by the Frenchman, Henri St. Yves, in the Marathon Derby at the Polo Grounds here two weeks ago. St. Yves ran over a rain sodden field, while Svanberg had a good cinder track to-day, so that the Frenchman's performance was by far the better.

LEAGUE MEETING IS POSTPONED

The Intermediate City Baseball League's Annual Meeting To-morrow Night.

The annual meeting of the Intermediate Baseball League, which was to have been held this evening, has been postponed until to-morrow owing to the marchout of the regiment preventing some of the representatives from being present. It will be held in the Y. M. C. A. and all the teams intending to enter are requested to have their representatives present. The prospects for the league this summer are bright in spite of the fact that a senior league has been formed. It will give a chance to the younger players who were not playing last year. It is very necessary as the season is wearing around and it will not be long before the opening games are scheduled.

VICTORIA HARRIERS HAD A CROSS COUNTRY

All Wishing to Become Members Should Attend To-morrow Night.

This will be continued every Saturday, and as the time goes on it is expected that the membership will grow correspondingly, and the turnouts will be large. All those wishing to join the club are asked to be at the Park st. Baptist Sunday School on Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

DOINGS IN BIG LEAGUES

Boston is leading the National League to-day and have yet to have a defeat registered against them, being the only team in the League with a clean sheet. They took Brooklyn into camp on Saturday in easy fashion by 5 runs to 1, although each side got nine hits. Mattern heaved them at the plate for Boston, while the Brooklynites sent in Pastorius. It made the third straight win for Boston.

The Cubs lost Saturday and Sunday, making three defeats in a row for the world's champions. On Saturday St. Louis annexed one game from them despite the fact that Reulbach was sent in against them. The Cardinals lit into the peerless Eddie for seven hits and bunched them too, while Rhoades held the hard hitting Cubs down to three safeties, the result being that St. Louis won by 4 to 1.

On Sunday the Cubs dropped a twelve innings game by 1 to 0 to the Pittsburg Pirates, in the best game of the season so far. It was marked by fast fielding on both sides and runs were cut off several times by spectacular work in the field. Browne worked for Chicago and was touched up for ten hits, while the Cubs were collecting eight off Camnitz. Abstein the former Providence first sacker scored the only run of the game getting a single in the twelfth and scoring on a sacrifice and Tinker's fumble, Chicago's only error of the game.

Cincinnati took Pittsburg's measure on Saturday in rather a loose game by eight runs to five. In all five pitchers were used. Garger and Casper working for the Reds, while the Pirates had Maddox, Leeves and Frock on the slab.

On Sunday the Reds won again slipping one over on St. Louis, before the biggest crowd that ever saw a ball game in Cincinnati. St. Louis sent Lush in to pitch and he was wild and hit hard. Moore, who replaced him after the fourth, was unhittable. Campbell worked for the Reds and although wild, was saved by good support. Cincinnati won 5 to 2.

The American

Detroit has yet to lose a game in the American, winning on Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday they beat Cleveland 6 to 5 with Willett out pitching Dusty, Rhoades and Joss. Neither team fielded brilliantly while the hitting was hard. On Saturday the Tigers won again from the Naps in a brilliant game in which both Wright for Cleveland and Mullin for Detroit, did grand work. Moriarity won the game for the Tigers by stealing home in the 5th with two out. The score was 3 to 2 in favour of Detroit.

The Chicago White Socks beat St Louis 3 to 1 on Saturday. The Comiskeyites landed on Rube Waddell for ten hits and played errorless ball while Smith held St. Louis to four hits.

Boston beat Washington 6 to 1, getting twelve hits off Pitchers Gray and Hughes. Walter and Arrelanes pitched for the winners and were master of the situation all the way. The Senators had four errors.

In the National Saturday, New York beat the Phillies by 4 to 1. Rube Marquard, the $11,000 beauty, pitching grand ball, holding the Quakers to three hits.

In the American Saturday Philadelphia beat the Highlanders 6 to 4 in a loose game in which the Phillies made seven and the New Yorks five errors.

The Torontos won an exhibition game from Trenton Saturday by 3 to 0. Moffitt and Kelley holding the State Leaguers to five scattered hits.

BASEBALL

Dubbie Shea, with the Athletics in the Midland League last season, has been signed to do the catching for the Goold, Shapley & Muir team of Brantford, and will leave Peterborough for the Telephone City this week. Dubbie is a prime favourite in Brantford as in Peterborough, and will have no trouble in making good there.

It looks as if Peterborough would have to be contented with City League ball this season, as present indications do not point to any probability of a team in the Midland League. In the first place there is no Midland League at present, and in the second a Peterborough team would have some difficulty in getting a franchise if there was a league. It looks very much as if Port Hope, Cobourg, Bowmanville and Oshawa intend to form a league of their own down along the front and freeze Peterborough and Lindsay out as they did two years ago. It will be remembered that they had to get Peterborough into the league in the middle of the season to keep the bottom from falling out of the organization, and they may find that they will run into something similar this year. The T. A. S. would put a team in the Midland League if at all possible, and are waiting developments.

There is no reason in the world why Peterborough should not have a strong senior City League, however, this season, and the prospects before such an organization are very bright. It is proposed to play double headers at Riverside Park every Saturday afternoon. All the teams are on the still hunt for players, and the roster of the teams is being rapidly completed, and in the meanwhile the players are anxiously waiting for a chance to get into the game.

More teams than ever will be found in the Intermediate City League this season, despite the fact that the Strathcona's last year's champions are withdrawing to enter the Senior Series. Several new teams will be found in the running and an interesting season is expected.

BOWLING

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Bowling League at the P.B.C. Alleys to-night at 8 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the league for the season. All members of the executive are asked to be on hand sharp at 8 o'clock.

ILLNESS OF REV. MR. POGUE CALLS FOR PHYSICAL REST

The Energetic Pastor of St. Paul's Church Suffers From Acute Rheumatism.

The congregation of St. Paul's Church was visibly affected yesterday morning, when the announcement was made by Sheriff Hall that their pastor, Rev. Robt. Pogue, was unable to take the services through illness. By the instructions of his medical adviser, Mr. Pogue, who has been suffering from an acute form of rheumatism for a week or two past, has been compelled to abandon his work for the present.

The pulpit was occupied yesterday morning by Sheriff Hall, who conducted the services in a very acceptable manner; and in the evening Mr. C. R. Drum, the International Y.M.C.A. Secretary, delivered a powerful address to a large congregation.

The Session of St. Paul's Church have been fortunate in again securing the services of Rev. Dr. Talling, of Toronto, as locum tenens for the pastor. On a former occasion Rev. Dr. Talling made a decidedly favourable impression on this congregation by his spiritual and scholarly sermons.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Furnished by J. N. Barber.—

New York, April 19.—The bull interests took the aggressive this morning and put stocks up sharply all around. Union Pacific and Reading were in the lead with advances of over two points and they were closely followed by the other active issues. London sent over higher prices and commission houses had a large number of buying orders over Sunday, and these all helped to bull the market. The various pools were busy as nailers marking up their specialties, chief among which were Nat. Lead, Rock Island, Con. Gas and Denver. About noon when it was announced that there would be no decision on the Hepburn bill to-day, the market took on new strength, although much disappointment was expressed that the decision was not handed down one way or the other.

Chicago, April 19.—Lower Liverpool cables caused wheat to open a cent lower, but the bulls supported the market at the lower level, and forced prices upward again. There was no new feature. It's the same old Patten market. Corn was strong, May advancing to above 71, and oats were higher in sympathy.

Liverpool close: Wheat 1 3-8d. to 1 1-2d. lower; corn unchanged to 1-4d. higher.

RUNNING.

New York, April 18.—Henry St. Yves of France, who won the Marathon Derby at the Polo Grounds two weeks ago, won a fifteen mile race from Patrick White, of Dublin, Ireland, at the Clifton race track, near Passaic, N.J., to-day.

White, after leading on sufferance for the first mile in 5.27, had to fall behind the Frenchman, who gained a lap on him in the fourth mile. At ten miles St. Yves was two laps to the good and White dropped out at ten and a half miles, saying his ankle, which he had sprained in his race against Maloney, had gone back on him. St. Yves finished out the full fifteen miles in 1.27.06 4-5. The track was chiefly composed of soft dirt and clay.

Toronto, April 17.—In a telegram received from Pat Powers, the man who controls the big Marathon races in New York, he promised that the entry of the winner of the Canadian Derby to be run at Hanlan's Point on May 1st, will be accepted for the next event in which the big men of the world will take part. Canadians have always figured well up in any long distance race, which they have entered, and as Longboat is now suffering with a sore heel it was felt that some new man should be put in to represent the Dominion. When all the Canadian professionals meet at the Island, it should settle who deserves the honour, so Mr. F. H. Elmore, Secretary of the race, communicated with the New York promoter. The following reply was received yesterday afternoon:—"Yes, will be pleased to accept winner of the Canadian Marathon of May 1st for our next big race in New York."

DAVIN AS A CAMPAIGNER.

How Portrait of a Nun Used to Help Brilliant Irishman.

Here is a story about the late Nicholas Flood Davin, the brilliant orator and journalist who came to such a tragic end. No one in this country ever knew exactly what the religious faith of "N.F.D." was. Years ago he wrote for The Week a series of dialogues in the Platonic style on the subject of religion, in which it would be impossible to discover that he had any religious convictions at all. This, however, was after he entered politics and it was with this entry that this anecdote is concerned.

It was the custom of Sir John A. Macdonald, as it is still that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, where his own province of Quebec is concerned, to seek out and find constituencies for men of journalistic and oratorical talent. And shortly after Davin's arrival in Canada from England, where he had been war correspondent of The London Standard during the Franco-Prussian catastrophe, Sir John secured for him a nomination in one of the old group of constituencies in the Hamilton district. In the riding, as then constituted, there were many Roman Catholics, and as a complement thereto an equally ardent Protestant community. Davin did not declare his faith, if he had any, but the handling of the Roman Catholic vote was in the hands of an expert named Madigan. The latter took the candidate on a house-to-house canvass among those of his faith.

Mr. Davin, a man of exquisite courtesy, would arrive with Madigan at a farm house and engage the family in conversation and at the proper moment Madigan would produce a portrait of a saintly nun and whisper to the lady of the household that it was Mr. Davin's sister.

"Why, Mr. Davin, we did not know you were a Catholic," was the usual ejaculation.

"My dear madame," he would respond, "I fear I am not a good Catholic, but she,"—and he would look at the portrait which he had never seen until Madigan took it on the campaign—"she was as saintly a woman as I have ever seen."

Peter Ryan's Little Joke.

Peter Ryan is easily one of Toronto's most prominent citizens, and, as such, he is often sought out by reporters when the newspapers want opinions of leading men of the town on important happenings which lend themselves to interesting comment.

The most recent cause for consulting this big grey man of hearty ways was the announcement of several important particulars of Uncle Sam's proposed tariff changes. Canada, of course, is deeply interested in the tariff manipulations of her big neighbor, and so a reporter of an evening paper telephoned several men whose opinions would likely be well worth quoting; and Mr. Ryan was one of those consulted.

"What do you think about the new American tariff?" asked the newspaperman.

"The new American tariff?"

'Yes; you've seen what has been published about the proposed changes."

Mr. Ryan, as everyone knows, is a Roman Catholic. Also, he is famous as a joker.

"No, I haven't," he answered. "You see I've given up reading the papers during Lent."
